Schley Represented as Disobeying Orders.

OPENED ON THE FORTS.

Washington In the Dark as to the Contest.

Washington, June 1.—Washington was thrown into a fever of excitement by the reports of an engagement off Santiago between Commodore Schley's squadron and the Spanish fortifications and Cervera's fleet, beginning at 2 o'clock and ending at 4, with nothing to indicate the extent of the damage.

The news came from various unofficial sources and with enough apparent detail to give a semblance of truth. In more or less exaggerated form it spread throughout the city, and the military and naval officials were soon besieged for information.

Dispatches from Port-au-Prince said that 14 American warships yesterday bombarded the fortifications at Santiago, and that it was believed that Morro, Putna Gorda and La Zocafa suffered badly.

As the hours wore on and no confirmation was received, the belief became general that no battle had been fought. The state department received no dispatches, although the American consul at Kingston, Louis A. Dent, is one of the promptest news transmitters in the whole consular service. He has seen considerable service as a newspaper man, and does not allow any time to be lost in forwarding facts, although as an official he does not aid in circulating mere rumors. In addition to this, the officials at the navy department not only were without news, but they discredited the reports, saying that they had no expectations that an engagement would take place.

Commodore Schley's orders are to merely hold Admiral Cervera "bottled up" until the proposed military expedition is landed at Santiago. The conditions are such that he would risk everything and gain little by an attempt to force the harbor. In fact, the situation at Santiago is almost exactly similar to that which confronted the Japanese in the recent war with China.

It is of course probable that Commodore Schley might have fired upon the fortifications to test their character and strength and to form an accurate judgment of the force necessary to reduce them. He may also have been fired upon by the shore batteries and thus been drawn into a conflict, or the Spanish fleet may have sallied forth from its retreat and endeavored to escape. If an engagement has occurred, however, it must have been forced upon Commodore Schley. It is positively known that he was not to act aggressively until the military reinforcements from Tampa had reached him.

Definite information today confirmed reports of the day previous. Porto Rico will be invested by American forces, if haste can accomplish that purpose before overtures for peace are made by the Spanish government; and Santiago will be occupied by a sufficient force. Incentive has been given the administration's policy of occupation by the fortunate events at Santiago, and every effort is to be employed to finish the transportation of the armies of occupation before the beginning of the dreaded season of cyclones.

On this account the present month must be the period of operations. July, August, September and the first part of October are the months in which the sinister tropical cyclones rage in the southern waters, a menace to our ships, as well as the thousands of men being transported. It is the present plans to discontinue for that period as far as possible all operations by sea requiring transports.

It is understood that San Juan will be attacked by the combined fleets of Schley and Sampson. The three-hour bombardment of that port by Sampson revealed the strength of the fortifications at that port, and the fallacy of making any but an attack of the most determined kind, that the fortifications may be taken speedily and with minimum sacrifice of life and ships. Encouragement is derived from the reliable reports received by the administration to the effect that the Spaniards have made little attempt to repair the ravages brought on the works by the big guns of the Iowa, New York and other great vessels at the time of that engagement.

Spanish Naval Reserve.

London, June 1.—A Madrid correspondent says: "The reserve squadron now undergoing speed trials and gun drill outside Cadiz harbor is composed of the battleship Pelayor, 821 men; the armored cruiser Emperor Carlos V, 451 men; the cruiser Alfonso XII, 361 men; the auxiliary cruisers Patriota and Rapido, each with 175 men, and four torpedo boat destroyers, each with 120 men. When these vessels are ready to start Admiral Camara hopes to take with them seven trans-Atlantic steamers now preparing at Cadiz. They are armed with Krupp guns and quick fire guns, and carry 250 men each. They will serve at the same time as carriers of coal and war stores for the squadron, which will also carry a strong force of marines and provisions for six months.

Weary of the War.

Madrid, June 1.—Rumors afloat point to the fact that the Spaniards are weary of the war. Premier Sagasta's allusions in congress to an honorable peace have been taken as implying Spain's willingness to accept the mediation of the great powers. Romero Robledo promptly snapped out: "People in a state of war do not talk of peace, honorable or otherwise, unless they are bent that way. Seeking peace means carrying on a half-hearted war."

Mr. Gamazo's very blunt refusal to take on his shoulders the responsibility for the course of the cabinet, confining his connection therewith to the administrative functions of his portfolio (public works), points in the same direction.

A distinguished member of the Silvela party has candidly admitted that it would be a good thing for Spain if she were free from Cuba. "Cuba," he said, "has always been a drag on Spanish resources. We get nothing as a nation from it, but it has, on the contrary, drained us of our best blood and money. True, in the old evil days, individuals made large fortunes out there; but the rapacity, greed, bad government and cruelty have brought nothing but shame on the mother country. It will, therefore be a godsend to Spain when the las·

TWO OF CUBA'S HEROES

General Sanguilly Returns to Help His Country.

Feels Justified In Disregarding His Parole.

Ruses Practiced by Lucret In Evading the Enemy.

Key West, June 1.—General Sanguilly's return to Cuba with the expedition which landed 400 men, 7000 rifles and 2,000,000 rounds of ammunition, is a remarkable incident in his extraordinary career. His gallant service in the 10-year war, his arrest in Havana at the beginning of the present insurrection, his sentence to death and his release at the intercession of Secretary Sherman, on a promise to remain outside of Cuba, have made him a conspicuous man. About six months ago General Gomez ordered him to report for duty, and he did not obey. Now he is going to humble himself before "the old man," and Cubans say that General Gomez is likely to receive him gruffly, take away his sword and order him to fight in the ranks. General Gomez is a great stickler for obedience.

General Collazo, through the failure of the junta to land him in Cuba after the death of General Maceo, was unable to take the command to which he had been assigned. When he did reach Cuba later with an important expedition General Gomez reduced him to the rank of colonel as a punishment for his failure to obey the previous order. This action was taken notwithstanding the fact that Collazo and Gomez are very dear friends. The expedition was convoyed by the Marblehead, a torpedo boat and other warships. Two younger brothers of the late General Nestor Aranguren are with the expedition.

When the present revolution in Cuba began General Lucret Morlot, by which title he is popularly known, took passage for Jamaica. The Cubans wished to go in large numbers, but the steamship company refused to take them, as the trip was especially designed for tourists. Lucret and two companions, however, obtained passage as Frenchmen under assumed names. The English government had information regarding Lucret's movements and prevented him sailing for Cuba from Jamaica. He then went to Mexico and later to New York. At the latter place he consulted with the junta and returned to Tampa, where he remained for some time, vainly waiting for a promised expedition. The stagnation in this line decided him upon a bold move, his life being the forfeit should he fail. He disappeared from his old haunts and was next heard from near Sagua la Grande. Letters were received from him relating the story of his sudden departure.

Realizing the impossibility of reaching Cuba without submitting to grevious delays, he embarked for Havana in the guise of a priest. His army pistols and machete were replaced by rosaries and manuals of the church. Joseph Lucret, the patriot for whose arrest the Spanish authorities would have given a fortune, ran the gauntlet of Havana. Still in the garb of a French priest, he boarded a train for Sagua la Grande. Accompanying him were a large number of Spanish soldiers. The worthy father was the object of considerable attention and respect from them. While the journey was still young, the officers in charge of the "soldados" divulged their plans, their strong points as well as their weak ones. The most critical moment of the journey was at the time of an attack on the train by insurgents. Lucret said that if it had not been for the excitement of the Spaniards they must surely have penetrated his disguise. He went so far as to attempt to join the attacking party, but the train pulled away in time to save his betrayal. To the dying and wounded soldiers he had to administer spiritual comfort, and, this ended, was called upon to bless those who had escaped unhurt. His muttered words may have been blessings, but were more likely imprecations.

Being highly educated, a man of good presence and a "padre" was sufficient to give him an entre into the best Spanish society of Sagua la Grande. Lucret stopped at the finest hotel, and when in the cafe sat at the alcalde's right hand. While enjoying their early morning coffee, noonday breakfast and sunset dinner, the comparative strength and positions of the combatting forces were discussed. The alcalde was thoroughly Spanish, and the priest would hold up his hands in holy horror when the alcalde would mention what he would do to Lucret when he caught him. He had heard that Lucret was coming to command the "banditos" of that vicinity. After communicating with the insurgents, the "padre" suddenly disappeared from the hotel. The alcalde had become very much attached to the fascinating man and wondered what had become of him. The third day brought unexpected tidings in the shape of the following note: "I congratulate myself upon having made your acquaintance when in your city under sacred guise. During my stay you frequently referred to the pleasure it would give you to meet Joseph Lucret, at the same time predicting great punishment for him. I now have 400 men with me in this district, and assure you a meeting would be mutually agreeable."

Since that time Lucret has done valorous service for the cause of Cuban freedom. He was transferred to the province of Matanzas soon after his arrival from Florida, and his career there will form an interesting chapter in the history of Cuba.

The Bulletin Face.

Have you noticed it on the faces of your friends lately. That sudden shifting of the eyes. That sort of an expectant, listening look; that quick, flashing, changing, joyous, wondering combination look? You have and didn't know what to make of it? That's the Bulletin Face. It's not an ingrowing affair or an incurable. It's just a look caused by trying to make out what is where and who is when; by trying to read the Bulletins down in Newspaper Row. He stands in front of the bulletin and reads, and reads, "San Juan has fallen." He does not know whether San Juan is a Spanish Hildago, a war ship or a town. But he hears someone say, "That is good!" so he smiles and wonders. Another bulletin says Cienfuegos has fallen. He hasn't any idea who Cienfuegos is, or where he worked before he got that way; but he knows it does not sound as if an American had surrendered, so he goes and drinks another and comes back to learn that Cavite and Admiral Cervera have sailed for Santiago de Martinique. That sounds well, so he goes and has another smile, and when he comes back he learns that Sampson has blown up 12 Spanish ships and but two American warships were disabled. He understands that and lets a war whoop that would drown the whistle on T. A. Whicher's shop. That's the cause of the new face you see on some of your friends.

When you see a man whose expression is just a settled smile, a continued "tickled to death" look, that's one of the Quincy Clothing Co.'s customers.—Chestnuts! did you say? That's wrong, we do not deal in them. All our goods are new, stamped "1898." No, sir; it's no chestnut. But when you pick up a Boston newspaper and read of the "Great Receiver's Sale," "Bankrupt Sale," or "Dissolution Sale," you may well say chestnuts, for it is the same old story.

We have for this week some suits at $6.50 and $7.50 in Blues, Grays and Browns, that we want to sell you. Good Afternoon.

There is no spot in Quincy—few anywhere—more beautiful than "God's Acre," the resting place of our dead. On Memorial Day, especially, it was a picture of ideal loveliness and the terror of death seemed to be utterly banished from the place. The grass freshened by the recent rains, the trees clothed in their greenest foliage, the flower crowned graves, the rich and elegant stones and monuments, the winding and picturesque paths, what more could nature and art do to enchant the mind; while the sacred and tender associations softened the heart like sweet and plaintive melodies. And, perhaps, it is this two-fold attractiveness of beauty and sorrow which draws the thousands there so steadily on Memorial Day. Under any circumstances the memorial service in honor of our dead heroes is impressive—but it is doubly so amid such scenes as these—where beauty and sorrow unite to hallow the mound of the dead and comfort the soul of the living.

Crop Bulletin.

The weekly crop bulletin for New England reports a promising hay crop, an abundance of fruit continues promising in all sections. Wild berries are blooming bountifully. As a rule garden truck has done well, but the weeds are doing harm; the soil has been too wet for hoeing except in Maine where gardens are reported excellent. In some sections of the state the peas begin to have runners. Strawberries and other garden fruit are in promising condition. So far as can be ascertained at this stage of the season the vegetable crop is promising a bountiful yield. Early potatoes just coming up in Maine and some of the northern sections. In southern fields they are being cultivated. No report of damage by insects as yet.

SCHOOLS PATRIOTIC.

Memorial Exercises Held at High and Other Schools.

Tuesday mcrning at 8.30, the entire school assembled in the High School hall. The following programme was presented:

Music:

a, "To Thee, O Country."

b. "O Lord of Hosts, Thou God of Nations." By the school.

Introductory remarks, Head Master F. A. Tupper.

Address, Comrade James F. Merrill of the G. A. R.

Music:

a. "The Star-Spangled Banner."

b "America" by the school.

Mr. Tupper quoted the recent utterance of General Gomez in reply to General Blanco's attempt to win over the Cubans and their leader:—"I wonder how you dare write to me again about terms of peace when you know that Cubans and Spaniards can never be at peace on the soil of Cuba. You represent on this continent an old and discredited monarchy. We are fighting for an American principle, the same as that of Bolivar and Washington. You say we belong to the same race, and invite me to fight against a foreign invader, but you are mistaken again, for there are no differences of races and blood. I believe in only one race, mankind, and for me there are but good and bad nations, Spain so far having been a bad one and the United States performing in these movements toward Cuba a duty of humanity and civilization. From the wild, tawny Indian to the refined, blonde Englishman, a man for me is worthy of respect according to his honesty and feelings, no matter to what country or race he belongs, or what religion he professes. So are nations for me, and up to the present I have had reasons only for admiring the United States."

Mr. Merrill concurred with Senator Hoar in the opinion that our present war with Spain is a holy war, that is, a war in the highest interests of humanity. Our late Civil war was also conducted in the interests of freedom and humanity. Mr. Merrill emphasized the triumph of right over might, related several incidents of army life, and exhorted the pupils to unwavering loyalty to the old flag.

A vote of thanks was given Mr. Merrill for his interesting address.

AT THE ADAMS.

At the Adams school Tuesday afternoon the Memorial Day exercises, postponed from last Friday afternoon were held. The first six grades assembled in the Master's room and the other grades in their individual rooms. The exercises consisted of singing and speaking of patriotic airs and selections. Shortly before the closing hour the whole school gathered in the school yard and united in the singing of "America" and the "Star Spangled Banner.

AT THE CODDINGTON.

The exercises at the Coddington school were wholly out of doors, and it was a red letter day. Patriotism at this school is nothing new, as Miss Dearborn, the principal, has always observed the National holidays with appropriate programmes with great success. A large number of parents and friends were present on this occasion to enjoy the exercises and the school was fortunate in securing prominent and entertaining speakers. The pupils marched from their rooms at 2 P. M., and took positions near the annex. In front of the large building a platform was erected for the speakers.

Dr. Hallowell of the School Committee was master of ceremonies and spoke of the design of the flag and for what it stood. He then requested the veterans of the Grand Army present to hoist aloft the beautiful new emblem. The children with uncovered heads sang "Star Spangled Banner" and gave three cheers.

They then saluted the flag and the City band played "Hail Columbia."

Concert recitations followed by grades interspersed with selections by the band.

Mayor Sears was introduced and likened our government to a monument. A good foundation was necessary, and our forefathers had builded well that all might enjoy liberty. We educate the children that they may appreciate it. He told an amusing story.

James W. Pierce of the Grand Army told of his personal experiences in the Civil war, which were enjoyed, and at times provoked laughter.

Rev. E. W. Preble, James Merrill and Supt. Lull also spoke interestingly, a selection by the band being given between each of the addresses.

The children then sang "America," and then came cheers. Everyone prominent was remembered, including speakers, principal, teachers, janitor, band and the Coddington. The cheers were given with a will. The school was then dismissed.

OTHER SCHOOLS.

At Wollaston, the programme already published in the Ledger was enjoyed by many, and at the other schools there were Memorial Day exercises. Representative Newcomb spoke for the G. A. R., at the John Hancock building.

SCHOOL BUSINESS.

Changes at Willard Discussed, But Postponed.

The School Committee held its regular monthly meeting Tuesday evening, Messrs. Pierce and Ash being absent.

Mr. Page reported that Miss Marion Bailey had been engaged as teacher of the Massachuusetts Field school in place of Miss Sherman resigned. He also reported that the Commissioners of Public Works was to make necessary changes in the ventilating system at that school.

The committee on text books recommended Clark's Botany as a text book for the High school which was adopted.

The Superintendent reported the expenditures of the department from January 1, to June 1, were as follows:

Salaries,	$28,889.75.
Fuel,	$541.20.
Transportations,	$437.10.
Janitors,	$2,521.26.
Books and supplies,	$3,321.26.
Evening schools,	$460.60.

The use of High School hall was granted the class of '98, for Friday evening, July 1.

The committee on supplies were given permission to use its own judgment as to the proper time to purchase coal.

The Superintendent reported that the interest of the Rock Island fund amounting to $20 had been expended in books for the High scohol.

The matter of changing the system of heating and ventilating the Willard school, as proposed by the Commissioners of Public Works, was discussed at length. The proposed changes would cost $8,000 and would save in coal and repairs nearly $1000 per year. The opinion was advanced, however, that no estimate was made of the repairs which might have to be made on the new system or the extra cost for an engineer to run it.

It was then voted that the committee notify the Commissioner that it is not sufficiently convinced of the economy of a change to recommend it to the Council.

Christian Commission.

Four additional subscriptions are acknowledged today and Mayor Sears forwards the following letter:

Quincy, Mass., May 31, 1898.

My dear Mr. Hoehn:—

I am glad to add my mite for the Christian Commission, when I call to mind what the Christian Commission did in the time of our Civil war, and the advantages which came to the brave men who gave up their lives for their country in the days of the 60's. It is meet that the Commission in these days should receive encouragement from all who desire the comfort of the minds of those who, today, are giving their services in a righteous cause. I trust you may be successful in raising such a sum of money as will enable the Commission to carry on its thorough work.

Believe me, very truly yours,

RUSSELL A. SEARS, Mayor.

THE FIFTH NOW.

A Full Regiment Wanted Under the Second Call.

The hopes of Co. K are again raised by the following Washington dispatch from Coolidge to the Journal:

Col. W. D. Sohfer of the Governor's staff was at the War Department today consulting with Adjutant General Corbin and others with reference to the quota which Massachusetts is to furnish under the second call for volunteers. As a result of his visit the department has decided that it will not be necessary to recruit the heavy artillery beyond its present strength of 751 men. Instead, the State will be asked to furnish a complete regiment of infantry of 1327 men fully armed and equipped, and this, it is believed, can be done from existing militia regiments which have not yet been called into service. The regiments now in the field will be recruited to their full strength. This will involve an increase of 32 men in each company, and it is understood that the additional recruits for each company will be chosen, so far as possible, from the towns and cities from which the companies were originally recruited. This will preserve the identity and the esprit du corps of each company and regiment.

Periodicals at Library.

Periodicals rank second in the classification of books loaned by the Thomas Crane public library. During the year 1897 the total reached 19,003, over 365 per week. Such is the demand that it is necessary to limit the number of days to three for current volumes, and then the Trustees have to purchase in some cases six copies of some of the most popular magazines. A list of the periodicals regularly received at the library has never been published and may be of value; those marked with an asterisk are gifts:

To Work Two Quarries.

It is understood that a Boston firm of contractors, which has a large building contract on hand, has purchased two quarries on the line of the Quincy Quarry railroad, and that they will give employment to seventy-five men. As the granite they are to cut is to be finished, a large part of these seventy-five men will be cutters. This will be good news to Quincy people as new work has begun to fall off some in the granite business.

Large For Boston.

The big 26 ton of granite for the base of the Beacon monument now rests on blocking beside the capacious hole prepared for it. It took twenty horses to haul it to the top of Beacon Hill and the wheels of the jigger which bore it had tires nearly four times as wide as those prescribed for heavy draught wagons in the bill now pending in the House. The law provided that no more than six tons shall be drawn through the streets if the load can be divided. As this granite block cannot be divided, a special permit was necessary.—Journal.

Little Items of Interest About Town.

Miss May Poole is confined to her home with illness.

An entertainment will be held in the Porter M. E. church this evening.

Miss Juno Hutchings of Lynn has been the guest of Miss Nellie Holbrook.

Mrs. S. Turner of Abington has been the guest of her mother Mrs. Charles Hawes

At the invitation of Rev. F. B. Cressey, memorial services were held at the First Baptist church Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. Reynolds Post 58, G. A. R., W. R. C., Ladies' Aid Society, James L. Bates, Camp S.of V. and other organizations were in attendance. A very elabarate programme was carried out. The church was handsomely decorated with red, white and blue bunting, flags, flowers etc. Over the pulpit the national emblem, the American Eagle stood. A large flag had been raised over the entrance, presenting a very graceful effect. The decorations were by Messrs. F. A. Sulis and Fred Thayer and spoke very creditably of their abilities in that direction.

Friday, the following programme was carried out by the pupils of the North High: Singing, "America" by the school. "Invisible Heroes," A. Wesley Sampson '01. "Marguerite," Miss Bearce '00. "Driving home the Cows," Miss Gunville '99. Singing, "Tribute to Washington," school. "Keenan's Charge," Miss Thayer '99. Eulogy on Abraham Lincoln, John R. Bouldry '00. "Drafted," Miss C. Cronin. Singing, "To Thee, O Country," by school.

At the Baptist church Sunday morning, Rev. F. B. Cressey took as his subject "Rejoice in the Lord." The subject of his evening sermon was "Patriotism its Purpose and its Penalties."

At Pythian Hall, Sunday morning, Rev. H. S. Snyder delivered an interesting discourse, entitled "Gladstone, the Progressive Patriot."

Messrs. E. W. Hunt and A. W. Blanchard have been appointed a committee to receive subscriptions for the clock to be placed in the tower of the new church.

Nantasket Beach Travel.

In the words of a Boston daily, the new open trailers that the Consolidated has installed upon its Nantasket Beach branch, answer their purpose in every particular. The delights of a trip along the edge of the white sands of Nantasket are greatly enhanced in getting rid of the whirr of the trolly wheel, and the buzzing of the air compressor on the moters, disturbances which are but slightly observed on the trailer. There is also a firmness about them that reduces the vibration to a minimum, and being well balanced and carefully adjusted to the springs, they slide over the heavy track as smoothly as a Pullman or a Wagner. Traffic to the beach is increasing, Sunday last being the best day of the season so far.

The company is also to be congratulated in having in its beach service so many bright and pleasing trainmen. They are courteous and agreeable, active and efficient. They are clean-cut, their uniforms bright and well kept and their general make-up impresses one with a fee ing that the service is properly looked after, and that the branch belongs to one of the richest and most important transportations systems in the United States. These attentions to details are not lost on the general public, and the fact that complimentary allusions from the patrons of the road do not reach the official ear, should not be taken as meaning that these efforts to please go unnoticed.

TODAY'S COURT.

Daniel S. Baxter was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

James Dillon was fined $10 for drunkenness at Weymouth.

Soloman C. Greenfield was arraigned for obtaining goods by false pretences at Weymouth. Case continued one week.

The continued case of James H. Kingston of Randolph for the illegal sale of liquor was called and he was discharged.

June Magazines.

Just now, when old war memories are being revived, the article on "The Stone Fleet of 1861," by Frank P. McKibben, in the June number of the New England magazine is particulaly opportune. It is an account of an attempt made by the government of the United States during the Civil War to blockade the southern ports, especially Charleston and Savannah, by sinking old vessels loaded with stone in the channels leading to the ports. One of the vessels bought by the government for use with the Stone Fleet was found to be in such sound condition that it was held for better use; and it was this vessel, which afterward played a part in the rescue of the crews from the fleet of whalers ice-bound near Point Belcher, off the coast of Alaska, in September, 1871. An account of this whaling disaster is also given by Mr. McKibbens and both articles are illustrated from old print.

Tennis at Wollaston.

The Merry Mount tennis club held its first tournament on Memorial Day at the Safford street grounds. Although there few entries yet the matches were exciting and interesting throughout.

The score was as follows:

FIRST ROUND.

Bates beat Leavitt, 6-0; 6-3.
Pillsbury beat Sampson, 6-2; 6-2.
Witham beat Emery, 6-5; 4-6; 6-2.
Albee beat Sanborn, 6-3; 4-6; 6-2.

SEMI-FINALS.

Bates beat Pillsbury, 6-3; 6-3.
Witham beat Albee, 6-0; 5-6; 6-4.

FINALS.

C. W. Bates beat R. B. Witham, 6 0; 4-6; 11-9; 6-4.

Mr. Bates, the winner, receives a handsome racket cover for the prize, and will challenge Mr. H. H. Hackett of Yale college for the championship cup. The finals were very exciting each man trying for every point. Bates, as the score shows, had an easy time in the first two rounds, while Witham had played two hard matches. The latter's work was persistent and finally it became a question of endurance. Bates being the fresher of the two, won after three hours hard fighting

The next tournament is a handicap tourney on the Seventeenth of June.

Recklessness.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:—

May I correct an error which appeared in your paper yesterday, reflecting somewhat on Burchsted and Bennett, the two Adams Academy boys who were concerned in the accident on Saturday? The statement made was that the boys were riding on the fender, although the conductor had asked them to ride inside. The boys were riding on the platform, outside the dashboard, an act which the peculiar construction of the car in question made feasible. No request was made, so far as they know, that they should go inside. They were in no more dangerous a position than I, who was standing close by them on the main platform.

The responsibility must be attached to certain employees of the railroad. The Braintree end of the street car service is noted for the recklessness and laxity of its motormen and this is not the first case where a car standing still has been run down under like conditions.

I cannot let my sympathy for the man who was responsible for this accident prevent me from making this public statement in the interest of these boys and of those who use the electric cars.

Yours respectfully,
JOHN O. HALL, Jr.,

Quincy, June 1, 1898

FALLING BY THE WAYSIDE.

Each Recurring Memorial Day Dawns on Fewer of the War Veterans.

The lapse of another year has decimated the ranks of those who stood shoulder to shoulder with the martyrs of war, but who were spared to the nation to help cement the peace they won, and there will be vacant places to evoke fresh tears when the survivors gather about the sacred mounds in the cities of the dead. The scars of bullets and bereavement have been healing a little more as time has laid on the salve of its consolations, but the hands that bore rifles to victory have been aging apace, and as they are stretched out today to lay on the tombs of their dead comrades the floral tribute of undying remembrance they will tremble with the burden of years as they formerly trembled with the burden of fresh sorrow.

And when these steadfast souls, in the fulfillment of the Memorial ceremonial, anon straighten up in line and step forth to the solemn cadence of the music that once thrilled their hearts with eagerness for the clash of arms there will be some seen to totter and some will be stragglers and some will fall by the wayside and all will testify to the approaching end of their battle of life. Memorial day to these is something that sounds the depths of their hearts' most intense emotions.

But the memories which are instinct with personal participation to them touch a chord only a little less responsive in the new generations which have arisen or are growing up about them. The brave fight they fought is a sacred heritage in the patriotism of every true American. The children of the war and their children have drunk in at the mother's knee or in the schoolhouse the glorious record in the nation's history made by these heroes—those dead and those living. They have grown into manhood or are growing into manhood with this love for the defenders of the Union deeply implanted.

The memories of those soldiers who have gone are safe in the keeping of the new generations. The feeble hand of the veteran will be supported by the strong arm of youth while he makes his floral offering at the tomb, and when that feeble band becomes still in final peace youth will take on himself the annual labor of love. The tottering steps of the war's survivors will slacken slowly year by year until they finish at last life's journey, but the march will still go on and on with recruits from the ranks of the sons and grandsons of these veterans.—Chicago Tribune.

GLAD HE KILLED HER.

Deliberate Murder Last Night on a Lowell Thoroughfare.

Young Hostler's Bloody Revenge on His Wife.

Marriage Was Unhappy, and the Couple Were Living Apart.

Lowell, June 1.—Samuel Maxwell shot his wife, Christina, twice in the breast last night while she was walking on Lakeview avenue. The woman was removed by Deputy Chief Moffatt, Inspector Allen and Patrolmen Burnett and Perkins. She died before the arrival of City Physician Smith and in about half an hour after the shooting.

The accused made no attempt to escape. He said to the bystanders that he resided in Lawrence, that his wife had not acted as she should, and that he endeavored to make a better woman of her.

In his pockets at the police station were found a revolver, 22 caliber; photographs of himself and wife, and the following prediction from a fortune teller or astrologer, it is thought: "You have longed for something for a long time that you will obtain later. The matter that occupies your mind at present will succeed. Your wishes will all be satisfied and everything you begin will succeed. You will hear good news soon through a letter. Your luck is sure, and in future you will be satisfied much better. S. Banwell, Montreal."

Maxwell had been employed recently at Orcut's stable, Centralville, as a hostler, but he left last Monday because he did not like the work. At the stable the men said he was of a quiet disposition. Mrs. Maxwell, they said, frequently came to the stable, but there were never any demands on her part for money, nor was there any trouble. Maxwell slept over the stable for a few weeks past.

Maxwell must have been close to his wife when he fired. In his excitement two discharged cartridges failed to hit her. The clothing over the left breast was burned by the powder. The edges of the upper portion of the corsets were covered with blood. In the excitement no one saw Maxwell approach his wife. Three men who were seated inside a railing leaped to the sidewalk when they first heard the shots and they were first to reach the accused. He made no attempt to injure them or himself. When arrested the murderer said he was glad his wife was dead because they had quarrelled, and she refused to live with him.

Secretary Gage has sent to congress recommendations for authority for an additional force of 36 persons necessary for the work of collecting the revenue under the war revenue bill. The collection will cause the creation of a separate tobacco division of the office.

The calculation made at the war department shows that the District of Columbia and Delaware and Vermont have exceeded their quota of troops under the calls for 125,000 and 75,000 volunteers. Consequently they are not to be included in the apportionment of troops under the second call.

Owing to the heavy ice floes on the north coast of Newfoundland that section has been blockaded for weeks. LEWIS' PASSES.

Wonderful That the Bostons Won Yesterday's Game at Home.

Boston, June 1.—The Chicagos succumbed to the Bostons for the third time yesterday. One quickly executed maneuvre, as the tide of victory was turning lakewards in the eighth inning, shone like a flash of lightning athwart a dark sky and turned impending defeat into victory.

"Everything comes to him who waits" came pretty near being the fact with the Chicago boys. Lewis was exceedingly uneven in pitching and made the base on balls record at the grounds this season, with a total of nine passes to first. Eleven hits accompanied these gifts. The fact that the visitors only scored four runs out of all these chances tells what a great factor the playing of Duffy, Bergen and the rest of the boys was in the final winning.

Lowe "cinched" two of Boston's runs in the second inning by a terrific homer over the left side, scoring Collins, who had previously singled, and three hits in the next inning gave the Bostons two more runs. The score:

The Phillies defeated the Louisvilles in an uninteresting game, 4 to 1. Both teams were weak at the bat and their field work was indifferent.

The Washingtons fell on Pitcher Daniels of the St. Louis team in the sixth inning for six hits and clinched the game winning 8 to 5.

The Springfields defeated the Syracuses, 6 to 3. Besides pitching well Hemming batted out a homer in the seventh, which counted for two runs.

It was through no fault of Pitcher Miller that the Brooklyns lost to the Cincinnatis. Blunders by men behind him did the trick. Score: 7 to 2.

In a pitcher's battle, Doheny of the New Yorks had the better end of it until the last two innings, when the Clevelands hit him hard enough to win, 3 to 1.

The Providences defeated the Wilkesbarres in a batting contest, 19 to 11. Both pitchers were batted hard and often, but in addition to all the hitting Coakley was wild and gave 11 bases on balls.

After a long but exciting contest the Pittsburgs won from the Baltimores, 9 to 8, in the ninth.

THE SENATE.

Hawaiian and Revenue Bills Considered at Tuesday's Session.

Washington, June 1.—Senator Lodge had intended in the open session yesterday to defend his action in offering the Hawaiian annexation resolution as an amendment to the pending revenue bill, but refrained because, he said, a secret session would be demanded if that discussion were started. After commenting somewhat severely upon the arrogance of the minority, which prevented action upon a question which the majority in both houses of congress desired to dispose of, he began a discussion of some of the questions arising out of the present war. Evidently believing this not a proper subject for public discussion, Mr. Turpie asked for and the senate agreed to a secret session, at which the subject was discussed for three hours.

Senators Pettigrew and White were antagonistic to annexation, and Senator Hale announced himself favorable to final adjournment after the passage of the war revenue bill and necessary appropriation bills. Mr. Pettigrew devoted himself especially to Senator Chandler's declaration that the acquisition of the islands was a necessity of war. He contended that such was not the case, and argued that Unalaska, a town within our own borders, was a far more desirable stopping point for ships bound to the orient from San Francisco than Honolulu could be. He said Honolulu and Unalaska were each about 2100 miles from San Francisco, but that while Honolulu was more than 4900 miles distant from Manila, Unalaska was only a little over 4100 miles. "Why," he asked, "did not our government, in view of this difference in distance and in view of the saving of two days' time, store coal at Unalaska instead of Honolulu, unless to force acquiescence in the acquisition of the islands as a war measure, when it was known that annexation could not be accomplished in time of peace?"

Senator White thought he saw in the effort to secure Hawaiian annexation at this time a desire to establish a precedent for similar proceedings in other cases, and said that the matter should be postponed until after the war and all efforts at annexation considered together. He thought that if our principal object had been that of securing a coaling station we should have fortified Pearl harbor, but as this had not been done, it was evident that we must have other deigns.

Murder In the First Degree.

Ossipee, N. H., June 1.—John Ralph Hatch, M. D., of Centerville, a village in the town of Ossipee, has been found guilty of murder in the first degree on the charge of causing the death of his wife on Sept. 11, 1897, by means of poison mixed with her food.

There were 17 witnesses for the defence. Agnes Wiggin, a state witness, was recalled by the defence and identified several letters which were read to the jury. They were dated October, 1897, after the death of the respondent's wife. They contained expressions of sincere love and undying affection for Miss Wiggin, and were produced with an attempt to show that the relations of the doctor with the girl were never of a criminal character.

Illness at Camp Tampa.

Tampa, Fla., June 1.—There is considerable sickness among the soldiers of the Seventy-first New York volunteers and although only one fatality has occurred so far, several members of the regiment are seriously ill. Seventeen of them are now under the care of the physicians. Most of the sickness is due to the change of weather, although long hours of drilling in the intense heat, to which the northerners are unaccustomed, have resulted in several prostrations.

Departure of the Ninth.

South Framingham, Mass., June 1.—The fighting Ninth left for Washington yesterday afternoon amid the greatest enthusiasm. The first event of the day was the arrival of Governor Wolcott, who came to give the commonwealth's godspeed as he has done to the preceding regiments. The governor had a long talk with Colonel Bogan, but did not address the regiment.

The regiment came out for its final dress parade early in the afternoon, and the visiting bands assisted in the march past. At the close of the parade Mayor Quincy, with others from Boston, stepped toward Colonel Bogan, and a number of interesting and eloquent speeches followed. Colonel Bogan made a brief reply and then gave the order to march. With music by three bands, the regiment broke into columns of fours and headed for the gate. Governor Wolcott reviewed the regiment as it went by.

A Philippine Expedition.

San Francisco, June 1.—The next expedition to the Philippines will probably include a large number of regulars. It is stated that General Merritt will carry out his idea in this regard by selecting all the regular forces of this department for the advance guard of the expedition. The Third artillery, consisting of eight batteries, one at San Diego and the other seven at Fort Point, this city, expects to receive orders to prepare for active duty in the Philippines. It is expected that the Sixth artillery, now stationed at Fort McHenry, Md., will be brought here for coast defense purposes, while the Fifteenth United States infantry, now stationed in Arizona, will be brought here for the Philippine expedition and their places in Arizona filled by a company of California volunteers.

General Merritt is having the work of preparing the next fleet of transports rushed. It is believed the Zalandria will be ready to receive the troops by the end of the present week. She is receiving her coal and the bunks for 1000 men are nearly finished. Bunks for 1200 men are being fitted on the China, and she will be ready by the middle of next week. The work of preparing the Colon is progressing rapidly, and she will be fit for sea within a week. Both the China and the Colon will be placed under the American flag.

His First Duty to His State.

Jefferson City, Mo., June 1.—Governor Stephens has sent the following telegram to W. J. Bryan at Lincoln, Neb.: "Seeing that your state, under the second call for 75,000 volunteers, may not be requested to furnish a full regiment and knowing of your patriotism and anxiety to go to the front in the service of your country during the present war, I hereby tender you, if under the second call I am empowered by the secretary of war to make such appointment, the colonelcy of the Missouri regiment. Presuming to speak for my state, I say that our people would be as loyal to you personally as you to your country, and they will feel honored to fight under your leadership."

Mr. Bryan wired the following reply: "I am deeply indebted to you for the great honor you do me. I should be pleased to be associated in any way with the Missouri volunteers, but it is quite certain that all or a considerable portion of my regiment will be accepted, and I feel that my first duty is to the Nebraska boys."

Saw American Squadron.

London, June 1.—A dispatch to The Daily Mail from Kingston says: "A large American squadron, supposed to be Rear Admiral Sampson's, was seen off Port Antonio, on the north coast of Jamaica, 25 miles northwest of Morant Point, the eastern extremity of the island, steaming westward."

Greeting to General Lee.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 1.—Hundreds crowded the station last night and cheer upon cheer greeted General Lee as he stepped from his car. A committee of citizens met him and he was escorted to the Seminole club, where he was entertained by his old friends. He was driven afterwards to the Windsor hotel, which will be his headquarters here. Later in the evening, accompanied by several members of his staff, General Lee paid his respects to General Miles and his party during their stay in the city.

Pertaining to Boston.

Boston, June 1.—The cathedral of the Holy Cross had a narrow escape from damage by fire last night. Some sparks from the incense burners ignited the draperies of the altar in the basement, and when the fire was discovered it was burning briskly. The blaze was speedily extinguished with a loss of about $200.

Two companies of the provisional militia have been accepted by the governor, one at Stoneham and one at Brockton. That at Stoneham will be called the First company and that at Brockton the Second company.

The Leyland line steamship Cestrian came into port from Liverpool with her bows badly crushed, as a result of a collision with an iceberg. The accident occurred at 10:45 o'clock on the night of May 27, when the ship was steaming at reduced speed while crossing the ice track and every precaution had been taken to escape contact with the floating masses.

There were numerous flag raisings in this city and vicinity last night, including one by the Marketmen's club, which threw to the breeze the second largest flag in the country. At one gathering in South Boston a band stand crowded with women and children collapsed, and escapes from serious injury were numerous.

Strength of the Socialists.

New Bedford, Mass., June 1.—William S. Greene of Fall River, the Republican nominee, was elected to congress yesterday to fill the unexpired term of John Simpkins. There was little interest in the contest, except in Fall River, and the vote was exceedingly light. In Chilmark, on Martha's Vineyard, no vote was polled. Opposed to Mr. Greene were ex-Congressman Randall of this city, independent Republican; Charles T. Luce of New Bedford, Democrat, and Walter P. J. Skahan, also of New Bedford, socialist labor.

In New Bedford the vote was: Randall, 736; Skahan, 731; Greene, 661; Luce, 138. The strength of the socialists was a great surprise, as the party cast only 187 votes last November, but the result was undoubtedly due to the recent strike and to an active campaign.

In Fall River the vote was: Greene, 3081; Randall, 328; Luce, 319; Skahan, 97. Nearly all the towns went for Greene by fair sized majorities, and his plurality throughout the district will probably be about 3500.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, June 1.—One of the surprising occurrences of the session yesterday was the reference to the next general court of the mill school tax bill. A long debate was expected on this subject. Last year the bill passed both branches of the legislature, but was vetoed by the governor.

The bill to provide for the appointment of conservators of the property of aged persons who are unable to care therefor was engrossed in the house after Mr. Hayes of Lowell had tried to knock it out by ridiculing both the bill and the committee on the judiciary. The wide tire bill was defeated.

Senator George offered as a substitute for the bill providing for the appointment of probation officers in the superior court, a bill providing that the justices of the superior court may put in charge of the probation officers of cities or towns, or of the chief of police, persons whom it is deemed wise to place on probation.

The house concurred in the senate amendments fixing the salaries of the gas and electric light commissioners at $4000 for the chairman and $3500 each for the other two members, an increase of $1000 all around.

Police Hero Hurt.

Springfield, June 1.—While 8000 people crowded the depot platforms and tracks in Pittsfield about 9:30 o'clock last night awaiting the arrival of the Ninth regiment's special train, an east-bound express train dashed into the crowd, its warning bells and whistles being drowned by the bands and drum corps. Chief Nicholson, Captain Leonard and other police officers rushed down the tracks driving back the crowds. Captain Leonard tried to push Edward Lynch from the track, and both were struck by the train. Captain Leonard's skull was fractured, and his left arm broken, besides receiving many bad cuts and bruises. Lynch, aged 60, a shoemaker, had the bone in one shoulder crushed and received bad injuries at the hips. Both men are in a critical condition.

Kellert on Trial.

Montreal, June 1.—The investigation into the charge against Detective Kellert of having stolen a letter from the room of Lieutenant Carranza was commenced yesterday. Carranza was the only person examined. He repeated the story of how the letter was stolen. The examining magistrate refused to allow the question as to the contents of the letter, or to whom it was addressed, but Carranza stated that it was addressed to a relative, and added that his letters were habitually opened in transmission through the mails. He testified that he was here simply as a tourist. He failed to identify Kellert as the man he saw in the house about the time the letter was stolen. Dubosc acted as interpreter.

Killed on a Train.

Worcester, June 1.—Private Charles I. Dougherty of company I, Ninth regiment of South Boston, was fatally injured on the journey of the regiment from South Framingham to this city. Dougherty, while leaning out of a car window, was struck by a standpipe at Westboro, sustaining a fracture of the skull and a broken jaw. He was rendered unconscious and never regained his senses.

Murdered His Family.

London, June 1.—Frederick Hall, a crate maker, living at Bursiem, in Staffordshire, murdered his wife and five children with a bill hook, and then committed suicide by cutting his throat. It is supposed that man had suddenly become insane.

Sampson and Schley Have Discretionary Power.

NOT TO WAIT FOR ARMY.

President Expects Them to Take Santiago.

RECONNOISANCE CHANGED THE PLANS.

Weakness of the Fortifications and Gunners' Poor Marksmanship.

Washington, June 2.—It is now the president's hope that the navy will finish the war which it has fought throughout immediately, and that the army will not be needed, except for the purposes of occupation.

Admiral Sampson is now off Santiago, in command of the combined fighting fleets, comprising the Iowa, Indiana, Massachusetts, Oregon, Texas, the New York and Brooklyn, beside monitors, cruisers and smaller craft, with Commodore Schley commanding the second division, prepared to overwhelm the Santiago fortifications and the four armored cruisers and two torpedo boat destroyers in Admiral Cervera's command lying in the bottle-shaped harbor behind them, and the expectation is that, without waiting for the landing of the troops to take the fortifications in the rear, Admiral Sampson and Commodore Schley will end the war.

The change in the administration's plans, which gives Admiral Sampson and Commodore Schley their great opportunity, was made possible by the reconnoissance which Commodore Schley made of the fortifications at Santiago and the ships of Admiral Cervera. This was the basis for the report of an engagement which came Tuesday night and yesterday from Santiago. Commodore Schley was feeling the enemy, to see what his condition was, and with such results that, although he only expended 50 shells, while the Spanish fired three times as many, and suffered all the loss, he discovered that both fortifications and ships were so inefficient in action that they could be taken by ships, without the necessity of assistance by troops. Commodore Schley accomplished, in developing these facts, all that he had expected to do, and got the information he hoped to get.

There was nothing more for his fleet to do but wait until Admiral Sampson arrived with a fleet more formidable than that with which Schley corked up Admiral Cervera. Then he reported to Admiral Sampson what he had discovered as to the weakness of the fortifications and ships, which seemed to be in equally bad condition, and to be equipped with equally bad gunners, and Admiral Sampson saw, as Commodore Schley had seen, that the navy could do the work without the army, and that it need not delay a day that decisive victory for which he knew the administration and the country were impatiently awaiting.

The fight Tuesday was the sequel to the Marblehead's discovery. The Marblehead, cruising in close to the harbor entrance, found four Spanish cruisers, two torpedo boat destroyers and the old Reina Mercedes lying behind the batteries at the mouth of the harbor.

Schley at once made up his mind to draw the fire of the batteries. His object was two-fold—to make the enemy reveal the location of the new masked batteries and to compel, if possible, the Spanish fleet to come out and fight.

When the American fleet advanced the Cristobal Colon lay across the entrance of the harbor, her port broadside facing the assailants. Schley wanted to get into the thick of whatever was going to happen, so transferred his flag from the Brooklyn to the more heavily armed Massachusetts. This was at noon.

Two hours later the Massachusetts, New Orleans and Iowa in the order named, and not more than a cable length apart, steamed up to the harbor mouth to within 4000 yards of the Morro.

The dispatch boat, the only non-combatant present, followed the battle ships. Two miles out to sea the Brooklyn, Texas and other ships of the blockading fleet smoked sullenly, riding the waves with just headway enough for steering purposes. Six minutes' steaming would have brought them into the fight, but they got no invitation, and so lay there until the end.

"The Spaniards didn't hit a d—d thing but the ocean, and would have missed that if it wasn't so big," shouted "Fighting Bob" Evans from the bridge of the Iowa, when asked as to the casualties.

Federal Officials Arbitrary.

Washington, June 2.—The complaints made against the United States officers at Key West of improper treatment of the captives on prizes brought in by American vessels are being daily reinforced, and are creating so much dissatisfaction here that it would not be surprising if the prizes hereafter taken by naval vessels were ordered further north to Charleston, for instance, thus depriving the Key West officials of the fat fees which they have been making from this source.

First came the report from Admiral Sampson of Cadet Jones' charges against the officials which are to be investigated by a naval court. The latest case is in connection with the British ship Restormal, which was captured off Santiago with a load of coal apparently destined for the Spanish fleet inside. This vessel was brought into Key West with a prize crew and, although her British nationality was perfectly evident, the officials at that port positively refused to permit the captain to communicate with the British vice consul. The British embassy here, being advised of the fact, made prompt representations to the state department, with the result that orders were forwarded without delay to the district attorney's office at Key West to at once put the captain of the Restormal in communication with the vice consul.

Florida's Rainy Season.

Tampa, June 2.—General Miles remained in his hotel all day discussing the situation with Generals Shafter and Wheeler.

The rainy season on the Florida coast may now be said to have fairly commenced. A terrific thunderstorm was experienced here yesterday. The rainfall for half an hour was simply enormous, but the ground, dried into powder by a drouth that has lasted for eight months, readily absorbed the moisture. The dust and heat of the past two weeks have been almost unbearable, and drilling hours have been shortened.

Deaths at Chickamauga.

Chickamauga Park, June 2.—Death has again invaded the ranks of the New Englanders at Camp Thomas.

Corporal Clarence Stewart of company M, Eighth Massachusetts, of Somerville died at 9:30 last evening of pneumonia. Bugler William Stopford of the First Vermont died just four hours earlier at the hospital of his regiment, of the same complaint.

Another New England man was nearly lynched in the camp of the Second Kentucky volunteers and was without doubt saved from such a fate by Colonel E. H. Gaither of that regiment. William W. Ruby, a colored private in company A of the First Maine, is the man who came near being hanged.

Grant as Brigadier General.

Chickamauga National Park, June 2.—Colonel Fred D. Grant yesterday took the oath as brigadier general, and the ceremony was one of intense interest. The oath was administered by Judge Harris of Rome, Ga., an ex-Confederate, and the ceremony was witnessed by a large concourse of people, in which were Confederate and federal soldiers. General Grant expressed great satisfaction that he should have the privilege of assuming the obligations of his office from so distinguished a Confederate, and when the ceremony was over a great shout went up, the first man to shake hands with and congratulate the distinguished officer being Major Gillespie of this city, who was with General Lee when he surrendered at Appamattox. The scene was one unique in the history of the country, and the incident created the greatest enthusiasm, which broke into cheers that almost shook Missionary ridge when General Grant said: "Shake hands now, not over a bloody chasm, but on the soil of a country, one in its loyalty to the one flag."

There are probably 200 soldiers of the various regiments who are sick at division hospitals, in view of which the Chattanooga branch of the national relief committee announces that it is ready to receive any contributions that may be sent from the various states for the relief and sustenance of the sick.

Efforts of Governor Powers.

Augusta, Me., June 2.—The greater part of the equipments were issued to the First Maine battery yesterday, and it is thought the battery will be ready to leave before Sunday.

LEWELLYN POWERS.

Governor Powers is endeavoring to induce the war department to have the Second regiment mustered in, instead of recruiting the First regiment to 106 men per company.

Only a Few Lacking.

Washington, June 2.—With the exception of one regiment of Ohio and some troops in Kentucky, the mustering of volunteers under the first call of the president is completed. Adjutant General Corbin announced last night that a trifle over 123,000 men had been mustered. Nearly all of the troops have been ordered to report to one and another of the permanent camps, and the last few thousands are now en route to their destinations.

Arrangements were completed yesterday for the recruiting of 75,000 additional troops under the second call for volunteers. It has been decided, however, to withhold the apportionment of the different states and territories from publication for the present, as such publication at this time would tend to embarrass and delay the officials of the department in the organization of the new regiments.

ATTACK ON THE QUEEN.

Article by Castelar Caused a Great Sensation.

Senators Demand That He Be Prosecuted.

Organ of the Critic's Party Subjects Him to Reprovals.

Madrid, June 2.—An article, signed by Emilio Castellar, the distinguished Republican statesman, which recently appeared in The International Review, and which has been reproduced in several Spanish papers, that are being prosecuted for the reproduction, has caused a great sensation. Castellar attacks the queen regent, reproaching her with being a foreigner and unpopular, and with interferring unjustifiably in political affairs. He compares her present position with that of Queen Marie Antoinette on the eve of the French revolution.

SENOR EMILIO CASTELAR

The matter came before the senate yesterday, Duke De Roca demanding the prosecution of Castellar. Other senators expressed in violent terms their indignation at Mr. Castellar's conduct.

Senator Cadepon, the minister of the interior, announced that the matter had already been placed before the law officers. Marshal Campos described Castellar's conduct as "idiotic," and called upon the government to act energetically, declaring that parliamentary immunity must not be allowed to degenerate into impunity. He said he feared the chamber of deputies might refuse to authorize a prosecution.

The Duke of Tetuan, minister of foreign affairs in the last cabinet of Canovas del Castillo, and the president of the senate, Montero Rios, endorsed the utterances of Marshal Campos, while senators generally extolled the queen regent and protested against the obnoxious article.

The Impartial, which represents the Republicans, handles Castellar roughly for his "unpatriotic conduct" and reproaches him for accepting the post of counsellor to an English company at Algeciras and for "working entirely in favor of foreigners." The Impartial hints that "senility threatens to deprive Castellar of the reputation of a great career."

Castellar's article has had all the greater effect because it seems to indicate that he has modified his decision to retire from political life in deference to the wishes of those desiring to put him forward as a possible president of a republic.

Dewey's Keen Americanism.

Chicago, June 2.—Charles N. Post, who has just returned from an extended tour of the orient, met Admiral Dewey in Honk Kong March 25. Mr. Post tells of a social passage at arms between Dewey and Prince Henry, brother of Emperor William, commanding the German squadron at Hong Kong. Prince Henry, after his arrival at Hong Kong, gave a banquet to the higher officers of the other fleets, among whom was Rear Admiral Dewey. The prince proposed a toast to his own country, then to Great Britain, and then to all the other great powers, except the United States. Finally, just before the dinner was over, the royal host proposed a toast to this country. When Rear Admiral Dewey saw that apparently his country was to be slighted he left the banquet without ceremony.

The next day a representative of Prince Henry sent a roundabout apology to the American commander. Dewey sent word back to the emperor's brother that he would accept nothing but a written or personal apology from the prince. The latter then called upon Dewey and apologized, saying that in the confusion of the dinner he (the prince) thoughtlessly neglected to put the American toast in its proper place on the program.

Royal makes the food pure, wholesome and delicious.

A Tribute to Max Butler

The news of the sudden death of Mr. Butler was a great shock to his many friends and acquaintances, who were not aware of the seriousness of his illness. He was apparently in good health, and wholly recovered from his recent attack of typhod fever. But the effects of that illness had left him in no condition to undertake the work which he was desirous of completing at Harvard college and he came down with appendicitis, from which he died, after a short illness.

Mr. Butler was in the senior class at Harvard. He was a prominent member of the class, and was exceedingly popular among his college friends. He was very well known in athletic circles. In his freshman year, he won distinction in the class games, and was a member of the Mott Haven team in his sophomore year. During the spring of this year he represented Harvard on the team which was victorious over Pennsylvania on Franklin Field.

Mr. Butler had lived in Quincy during the last six years, and had a large circle of friends here. Though he had been but a short time in the city, he was endeared to all who knew him, and his loss will be keenly felt throughout the entire city. He was the only child of Rev. and Mrs. E. C. Butler, and the sympathy of all the members of the community goes out to them now, in the time of their bereavement.

Volunteer Aid.

A board of directors consists of two ladies from each church, with Mrs. W. E. Simmons as chairman for the month of June.

They are at work fitting out a hospital ship and all ladies interested in the cause are invited to meet with them and sew.

Flag Social.

The flag social at the Presbyterian church Wednesday evening by the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor was very largely attended and proved to be a very enjoyable affair.

The vestry of the church was elaborately decorated with the American and Cuban flags, hundreds being used. There was recitations and singing of a patriotic nature and patriotic addresses by Mayor Russell A. Sears, Secretary Hoehn of the Y. M. C. A. and by the pastor of the church, Rev. Robert Westley Peach. Ice cream and cake were served during the evening.

—The Allston golf team was defeated by the Braeburn golfers Tuesday 14 to 4.

ENTERTAINMENT.

For the Benefit of the Park and Downs Society.

A very interesting and enjoyable entertainment was given at Norfolk Downs hall Wednesday evening and was attended by a large and appreciative audience. The affair was under the management of Mr. Stewart Sanford, Mr. Geo. L. Marr and Mr. Charles Staples of Wollaston Park.

By request, "America," was sung by the audience standing. Then a recitation, "America," by Mr. G. H. Prentiss, Solo by Mr. Edward E. Bullock accompanied by Miss Eva Hunter. Reading, (character) by Mrs. H. P. Furnald. Solo by Mr. C. Dugan. Reading, by Miss Waterhouse. Piano solo, by Miss Eva Hunter. Solo by Mr. Edward E. Bullock, accompanied by Miss Eva Hunter.

The entertainment concluded with an Irish farce entitled "The Duchess of Dublin," with the following cast:

Dr. Adam Aconite,	Mr. H. French
Frank Friskey,	Mr. F. Preble
Oliver Oldbuck,	Mr. Peter Gomez
Silas Sharpset,	Mr. H. P. Furnald
Dennis Doolan,	Mr. Ernest Preble
Peter Plumpface,	Mr. H. Coburn
Annie Aconite,	Miss L. Gay
Lucy Linden,	Miss Bertha Foss
Abigail All-love,	Miss Abbie Barnes
Maggie Mullen, The Duchess,	Mrs. H. P. Furnald

Mr. Bullock was easily the star in the first part of the programme, his singing eliciting great applause. In the farce all took their parts well which was proven by the pleasure manifested by the audience.

After the entertainment, ice cream and cake were served to the talent in the upper hall.

The proceeds will go to the benefit of the Park and Downs Congregational society.

Q. H. S. Debate.

Wednesday, the new president, Mr. Marnock, '98, took the chair at the meeting of the Q. H. S. Debating Society. Mr. Thomas, secretary, read an able report of the last meeting.

The debate of last week, Resolved, that education in the United States ought to be more thorough—was continued by the following speakers: Affirmative—Miss Comins, Miss Alicia Elcock, Miss Frances Elcock, and Miss Fowler; Negative — Miss Hayden, Miss Hodgkinson, Miss King, Miss Lingley, Miss Lowe and Miss McDonald. All members of '99.

In the open debate the following pupils took part: Mr Field, '98; Miss King, '99; Miss Comins, '99; Mr. R. McDonnell '98; Mr. Lewis, '98; Miss Mitchell, '99; Mr. Wade, '98; Mr. Murphy, '99.

In the opinion of the board of decision the affirmative side won the debate.

Mr. Hewitson offered the critics report, and availed himself of the opportunity to give the society some good advice.

There was time for only two numbers of the entertainment programme:—declamation by Mr. Northcott, '99; and essay, "Our relations with Spain," by Miss Ward, '98. Both of these numbers were of excellent quality.

Bicycle Reform.

Either bicycle thieves have reformed, or wheels are so cheap that it is cheaper in the end to buy than to steal, is the conclusion reached by a well known wheelman after his experience of Wednesday. He rode to the centre on his wheel in the morning and left it standing on the sidewalk between the Post office and Derby's store while he went for his mail. That was the last he thought of his wheel until evening, when passing the post office he saw a wheel standing against the building which looked familiar, and upon closer examination he found that it was his. How it came there he was at a loss to know until he remembered that he had left it there in the morning. He now has a good opinion of the honesty of Quincy people, although some one was cruel enough to say that the wheel was not good enough to steal.

UNIQUE SOCIABLE.

Different Sections of the Country Represented.

The Ladies' Benevolent society gave a successful sociable in the vestry of the Wollaston Congregational church on Wednesday evening, the proceeds of which went towards purchasing a new carpet for the church. Mrs. Edward S. Tenny was chairman of the committee of arrangements. Around the vestry there were tables symbolic of the different sections of the country. There was the New England table over which Mrs. John A. Barbour and Mrs. Crowell presided. They had for sale baked beans and brown bread, pies, hot coffee and maple sugar.

The table representing the Middle Central states was in charge of Mrs. Geo. W. Nash and Mrs. R. B. Tobey. They sold cereals, sandwiches, ham and pork.

Then came the Southern table with Mrs. H. T. Whitman and Mrs. N. G. Nickerson with a tempting array of bananas, peanuts, oranges and sherbet.

The Western and Pacific table was in charge of Mrs. W. H. Brasee and Mrs. Chas. A. Campbell and had salmon salad, olives and lemonade for sale.

Mrs. Chas. G. Farwell, Mrs. D. K. Swartmout and Mrs. W. M. Wight sold strawberries from the Central Atlantic table.

The entertainment was very good, as well as decidedly original.

The Southern states and New England states were represented by songs, the verses of each being sung alternately.

For the Middle Atlantic states, Elijah Swift gave a recitation and Corrine Barbour sang a pretty song.

For the Central states, Edward Hewitson gave a recitation and there was also a song by a male quartette.

Then came an interesting talk on the Pacific states by the Rev. Rufus B. Tobey, which was illustrated by a stereopticon.

Open Air Dog Show.

There are over 400 entries for the exhibition of the New England Kennel club at Brainree (near Capen's bridge) on Saturday, and it promises to be the best affair of its kind ever held in New England. The number of dogs entered in the different clases is appended:

Christian Commission.

Another endorsement of the Christian Commission has been reached:

Editors of the Ledger:—

From the standpoint of one who is liable to be in a position to appreciate to the utmost the influence and benefits of the Christian Commission, which is so earnestly advocated by the Y. M. C. A., I can assure those who so generously contribute, that the result of their efforts will appeal to the men of volunteer army more strongly at this time than ever.

I would also like to call their attention again to the fact that Free Cuba will present a ripe field for true Christian missionary work.

The person at Wollaston who sent the Ledger news yesterday should not be surprised if the news does not appear. A one cent stamp is not sufficient to send a letter to Quincy, and it is held for postage.

Messrs. John Curtis and John S. Blagdon were the champion whist players at the Granite City club on Wednesday evening. Gordon and Langley were not in it. Some said it was because Ewell forgot the cheese. But good luck does not always go with their good playing.

The following from Quincy sailed on the steamship Conada today for Sweden: Clara Gabrielson, Carin Jacobson, John Anderson Axel Anderson, Axel L. Anderson, Ida Person, C. L. Nilson., Christina Nilson, Gennan Nordenson and Augusta Petterson. These all secured their tickets through the agency of C. F. Carlson who also furnished tickets to Hilda Erickson and Joephine Abramson of Neponset who sailed on the same boat.

The trustees of the Thomas Crane public library held the regular meeting Wednesday evening. The Crane heirs have approved of the expenditure of the improvement fund for the tile walks and have generously added thereto sufficient to complete the work this year, so that the improvement will shortly be made. Several new books were approved and will be added the library. The suggestion that a flag be raised on the building was informally discussed, and there was a difference of opinion; no action was taken.

SAVED HIS MONEY.

How a Shrewd Prisoner In Libby Fooled the Confederate Guards.

"The rebels used to rob the prisoners of war of all their valuables," said one of the veterans at the Buffalo reunion. "I think it is probable that I am the only prisoner who was confined in Libby prison who succeeded in saving any considerable amount of money from their clutches.

"The morning of my arrival at Libby the officers of the prison came into the room where I and half a hundred others were and began to search us. I had heard a good deal about the ropes at Libby from some prisoners who had been exchanged from there, and I felt sure that as soon as they had searched us they would send us up into the room directly above us. I looked up and saw that there was a good sized hole in the floor of the upper room, and an idea for saving my money, of which I had a considerable sum, at once struck me.

"Standing near me was a comrade with whom I was very intimate. He did not have a cent, so I suggested to him that he go forward among the first to be searched, and if he was sent to the upper room he should lower a long string down through the hole, to which I could tie my valuables so that he could haul them up.

"The plan worked like a charm. The room we were in was dark, and a few moments after my comrade had been searched I saw a string come down through the hole. I tied my money, several hundred dollars, and my watch up in my handkerchief and tied them to the string, which ascended, taking its burden in safety. Then I was searched, rejoined my comrade and got my valuables back."—Buffalo Express.

SPLINTERS FROM SPAIN.

The average number of horses killed in Spanish bullfights every year exceeds 5,000, while from 1,000 to 1,200 bulls are sacrificed.

All well trained Spanish women are taught to handle the sword from their earliest years, and as a result they are noted for their admirable figures and easy walk.

Mazzantini, the famous Spanish bullfighter, was a railway porter in his early days. He now occupies a foremost position in his profession and makes at least £10,000 a year.

When the sardines, anchovies and salmon are scarce on the Spanish coast, the fishermen augment their income by diving for coral, a profitable diversion from their ordinary employment.

Spain is rich in minerals, and the working of the mines is carried on under state supervision. Their resources are by no means fully developed, about 60,000 people only being employed underground.

The celebrated bullfighter Reverte, on one occasion after a triumphal corrida in San Sebastien, lit a cigarette with a French bank note for 1,000 francs, to show his contempt for money in general and French money in particular.

In 1875 there was nearly a war between Spain and the United States in connection with American interference in Cuba, and on that occasion Don Carlos proposed a truce between his troops and the Royalists and offered to fight against the United States. Thus does history repeat itself.

The schoolteachers of Spain live in a delightful state of uncertainty respecting their pay. Their salaries are generally in arrears and a case was investigated recently when a man declared he had not received a farthing for 17 years. He lived solely on the profits accruing from the sale of schoolbooks to the children.

Naval Salutes.

The naval regulations prescribe that upon the observance of a national solemnity in foreign ports or in the presence of foreign ships due notice of the time and conducting the occasion shall be given by the senior officers to the port authorities and to the senior officer of the foreign ships of each nationality present. Should any foreign authorities or ships take part by firing salutes or otherwise an officer is required to be sent to give thanks for the courtesy.

Memorial Day In Other Lands.

The police of Paris are called upon every year to suppress what would be, if allowed to proceed, a decoration service. The leaders of the Red party make the effort every year between May 23 and May 26 to decorate the graves of the men who fell in the ranks of the commune. But aside from these there are no decoration days in France. Neither is there a holiday in England which resembles in the least the American Memorial day.—Exchange.

Sterling Refrigerators
It's none of our business what kind of a refrigerator a man buys. If he's satisfied with doubtful quality, that's his lookout, he pays the bills. But if a man wants sterling quality, the kind that keeps his food sweet and always fresh, there isn't a refrigerator in existence that will give the continuous satisfaction of the old, reliable Eddy. No guess work about them, the result of over fifty years of successful refrigerator manufacturing.

The Bulletin Face.

Have you noticed it on the faces of your friends lately. That sudden shifting of the eyes. That sort of an expectant, listening look; that quick, flashing, changing, joyous, wondering combination look? You have and didn't know what to make of it? That's the Bulletin Face. It's not an ingrowing affair or an incurable. It's just a look caused by trying to make out what is where and who is when; by trying to read the Bulletins down in Newspaper Row. He stands in front of the bulletin and reads, and reads, "San Juan has fallen." He does not know whether San Juan is a Spanish Hildago, a war ship or a town. But he hears someone say, "That is good!" so he smiles and wonders. Another bulletin says Cienfuegos has fallen. He hasn't any idea who Cienfuegos is, or where he worked before he got that way; but he knows it does not sound as if an American had surrendered, so he goes and drinks another and comes back to learn that Cavite and Admiral Cervera have sailed for Santiago de Martinique. That sounds well, so he goes and has another smile, and when he comes back he learns that Sampson has blown up 12 Spanish ships and but two American warships were disabled. He understands that and lets a war whoop that would drown the whistle on T. A. Whicher's shop. That's the cause of the new face you see on some of your friends.

When you see a man whose expression is just a settled smile, a continued "tickled to death" look, that's one of the Quincy Clothing Co.'s customers.—Chestnuts! did you say? That's wrong, we do not deal in them. All our goods are new, stamped "1898." No, sir; it's no chestnut. But when you pick up a Boston newspaper and read of the "Great Receiver's Sale," "Bankrupt Sale," or "Dissolution Sale," you may well say chestnuts, for it is the same old story.

We have for this week some suits at $6.50 and $7.50 in Blues, Grays and Browns, that we want to sell you. With every suit is a guarantee from the manufacturers as to their wearing and durability, and if they do not give perfect satisfaction you get a new suit. No Boston clothing merchant can beat the pants we sell for $1.48. For $2.48 we have a child's suit that cannot be equalled in this city for $3.50. You can save from 5 to 25 per cent. on any article you buy, and if you are not satisfied you can get your money back.

Gleanings In the Hub.

Boston, June 2.—Governor Wolcott has reappointed John Stanton a member of the Fall River police commission; John S. Damrell of Boston a trustee of the school for feeble minded, and William W. Swan on the same board. Howard Stockton of Boston was appointed a trustee of the Lowell textile school, and Dr. F. W. Chapin of Springfield a trustee of the Northampton lunatic hospital, vice Dr. Deane, resigned.

The following officers have been elected by the Massachusetts Medical association: President, Dr. Draper, Boston; first vice president, Dr. G. A. Lowe, Rockport; second vice president, Dr. J. F. Dowsley, Boston; secretary, Dr. E. O. Kingsman, Cambridge; treasurer, Dr. J. T. Paul, Boston; librarian, Dr. T. W. Clements, Brookline; editor, Dr. W. E. Boardman, Boston.

From information given out by Chief Inspector Watts it appears that Moore, the absconding teller, sent $1000 to San Francisco Feb. 15, and that it was receipted there for him by one William Adams, who, it is said, belongs in Boston, and started for the Klondike region.

A five-story building at Grove Hall, formerly used by Dr. Cullis as a consumptives' home, but for a year past entirely unoccupied, was almost completely burned at an early hour this morning. The fire started from some unknown cause in the basement and was well under way when first discovered.

John Maunard was thrown from his horse yesterday afternoon and received injuries which caused his death three hours later.

Secretary Gage's Views.

Washington, June 2.—Secretary of the Treasury Gage, commenting upon the run on the bank of Spain, said: "The condition of Spain at sea and on land, in war and in finance, continues to grow worse daily. I am not surprised that the present condition confronts the bank of Spain. In endeavoring to support the government it has undertaken a tremendous contract. The bank must continue specie payments, or it will be entirely discredited; and unless it does continue them the Spanish financial fabric will go to pieces. Spanish bonds will fall still lower, and Spain will be in a far more serious condition financially than she has ever been.

"The developments indicate that the Spanish people themselves are alarmed at the financial condition of the country. They evidently fear that the bank will not be able to carry out its plans. If its own bank should prove to be an unsteady financial prop, Spain will indeed have immense difficulty in raising the sinews of war."

Bad Gang Escaped.

Leavenworth, Kan., June 2.—Eighty convicts were being sent yesterday to the stockades of the prison where they had been working for several days. Eight guards heavily armed marched with them. When the stockades were reached, six of the guards mounted the towers. The convicts waited until they were at a safe distance, then they quickly overpowered the remaining two guards and made a great rush for the gates. James Musgrove, an outlaw, headed the column, holding on each side of him a captive guard to prevent being shot. When the gates were reached most of the convicts repented their hasty action and turned back. Fifteen made a dash for liberty, however, and reached the woodland near by. Pursuit was given, and after an hour's chase Musgrove was surrounded. He carried a rifle taken from a guard and was just about to fire into the posse when a shot from the rear brought him to the ground. Musgrove's companions scattered in every direction, and it is feared they will not be overtaken. They were all serving long terms for counterfeiting and highway robbery.

STORIES OF THE FLAG.

Heroic Deeds Performed to Save the Colors From Capture.

When Burnside butted the stone wall at Fredericksburg, the color bearer of the Sixty-ninth New York fell mortally wounded. He had just strength enough to tear the stars and stripes from the staff and wrap them about his body under his coat. Then he propped himself in a sitting posture under a tree and awaited death. It came quickly, for a bullet soon pierced his heart and the flag that was over it.

Sergeant Lloyd of the Sixty-third New York, in the same brigade, cared for his charge in a similar manner and died a similar death. So did Sergeant Hackett of the Forty-third New York. His was the state flag. He kept it under his uniform during his long term in Andersonville, and at his death it was buried with him.

Sergeant W. H. Greene bore the colors of the Thirty-seventh Wisconsin in one of the assaults on Petersburg. Wounded to death, separated from his comrades in the fire swept field between the lines, with both legs smashed, he crawled into the Union lines on his hands and elbows, dragging the flag with him by his teeth. He gave the flag back to his regiment and died.

Charles T. Vansant carried the colors of his regiment in that unfortunate affair at Ball's Bluff. When, in a desperate charge, his colonel was shot, he bore him from the field and then returned to rescue the flag. Five times it was captured by the Confederates and each time regained by Vansant in hand to hand struggles. At last he broke away with the flag and reached the river. His enemies were at his very heels, but he plunged into the water, dived to the bottom, placed the flag there under a stone and swam to the other shore and escaped. Afterward he revisited the spot and brought the flag up to restore it to the regiment.—New York Press.

HEROES IN BLUE.

Memory Pictures of the Achievements of the Nation's Defenders.

Listen! I seem to hear the roar of cannon upon the sod of this commonwealth, our own dear state of Pennsylvania, and the cry is Meade. Our own gallant, knightly, heroic Meade, with Hancock and Howard and Sickles and Reynolds and Buford, holds the lines at Gettysburg with iron grasp. I see the men in gray crash like a broken wave on Cemetery hill and fall back defeated. And again I see, far down an arrowy Alpine road from Winchester, a soldier upon his black horse, like a thunderbolt of war, madly riding to the front, shouting to his retreating troops, "Face the other way, boys; face the other way!"—Philip Sheridan.

And who is this silent soldier that comes at last across the Rapidan, after the red hell of war in the wilderness, saying in the face of gloomy forebodings of disaster by others: "We have done very well. At half past 4 in the morning we move forward?" Who that participated can forget that forward march? Who is this who destroyed all the bridges behind him but one, with the remark, "If this army is defeated, one bridge will be enough for it?" Who put the guards of his wagon train in the line of battle at a threatened point, saying, "If this army is defeated, it won't need any rations?" Who never calculated upon defeat unless his army and himself should be exterminated? Who took the gallant Army of Northern Virginia by the throat in that wilderness and never released his grasp until it died at Appomattox? Who is this but Grant, the man who would not be denied! Ah, these men who wore the blue, yes, the sunlight shall kiss them and the ages shall bless them while their souls still go marching along.—Archbishop Brady.

SONGS TRIUMPHAL.

Memorial Day Calls Not For Dirges, but For Joyful Music.

Our heroes were serious people. They died in a serious cause. For them can be no regrets, no apologies, and, we trust, no recriminations. This Memorial day is not alone a festival of peace and reconciliation, but of duty—praise for the work that was done, courage for that which remains to be done. Our songs should be triumphal—no dirges, no sorrow or anger or pain. The memories we consecrate are sacred. These were our heroes. If to them was vouchsafed the thrilling joy of achievement, upon us devolves the duty of preserving what they won and holding it good against the world.

The music will cease, the flowers will fade, eloquence will be stilled, and these spring days now suffused with color, life and sweet perfumes will soon pass away. We shall turn from our dead and leave them to their hushed repose. But we cannot be indifferent to the admonitions and the inspirations of these graves. Let us rather take from them a pure and resolute patriotism and continue our duties of citizenship, strengthened by their sufferings, their achievements and their renown.—John Russell Young.

Nothing Military About Them.

"I was once commanding a military district," said a tall, soldierly looking man who was talking with a group of others, "when a raw, redheaded man came into headquarters and announced that he had brought a company of 100 men for muster in. I told him to go out and get them into line and I would look them over. When I went to the parade ground he stood before a rabble of men and was scratching his head, trying to think of the necessary order. At last he shouted, with considerable interlarded profanity:

"'Get into rows! Get into rows! Ain't they anything military about ye?'

"That fellow afterward became one of the best drillmasters in the army."—Exchange.

THE TATTLER.

The widow of Henry W. Grady has been made one of the directors of the Atlanta Constitution Publishing company.

Secretary Long's daughter, who is a medical student in Baltimore, denies that she is going to the front as a nurse.

Miss Kate Pier, a well known woman lawyer of Wisconsin, has offered her services to the government as a war nurse.

According to David Christie Murray, Mme. Dreyfus is a very beautiful woman, tall and graceful, with delicate features of Hebrew type and lovely eyes.

Miss Elsie Cullom of Cincinnati is leading the orchestra at Lookout Mountain inn. Miss Cullom is a violinist of rare ability and bids fair to become one of the leading lady violinists of the day.

Mrs. John Burke of Princeton has given birth to three healthy, hearty girl babies. Five years ago Mrs. Burke became the mother of three boys, who still live and thrive and will be ready to do battle for their small sisters.

Miss Mead, the manager of the Mead Construction company of McDonald, Pa., has been awarded the contract for building the magnificent new Episcopal church at Lacrosse, Wis. Miss Mead won in a national competition.

Whether from feelings of patriotism or from some more subtle feminine emotion caused by the inadequacy of the expression, Mme. Melba, while singing "The Star Spangled Banner" in San Francisco the other day, broke down and wept.

Princess Fursterberg, daughter of the late Duc de Sagan, is engaged to her cousin, the Comte de Castellane, who is much younger than herself. She gives up the rich dowry from her late husband, who died two years ago, in order to contract the marriage.

Mrs. Nellie Grant Sartoris is a well known figure in Washington. Like her distinguished father before her, she is very fond of walking and is invariably accompanied by one or two of her children, the likeness of whom to their late grandfather is very striking.

Elise Herndon Stanton, who claimed to be a half sister of Edwin M. Stanton, died in abject poverty the other day in Washington and was buried by public charity. She said she was the daughter of James Stanton of Virginia by a first wife, but had never lived with her father's family.

The young Italian painter who recently painted the portraits of ex-Postmaster General Gary and wife thought it proper, through gallantry, to make the lady much younger than she is. Mrs. Gary said on seeing the picture of herself, "He left out all the lines on my face, but he left out the character too."

THE BEEHIVE.

The farmer needs bees to fertilize his fruit and clover.

Painted covers are less liable to warp and crack than unpainted ones.

If the queen is missing, the colony will dwindle out very rapidly in the spring.

Where starters are used the comb may be melted into wax and new starters be used for every year.

What is needed for the walls of a hive is some material that will gradually absorb heat, but not moisture.

Drone comb should never be used to hive new swarms upon, especially if surplus is the main purpose.

To secure queens of the greatest excellence they should be reared in large, vigorous colonies and be fed as queens at the start.

The function of pollen is to feed the bees and brood. It contains all the food elements. The bees cannot rear brood without pollen.

When the hive is destitute of comb, nearly all of the bees are engaged in secreting wax, but when there is plenty of comb few secrete wax.

Clipping the queen's wings does not in any way injure her, while it prevents her taking flight, making hiving easier, and often prevents swarms leaving the hive.

One of the principal advantages in extracted honey is that it can be produced in almost the quality of comb honey, while swarming can be restricted to a better advantage.—St. Louis Republic.

THE WRITERS.

W. S. Gilbert during the progress of his libel suit against the London Era stated that he had written 70 plays, only one of which—the first—had been rejected. All the rest had been ordered before a line had been written.

A fact not generally known is that the late James Payn was for some time literary adviser in England to Baron Tauchnitz of Leipsic, a position which gave him great influence over the continental fortunes of his fellow authors.

M. Zola will receive a gold medal of over two pounds in weight, modeled by Charpentier, and cast from wax dies, so that there will be only one copy in existence. Each subscriber will receive a miniature model of the medal in bronze.

When Rider Haggard wrote to a city in Hungary where a dramatic version of "She" was being produced, asking for programmes, he received as a reply word that Rider Haggard was dead, and when he insisted that he was not and tried to have the newspapers say so he was regarded as an impostor.

IN WATERY GRAVES.

Disaster Overtakes a Vessel With a Klondike Party.

Sprang Aleak While Lying to, and Sank.

Thirty-Four of the Persons Aboard Go Down With Her.

Seattle, Wash., June 2.—Thirty-four of the 61 persons on board the schooner Jane Grey when she left this city for the Klondike region were drowned by the foundering of the vessel May 22, 90 miles west of Cape Flattery. Of those saved, C. Weston belonged in Skowhegan, Me.; A. C. Kinsbury in Boston, and J. H. Coutre and C. J. Reilly in Hartford.

The Grey's passengers were prospectors, with the exception of Rev. V. C. Gambrel, a missionary, who with his wife and child was on his way to St. Lawrence island in the Behring sea. He refused to place his wife and child on board the launch, saying: "The vessel is doomed, and we will die together." Among the prospectors was a party of 16 headed by Major Ingraham, who was outfitted by Prince Luigi of Italy for a two years' prospecting trip in Alaska. Of this party the only survivors are Major Ingraham, L. M. Lessey, C. H. Packard and G. H. Pennington. The survivors suffered a great deal of privation, and for 30 hours their only food was a sack of prunes and a sack of turnips from the ship's stores. Sufficient water was caught by spreading a tarpaulin during a rainstorm.

When the City of Kingston landed the survivors they were all carried to their rooms, or to the residences of friends. The few that could be seen had not recovered from the shock and could not give a good account of the disaster. They were unable to account for the vessel's springing aleak and sinking so suddenly. They were warm in their praise of the work done by Captain Crockett at the time of the foundering of the vessel.

Captain Crockett gives the following account of the wreck: "We were lying to to mend our foresail. A moderate gale was blowing and the seas were running high. I had gone to bed and was sound asleep when the watchman awakened me with the announcement that something was wrong. I arose at once and found the vessel leaking. A hurried investigation showed that she would soon sink, and I at once notified the passengers of the situation. Most of them were asleep underneath the deck. A scene of confusion then took place, and it is impossible to give any detailed account of the events that followed. The darkness added to the confusion. The Jane Grey carried two lifeboats and two launches. I at once ordered the boats lowered. The first lifeboat was swamped. The launch belonging to the Ingraham party was successfully lowered. At this time the Jane Grey was almost under water. A heavy sea struck her, throwing her on her beam. There was no time to launch other boats. The water was over her hatches and everyone below was certainly drowned. Those on deck, however, got in the launch. A sack of prunes and one of turnips were hurriedly taken from the ship's stores, and this was the only food we had till we reached Vancouver island.

"As the launch drifted away from the almost submerged schooner we saw eight or 10 men standing on the lee rail clinging to the rigging. Soon they disappeared from sight. Two of them, John Johnson and C. Reilly, kept afloat by clinging to bundles of boat lumber. Two hours after they were picked up by our launch, making 27 in all we had with us. It is just barely possible that there will be four more survivors. Before the Jane Grey disappeared under the waves we thought we saw the second launch that was on board with four forms near it. They were so indistinct that he were not sure. They seemed to be getting into the launch.

"We improvised a sail and paddles, and after drifting 30 hours in the launch finally landed inside of Rugged point, Kynquot sound, on Vancouver island, 80 miles from the scene of the wreck. A fire was built on the beach and we made a meal of roasted mussels. We had eaten nothing since the night before the disaster excepting the prunes and turnips. We got our drinking water by spreading out a tarpaulin in the driving rain. An Indian who chanced to come along told us that the village of Kynquot was but six miles away. We went there and found the sealing schooner Favorite, becalmed, and arrangements were made to carry our party to Victoria. We reached there just in time to catch the steamer for Seattle."

No man has a right to marry a woman and make her his nurse during long years of continued ill-health. A sick man cannot be a good husband, a good provider, a successful business man or a useful citizen; a man had better be dead and done with it than to be a life-long invalid, a nuisance to everybody and especially to the woman whom he has vowed to love, honor and protect.

The trouble with the average man is that he has not the least conception of the causes of ill-health or the right way to go about remedying them. A little indigestion or biliousness in themselves are not serious complaints, but if negleted they may develop into almost any disease in the medical books. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures many serious diseases by promptly removing the causes. It braces up the weak and impaired stomach and restores the appetite. It invigorates the liver and all the secretory glands. It facilitates the flow of digestive juices. It makes the assimilation of the life-giving elements of the food absolutely perfect, and thus enriches the blood. Disease germs are scavengers, and will not enter healthy blood or tissue. They must have the inert tissues of disease upon which to feed. The "Golden Medical Discovery," by enrichening the blood, tears down old and inert tissues and builds up new and healthy ones. It wards off consumption and cures, bronchial and throat affections which, if neglected, lead up to consumption. All medicine dealers sell the "Discovery."

"Eight years ago my husband coughed all the time," writes Mrs. M. J. Tedder, of Ellington, Reynolds Co., Mo. "Just as soon as he had finished a meal he would throw up. He was getting very weak. He took half a dozen bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and the 'Pleasant Pellets,' and says he feels better and stronger than ever before and weighs more. Everyone said he had consumption."

MR. HOAR'S DEFENSE.

Resented What He Considered an Aspersion of a Relative.

Washington, June 2.—In the course of a speech in favor of bimetallism yesterday, Senator Chandler declared that the Republican party had changed the personnel of the supreme court in order to obtain a favorable decision on the question of legal tender. He spoke of the attitude of the secretary of the treasury, and reviewed the various decisions of the supreme court on this subject, saying that national honor was not in danger by coinage of silver if it was not endangered by the issue of paper.

Mr. Hoar made a reply to Mr. Chandler's remarks. Referring to the charge made by Mr. Chandler that the supreme court had been packed by President Grant for the purpose of reversing the decision against the constitutionality of legal tender notes, Mr. Hoar declared it was "an infamous and vile slander upon an eminent citizen of Massachusetts (Attorney General Hoar), a man long since dead, whose reputation is untarnished and whose fame is dearer to me than is the remaining portion of my life. Stating my belief that the honorable senator (Mr. Chandler) has been misled, I declare upon my responsibility as a senator and as a gentleman, the charge that the supreme court was packed to declare the issue of legal tender notes constitutional is as vile a slander as ever thrust its dirty head from the stump." Mr. Hoar then gave a circumstantial account of the constitution of the supreme court at the time and of the changes in it that were made about that time.

At the conclusion of Mr. Hoar's remarks Mr. Chandler immediately disclaimed any intention to criticise or disperse President Grant or Attorney General Hoar, "that distinguished son of Massachusetts," and he did not think such a charge was a fair deduction from his remarks.

Mr. Stewart made an extended statement concerning the supreme court's decision upon the legal tender notes and the income tax as law.

Mr. Bate read a prepared speech upon the general features of the pending bill. He particularly opposed the issue of bonds, saying that because we were able to triumph over Spain in war, it was not necessary to smother her with a bond issue. He intimated that the bond issue proposition bore with it the shackles of the gold standard and, while freeing the people of Cuba, it was the purpose of the administration to enslave our own people by fastening upon them the gold standard.

The interest of the session centered in the action taken upon the amendment of Mr. Gorman, levying a tax of one-quarter of 1 percent upon the gross receipts of all corporations doing a business exceeding $250,000 a year. By a direct vote upon it the amendment was rejected, 27 to 34.

Mr. Pettigrew offered the Gorman amendment with the clause containing the $250,000 exemption stricken out, but it was defeated by a vote of 25 to 37.

Mr. White then proposed the Gorman amendment so modified that it leaves a tax of one-quarter of 1 percent upon all corporations engaged in the refining of sugar or petroleum. The California senator explained that he desired to see a tax levied on the American sugar trust and the Standard Oil company. The amendment prevailed by a vote of 33 to 26. It was supported by 22 Democrats, four Republicans, five Populists and two silver Republicans, and opposed by 24 Republicans and two Democrats.

Speeches were made by Mr. Chandler, Mr. Hoar and Mr. Bate. Mr. Chandler devoted almost his entire time to a discussion of the financial question.

The session of the house was given to the consideration and passage of a bill to remove all political disabilities incurred by the third section of the 14th amendment to the constitution. The debate gave rise to notable speeches from Mr. Grosvenor (Rep., O.) and Mr. Settle (Dem., Ky.) upon the obliteration of sectional feeling and the reality at last of a reunited country. Incidental to the debate several members reviewed the conclusion that a member of congress could not hold simultaneously a military and civil office. The debate was brought on by a reference to General Wheeler, now serving as a major general, and until recently a member of the house. The statement that some states were unable to respond to the demands for volunteers called forth explanations and an alleged interview with Mr. Overstreet (Rep., Ind.) upon the subject, reflecting upon the loyalty of certain states, was condemned by several members, but the discussion was declared out of order. The passage of the bill considered by the house will affect but few parties.

Tom Reed Gives In.

Washington, June 2.—An understanding has been reached whereby the Hawaiian resolutions will be considered in the house next week. They are to be taken up under a special rule that will be reported as soon as the revenue bill has passed the senate, or has reached the point where the passage of the resolutions of annexation in the house cannot delay the disposal of the revenue measure. The understanding was arrived at after persistent endeavors upon the part of annexationists, the speaker, who has led so far in preventing consideration, being convinced that a large majority of the Republican representatives favored action upon annexation before adjournment. This fact, the desire of the president and this wish of a majority of Republican senators, making a party demand, resulted in an agreement that the house should be given a chance to pass the resolutions. There will be no caucus of the Republicans. The request for the call has been for several days in the hands of Representative Grosvenor, chairman of the Republican party organization in the house, but when seen he said: "You can say that there will be no caucus called, and no necessity for one."

Wore Pearls and Diamonds.

New York, June 2.—In Trinity chapel yesterday afternoon Nina L. Smith, daughter of Franklin W. Smith of Boston, was married to Chester B. Duryea, son of General Duryea. The singers met the bridal party at the entrance and, singing the nuptial music from "Lohengrin," led the way to the chancel, which was prettily decorated by flowers and growing plants. The bride, wearing a gown of white satin trimmed with several flounces of rosepoint lace and the bridegroom's gift, a necklace of pearls, was given away by her father. Her veil was caught up with diamond ornaments.

AGAIN THE BOSTONS.

Once More They Outplayed the Men From the Windy City.

Boston, June 2.—It was agreed on the bleachers yesterday, during the game with the Chicagos, that "Chick" Stahl, that is the lovable way they have of calling Stahl, must have met a load of hay or been presented with barrel staves or given some other baseball mascot on his way to the grounds. The bleachers can account for his hitting in no other way. His home run was made in the second inning. He was the first man up, and his "homer" was the first ball pitched.

DAHLEN.

No story of yesterday's game could have a place in baseball history that did not tell of the magnificent fielding of Tenney and the safe and timely batting of the popular first baseman; and as for Captain Duffy, he not only crossed the plate twice, but he also sent in two men for runs and distinguished himself in the left field as usual. Jim Collins strengthened his cinch on the right to being designated as the great third baseman by sending across the plate two runs by a double and by getting every ball that came into his territory but one, and he missed that apparently to make the game more interesting. Captain Dahlen and Connor's fielding, and Mr. Donohue's throwing to second, were the features for Chicago. Score:

Manager Smith of the Fall Rivers has taken the club. It will undoubtedly exist throughout the season. He has made arrangements to play Sunday games at Mount Hope park, a shore resort near Fall River, and he will play the first game there next Sunday with the New Bedford team.

The Harvards defeated the Amhersts for the second time this season by clean fielding and stick work, 11 to 3.

The New Bedford team had no trouble in defeating the Tauntons with Horner on the slab, 10 to 5.

The Newports were easy for the Brocktons yesterday. Nadeau's hits gave six of the 10 runs. The visitors batted in the four they got.

The Washingtons had a batting streak yesterday, and with errors by the St. Louis team won both games easily, 8 to 3, 9 to 4.

The Cincinnatis made only four scattered hits off Dunn, which, with Steinfeldt's two errors in the first inning, accounts for the Brooklyns' victory, 4 to 3.

The New Yorks, after gaining two runs in the first inning, easily shut out the Clevelands, 2 to 0. Meekin pitched in superb form.

The Phillies defeated the Louisvilles for the fourth consecutive time, 4 to 1. Orth's pitching was the only feature.

The Pittsburgs lost yesterday to the Baltimores in the seventh by a combination of two hits, a wild throw, a base on balls and a batter hit. Score: 4 to 1.

Flannagan of the Fall Rivers got the worst drubbing from the Pawtuckets yesterday he has had this season, and the result was an easy victory for Captain Whiting's men. Todd, from whom the same team got four hits last Saturday, allowed the Smith family but five hits. Score: 8 to 1.

O'Brien's home run in the seventh inning brought in two runs and put the Syracuses ahead. Massey's home run in the ninth tied the score, but the "stars" won.

HAVE THEY STARTED?

Report That Transports Are Filled With Living Cargoes.

President McKinley Against Needless Exposure.

Believes Victory May Be Compassed With Little Bloodshed.

Washington, June 3.—Word comes from the Florida and gulf encampments that 35,000 troops are on transports ready to leave for Spanish territory in the West Indies, if indeed they have not started. Santiago and San Juan are supposed to be the points to which these troops are being sent. It was admitted unofficially by high army officials that that number of regulars and volunteers is "afloat," and destined for Spanish soil, with siege guns and other equipments. The transports are under convoy of vessels from the fleet.

It now seems certain that the engagement in which Schley's vessels participated last Tuesday was little more than an effort, as was pointed out at the time, to unmask the batteries at the entrance to the harbor and to determine their location and strength. If reports are true there will be little for the military forces to accomplish. There are still inside the harbor, however, three or four fortifications which cannot be reached from the sea, and they probably cannot be successfully assailed without the assistance of a land force.

If Admiral Sampson, who now has complete charge of the naval operations at Santiago, should discover that the danger is more apparent than real, he may take matters in his own hands and force the fighting.

The real purpose of the movement against Santiago begins to be more and more apparent. It is inaugurated in pursuance of the president's plans to have a bloodless war, if such a thing be possible. It is a part of a program which the president believes will result in the surrender of Havana without the loss of a drop of blood around that city. The president, after going fully over the field, concluded that Porto Rico and Santiago could be taken with much less bloodshed and with fewer troops than Havana. This is the real reason why the campaign against the Cuban capital for a time has been postponed. The president calculates that both Porto Rico and Santiago can be captured quickly and without American soldiers being subjected to devastating disease. The capture of Santiago, of course, means either the capture or extermination of Cervera, an important part of the campaign.

A Scarcity of Water.

Camp Alger, Va., June 3.—The "Fighting Ninth" seem doomed to one extreme or the other in the matter of water, for since their arrival here from Camp Dewey, where they had great difficulty in keeping dry even for a part of the time, they have had great difficulty in securing even a part of the water absolutely needed for drinking and bathing purposes. There is no water within a mile and a half from the camp. To the boys it seems like a transition from a river to a Sahara. The boys, however, take pleasure in the belief, apparently well founded, that their present camp is but a temporary one, report having it that the regiment is to be given new quarters some distance from the present camp, so situated, with reference to other regiments, as to give Colonel Bogan command of a brigade.

In the Sixth yesterday rations were issued for 10 days to each company, and it is safe to say if there is to be any shortage of food it will not come at the end of that period, for all will strive to keep ahead. The companies of the Sixth are being remembered by their friends at home in the shape of boxes and bundles by express. It is a long walk from one end of camp to the other. Massachusetts' two regiments are well inside the limit, yet it is a walk of from 18 to 20 minutes between, and the Ninth is three miles from the headquarters of the corps.

Worse Gunnery Never Seen.

Key West, June 3.—During the attack on Santiago the Spanish ships, with the exception of the Christobal Colon, were behind the hills and could not see the enemy, who threw shells around them with such rapidity that they knew he was somewhere on the other side of the hill, and they hopefully raised the muzzles of their guns and banged away. The result was what might have been expected. Their fire tore the bosom of the Caribbean sea, but it harmed nothing else.

Worse gunnery was never seen. One lusty man with a basket of brickbats would be capable of as much destruction as the Spaniards seemed capable of creating. Not an American vessel was struck and not a sailor injured, although fully 300 shots were fired by the Spaniards, the Americans firing not over one-fourth of that number in return.

The Vesuvius is coming down, and an attempt will be made by her to explode the triple row of mines extending across the harbor mouth. With these out of the way, Commodore Schley will sail into the harbor for a death grapple with the fleets and batteries.

Reserves of Naval Militia.

New Kork, June 3.—The work of enlisting the naval militia into the navy will begin at once, and the naval authorities in this city have addressed letters to the adjutant generals of the different states asking them the available strength of their naval reserves and when and where they can be mustered into the navy. The officers will be selected as far as possible from the reserves, but it is probable that some will be selected from the merchant service.

Only Chance of Salvation.

Madrid, June 3.—The religious orders in the Philippines have placed the government in a dilemma by demanding that the government decide whether they are to withdraw from the archipelago, or whether it will give them ample means to maintain their religious and political domination, which, they say, is indispensable if they are to continue to act as auxiliaries of Spanish rule. Most of the Liberals and Republicans urge the government to proceed with the reforms regardless of the religious orders, which they add, must accept the situation, as they will never renounce their property interests there. The Conservatives support the religious orders, and the government is greatly embarrassed, as it does not wish to offend the religious party, while at the same time it feels that concessions to the insurgents at the expense of the priesthood afford the only chance of salvation for the Philippine Islands.

Sentiment For Peace.

London, June 3.—Count De Rascon, the Spanish minister in London, who has been interviewed on the subject, admitted that the war meant the ruin of Spain and said: "The sentiment is growing in favor of seeking an honorable peace, which America, considering her unpreparedness for a war of invasion, would probably also welcome in preference to a protracted struggle, involving heavy sacrifices of men and money. This being so, I hope a basis of understanding may be found leading to peace."

Red Cross Quarters.

New York, June 3.—Clara Barton, having completed her conferences with the central Cuban relief committee and the New York Red Cross relief committee in this city, and desiring to return to Tampa as soon as possible and take charge of the relief ship State of Texas, left last night for Washington.

CLARA BARTON.

The ladies of the Red Cross auxiliaries, being desirous of distributing needed clothing and food, and to furnish medical aid, if required, at all of the permanent military camps in the United States, the American National Red Cross has given consent to have such work performed under its auspices, and Miss Barton will lay the matter before the secretary of war, asking permission of the military authorities to establish Red Cross headquarters at each of the camps.

The American National Red Cross has been presented with a steam launch 40 feet long, with a capacity for carrying 25 people. This launch will be dispatched to Key West to join the relief ship State of Texas.

The Admiral Was There.

Madrid, June 3.—Despite the statements of the newspapers that Admiral Cervera was not present at the bombardment of Santiago Tuesday, Captain Aunon, the minister of marine, declared yesterday that Cervera hoisted his flag on the Cristobal Colon in order to direct the Spanish operations, "the success of which is principally due to Cervera, who has given proofs of high strategic ability."

The papers are much elated over "another repulse suffered by the American fleets." According to official advices the forts and batteries at Santiago were undamaged; not a single Spaniard was killed or wounded, and not a single shell struck the Cristobal Colon.

Austria Prepared to Accede.

London, June 3.—The Vienna correspondent of The Daily Mail says: "Spain has addressed another appeal to the powers to intervene in the war, and Austria is prepared to accede, but only in conjunction with other powers."

Women, as Well as Men, Help.

Boston, June 3.—An auxiliary to the Volunteer Aid association was organized yesterday at a large meeting of women. Money has been sent to the Eighth regiment, and a large quantity of necessaries is to be sent to the Second.

A few days ago Chairman Draper of the association sent letters to the commanding officers of the Massachusetts regiments, inquiring what aid, if any, the Massachusetts Volunteer Aid association could render them. In response to a telegram from Surgeon Coggswell of the Eighth regiment, a check for $3000 was immediately sent to buy needed sanitary supplies for the men of that regiment which the government did not provide. Colonel Clark of the Second regiment asked the association to send him a large quantity of miscellaneous articles for use in the regiment's hospital. Among the many things asked for are condensed milk, canned soups, mosquito netting, flannel cloth, cheese cloth, sponges, palm leaf fans, scrub brushes, chafing dishes, absorbent cotton, hot water bags, feeding cups and tubes, thermometers, alcohol and rubber ice caps. These will be shipped at once. The association has also forwarded books and magazines to several of the regiments.

Governor Wolcott received a strong memorial, addressed to himself and the general court, urging the adoption of a system of recruiting, with a camp of instruction for training recruits, and of maintaining the regiments in the United States service from this commonwealth at their maximum strength. The memorial further urges that bay state soldiers in the service of the United States receive from the state $7 a month while in that service. The memorial is intended to provide for the future by enlisting a reserve of men and training them as soldiers against future calls.

Inspector General Carter received three new applications for provisional militia companies yesterday. Two were from Lawrence and one from Lowell.

Spaniards In Montreal.

Montreal, June 3.—The continuance of the case of Detective Kellert for the supposed purloining of a letter belonging to Lieutenant Carransa was mainly interesting because it threw some additional light on the doings of the Spaniards. Mr. Du Bosc was one of the witnesses, and his testimony brought out that from the first Saturday after they arrived in Montreal the Spaniards had virtually four headquarters—the Windsor, where most of the party were staying; the house at 42 Tupper street, where Du Bosc was staying; the consul general's house on Dorchester street, and the bank of Montreal, to which all of Du Bosc's letters were sent, none of them being addressed to his house. He could throw but little light on the case itself, and it looks as if it will fall through. No other arrests have been made.

Want to Be With the Boys.

Washington, June 3.—Ex-Governor Beaver of Pennsylvania, Colonel J. J. McCook and ex-Secretary John W. Foster had a long talk with the president yesterday about permitting Y. M. C. A. workers to establish headquarters with the army camps when they are moved to Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines. The tents of the organization have been established at state and national camps up to this time, and much has been done to furnish entertainment for the soldier boys. The president has taken the matter under advisement.

Boston Opinion.

Boston, June 3.—In the opinion of The Journal, "this war is destined to banish for all time the blight of Spanish cruelty and Spanish greed from the fair face of the western hemisphere."

"Unquestionably it is a waste of sympathy, but nevertheless it is impossible to avoid a feeling of pity for the Spanish people," The Post observes.

The Advertiser declares that "the idea that this present war is liable to lead to a world war has been sedulously fostered by Spain with a view to working upon the fears of the great powers and thus inducing them to interfere on Spain's behalf."

To Take a Vote Today.

Washington, June 3.—When the senate adjourned last evening the war revenue measure, so far as the finance committee is concerned, was completed with the exception of the bond provision and the amendments proposed by the Democrats in lieu of the bond paragraph. While no agreement was reached fixing a time for the taking of a final vote upon the bill, it was the expressed opinion on both sides of the chamber that a vote would be taken today before adjournment. All of the committee amendments except those noted were agreed to. Several efforts were made to amend or eliminate the amendments, but the efforts in each case were unsuccessful.

Mr. Butler (Pop., N. C.) had the floor for three hours and a half. Within 15 minutes after he began to speak he brought on a general political engagement which lasted for more than an hour. The debate, which was heated and at times decidedly personal, turned upon the amount of money spent by the Republican managers in the presidential campaign of 1896. Senators on both sides of the chamber were brought into the debate and a good deal of ill feeling was manifested.

Breaking of a Gear.

Lonely Men Who Sighed For Helpmeets Her Victims.

North Adams, Mass., June 3.—Grace Baron, alias Sadie Tucker, aged 21 years, and prepossessing, was arrested last night by United States Deputy Marshal Waters of Boston on the charge of using the mails for fraudulent purposes. It is charged that she had seven dozen photos made and inserted an advertisement in western matrimonial papers, receiving answers and using five dozen of the pictures in reply, obtaining from $5 to $47 from each correspondent. One of the victims was a postmaster in Illinois, her operations being mostly in that state and Texas. She was taken to Pittsfield today and given a hearing before the United States commissioner, being held to await the action of the federal grand jury.

Grace has made her home in Pittsfield, this city, Adams and Williamstown, and claims her home is in Rochester, N. Y., but she will not give her family name. It is asserted that she was twice married, and is engaged to be married again in October, and that the names she has taken to carry on her business are those of her former husbands. The alleged swindling has been going on for two years, and the officers have been after her for a year. She evidently knew it and evaded them by getting her mail through a third party.

Assistant Postmaster Larabee of this city saw her here, and put the officers on her trail. The officers say she admits her guilt and tells good stories about her success.

What the House Did Thursday.

Washington, June 3.—The house practically without debate passed the urgency deficiency bill providing for emergency expenses of the army and navy departments incident to the war. It was based upon estimates received recently from the departments, and carries items contemplated in the Philippine expedition and the early movement upon Cuba.

The house committee on elections of president and vice president and representatives in congress has agreed to report favorably the Lacey bill to allow volunteers in the field to vote for representatives in congress.

Representative Evans has introduced a bill appropriating $43,850 for increasing the force of the office of commissioner of internal revenue occasioned mainly by the forthcoming collections under the revenue bill.

Maintain the Strength.

Ex-Mayor Porter of this city, who served in the old 39th Mass., Volunteer Infantry, and Judge E. C. Bumpus of the 3d Mass. Heavy Artillery, are among the signers of a memorial to Governor Wolcott embodying suggestions concerning a system of recruiting for the Commonwealth. They claim that recruits in the old reigment, side by side with the veterans and under competent officers, learn how to take care of themselves on the march, in bivouac and in battle and would soon become veterans themselves in all but the name. Thousands of lives in the Civil war would have been saved, which were unnecessarily sacrificed to the inexperience of officers and men. The old regiments maintained in full strength would not have been kept brooding over their losses, but would have preserved their pride, hope and confidence and felt themselves duly appreciated and cared for by the Government and people at home.

How greatly the morale and efficiency of the armies were impaired by the presence of new organizations of new troops in every campaign has been shown by the military writers. It was sometimes fully 30 per cent.

JONES---GRAHAM.

A Pretty and a Very Jolly Wedding.

Dancing in the Barn One of the Pleasing Features.

The Wedding Gifts Numerous and the Display a Rich One.

The large and sightly home of the Grahams on Washington street looked festive on Thursday evening with its arches of electric lights at the entrance and every window aglow with light. In response to invitations sent out by Mr. and Mrs. John R. Graham to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Clara Louise, and Dr. Frederick E. Jones, several hundred friends had gathered before eight o'clock, filling the rooms to overflowing.

In the bridal procession was the groom and his best man, Dr. George L. Lindenkohl; the ushers, Mr. Walter Sawtelle, Mr. Robert Sawtelle, Mr. John Graham and Mr. Robert Graham; a little flower girl, Miss Beatrice Graham, dressed in white and wearing a wreath of sweet peas; the maid of honor, Miss Edith Rowe Graham, gowned in a blue organdie, with pink trimmings and carrying a large bouquet of pink roses, and lastly the bride and her father. The bride's gown was a very handsome white satin cut en train, and she wore a long tulle veil and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. Lohengrin's wedding march was played by an orchestra and the full Episcopal service, always beautiful and impressive, was read by Rev. Walter Russell Breed, rector of Christ church, the church of both the bride and groom.

After the ceremony, a reception was held, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick L. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Graham and Miss Edith Graham assisting in receiving.

Dr. and Mrs. Jones were started on their trip amid a blaze of colored lights, rockets and fireworks, with the usual shower of rice, their carriage profusely decorated and a bell adding its tones to those of the farewell voices.

This important and interesting ceremony over, and the bride gone, all adjourned to the barn where dancing was enjoyed until midnight. The carriage house with its smooth polished floor, made an ideal hall.

Seldom at a wedding have there been more young people present than at this, and never one more jolly. The gowns were unusually dainty and pretty. One of the upper rooms was almost entirely full of gifts, being one of the costliest every displayed in Quincy. There were quantities of silver, cut glass, pictures, bric-a-brac, books and other household adornments besides money and several checks. Dr. and Mrs. Jones have gone to Washington and the south. When their home on Hancock street is completed, they will move in and will be at home after September first.

Success Abroad.

A dispatch from London to the Boston Journal reports the success of a former Quincy lady, Miss Arnold, as a dramatist.

The four-act comedy, "The Ambassador," by John Oliver Hobbes, (the pen name of the authoress formerly known in private as Mrs. Pearl Craigie,) was introduced to a fashionable audience at St. James Theatre, Thursday, and met with the most cordial approval. The story is a tale of an honest diplomat who chooses a girl fresh and unspoiled in the midst of cosmopolitan Parisian society. The plot and action are slender, but the dialogue is so consistently witty that there is not a dull moment in the performance. The authoress, who superintended the rehearsal, was repeatedly called before the curtain.

Mr. Geo. Alexander, Miss Fay Davis and other leading members of the St. James Company, were enthusiastically applauded. Col. John Hay, the United States Ambassador, and other members of the American Embassy were present.

Y. M. C. A. EXHIBIT.

Prizes Presented in the Educational Classes.

The students of the educational classes in the Y. M. C. A., met in large numbers with their friends at the rooms of the Y. M. C. A., on Hancock street Thursday night, it being the annual exhibit of the work done, the presentation of prizes and closing exercises. Along each side of the hall hung the drawings of the students, many original in design and on the tables were the finished plaster casts of the clay-modeling class.

Mr. W. H. Mitchell, the chairman of the Educational Committee presided and called the assemblage to order. After reviewing the work done, he congratulated both students and teachers upon the good work accomplished. He said, that of 53 students enrolled, the attendance was 90 per cent. of that number, which showed that the young men meant something in pursuing their studies, and that they should now be better fitted to fill the portions in life which they now occupy. This increasing their usefulness and wage-earning power.

Mr. George H. Brown, representing the board of directors, was then introduced and received with applause. He hoped the boys would realize the benefit they receive and as the Association had been a benefactor to them, he trusted that the men would always remain loyal to the objects of the Association.

Rev. R. W. Peach made the address of the evening, taking as his theme, "What will you do with it?" "Many men," said he, "have ventured one thing or another in life. They have studied Greek, Latin or other things, and yet they make no use of their attainments. It was wasted time thus to study. It was a "white elephant on their hands." Better could they have concentrated their purpose and aim on a single branch and thus become proficient at it. You young men have faithfully studied, and I notice by this work before me that it fully comes up for the high standard set a few years ago, but what will you do with it? make it your purpose to study throughout life and you will find that it will not only make you better workmen, but better citizens, and thus a better nation.

Refreshments were served by the Ladies' Auxiliary, and after a social time the visitors departed.

In Collision.

Mr. William T. Spargo, a well known South Quincy granite manufacturer, met with a serious bicycle accident Wednesday afternoon, from the result of which he has been in a precarious condition at his home on Franklin street. He was returning to his works, on Liberty street from dinner upon his wheel and at the time of the accident he was riding along Liberty street at a moderate pace. When near the corner of Quincy street, Mr. Matson started to cross Liberty street. Neither saw the other until it was too late to avoid an accident and Mr. Spargo was thrown violently to the ground, striking on his left forehead and face, the force of the concussion rendering him insensible. The ambulance was summoned and he was removed to his home where he has been delirious at times.

He passed a comfortable night Thursday but this morning he had another bad turn. The attending physicians however says that it will be some days yet before he recovers from the effect of the concussion.

It was reported that Mr. Matson was seriously injured and that he was taken to the hospital, but such are not the facts, and he was out Thursday.

SCHLEY'S QUICK ACTION.

How He Took Command of the Owasco When His Captain Was Drunk.

How Commodore Schley got his first command is an amusing episode in his early career. After leaving the Niagara he was promptly promoted to a lieutenancy and assigned as executive officer of one of the 90 day gunboats, the Owasco of the gulf squadron. Her commanding officer—his name is of no consequence, and he is dead now—was a devotee of John Barleycorn and periodically had to retire to his cabin for repairs, where he usually staid a week. The Owasco was stationed off Mobile and was one of a small squadron of which Captain James Allen of the Richmond was senior officer.

One day a quartermaster of the Richmond reported to Captain Allen that the captain's gig of the Owasco was approaching, the captain's pennant flying. Supposing his visitor to be the captain of the Owasco, Allen put on his uniform coat, the side boys were ordered, and the boatswain's mate made ready for the three pipes at the gangway. When the Owasco's gig came alongside, the man who sprang up the ladder was Lieutenant Schley.

"I expected to see Captain —— of the Owasco," said Alllen, with slight sarcasm.

"I am commander of the Owasco, sir," said Schley.

"Since when?" asked Allen.

"An hour ago, sir," said Schley.

"Where is Captain ——?"

"Locked up in his cabin, sir, drunk."

"Who locked him in?" asked Allen.

"I did. I first put him under arrest, and then shut him up in his cabin. Then I took command of the ship, and here I am to report for orders."

Allen was fond of a joke, and he was at first disposed to laugh at the young man's summary action, but he said:

"Well, the first order I'll give you is for you to lower that pennant in the gig, go back to your ship, sir, unlock that cabin door and restore Captain —— to duty. Then report to me in writing if the captain's illness still incapacitates him, and I will know what to do. Don't be in too great a hurry to get command of a ship, Mr. Schley!"—New York Ledger.

GEN. MERRITT'S FIANCEE.

Something About Miss Williams, Who Is to Wed the Philippines' Ruler.

The engagement of Major General Wesley Merritt and Miss Laura Williams was almost the sole topic of conversation the other day in Chicago society circles. The general's intentions were known only to his intimate friends, and these did not divulge his secret.

Miss Williams is a brunette, graceful and of striking appearance, with jet black hair and eyes and brilliant coloring. She has long been a leading figure in society, as befitted the daughter of her millionaire father. The Williams family residence is in Chicago, overlooking the lake. It is surrounded by beautiful shrubbery, and here the general passed a great deal of his leisure time when he was commandant of the department of the Missouri, with headquarters in Chicago. Mr. Williams and the general were old friends, and it was inevitable for the warrior to fall a victim to the charms of the daughter.

General Merritt's parting ball at the Auditorium, when he left to take command of the department of the east, is still talked about by those who attended. His attentions to Miss Williams at that time were marked, and ever since then the young woman's intimate friends have suspected their attachment. As the special train left the other night bearing the military governor of the Philippines to his post the gray haired veteran stood on the rear platform of his private coach and shouted to the friends who had assembled to bid him goodby:

"Philopene!"—New York World.

ALLIGATOR SHARES HIS NAP.

Startling Experience of a Soldier During a Siesta Near Tampa.

A soldier belonging to the Twelfth infantry had an unusual and startling experience the other morning at Tampa.

The regiment is encamped near some swamps about half a mile from the Tampa Bay hotel. The soldier was taking an afternoon nap in the shade and had been asleep for half an hour when he was suddenly awakened by a heavy weight resting upon him. He arose sleepily, and was horrified to see an immense alligator quietly lying across his legs. The saurian made no attempt to attack the terrified soldier, but was seemingly contented to remain quietly in his position.

With yells the soldier dragged himself from beneath the alligator, ran toward a number of comrades and excitedly told them of his experience. They at first accused him of suffering from an overdose of Tampa whisky, but at that moment they saw the alligator going in the direction of the swamp and started after him. One hundred men were soon in pursuit. The alligator succeeded in reaching a swamp that had almost dried up and tried to bury himself in the mud, but a rope was obtained and he was dragged out. He is now fastened by a chain to a stake. There is some discussion as to the advisability of retaining him as a regimental mascot, as mascots are now so much in vogue in the army.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Will Tackle the Devil on His Own Ground.

A Georgia minister, whose congregation protested against his enlisting in the army, replied: "If war is hell, it offers the finest field on which to fight the devil. I shall tackle him on his own ground."—Atlanta Constitution.

Will Take Time.

There is no immediate occasion to worry about the Philippine islands. It will probably take a long time to decide which of the mutually envious governments is to assume the right to interfere.—Washington Star.

Sterling Refrigerators

It's none of our business what kind of a refrigerator a man buys. If he's satisfied with doubtful quality, that's his lookout, he pays the bills But if a man wants sterling quality, the kind that keeps his food sweet and always fresh, there isn't a refrigerator in existence that will give the continuous satisfaction of the old, reliable Eddy. No guess work about them, the result of over fifty years of successful refrigerator manufacturing.

Cape Haytian, June 3.—No news has been received this morning from Santiago de Cuba.

Not at Santiago.

Paris, June 3—The Madrid correspondent of the Garelois says that he learns upon the highest authority that Admiral Cervera has never been in the harbor of Santiago de Cuba. He says the Spanish Admiral manouvered for a time to deceive the Americans and then sailed for the Phillipine Islands and is now well on his way.

MILTON.

The special vesper service at the Congregational church last Sunday evening in memory of the volunteers of 1861 and 1898 was very largely attended and were of unusual interest. The interior of the edifice looked very fine with its many flags, among which were the stars and stripes, the Union Jack, and the Cuban flag. The singing of the anthems by the choir and the solos by Mr. Whitcomb, Mr. Andrews, Mrs. Huckins and Miss Varney were very well rendered, and reflected great credit upon Mr. Gutterson, the director of the choir, under whose directorship the singing at this church has become one of the features of the services. Longfellow's poem, "Decoration Day," was also finely rendered by Mrs. Varney. The pastor, Rev. A. S. Gilbert, gave a memorial address on "The Soldier Dead" and Rev. W. G. Bradford of Kentucky gave a very interesting talk on "The Soldier of Today." Many members of the Grand Army were present.

Several young ladies of East Milton have joined the ranks of the lady bicycle riders.

A petition is being circulated in the interest of the appointment of T. L. Pearce as postmaster to succeed M. J. Barry.

The Rev. William W. Raymond, associate rector of Grace church, South Boston, will preach in the Mission of Our Saviour, Ellsworth hall, on Sunday evening at 7.30. Every one most heartily welcome.

Edgestones are being placed on the south side of Adams street between Granite avenue and the Rugby block, and on Granite avenue from Adams street to the post office.

The Good Will club of the East Milton Episcopal church will participate Saturday in the lawn party of St. Michael's church at Milton.

Arrangements are being made for a grand flag raising to be held Wednesday evening, June 8. There will be a band concert and fire works.

The Thursday evening club will shortly hold a mock trial, in which Charles Southerland of Milton will be on trial for the larceny of groceries from Graham's store and of a pair of $3 shoes from Robert Sweeney.

County to Pay $3500.

Milton is to have another street relocated. The Norfolk county commissioners have passed a decree that it is necessary for public convenience that Randolph avenue, should be located anew, altered and widened, beginning at a point where the avenue intersects Reedsdale road, so-called, and running to the point where the avenue intersects the line between the town of Milton and the city of Quincy a distance of about 1 3-4 miles.

The town of Milton is given a year's time in which to make the changes. A space, 20 feet in width, is laid out on the avenue, and reserved for the use of street railways. The town of Milton will pay all expenses of making the alterations, including those of construction and land and other damages, but upon the acceptance of the way by the commissioners, the county of Norfolk will pay $3500 to the inhabitants of the town.

Sequel of Crime.

Alfred, Me., June 3 — Louis Martelles was released from jail this morning after serving a sentence for adultery with a woman named Grondoni. As he left the jail he was met by the woman's husband who shot him. The crowd then started in pursuit of the murderer who turned and placing the muzzle of the revolver in his mouth, fired and fell dead. Martelles was fatally injured. The woman in the case is still in jail.

NEW DEFENCES.

Work on New Battery at Peddock's to be Rushed.

Ground will soon be broken on Peddock's Island for the mortar battery, says the Journal. The work will be done by contract. Yates & Triest of New York were the successful bidders, and Col. Mansfield, chief of the United States army of engineers at Boston, has notified the firm of the decision of the War Department. The firm has been engaged in work on the Subway, and has a plant established here at Boston.

According to the specifications the operations must begin within two weeks from the date of the award.

The wharf and fence guarding the reservation must be completed within seven weeks. The mortar platforms must be finished by Aug. 1, the masonry by Sept. 20, and the drainage system and earthworks by Oct. 15.

Lieut. Sewall, Col. Mansfield's assistant, will supervise the work as long as he remains in Boston.

Within a few weeks the construction of gunbattery at Nantasket Head, Hull, will be begun, and this will be followed by the fortifications of Deer Island, where the National Government proposes to erect a gun and mortar battery.

At the Baptist church tonight the class of '99 W. N. H. S. will give a reception to the teachers and members of the other classes.

HONORS ITS HEROES.

A NATION PAYS TRIBUTE TO THE SILENT BATTALIONS.

Flowers Strewn on Their Lowly Beds In Grateful Remembrance of Their Sacrifice—Fallen Confederates Also Receive Their Meed of Valor.

Strew the flowers, twine the wreaths
Place the brightest blooms of May
Around the honored dead.

Memorial day in its consistent evolution has reached a new epoch. Nearly all of the widows who mourned for their hero husbands and gloried in their fate have gone to join them in death. Children who heard with glowing hearts the stories of the war told by these mothers have transmitted the cherished inheritance to children of their own. These children and children's children are the people of the United States who will observe the commemorative anniversary in its historical aspect, while the scarred veterans are paying their personal tributes to dead comrades. Though the ranks of the survivors of the great struggle are thinning there is no diminution in the ranks of the people who gather yearly at these sacred mounds, that are the real monuments of the Union.

The lifetime of a generation has passed away since the young men of 1861 gave their lives to preserve the Union. With the lapse of years veneration and love for them increase, and it is but fitting that we bear tribute of grateful memory to those who gave their lives on land and sea to preserve all we love. The survivors do not ask especial reverence except for the example they set to the growing generation by answering the call to uphold the Union. They remember with tears not only those who sleep in our graveyards here, but those who lie in the unknown graves in the mountains and morasses of the south.

Heroism in America knows no sectionalism. North and south, east and west, are scattered the graves of those whose lives were given joyously to the service of the nation and whose memories will prove an inspiration to the future generations in which the republic places her hope. Each state honors its own heroes, for each state, like each heart, "best knoweth its own loss," and the honor of each section is the country's honor. Under northern pines, under southern magnolias, in the shadow of western mountains, on the banks of the Hudson, lie the bodies of men who cheerfully sacrificed home, family, friends and wealth for the integrity of the United States, loving wife and children much, but honor more.

The American temple of fame is limited only by the boundaries of the nation, and her roll of distinction cherishes the names and the achievements of such heroic spirits as Grant, Sherman, Sheridan, Thomas, Logan, Farragut, Johnston, Lee, Shields, Buell, Kearny, Hancock, Stonewall Jackson, McClellan, Anderson, Potter, Beauregard, Mulligan, Kilpatrick, Custer, Carse and Dahlgren.

Time, that great healer of all wounds, has not sufficed to dull the heavy grief of those who lost their loved ones in bloody strife, though years have passed since these beloved ones passed from sight forever. To the sound of fife and drum they marched away, those loved and loving fathers, brothers, lovers, friends, soon to return again, they said, when they had made the country one again. But their good Father on high planned better for them than they knew. Theirs was the martyr's death, theirs is the patriot's crown. Striking chains from fettered slaves, God freed them from their fleshly bond. Seeking to keep their country one, God brought them to his eternal city, for they had fought a good fight and won.

But though lost to sight they still to us are dear. The magic wand of memory brings their names and faces back to us, and their graves each year we shall strew with sweet and silent tokens of our grief as long as life doth last. Under scorching summer skies, overcome with heat, some fell; naked and starving, some died in prisons, damp and deadly; under smoking, sulphurous clouds, that seemed to rain on their devoted heads the hissing shot and shell, some went down; most fell on bloody battlegrounds, now hallowed by their graves. And so we know where some do lie, and yearly deck their graves, and some their final resting place we know not of.

Our Union soldier dead cannot receive their meed of praise without recognition and admiration of the magnificent bravery of their Confederate opponents. In that greatest of wars West Point met West Point, volunteer fought against volunteer. The bravest and best of our northern hearts and homes slept the soldier's last, long sleep with the bravest and the best of our southern hearts and homes. Sincerity strove against sincerity; conviction confronted conviction; determination defied determination; sacrifice set itself over against sacrifice; prayer plumed its petitions against prayer.

And now today, thank God, we are brothers again and forever. The God of nations himself has set upon our country, in the issue of the conflict, the seal of an unbroken oneness and of an indisputable supremacy.

In a few years more the work of the old soldiers here on earth will be finished. Soon the last member of the Grand Army of the Republic will have passed away. To whom can they commit this beautiful yearly service to remember the dead heroes of the war better than to the rising generation who have learned the lesson at their hands?—Detroit Free Press.

Plant Flowers.

Plant here the flowers where mark the flags
That flutter o'er these sacred mounds,
While echo 'mongst fame's list'ning crags
From peak to towering peak resounds
The names of those who sleep beneath

Has She a Nemesis?

Newton, Mass., June 3.—A mysterious case of vandalism has just come to light in Newton Highlands. The victim, Mrs. Henry T. Schwaar, was married on Thursday of last week to Henry T. Schwaar, a Boston man, and immediately left her beautiful home for an extended wedding tour. Circumstances conspired to alter her plans, however, and she was called home, to find her splendidly furnished residence uninhabitable and a property loss of nearly $3000 staring her in the face.

Beginning with the hall every article of furniture in the house had been hacked and cut, while carpets, draperies and valuable rugs were slashed to pieces. In the parlor a piano, valued at $600, had been hacked and splintered with an ax until its handsome case had been rendered valueless.

Free With Public Money.

Washington, June 3.—Representative Cummings has introduced a bill for the relief of the widow of Dr. Ruiz. It directs the payment of $75,000 to her out of any money paid into the treasury as the share of the United States in the proceeds from the sale of any prizes of war taken from Spain of its citizens, or proceeds arising from any conquest of Spanish possessions or property. The money is to be paid Mrs. Ruiz as indemnity for the illegal imprisonment and killing of Dr. Ruiz, an American citizen, by the authorities of the Spanish government in Cuba, in February, 1897. The Ruiz case has figured conspicuously in the correspondence of the state department.

Old Viol Player's Death.

New York, June 3.—William Kozeck, 78 years of age, a Polish violinist, was found dead in his room yesterday, having hanged himself by the string of his bass viol. On a table in the room were a pawnbroker's ticket for a viol, a few crumbs of bread and an empty can that had contained milk. They told the story of poverty and gave the reason for the suicide. Kozeck was at one time considered one of the best bass viol performers in the country, and had been a member of Theodore Thomas' and Seidl's orchestras.

In His Wife's Absence.

Lexington, Mass., June 3.—George F. Jones, for many years a well-known resident here, shot and killed himself at his home yesterday afternoon, his body being found in the basement by his wife on her return from a visit. Mr. Jones was born in Cambridge 65 years ago, and for years was in the woodenware business in Haymarket square, Boston. He leaves a widow.

COWARD IN CUSTODY.

Military Ardor of a Cuban Volunteer Cooled.

Hid on Board a Transport and Taken Prisoner.

Said He Had Killed a Man and Did Not Dare Stay Ashore.

Tampa, June 3.—When the transport Florida, which left here over two weeks ago with one of the largest expeditions for the arming and reinforcement of the Cuban army ever sent out from Tampa, returned yesterday. She had on board with the charge of desertion against him, an American, who enlisted in the Cuban volunteers that were sent on the Florida. According to Captain Silver, who piloted the expedition, at the last moment, when all the supplies had been landed and the volunteers were ready for their march into the interior, the deserter showed the white feather and hid himself on board the transport.

The man's name is said to be Tate. He lives in Tampa. He was not discovered until sometime after the Florida had left Point Banes, where the landing was made. Tate, in defense of his action, told Captain Silver that he had killed a man on shore and did not dare stay with the volunteers for that reason. The officers place no confidence in this story, however, but believe that the appearance of the insurgents who met the expedition, and the stories of privation and hardships they told took all the fighting enthusiasm out of Tate. What action will be taken in his case has not yet been decided.

The main feature of the Florida's expedition has been published, but additional details were learned from Pilot Silver and Captain Dorst, who had charge of the expedition. Although Spanish soldiers were within three miles of the landing place and two Spanish gunboats were only five miles away, absolutely no trouble was experienced in landing the stores. The Spaniards undoubtedly knew that stores were being put on shore, but there was no interruption during the entire three days the Florida spent in the harbor. The transport was met by 300 pacificos, old men and women, emaciated and almost naked, who assisted, with an eagerness that was almost pathetic, in unloading the cargo of the Florida.

On the second day of the Florida's stay in the harbor a good sized body of Cuban insurgents, in command of General Rayo, appeared, and the work of unloading was then pushed with the utmost vigor.

The day previous the force under General Rayo had an engagement lasting several hours with a large body of Spanish troops which resulted in the defeat of the latter. The insurgents lost a dozen killed during the pursuit of the Spaniards. Word came that the Florida was on the coast and, without stopping for rest or rations, the insurgents marched to the sea, 18 miles distant. Although the insurgents had had nothing to eat for 24 hours but a few bananas apiece, they went to work at once unloading the Florida's cargo. The cases containing the rifles were broken open, the contents distributed among the men and put upon pack mules for conveyance. So hungry were the insurgents that several cases of bacon were broken open and the contents eaten raw.

Quay's Slate Unbroken.

Harrisburg, Pa., June 3.—The Republican state convention named the party ticket that is to be submitted to the voters this fall as follows: Governor, Colonel William A. Stone of Allegheny; lieutenant governor, General J. P. S. Robin of Lebanon; secretary of internal affairs, General Joseph W. Latt of Philadelphia; congressmen-at-large, Galusha Grow of Susquehanna and Samuel A. Davenport of Erie.

The last five are renominations. There was scarcely any opposition to the program for the work of the convention as outlined by Senator Quay and his lieutenants, those opposed to the nomination of Colonel Stone for the head of the ticket contenting themselves with the concentration of their vote on C. W. Stone. The vote was uncomfortably close for the Quay adherents, Colonel Stone receiving only 15 more votes than the number necessary to a choice. The 163 votes cast for C. W. Stone represented the combined strength of that candidate and John Wanamaker. The latter provided the only sensation of an otherwise cut and dried convention by presenting a letter of withdrawal, in which he denounced the methods of the dominant Republican faction and urged his friends to support C. W. Stone. Mr. Wanamaker's retirement from the fight came as a startling surprise to his delegates.

Bay State Criminals In Maine.

Alfred, Me., June 3.—James L. Sullivan, alias James Brown, of Lawrence and John McCarty, alias John Carey, of Lynn, with Reggy and Pat Moriarty, also from Massachusetts, were found guilty in the superior court yesterday of shoplifting in the store of George Bonser of Kennebunk, on Dec. 15, 1897. Massachusetts officers testified that all the men had criminal records. Sullivan was sentenced to five years and Carey to three years in the Thomaston prison.

Held Up a Bycyclist.

Nashua, N. H., June 3.—Henry Burns of Milford, while riding on a bicycle between Milford and Wilton, was held up and robbed of the bicycle and other valuables by two men. Burns notified the Milford police, who overtook the men and arrested them. They gave the names Allen and Wilson.

TEBEAU'S "INDIANS."

Young Men From Cleveland Play Ball Successfully In Boston.

Boston, June 3.—Oliver Tebeau and his Cleveland team gave the Bostons a setback in the league race at the first meeting yesterday of the two clubs this season. Boston was saved from a shutout by Nichols' home run drive. Two reasons may be given for the outcome. Nichols had good speed and fine control of the ball at the commencement of the game, but when the last man was out he had given eight bases on balls. It was not a Boston day, and the boys were at the mercy of Powell, the Cleveland pitcher, his long swing and slow ball proving so deceptive that only three hits were made off him. Hamilton kept up his clean hitting with two of the three yesterday, Nichols' fine home run being the only other hit.

The Clevelands' fielding was a fine exhibition, and in many cases shut off safe hits. McAleer, the star center fielder, made a rolling-over "circus" catch of Stahl's apparently safe hit to right center in the second inning. Childs knocked Bergen out of a safe one in the fifth. McKean at short, Wallace at third, and Captain Tebeau and O'Connor behind the bat all had plenty of work to do, and they did it to perfection, the Clevelands having an errorless record in the field for the day. Home run—Nichols. Stolen base—Hamilton. Double play—Stahl and Collins. First base on balls—By Powell, 2; by Nichols, 8. Struck out—By Powell, 1; by Nichols, 1. Passed ball—Bergen. Time—1:51. Umpires—Connolly and Lynch. Attendance—1125.

With the score 7 to 1 at the end of the seventh, the Tauntons pounded Gannon of the Newports, and, assisted by a childish error by Hickey that should have retired the side, allowed an opening for a home run by Simon with the bases full that won the game, 9 to 8.

The Washingtons' batting won the game from the Louisvilles, 13 to 4.

Seymour of the New Yorks, though wild, was effective when he located the rubber, striking out nine Cincinnatis. Breitenstein kept the giants' hits well scattered, but his club lost, 3 to 0.

Chicago on yesterday's game in Brooklyn by timely batting, 6 to 5. Umpire Cushman put Everett of the westerners out of the game for kicking.

The Baltimores fattened their batting averages at Carsey's expense. McJames kept the St. Louis' hits scattered. Score: 11 to 3.

It took 11 innings to decide the Philadelphia-Pittsburg game, the Quakers finally winning, 3 to 2. It was a pitchers' battle. Duggleby and Jimeson, Philadelphia pitchers, have been farmed out to the Wilkesbarre club.

Umpire Pettee called the Brockton-Fall River game off on account of darkness at the close of the 11th inning yesterday, notwithstanding both teams wanted to continue playing. Shea's catching was a feature. He cut off five Fall Rivers at second by excellent throwing. Cronin pitched a clever game, and McKenna was invincible when hits meant trouble.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, June 3.—Nearly the whole of Thursday was taken up in the house by the discussion of the street railway bill, which, manifoldly amended, was finally passed to engrossment. Never has the lobby been more active, and the great interest taken in this bill is evinced by the fact that on a rollcall, reference to the next general court, 209 members went on record, 90 in favor and 119 against such action. It was the largest attendance for a long time.

The senate also had a large subject to deal with, the bucket shop bill, which was reconsidered and again passed to engrossment, this time amended so as to include all places where stocks and bonds are dealt in on margins, a direct blow at the Stock Exchange.

On the first call of the calendar the house passed to be engrossed the bill to raise the salaries of the state highway commission and to prevent two of the three from holding any other office.

The bill authorizing the city of Brockton to light its police station from the electric light plant in the city hall across the street, was engrossed. It is the principle involved in the bill which made it of great interest and led to a heated debate.

Forty-two of the 50 members of the legislature from Boston have signed petitions for a reorganization of the city government, and have agreed on a bill which provides for a division of the city into 12 aldermanic districts. Each party will nominate 12 candidates, but only seven candidates of one party are to be on the board, the minority representation to be five candidates of the contending party. The common council will consist of 25 members.

Governor Wolcott signed the resolve for a state representation to the Omaha exposition by a delegation of 50. He signed it, he said, because it is important to cultivate relations of friendly comity with all sister states and sections of the country. In this way he believes the business interests of the state may be properly promoted.

Massachusetts' Capital.

Boston, June 3.—Through the refusal of master workmen to accede to demands for increased wages, 25 union stone masons employed on buildings in Brookline and Brighton struck work yesterday. The men claim that their pay is 42 cents an hour, while the union rate paid in Boston is 45 cents.

Mrs. L. Shannon Davis of Brookline has been elected state regent of the daughters of the American revolution, vice Mrs. T. M. Brown, resigned. The state conference will be held in Fall River in October.

Max was a loving son; staunch and true to all his friends; a favorite at home and at college, and his sudden death has filled many hearts with sorrow. As the rain fell during the funeral services yesterday, we thought how true must the words be, "Blessed be the dead that the rain falls on."

Yesterday afternoon at the Horace Mann School of Boston, in which Misses Adams and Kincaide of this city are interested, the manual work of the pupils, who are all deaf children, was placed on exhibition. There were many interesting samples, such as typesetting, sewing, drawing and cooking. In the first three branches the children were at work, as on other days, giving the visitors an excellent idea of the methods employed in their education. The work shown was wonderful in its completeness of detail, and amazed the many visitors.

MASSACHUSETTS HAS HER SHARE.

Otherwise City of Quincy Might be Honored by Navy Department.

The desire that Uncle Sam should name one of his naval fleet after the "City of Presidents" has been frequently suggested, but owing to the many demands made for this honor, it is doubtful if the name Quincy adorns any of the boats of the navy for some time, as the following correspondence will show:

Hon. John D. Long, Secretary of the Navy, Washington, D. C.,
My dear Mr. Secretary:—May I call to your attention the fitness of naming one of the vessels of the Navy in honor of the City of Quincy. It is unnecessary that I should recall to your mind how intimately the history of Quincy and its sons are connected with the progress of the country, and how well known the little city is throughout the length and breadth of this land, and while I appreciate the great call that is made upon you for favors in this line, I feel that as this city is one of the original birth-places of men and politics, that have shaped the destinies of the country, that it has more than the ordinary claim for the honor.

If you can consistently favor us with such an action, I assure you it will be gratefully remembered by your old friends and neighbors in this city and surrounding towns.

Believe me, Sincerely yours,
RUSSELL A. SEARS Mayor.
Quincy, Mass., May 31, 1898.

Navy Department,
Washington, June 1, 1898.
My dear Mr. Sears:—I am in receipt of your letter of the 31st ult. suggesting that some naval vessel be named in honor of the City of Quincy. I should be delighted to do it but there are already more vessels named for Massachusetts than for any other State in the Union and there are so many applications from other states that probably it will be some time before we can name one for Massachusetts again. Very truly yours,

JOHN D. LONG.

JOHN D. LONG, Secretary

Hon. Russell A. Sears, Mayor of Quincy, Mass.

News From the Bear.

Quincy is interested in the relief expedition of the Revenue Cutter Bear, as Herbert W. Spear of this city is the chief engineer. A Seattle dispatch says, the schooner Brixham brings news that the revenue cutter Bear, conveying relief to the imprisoned whalers, is at Dutch Harbor. The officers of the Bear recently attempted to form a connection with the overland party under Lieut. Jarvis, but got only 200 miles north of Dutch Harbor. The ice was found packed solid across Behring Sea and all further plans had to be abandoned. No news has been received from Jarvis.

A hurricane, which threatened the entire shipping of the locality, swept over Dutch Harbor and Unalaska on May 22. During the storm the schooner Helen was driven ashore, though not seriously injured. The ship Wachusett dragged her anchor, and but for the timely assistance of the Bear, the barque Harry Morse would have been hurled upon the rocks and broken to pieces.

According to the officers of the Brixham, the schooner Fischer Brothers had arrived at Unalaska after an exciting experience in Behring Sea. She tried to push her way through the ice packs some 3000 miles north of Unalaska, and for a time it looked as if she would never get out. For nearly a week she was in the ice pack unable to get away. A sudden wind opened up a channel and released her.

—The General Deficiency Appropriation bill, to be passed at this session of Congress, will carry in the neighborhood of $200,000,000, the largest proportions it is thought to have reached in the history of the government.

TORPEDOED!

Sacrifice of One of the Santiago Fleet.

COLLIER SUNK IN CHANNEL.

Design or Daring In the Fatal Venture.

Washington, June 4.—The steam collier Merrimac lies a wreck in Santiago harbor, either blown up by a Spanish mine or deliberately wrecked by Admiral Sampson's orders. Her crew, consisting of an officer, an engineer and six sailors, are prisoners of Spain. They took their lives in their hands, and while they escaped death, they are now in prison. The story of their adventure is one of the most thrilling of the war.

As is well known, the harbor of Santiago is very narrow. One or two sunken ships across its mouth would as effectually prevent the escape of the Spanish fleet as though a line of battleships were anchored there. There is no doubt that this fact appealed to Admiral Sampson, and he decided to block the channel in some way. After the decision came action. He could not send to Key West for old hulks, and he could not, of course, sacrifice one of his warships. In his fleet, however, was the collier Merrimac, a large steamer, purchased in New York. The steel hull of the Merrimac offered the barricade for which the admiral was looking and the ship was marked for slaughter.

The next step was to find a crew to accompany her on her dangerous mission. It is hardly likely that the men on the ship were ordered to make the perilous trip into the harbor. A volunteer crew was asked for in all probability.. Eight men were chosen and placed on board of what seemed certain to be their coffin.

In the stillest hour of the morning—between 3 and 4 o'clock—the prow of the Merrimac, with just enough men on her to run the engines and handle the wheel, was turned toward the narrow entrance of Santiago harbor. It is easy to imagine how the officers and crews of the squadron watched the steamer's onward progress with beating hearts. She passed the first line of dreaded torpedoes safely, but when she was a little further in the harbor there was the explosion of a mine, and the vessel sank. At least the dispatches say that there was an explosion of a mine. It may have been that the ship was scuttled by her own crew, who had hoped to escape in small boats, but were captured. They may have dynamited the ship, trusting to good fortune to escape with their lives.

Admiral Sampson may have sent the ship into the harbor not only to block the channel, but also to discover whether submarine mines were fatal obstacles to getting at the Spanish fleet. If this was his purpose, the sunken wreck in the channel proves that the mine is as dangerously effective in Santiago harbor as it was in Havana when the Maine went down. There is absolutely no doubt in the minds of the naval officials in Washington that the sending of the collier into the harbor was all a prearranged move on the part of Admiral Sampson. The use of a collier, the hour of the morning, the necessity of blocking the channel so as to relieve some of the ships of the squadron from remaining stationed off Santiago, the importance of discovering whether the mines were effective—all these reasons make it certain that the Merrimac was deliberately guided to her destruction.

A dispatch from Port au Prince gives the following account of the affair: "Yesterday morning the American squadron again began a bombardment of the fortifications of Santiago de Cuba, and a lively cannonade ensued for two hours, which silenced the Spanish batteries. An American vessel, the Merrimac, described in the advices from Santiago as an auxiliary cruiser, making a dash to force the entrance, succeeded in passing the first line of defenses, but was torpedoed about 500 feet up the channel. She went down 'perpendicularly.' An officer, an engineer and six seamen were taken prisoners. The number of victims is unknown. Only the funnel and mastheads of the sunken vessel can be seen."

The man who has seen the Spanish fleet is Captain Sigsbee, the former commander of the Maine and now captain of the St. Paul. It seems that Cervera was not seen to enter the harbor, as the St. Paul did not reach Santiago until the 22d of May, at least three days after the arrival of the Spanish squadron had been reported. After he had gone in, however, he evidently could not get out, for two of the cruisers and two of the torpedo boats were plainly visible.

"Yes, I saw them," said Captain Sigsbee, smilingly, "and I know that they are in there. You see, I was at Havana when the Vizcaya put into that harbor, and I could recognize her or any vessel of her class. They are splendid ships."

The press dispatches from Tampa indicate that there has been no forward movement of the army. No one can tell when the army will start or what it is going to do. There have been so many assertions of its speedy departure—assertions which were based on the highest authority, but which thus far have failed to be realized—that further promises are very largely discounted.

Some of these days the army will start. Why it does not move now is a conundrum which cannot be answered. If the military authorities were waiting for the volunteers the answer would be easy, for only a very small proportion of the volunteer force is in any condition to go into the field. Its lack of preparation has been exploited until the fact is apparent to all the world, and unfortunately there seems to be little chance for the commissary and supply bureaus catching up with the procession for some time to come. These volunteers, however, ar not to be sent to Santiago. The work of assaulting the fortifications there and capturing the city is to be done by the regulars, and they are in completely equipped condition. At least they are so reported.

Through one of the European powers the president is already considering with his cabinet the possibilities of peace, and it is the expectation that he may be called on before long to begin negotiations that he has strongly urged the senate to remain in session. "Congress must not adjourn now," he said to a senatorial caller today. "I need it here and cannot get along without it. I am trying to bring this war to a speedy and successful conclusion, and to lay the foundations for an honorable and gotiate peace unless congress is here gociate peace unless congress is here to ratify a treaty and offer suggestions as to the kind of treaty which will meet with senatorial approval? Congress must not adjourn."

The president and his cabinet have determined upon two provisions which must be incorporated in any treaty of peace negotiated. One of these is the withdrawal of Spain from Cuba. The other is the relinquishment of Porto Rico. It is the president's purpose to hold Porto Rico for indemnity for the expense of the war, and there is one reason for the occupation which is now in contemplation, and which is essential from the view of peace, just as much as it is essential as a military measure to seize the enemy's base of supplies.

The permanent possession of the Philippines will depend upon the change of events. Only one thing is certain. The administration will not permit the islands to be restored to Spain. It is recognized that public sentiment will not tolerate any such disposition of them.

In Favor of Peace.

Madrid, June 4.—Except among jingo papers a sentiment in favor of peace is growing. The correspondent of the Associated Press has sounded several politicians and financiers on the subject, and finds unanimity as to the desirability of a prompt and honorable peace. The pluck of Cervera's fight against odds and the failure of the Americans in their attempts to land in Cuba and Porto Rico are regarded as balancing the Cavite disaster, while evidence of the lack of sympathy for America on the part of the natives of the Spanish colonies, as the Spaniards argue here, should convince the United States that the motives for going to war are completely changed.

The Epoch says: "A nation grand and powerful like the United States loses nothing by rectifying a mistake. We go further, confessing that the same inclination in favor of peace is predominant in Spain. We are equally convinced that the war has no foundation beyond a defense of outraged dignity."

Military men, however, raise no voice for peace. They are convinced that the Spanish position at Santiago is strong enough to repel the Americans both by land and sea.

Plan to Drive In the Cork.

Kingston, Jam., June 4.—Pending the execution of Admiral Sampson's plan of campaign 12 fighting ships form a cordon about the entrance to the harbor at Santiago to prevent the possible egress of the Spaniards should Admiral Cercera be foolhardy enough to attempt to cut his way out. Communication has also been had with the shore. The mountains and hills which surround Santiago are in full possession of the insurgents, and in certain contingencies the latter might be able to render effective aid.

The guns in Morro castle and Estralla are of old pattern, 18 and 24-pounders, and would not even be considered were it not for the great height of the fortifications, which would enable these weapons to deliver a plunging fire. Modern guns are mounted on the batteries to the left of the entrance. The mines in the narrow, tortuous channel and the elevation of the forts and batteries, which must increase the effectiveness of the enemy's guns and at the same time decrease that of our own, reinforced by the guns of the Spanish squadron inside, make the harbor as it now appears almost impregnable. Unless the entrance is countermined it would be folly to attempt to force its passage with our ships.

The Spanish fleet is bottled up and a plan is being considered to drive in the cork. If that is done, the next news may be a thrilling story of closing the harbor. It would release a part of our fleet and leave the Spaniards to starve and rot until they were ready to hoist the white flag. Not a gun has been fired from shore or ship since the bombardment on Tuesday. The Spanish fleet, which lay near the mouth of the harbor on that occasion, has withdrawn to a safer anchorage further in, probably behind Cayo Smith, and not a glimpse of it has been seen since. It may be that the final act in the Spanish-American war drama, in which the Cuban revolution was but the prologue, may be enacted here, where the insurrection originated three years ago.

Was It a Scheme?

Washington, June 4.—The Washington Post this morning says: "There is absolutely no doubt in the minds of the naval officials in Washington that the sending of the collier Merrimac into the harbor was all a prearranged move on the part of Admiral Sampson. The use of a collier, the unusual hour of the morning, the necessity of blockading the channel so as to relieve some of the ships of the squadron from remaining stationed off Santiago, the importance of discovering whether the mines were effective—all these reasons make it certain that the Merrimac was deliberately guided to her destruction. It was not a Spanish victory; it was a cleverly arranged scheme on the part of the American admiral, and it was successful.

"The eight men in a Spanish prison are the real heroes of the war. If the Merrimac went in under her own crew, it is interesting to know that her complement of officers consisted of Commander J. M. Miller, Lieutenant W. W. Gilmer, executive officer; Ensigns J. R. Y. Blakely and J. M. Luby and Assistant Engineer R. K. Crank. Miller is from Missouri, Gilmer from Virginia, Blakely from Pennsylvania and Luby and Crank from Texas."

Evil of Redtapeism.

London, June 4.—The Times publishes this morning a two-column letter from an American correspondent in which the writer says: "Let us publish a bit of disagreeable truth, as it will do us no harm in the long run, much as it may excite anger for the moment. Although America must have known a year ago that war was inevitable, her army is not fit to move. It is much like that of France immediately before the war of 1870 with this difference, that the American troops have confidence in their immediate superiors."

The writer continues with a serious indictment of the "terrible condition" and "lack of organization at Camp Tampa," which, he says, is "largely due to redtapeism at Washington, or to that military appendage, [illegible] staff." He comments on the fact that "in a hot and pestiferous climate men are compelled to wear winter clothes and eat winter rations—fat pork and beans—with no fruit or vegetables to cool their superheated blood, while cartloads of fresh fruits and vegetables are going north to the New York and Chicago markets.

He declares that "from drummer boy to colonel the army is of excellent material," and he would not know where to seek braver men or more intelligent officers; but "a painfully large number of officers have been given commissions for purely political reasons, and they command but little respect at the hands of their men."

The letter concludes as follows: "If President McKinley would tell the people the facts honestly, he might be defeated in congress, but he would have the satisfaction of having done his duty."

Naval Officials' Wisdom.

Washington, June 4.—A brief bulletin telling of Commodore Schley's reconnaisance at Santiago on Tuesday was all the information the navy department had to contribute to the press yesterday. This bulletin confirmed the dispatches. It appears from the bulletin that Commodore Schley concentrated a pretty good fire upon the Spanish defenses, and it seems probable that, had he found conditions more propitious than they were, he would have resolved the reconnaisance into an assault in force. The natural strength of the Spaniards' position and the formidable character of their batteries as indicated by Commodore Schley have confirmed the naval officials in the belief that they have been wise not to direct such a reckless assault upon the place in the absence of proper forces as has been advocated in some quarters.

Sixth and Ninth.

Camp Alger, Va., June 4.—The boys of the Ninth Massachusetts, accompanied by the Seventh Illinois, went in a body of 1500 strong to the camp grounds of the Sixth Massachusetts last night. Each regiment was headed by a band.

Vaccination was resumed yesterday. There are in the regiment about 120 to be treated. When the call comes the men are marched from their company streets to the regimental surgeons at the hospital in single file. There two stewards prepare the arm for vaccination. As they file in they are passed to the assistant surgeons, Drs. Dow and Washburn, who lance and apply the vaccination. Some men take it philosophically, while others remonstrate.

Speculation Unsatisfied.

Key West, June 4.—On shipboard and ashore interest is entirely focussed on the movements in south Cuban waters. The squadron at Santiago, which may have been further reinforced, is felt to be powerful enough to confront the whole Spanish navy if need be. Speculation remains unsatisfied regarding the movement of the army of invasion and its destination, nothing definite on this subject having lately reached here.

One incident of the day was the formal paroling of 243 prisoners of war, captured and since held on the prize ships. It was announced some time ago that this would be done, and the necessary decree was entered yesterday. The prisoners were the passengers and crews of the ships taken, and will be sent back to Spain probably next week on the Catalina and Miguel Jover, two prize steamers released by the United States court. The parole of course does not apply to the military prisoners in Fort McPherson, Atlanta.

Establishing an Alibi.

Montreal, June 4.—Detective Kellert, charged with stealing a letter from Lieutenant Carransea, denied the accusation, and with the aid of the recorder's clerk and other people who were in the recorder's court Saturday morning, gave evidence to show that he could not have been at Carransea's house at the time the Spaniards say the letter was stolen.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, June 4.—Friday the senate refused to reconsider the vote by which it passed to be engrossed the bill to prohibit the desecration of the flag of the United States, but did reconsider the vote engrossing the amended bill relative to reinsurance contracts. At 12:15 the senate adjourned, to accept Senator Putnam's invitation for an outing in Lowell.

In the house an order was offered by Mr. Stone of Springfield, providing that the week beginning June 6 shall be considered the last week of the session. This makes operative the rule that bills acted on in the house shall not be held over 24 hours before being sent to the senate for reconsideration.

The bill appropriating $10,000 for the extermination of the brown-tail moth and directing the state board of agriculture to carry on the work caused some debate. Mr. Jones and Mr. Phillips described the devastations of the pest in Somerville. Mr. Paton of Leominster did not take the gypsy moth seriously. He discredited the work of the present gypsy moth commission and said that personally he was opposed to all kinds of bugs, particularly humbugs. The brown-tail moth was a first cousin to the gypsy moth, which has cost the state $1,000,000. The bill was passed with an amendment that the money be taken from the moth appropriation.

Eye Laid Open.

Pmiladelphia, June 4.—Stephen Flanagan of this city and Jimmy Barry of Chicago were the attraction last night at the Arena in a six-round bout. For the first two rounds the fight was even, but in the third Flanagan landed repeatedly with his left on Barry's face. The Chicago boy braced up in the next, but Flanagan managed to land several lefts, when Barry rushed him to the ropes. Steve fell through, but was on his feet quickly as the round ended. The next round was even. In the last round Barry rushed Steve to the ropes and landed a right on Flanagan's face. They landed repeatedly and clinched. Steve laid the Chicago boy's eye open as the bell sounded. Flanagan seemed to have the better of the bout.

BLENDING OF COLORS.

Sentiment of Fraternity at a Banquet In London.

Wellwishes For This Nation Freely Given.

Declaration That the Revolution Was a Just Movement.

London, June 4.—Six hundred Britons and Americans assembled fraternally last night, the purpose being the promotion of good fellowship between kindred races. Englishmen, many of whom had experienced American hospitality, were the hosts, while resident Americans were the guests. Political, business and literary circles were well represented, but the purpose of making the affair spontaneous and a wholly unofficial celebration excluded the embassy.

American and British flags were draped over the tables, at which were both men and women, with "the flag of the future"—the union jack and the stars and stripes—blended on coats of arms. All wore buttons emblazoned with the two flags surmounting the Canadian beaver.

Lord Bernard Coleridge presided. Toasts to the queen and the president of the United States were honored, accompanied by the strains of "God Save the Queen" and "The Star Spangled Banner."

Lord Coleridge, in proposing the health of President McKinley, said: "Where can the old world show such a line of rulers of men as have been the free choice of the Americans?"

"Fraternity and the future alliance" pervaded all the speeches.

Among the speakers were the bishop of Ripon (Rev. W. Boyd Carpenter), Lord Brassey, Colonel Taylor, president of the American society in London; George W. Cable and Sir Frederick Pollock, corpus professor of jurisprudence at Oxford.

The English speakers lauded the achievements of the revolution as enthusiastically as if these had been their own victories. Where all the sermons were practically the same text extended quotations would be monotonous. "Mother country" and "Sons beyond the sea" were phrases reiterated by all the speakers. The bishop of Ripon excited the greatest enthusiasm by a pointed reference to the war, saying that, although both nations had been accused of worshipping the dollar, "we both know when to spend our money, and we know that some causes are worth spending any price for."

Lord Coleridge prayed that victory might perch upon the American banner "in the interests of America, in the interest of Spain and in the interest of common humanity. Twice America has fought with all her might," he said. "The first fight was forced by the imbecility of the king, and she was right (cheering)); the second time she fought for the freedom of slaves, and the same spirit is with her yet." (Tremendous cheering). He advocated a permanent tribunal for the settlement of international differences.

Lord Brassey said there were closer ties than a written alliance, ties which could not be broken.

Colonel Taylor raised a hurricane of cheering by saying: "As you have stood by us in our day of trial, when your day of trial comes count upon us."

Sir Frederick Pollock replied, predicting that there would be "one fleet under two flags to keep the peace of the world."

The morning papers, commenting upon the banquet, speak in the same tone of gratification. The Telegraph says: "Nothing said by the speakers could offend the susceptibilities of continental nations, but there was evidence throughout of the friendship which has grown so rapidly, and that it will not end in mere verbal protestations of mutual respect and affection. It would be a mistake to force an alliance before the time is ripe, but there is an infinity of good in cultivating these sentiments of kinship which are the forerunners of formal alliances."

The Chronicle, referring to the banquet as a "remarkable gathering of men who are forces in the modern world," says: "The dinner was the beginning of a movement which, unless unwise words or unforeseen mischance should wreck it, must carry us far. It is important that all men, friends or foe, should realize that this movement has come to stay."

The Standard says: "It would be premature to speak of an alliance in the sense in which continental chancelleries employ the term, but it would be an error not less grave to depreciate the benefits which must accrue to the United States and Great Britain from the knowledge that they can look to each other for sympathy and co-operation."

The Post says: "The banquet has made a permanent addition to the reciprocal friendship which has been derived from recent events in various parts of the world; and while agreements on smaller points, such as the Canadian and American differences, are most valuable, on the large issues treaties are not necessary. The identity of interests of the United States and Great Britain is as close as the community of their traditions, and their destiny is splendid because it is one."

Mount Holyoke College.

South Hadley, Mass., June 4.—A statement has been issued by Mount Holyoke college to show the condition of the Pearson endowment fund, which has been extended to commencement. Dr. Pearson gave the college $50,000 conditional upon the college raising $150,000. Of this amount $120,000 have been raised, leaving a balance of only $30,000 to be secured in order to meet the conditions of Dr. Pearson's gift. Most strenuous efforts are being made to complete the required sum.

THE BOMBARDMENT OF SAN JUAN—THE ATTACK ON MORRO. From HARPER'S WEEKLY. After a Drawing by Carlton T. Chapman.

Reproduced from Harper's Weekly. By Permission. Copyright, 1898, by Harper & Brothers.

Although the first search of Admiral Sampson for Cervera's elusive squadron proved a bitter disappointment to the Americans, it was full of incidents interesting enough to the general public. Chief among these events was the bombardment of the town of San Juan, on the island of Porto Rico, which took place on May 12, and gave to Sampson's fleet its first opportunity to engage concertedly in actual warfare. An illustration by Chapman, reproduced today from Harper's Weekly, affords a vivid picture of the affair.

The American squadron was composed of ten battle-ships, monitors and cruisers. During the night of May 11 they approached San Juan from the northwest, and on the morning of the 12th all hands were called and breakfast served at three o'clock. The men then knew that gunpowder was to be burned, and they were correspondingly jubilant. With the first rays of dawn the call to quarters was sounded, and the final preparations made for active work on the Spanish fortifications which protect the harbor. Headed by the Iowa, which had been selected by Admiral Sampson, as his flag-ship, the formidable column of fighting boats made three circuits before the forts, pouring in their fire at an average range of about 1800 yards.

The guns of the enemy were worked vigorously, but with the usual result. Not since modern rifles with gun sights were invented has any one seen such shooting as from the shore batteries of San Juan. The count rose into the hundreds, with never a hit, and it was difficult for the commander-in-chief to prevent the smaller, unprotected cruisers from recklessly exposing themselves to possible desruction by running close in to the shore. On the American side the marksmanship was effective after the range was secured, and most of the works were damaged and the guns of the Morro silenced. The last shot was fired at five o'clock, and the order to rctire was reluctantly obeyed.

It is hard to form any idea of the value of the short bombardment. In connection with the withdrawal of the fleet, it must be remembered that the Admiral had reason to expect an engagement with the fleet of the enemy, and this covered many obvious reasons for not continuing the bombardment of San Juan. Apparently the battle was an incident of the war, like the action at Matanzas, proving again the lack of training of the Spanish and the coolness and ability of the Americans. Only two of the several shots from the enemy were felt by our ships.

THROWING THE DISCUS.

Best Results Obtained by Throwing It From a Whirling Movement.

A number of queries have been received as to the rules governing the throwing of the discus, which has been lately added to the list of championship events in the Western Intercollegiate association. The discus is thrown from a circle of the same dimensions as used in throwing the hammer and putting the shot. The same rules governing fouls also apply. The best results are obtained by throwing the disk from a whirling movement, similar to the method used in throwing the hammer, as more force can be put into the throw. Henneman uses this method, although some athletes do not.

As there have never been any contests in this event among the western colleges the entries will be awaited with interest for the western championships. In the opinion of Athletic Director Fred Stone of the C. A. A. anything over 100 feet will be unusually good work for the college athletes, owing to the lack of practice. He says that the distance of which a man is capable is an uncertain quantity, as it is necessary to get a certain hold upon the disk in order to make the throw successful, and as this hold only comes with long practice a man may make one good throw and not be able to duplicate it for some time after and should not be discouraged by this fact.—Chicago Tribune.

COLLEGE RECORDS BROKEN.

Myer Prinstein Made a Remarkable Long Jump at Syracuse.

Saturday, May 7, was a day of record breaking at the spring games of the colleges throughout the United States, and several of the records made that day will probably stand for a long time, especially that of James H. Maybury of the University of Wisconsin, where he ran a 50 yard dash in 5 1-5 seconds. It was claimed that he did it in five seconds flat, but it was not allowed, and his record of 5 1-5 stands as the world's record. Pat O'Dea of the same university made a drop kick with a football of 189 feet 11 inches, lowering the American record.

At the dual games of Cornell and Syracuse university, held at Syracuse, new records were made in the high jump and broad jump, Myer Prinstein of Syracuse university clearing 23 feet 2½ inches, breaking the collegiate record, and Powell of Cornell setting a new mark in the running high jump at 6 feet 1⅛ inches. Both Powell and Prinstein will be factors in the open events at Mott Haven. At Yale's track games R. G. Clapp broke the record in pole vaulting, clearing the bar at 11 feet 6 inches.—New York World.

TIPS FROM THE BAT.

Tim Hurst's Firemen is the new name given the St. Louis Browns.

The Western league will pay over $11,000 to railroads this year, not to speak of what the sleeping car people will receive.

Lajoie is one of the most natural batsmen in the Eastern league. He seems to be able to hit any kind of a ball, whether high or low.

The Boston, Chicago, Brooklyn and St. Louis clubs to a man refused to sign the ackowledgment of the Brush resolution regarding rowdy ball playing.

Yale's baseball team has plenty of snap and dash, but is weak at third base and behind the bat, while the batting is not strong enough to suit the coaches.

Dowd and Turner are the only regular players on the St. Louis team who have batted above the .300 mark. Dowd has .476 in five games and Turner .358 in ten games.

Perry Werden, the Minneapolis first base man, fell on a sidewalk in Kansas City the other day and fractured his kneecap. He will not be able to play again this season.

Manager Selee of the Bostons said recently that he was glad to hear of Tucker's successful playing with Brooklyn. "He'll help them to win many games," said Selee, "for he'll put lots of life into them."

Chicago's New Hammer Thrower.

The University of Chicago is developing a new hammer thrower in Mortimer, the football player. He has been tossing the hammer in practice at various distances between 120 and 125 feet and has had only a little over a week's training at the event. He is likely to become a strong bidder for a place in that event in the western intercollegiate championships and in the dual meets, although he will have to do his best to defeat Von Oven and Enochs of Illinois and Gulberson of California. These three men can throw the hammer 125 feet easily, while Gulberson has a record of 130 feet, which is better than has ever been done in the western field days.—Chicago Tribune.

SOME WAR STATISTICS.

During the last few months of the civil war the expense of the government exceeded $3,000,000 a day.

It is estimated that since the Christian era began over 4,000,000,000 human beings have perished in war.

The destruction of stores and clothing by both armies during the civil war is estimated at $100,000,000.

The cost of our navy during the civil war was: For 1862, $42,000,000; 1863, $63,000,000; 1864, $85,000,000; 1865, $122,000,000.

The expense of the war department in 1862 was $394,000,000; in 1863, $599,000,000; in 1864, $690,000,000, and in 1865, $1,031,000,000.

During the civil war the Confederate cruisers captured or destroyed 80 ships, 46 brigs, 67 schooners and 8 other vessels flying the American flag.

The number of men withdrawn from industry to take part in the civil war on the Union side was 2,772,468, while the Confederates enlisted over 600,000.

The cost of the world's wars since the Crimean war has been $13,265,000,000, or enough to give a $10 goldpiece to every man, woman and child on the globe.

In times of war the armies of European nations can be raised to 9,366,000 men, and the daily expense will be nearly $20,000,000, to say nothing of the destruction of life and property.

During the most peaceful years the world has 3,700,000 soldiers, who are withdrawn from productive occupations to pose as soldiers. The pay, equipments, food and clothing of these men cost the world's taxpayers nearly $8,000,000 a day.—Boston Herald.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

Keep the weeds down in the early garden.

In the garden and small fruit plot use a line to make the rows straight.

Extra work in preparing the soil adds much to the growth of the plants.

Grafting wax is one of the best materials to use in covering up wounds made in pruning.

For home use set out a sufficient number of good varieties to maintain a constant succession.

If manure is applied when the tree is set out, be careful that it is thoroughly incorporated with the soil.

When the grapevines are set out, putting a few old bones in the place prepared for them will be beneficial.

Pruning too much at a time instead of a light pruning each year when needed injures the vigor of the trees.

In planting out strawberries stick to the old standard sorts for the main crop. Try new varieties on a small scale.

The longer an orchard is kept in cultivation and a crop is taken off the greater becomes the necessity for manuring.

Use a strong soapsuds wash to which a small quantity of carbolic acid has been added for trees infested with bark lice.

The greater portion of the roots of the grape vine grow near the surface, and for this reason cultivation should be shallow.

Shortening back the heads of newly planted trees after the opening of the leaves checks the growth and often injures them.

In the garden, as on the farm, better results in every way will be secured if a good system of rotation is followed.—St. Louis Republic.

Irish Athletic Club's Emblem.

At the Irish Athletic club's meeting the other night one of the most important items under discussion was the selection of an athletic emblem. It was decided that the crest of the organization shall be a red hand supported on each side by the wings of Mercury—the crest of the famous Clan O'Neill.

Six companies of the Irish volunteers have entered for the relay race on Memorial day, which means that the race will be a programme in itself.—New York World.

Cricket For Philadelphia Women.

The new woman is not content with golf and the cycle, basket ball and bowling. She aims for something more strongly associated with her big brother, and in Philadelphia the girls are flirting with cricket. A movement is under way in the Quaker City to form a woman's cricket club, and the leader of the new idea is Miss Edith Cunningham Hazen.—Exchange.

Good Afternoon.

Our Government is being urged to a quick aggressive movement to get Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines in our possession before Spain seeks peace as a means of setting forth the plea that we have not made good our ownership by completed occupation. There seems to be some mistake in this conception. If Spain asks for peace, it can only be granted on our conditions; and if we demand the Philippines or any other territory as compensation for our war costs, Spain must either concede our terms or drive our forces out of what she claims to be her territory and continue the war until we have completed our occupation beyond all cavil.

There is no longer any doubt that Cervera's fleet is in the horbor of Santiago and at the mercy of our fleets. Schley's reconnoissance in force of last Tuesday, which was probably intended to settle that point and do some work preliminary to later operations, has laid the basis for movements that may soon dispose of the possession of Cuba. It is intimated that Sampson will co-operate with Schley at Santiago and that a large military force will be simultaneously or soon landed on the island. This seems to foreshadow that, so soon as Santiago has been occupied and Cervera's fleet captured or destroyed, Havana will be attacked from the sea by Sampson's and Schley's fleets and, on land, by our troops. There can be no possible doubt about the outcome of our programme in the Atlantic. Havana being captured and the Spanish army around there defeated, it will only remain that San Juan be disposed of, which would be a comparatively easy operation. With these achievements, Cuba and Porto Rico would be ours and an early peace would be inevitable.

Seasonable Tips.

Worse!
And worse!
And more of it!
Rain every day!
"Rather cloudy on Sunday!"
Local rains Monday morning.
Fine growing weather.
The moon "fulled" this morning.
Get out the winter overcoat.
Start up the furnace again.
Warm with showers—Old Farmer's Almanac.

The days are nearly at their longest. The sun will rise but two minutes earlier, but the afternoons will continue to lengthen.

Another change in the moon next Saturday.

Summer will begin June 21, and rain is predicted on that day.

Washington predictions: In New England cool easterly winds now seem likely to continue through Sunday, probably with partially cloudy weather, though at this time it promises to be without rain.

Such as it was, yesterday's temperature was very uniform, not varying over six degrees all day.

Less than a quarter of an inch of rain fell Friday.

The maximum velocity of the wind yesterday was 28 miles.

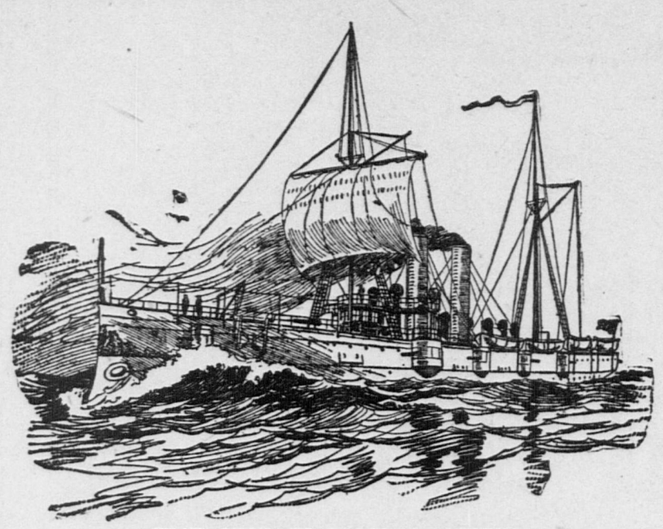
Though the Ledger man predicted rain for every day in June he does not feel responsible for the weather.

He says this because he has heard that some one wants to hang him.

June 17, will be a big day in Braintree.

QUINCY BOY ON THE MONTGOMERY.

A letter received this morning from Thomas T. Davidson of Quincy, states that he is on the Montgomery. He left Key West about two weeks ago and is now with the rest of Sampson's fleet.



THE CRUISER MONTGOMERY.

The Montgomery is an unprotected cruiser of 2,080 tons displacement. She cost $612,500 and has a speed of 19.5 knots. She carries nine 5 inch rapid fire guns and ten smaller guns.

MAX LOVELL BUTLER.

Distinguished Clergy at His Funeral.

The funeral of Max Lovell, only child of Rev. and Mrs. Ellery Channing Butler, was held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the First church, and the service although brief, was of a very impressive nature. Flowers, the mute emblems of appreciation, were in abundance, their fragrance filling the edifice. The entire front of the desk and altar was one mass of ferns, lilies and roses, while the white casket in which the remains were encased, was almost hidden from sight by roses as it was borne down the aisle and placed in front of the altar There were many present including parishoners of the church and friends of the young man who had been suddenly taken off in his prime.

Rev. Edward A. Horton officiated, assisted by the Rev. B. H. Bailey and Dr. William Everett, while the ushers were Mr. Harry Porter, Mr. Lawrence Sturtevant, Mr. Herbert W. Barker, Mr. Harry Russell, Mr. Robert Porter, Mr. Arthur Hall, Mr. C. Eaton Pierce and Mr. Raymond Burke.

The casket was borne down the aisle by the ushers, and as they entered the church they were met by the clergy who preceded them, Rev. Mr. Horton chanting "I am the resurrection and the life."

Rev. Mr. Horton read the burial service, and Rev. B. H. Bailey of Ayer, read at length from the scriptures, Dr. Everett reading the hymns. There was no eulogy except that which was contained in the prayer by Rev. Mr. Horton, which was very fervent and touching. The benediction was by Dr. Everett.

During the services a quartette, composed of Mr. Hawkins, Mrs. H. M. Faxon, Miss Haynes and Mr. E. Walter Arnold, rendered "Lead Kindly Light," "Abide with Me," and "Still, still with Thee." Mr. Walter Loud also rendered Grieg's beautiful violin solo to the dead, "La mort d'Ase."

The remains were not seen at the church, and at the conclusion of the services they were taken to Forest Hills for cremation.

With the passing away of Max Lovell Butler, ends a line of honorable ancestry. Though a young man he faced pain, disease and death with a high courage worthy of his descent from one Charles Butler, a friend of Robert Emmet and a participator with him in the attempt to right the wrongs of an oppressed people; also from one Lucien Carey, Earl of Folkland, who lies buried in Westminister, and who gave his life in defense of the Stuarts at the Battle of Newbury.

Not only was he a courageous fellow, but pure and honorable, with a scorn of anything low or mean. He was loyal to his college, upright and patient to a marked degree in the endurance of suffering. The strong fellowship between father and son made them as brothers, and was noticable even to a casual observer of their daily life together.

With the finish of college work so near at hand, his mind had turned to the future. Putting aside a physician's career, feeling that he could not do the work of a surgeon, he had, this last year, read broadly among English classics and had expressed the desire to especialize that line of work and become a Professor of English. Not three hours before his death, he said, "I must get well so as to take my degree."

At such a time Whittier's words come to us with comfort, "God does not do, nor suffer to be done, aught that we would not do ourselves, could we but see the end as well as He.

VICTORY REPORTED

Cape Haytian Hears of Loss of Spanish Fleet.

Cape Haytian, June 4—A report, which is not verified, says that the American fleet destroyed the Spanish fleet at Santiago yesterday. The report lacks confirmation. It is said that the bombardment commenced at 3 o'clock yesterday morning.

To Clear the Channel.

Port au Prince, June 4—Advices from Santiago say that the Spanish have dynamited the sunken collier to clear the channel in view of the possible coming of the Cadiz fleet to relieve Cervera.

Sunk By Design.

Washington, June 4.—Up to 10 o'clock this morning no news had been received of the sinking of the Merrimac in Santiago harbor. She is an old vessel, and if sunk was probably sent in to block up the channel and bottle up the Spanish fleet.

Marietta Arrives.

Key West, June 4—United States gunboat Marietta arrived here this morning from her long cruise from California. She reports all quiet on the Havana blockade.

Spain Jubilant.

Madrid, June 4.—Spanish advices say that two American boats were seriously damaged at Santiago. The authorities speak of the engagement as a brilliant Spanish victory.

No Official News.

Washington, June 4.—No official news had been received at 2 P. M. of the sinking of the Merrimac. The department believes her sinking was by design to bottle up Cervera. She was an old boat and of but little value.

Wreck at Chatham.

Chatham, June 4.—An unknown three masted schooner went ashore on Bearse's shoals in a heavy northeast storm this morning. She is too far out to identify her or to render her any assistance.

Little Items of Interest About Town.

Mr. John W. Hill of Williamsburg, Mass., now a representative in the legislature at Boston, and Miss Myra Hill, his niece, have been visiting at the home of their former pastor, Rev. H. S. Snyder, and looking around at the objects of interest to strangers.

The work of F. Skinner, photographer at Quincy, is proving very satisfactory to some of our residents. We see several faces of Weymouth friends in in his show cases.

The topic for consideration at the Union Congregational church June 5, will will be, "The Christian Training of Children." This is a kind of anticipation or preparation for Children's Sunday which comes on the 12th day of June.

The children of the Sunday School in Pythian hall are rehearsing their little speeches for Children's Day—one week from next Sunday.

This continuous stormy weather makes more work for those who clean carriages, the livery stables and undertakers.

A Weymouth man writes: The hearty thanks of all readers of the Quincy Daily Ledger are certainly due the publishers even if tardy, for the interesting and instructive columns printed upon the life of Gladstone. Most numbers are possibly thrown away, but that of Saturday, May 21, 1898, ought to be kept for the education and inspiration of the rising generation.

The executive committee of the Endeavor Society met at Mrs. Vaughn's on Thursday evening June 2. Several of the former officers of the Union church were renominated.

Braintree Literary Club.

The Braintree Litera,y club met Tuesday evening with Mrs. C. E. French. In the absence of the president and vice president, Mr. E. W. Stone was elected president pro tempore. The programme of the evening was as follows:

Quotations, Louis Agassiz.

"American Contribution to Knowledge," Mr. George A. Arnold.

Selections, Mrs. George A. Arnold.

The second hour was in charge of the class in science.

The general subject was "Manufactures," and the special topic, "The Culture and Manufacture of Flax."

On June 13 occurs the ancual meeting of the club, which will be held with Mrs. W. E. Morrison.

The quotations will be from John G. Whittier.

MEMORIAL ADDRESS.

Rev. E. W. Preble Speaks Eloquently at Braintree.

This abstract of Rev. E. W. Preble's Memorial Day address at Braintree, which was full of patriotism, is from the Braintree Observer of today.

"And the chief captain answered: With a great sum obtained I this citizenship."

In the time of Paul, the man who could say either by the right of birth, or adoption, or purchase "I am a Roman citizen," was justified in feeling a thrill of pride and cherishing a sentiment of gratitude. Citizenship made him a joint proprietor with the people in the splendid history of that great nation, and in a more practical form, it opened to him many doors of opportunity, distinction and privilege, which to the alien or foreigner were absolutely sealed.

The Roman citizen commanded armies and navies, filled all important civic offices, handled the finances and administered the laws. He could not be fined, imprisoned or scourged without trial; and the right of appeal to the emperor was accorded to the humblest citizen. All these benefits were hereditary. Once a citizen, always a citizen, said the Roman law. With this wide gap between the citizen and foreigner, men were glad to obtain the boon of citizenship at any cost.

To any man, though but a citizen by purchase, all the avenues of distinction, military civic, and social, were open to him as to the native born. hence it was a common thing to purchase the national birthright and frequenty immense sums were paid for it.

We might repeat the text almost word for word respecting our American citizenship. "With a great sum," we have obtained the citizenship we enjoy today. The man who can say, by right of birth or adoption, "I am an American," has boundless cause for pride and gratitude, for it confers honor and distinction and benefits upon all.

When a man becomes a citizen of this country, the United States puts the starry flag in his hands and tells him that all it represents is his. All its power of politics, all its advantages, all its historical jewels, its illustrious names and brilliant achievements, all its past glory and present grandeur and future possibilities belong to him and his children. Let the upstart American millioniare turn his back upon his country, if he will; let him sneer at her democracy; let his daughers regild with their wealth and beautify the crown of some decayed but titled simpleton; but for the poor man, the laborer, the plain people, this is the country of the earth. The true American wants no coat of arms, but the Star and Stripes, and no motto for his crest save the old patriotic, Latin one — "I stand to God and my country."

There is no foreigner in the country who should receive so little honor and consideration as the native born foreigner—the man who is by birth American, and by vanity and pride, something else. But at what a great cost we have obtained this valuable citizenship! What a price has been paid for it, first and last! This is the thought which I wish to emphasize today. I shall not attempt to speak of the money cost of our nation. The military department of our country has alone cost a mint. Wars are expensive occupations and the cost of either one of our national conflicts has been something enormous.

Within my memory five great wars have swept over the world, and what plenteous wealth has been engulfed by them. Vanderbilt is reputed to be worth one hundred million dollars. Had he been obliged to pay the cost of the war of 1866, between Prussia and Austria, he would be as poor as I am. Had Massachusetts been compelled to foot the cost of the war between France and Germany in 1870, it would have taken every cent she was worth and still left her some forty million dollars in debt. But the cost of our civil war was nearly equal to that of two such wars as between France and Germany. To put down the rebellion, rout out slavery and restore the Union, cost us nearly four billion dollars, and it was worth the price.

England has doubtless put a hundred Californias into gunpowder and arms and military supplies during her history; and Uncle Sam has followed her example to a less degree. We are lost when we undertake to sum up the entire money cost of our country. It runs up into the great astronomical figures which are used in measuring the stars and their distances. But there are other things which a nation counts more precious than money; let us glance at some of the more valuable things which are involved in the building and preserving of such a nation as ours.

The twelfth corps in the army wore as a distinguishing badge, the five pointed stars, the star of the flag. Now I want to mention the five points of that star, the five greatest things which our nation has cost.

In the first place it cost a sturdy manhood to build a nation like ours. That is one point of the nation's star. Poltroons and cowards do not build up nations; pleasure seekers and voluptuaries do not build nations; swells and dudes do not build nations; rubber and gristle men do not build nations; neither will these qualities keep them. Nations are built and kept by men of strong wills, of brave hearts, of positive beliefs and deep convictions and of sturdy manhood.

The old Puritans and Pilgrims! what stalwart men they were. They stuck fast to their money, to their beliefs to their word, to their honor, their families and their liberty. What a sturdy manhood there was under the tattered regimentals of those old patriots! For the most part the men of our Civil war were manly fellows As a rule, the men who marched with Grant down the Mississippi, who followed Sherman's victorious banner to the sea, or who battled to and fro over the bloody fields of Virginia, the men who did the fighting were thoroughly ingrained with manly characteristics. We might well lift our hats to the men who pursued rebellion and slavery to their death and rescued the Union from destruction.

But let me mention another point of the nation's star. It costs intelligence to build and keep a nation like ours. Look at our institutions. Study our form of government and the broad principles which underlie it. What practical wisdom and foresight and comprehensive views the framers had!

The more the destiny of the country is unrolled by time and progress, and the original design is filled in and completed, the more we are amazed at the discernment and intelligent forecast of the founders. All the wars in defense of the country have been wars of intelligence. In every case they have been fought by thinking men whose minds were aroused by just causes for an appeal to arms.

What country on earth ever had armies which rated so high in general intelligence as the North in the war of the rebellion? Our schools and colleges emptied their class-rooms to fill the ranks, farms sent the elect of their sons. The brightest young men in the shops and factories laid aside their tools and every pursuit and profession was represented. There was nothing under the sun the soldiers could not do, from the making of a watch to the construction of a bridge or locomotive.

We have gone to the ranks of the veterans for presidents, governors, members of congress, state and town officials and for some of the best material in professional life. What killed the cock-robin of slavery? Intelligence in the home and in the field.

It was the great ball of enlightened northern opinion, backed by conscience, which growing ever larger, and moving ever swifter, finally bowled over the giant evil of the land. The bell that used to call the slaves together on the plantation of Jefferson Davis, now hangs in the tower of an old schol-house in Wisconsin. It has a right to hang there for the schoolhouse helped to ring slavery out and freedom in. And to keep the nation, there must also be intelligence, for no country in the world depends so much as ours upon education and enlightenment.

Liberty and self-government are perilous things in the hand of ignorant and irresponsible masses. But we see another point in the nation's star. It costs morality to build and keep a nation like ours. The men who hewed and laid the timber of this nation were not men corrupted by vice, but men strengthened by virtues. Pure as the white light of heaven is the fame of Washington and Adams, and Jeffersons, and it is to men of that stamp that we owe the debt of eternal gratitude.

I would not say that all the soldiers of the war were conspicuous examples of morality. Vices were prevalent among them. Drinking and gambling were only too common, and many of the soldiers swore like the army in Flanders. But no army in ancient or modern times was less corrupted by immorality than was ours. It is true that many of the soldiers were morally injured by the war, but it is also true that many were morally benefited by it.

The hard impact of military life, had the tendency to beat out of the man the spirit of meanness and selfishness, and to inculcate obedience and respect for law and order. Where is the veteran of the war who has ever been found in rebellion to rightful authority, or who has been connected with any mad schemes for the overthrow of law and constitutional government?

I frequently hear remarks that are most offensive to my ears. It was thrust in my face only a little while ago that the Grand Army of the Republic was composed of frauds and bummers. We know the statement is false, and we brand it a malicious lie.

Some are unworthily eating the bread of patriots. But there are frauds in business, in the professions; frauds and humbugs in the church even, and the Grand Army has no monopoly of these phases of human nature.

In all things let us live above reproach, whether we shall be personally remembered or not, let us frown down all dishonesty and unrighteousness, and so live and conduct ourselves, that the figure of American volunteer shall be the ideal of the youth of our country for all time to come.

Still another nation-making and preserving power is religion. No nation was ever built without religion and never perished until religion was exchanged for philosophy.

What was the power that inspired the hopes and nerved the hearts of the builders of our country? It was religion. It was to the service and honor of God that they reared, in the new world, the structure of this government, and the hand of religion has been upon it ever since.

The soldiers of our war were not deeply pious, perhaps, but they had generations of religious training behind them, thoroughly believed in the righteousness of their cause and that Providence was at their side and hence their cause must prevail. That long training of the north in the humanities of religion, that instilled love of freedom, and awakened sympathy for the unfortunate, that religious education of the church and Sunday school, helped vastly in turning the scales in our favor.

It now remains for me to speak of but one other point in the nation's star. Above all things it costs patriotism to build and preserve a nation like ours. Such countries can only exist where there is true love for country and a supreme devotion to its interests. How can we ever estimate the great sum, patriotism has paid for our land? Think of the multitudes that for freedom's sake have rushed upon the sword," Think of the four years of the Civil war, years of slaughter, of hospitals and prisons pens, and wounds and death. Think of the tears and sorrows, the bereaved and desolate homes, the young and hopeful lives that were laid as smoking sacrifices on the altar of American freedom! In the old Roman days a civic crown was given to the person who saved the life of a single citizen.

We shall go with flags and flowers to crown the graves of the men who saved a nation. As we perform this service the chords of memory are stirred and we feel the touch of their unseen hands upon us. And while memory is preserved, while history tells its story, while gratitude is esteemed a virtue these men will be remembered and their graves decorated.

They fought for the flag,
They fell for the land,
They died in heroic array;
And we garland the grove,
Of the true and the brave,
With Myrtle and laurel and bay.

At the close of the address the speaker was warmly applauded.

At a meeting of the state military advisory beard yesterday, says the Boston Advertiser, it was voted that in case the general government will accept a full regiment under the second call for troops, to recommend to the governor that the 5th regiment be designated.

In case of a third call for troops it was voted that the 1st and 2d corps of cadets be given an opportunity to recruit a regiment, providing two regiments are called for.

And also that, in the event of a call for cavalry or artillery, or both, such troops to be selected from the cavalry and light artillery of the militia.

It was also stated by the board that the two corps of cadets are very anxious to perform duty during the war; also the artillery and cavalry; and by a previous recommendation of the board giving preference to the state forces any individual militiaman can enlist if this new regiment is formed.

SAILING.

SOUTH WIND.

Bright skies above us,
White clouds drifting over!
Blue spreads the sea, all shimmer and flash.
Boom well off and a lazy helm creaking,
Music of ripples, like kingfisher's plash.
Gurgle and splash!
Chuckles the water,
Silver to windward, sapphire to lee.
Sunshine of nature,
Skylights wide open—
'Tis pleasure to sail on a summer sea.

DUE WEST.

Fifing of wind blasts,
Drumming of halyards!
Beckons the deep where the green waves run.
Sheets close hauled and helm hard a-weather,
Rainbow shot spray flung aloft in the sun.
Rise, plunge!
Dips the bow under.
Mount and away on the back of the sea.
Joy of swift motion,
Infinite distance—
'Tis rapture to sail when the winds blow free.

NORTHEAST.

Howl of the tempest,
Thunder of breakers!
Foam dashing high on a close reefed sail.
Skipping the white crests, leaping the hollows,
Swoop down the wind, like a gull in the gale.
Roll, roll!
Rush the seas after.
Flashes the beacon as homeward we go.
Thrill of the elements,
Soul self assertive—
'Tis passion to sail when the storm winds blow.
—William J. Long in Youth's Companion.

REUNITED.

It had been raining for two days, and now the change to east of the wind had brought sleet, and the moisture was freezing in thin, dangerous ice on the pavements.

George Witherspoon swung the corner into Pine street. His usually erect body was bent against the strength of the wind.

"Such weather for the last of April," he muttered as he went up the steps of his house, and as he put the key into his door a vision came to him of the April two years before—a vision of long lanes, with blossoming lilacs and horse chestnuts and daffodils and of a tall and radiant woman always at his side. He entered the house and went slowly up stairs. How clearly it all streamed out, enveloped his mind, his senses! He had first seen her at a table d'hote in Paris. He had followed her over half of Europe and had finally met her at Baden-Baden. She had a doting old father, but ultimately the two had gained his reluctant surrender of his only adored daughter, and they had married.

For just a year they had enjoyed supreme, overflowing happiness. Then Alice became jealous. A batch of old letters had come to her from an unscrupulous woman her husband had been fascinated by in his extreme youth at college, and she resented with all her intense passionate nature anything which could come between them and their exclusive love for one another. She had spent one long night alone lashing her bitter envy to madness, and the next morning she had gone to him with marvelous calmness and told him of her irrevocable determination to leave him forever. He was proud. He had met her with disdainful indifference, had considered self justification unnecessary, and they had separated.

They both had lived quietly. They went nowhere, for their friends were common ones, and they avoided all possible annoying meetings. He spent his time on the board of trade, at his clubs or in his home, which he could not bring himself to give up, and she had so restricted her life that he scarcely caught a glimpse of her. Only at the theater or at some concert did her pure, proud profile suddenly start out from the crowd, and then emotion would so powerfully sweep over him that he would have to leave the building.

Only one bond still existed between them. Alice's father was old and an invalid. His time was spent at watering places, mostly on the other side, and it had seemed a simple and dutiful kind of falsehood to weave around him a veil of ignorance as to the real state of affairs and leave him with the happy feeling of Alice's joy and completed love. So they wrote to him regularly, filling their letters with sweet plans and ambitions, unconsciously embodying in them their fondest wishes and most heartfelt desires.

George Witherspoon was dressing himself carefully. Three cravats were thrown aside before he had tied one to his taste. He never looked so well as in a Tuxedo, Alice had always said. He could hear her voice now, her low, thrilling voice, saying as she came toward him across the hall, "My big, stunning sweetheart," and just before she put her arms closely around his neck, "Dear, dear, how I love you!"

He shivered with desire for her. Would he never recover? Would he never forget? He thought he could almost feel her face pressed softly against his—his nostrils were filled with the sweet, subtle smell of the sandalwood her laces were put away in.

Hush—a knock at the door! The man's heart swelled with feeling. He forget everything, the intervening year, the awful bitterness, the loneliness, and he softly opened the door, drunk with one dominant idea. His man Chambers stood without.

"A lady to see you, sir," he said.

"Her name?" Witherspoon asked.

"She says it's not necessary to tell it, sir," answered the man, "but it's on important business she wants you, sir, and she will keep you only a minute."

Witherspoon's whole being was vibrating. What was this strange premonition? Was it sorrow coming or did he feel a dawning joy?

"I'll be down in a moment," he said. He walked up and down the room rapidly several times. It was their anniversary. He had remembered and kept it so rigidly. It was barely possible it had come over her as strongly—the happiness they were missing from their lives, the incompleteness of their vapid present—and perhaps she had come to him. He was almost running down the stairs in his eagerness. He held back the portieres, and there she stood before the fire—straight, tense, her slimness accentuated by her velvet coat, the whiteness and delicacy of her face starting out exquisitely from the laces at her throat and from under the big black hat. As he approached her he noticed the nervous tapping of her foot in the fur of the rug, the tense pressure of her clasped hands. Was it a dream—Alice in her home again, a year's miser / canceled in a moment? He held out both hands and noticed her eyes in the mirror they were facing as he said:

"And have you come to me again, Alice?"

She started visibly and then slowly turned.

"Yes," she answered quietly. "I've come to you. And you mustn't fail me," she added beseechingly.

"Won't you sit down?" Witherspoon asked. She was trembling.

"Thank you," she said, and she sat on a low stool, and the man noticed with a sinking of the heart how she drew her little cloak about her, the thumbs of the clasped hands turned up and back. How he remembered!

"I must come to the root of the matter at once," the girl began, and gradually her voice grew fierce and she looked him full in the face with her wide, sad eyes. He noticed, with almost a feeling of exultation, that her face was now the face of the woman who had lived and suffered.

"You haven't heard from my father for some time, have you?" she began.

"No," Witherspoon answered. "It must be some weeks now."

"I received a telegram this afternoon," the woman went on quietly. "He arrived in New York this morning and will be in Cincinnati tomorrow. He is bound for California, and he will, on his way, stop in town with ——, his son and daughter."

Her voice had broken. Witherspoon rose to his feet and walked to the window. The silence was painful.

"And what will you do?" he said, at last, turning to her.

"There's only one thing to do," and the girl's voice was determined. "My father has very little longer to live. He's not had much but disappointment in his life, and, cost what it may, I cannot bring more sorrow to him. You know how the ghastly thing would shock his old time conventionality." She hesitated and seemed to look to the man for his help in thought or deed, but his fear of her scorn kept him silent. At last, taking a deep breath, she went on:

"Tomorrow morning I must send here the few things I took away. The portraits, my piano, my work—they're easily put in place and will be as easily moved away again. I'm sorry to so inconvenience you, but you must see it is unavoidable." She stopped again and looked into the fire. "My room," she asked, "is it much changed?"

The man was kneeling beside her now, his arms about her. "Sweetheart, sweetheart," he almost moaned, "stay with me, I beg of you to stay with me! My life's been a misery since you've not been—everything is flat and without flavor. We've taken a year out of the radiance that is given to man but sparingly. Don't let's throw away another moment of it. I love you—oh, God, how I love you!"

His head was buried in her lap, and slowly she took off her long glove and stroked the hair she remembered so well.

"Are you perfectly sure you want me?" she asked softly.

And so it happened that on the second anniversary of their wedding Mr. and Mrs. George Witherspoon were seen by a party of gay young friends taking dinner at the St. Nicholas. "Gad!" as one of the men said later. "They were like two children off on a lark, and aren't they quite the best looking couple in Cincinnati?"—Cincinnati Post.

OUR WEEKLY FASHION PLATE.

FRENCH SUMMER CASHMERE GOWN FROM HARPER'S BAZAR.

A special feature of an imported gown in creamy-tan cashmere is the fashionable flare of the close-fitting skirt about the feet, which is produced by an outward spring of the gores at each seam below the knee. The fulness at the back is arranged in a double box-pleat, very narrow at the top. The width of the skirt at the hem when pleated is three and a quarter yards. Such a shaped skirt is lined throughout instead of being made over a separate foundation, and is usually untrimmed, although this model has sometimes narrow ruffles inserted in the two front seams, passing down their entire length.

The pointed Eton Jacket, which embodies a new idea in garniture, reaches just a little above the waist-line behind. Bands of black satin outline the divisions of the front, border the small epaulettes which finish the sleeves so becomingly at the shoulder, and form a straight cuff. The open front with satin buttons reveals a chemisette and cravat of pale-rose taffeta. The proper cut of the gown can be obtained only from the cut paper patterns published by Harper's Bazar, where it appears. The black satin straw hat has the crown gracefully encircled by short curling plumes, while under the brim behind are shaded pink velvet geranium blossoms with foliage.

Approximate quantity of material for gown—cashmere, 6 yards; black satin, 1 yard; taffeta, 1 1-2 yards.

Impartial.

The absolute transparency of Wordsworth's nature was often very amusing to his friends, since it sometimes brought him to the expression of opinions which seemed diametrically opposed. Once while he was looking at a magnificent scene in the lake country he said to his companion:

"Travelers often make their boast of Swiss mountains on the ground that they are two or three times as high as the English, but I reply that the clouds lie so low on them that half of them commonly remain out of sight." The other answered, perhaps rather dryly:

"That is true."

He made no defense of Switzerland, remembering that it was folly to Beard the lion in his den,

The Douglas in his hall.

It might be inexpedient to do battle with the prophet and priest of English mountains when he stood on his own ground.

"You cannot see those boasted Swiss mountains when the clouds hang low," Wordsworth continued pertinaciously.

"Certainly not!"

But after a pause, he spoke again.

"But I must admit," he said, "you know they are there." Had he been opposed, he would not have withdrawn an inch. As it was, his own fairness of mind made him retract.—Youth's Companion.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

TOPIC.—Christ's mission on earth.—John x, 7-18.

Christ's mission on earth was to "seek and to save that which was lost;" it was to give divine life to those who had lost it by sin and who could not obtain it in any other way. The one sole object of His coming into the world, by His own testimony, was to give this divine, spiritual life, which would result in man's salvation. "I am come," He says, "that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." This divine life was the greatest need of man, and in making it possible Christ became the greatest benefactor of the human race.

Christ's mission to give life was a mission of unselfishness. He came not to receive, but to give. False Christs had arisen, hirelings, but their concern was not for the sheep, who needed life, but for themselves. In a moment of danger they were ready to flee, willing to sacrifice the sheep if necessary to save themselves. They were thieves and hirelings, inspired alone by self advantage and self aggrandizement.

Christ's mission was fulfilled by the giving of His own life. "I am the Good Shepherd; the Good Shepherd giveth His life for the sheep." "I lay down My life for the sheep." He died Himself that others might have life. It was necessary that Christ should die before man could have life. We may differ as to the cause of the necessity, but cannot deny the fact. Christ Himself has testified to this necessity. "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so the Son of Man must (necessity) be lifted up" to give eternal life. To the disciples on the way to Emmaus, after His resurrection, He said, "Ought not Christ to have suffered these things and to have entered into glory?" Thus Christ Himself declares the necessity of His death, and by His death alone was He able to gain life, to accomplish His mission on earth. It was only when He had been lifted up and the end of life was immediately before Him that He could exclaim, "It is finished." Then and then only had He performed the work that God had given Him to do.

Christ's mission should be the mission of all Christians. As His one aim in life was to give spiritual and eternal life to those who had it not, so this should be our aim and our mission. And as in His case it required self sacrifice to accomplish it, so it will in ours. Christians live too much to themselves and for themselves. Our Master lived for others, leaving us an example that we should follow. His last commission to His disciples was "Go and preach to every creature," seek and save that which is lost. Are we doing what Jesus did when upon earth? Are we doing what Jesus would do were He in our places today? Millions are calling for the bread of life. Let us not send them away, but let us hear His voice saying to us "Give ye them to eat," and let us do it.

Bible Readings.—Isa. xl, 11; lxi, 1-3; Ezek. xxxiv, 11-24; Math. xvi, 21; xx, 17-19; Luke ii, 40-52; iv, 16-21; ix, 21, 22; xv, 1-10; xix, 1-10; John xiii, 12-17; Heb. ii, 9-11; xiii, 20, 21; I Pet. ii, 20-25.

A Christian Greeting.

Whether or not a church is marked by a genuinely hospitable spirit is to be determined not by the amount of sociability among its own members, but by their attitude toward strangers. He was a wise pastor who counseled his people the other day not to stop and speak to their friends after the service, but to seek out and extend a welcome to those who were not customary attendants. It sometimes happens that even in a church which has great reputation for sociability strangers come and go without so much as being accosted. The reason is that everybody is so much absorbed in saluting his own friends that, however good his intentions may be, he overlooks the outsiders. There are other places and times which offer opportunities for intercourse with your friends, but when you are in the house of God seize the chance to give a Christian greeting to any who may feel themselves alone and friendless. It requires some courage to approach an entire stranger, whose demeanor in many cases does not invite you to take the initiative. Probably, however, if you tried it oftener you would find it easier. —Congregationalist.

Trust.

Trust is applied faith. It is confidence in a person. The difference between faith and trust may be stated by a preposition. It is often so stated in the Scripture when the preposition in or on is connected with believing. Devils may believe that there is a God, but only disciples of Jesus believe on Him unto everlasting life. We believe a doctrine; we trust a person. What we believe about Christ is one thing, what we trust in Christ for is another. —Christian Intelligencer.

Moderation.

Let us pray for that great—I had almost said that crowning—grace and virtue of moderation, what St. Paul calls sobriety and a sound mind. Let us pray for moderate appetites, moderate passions, moderate appetites, moderate gains, moderate joys and, if sorrows be needed to chasten us, moderate sorrows. Let us not long violently after or wish too eagerly to rise in life.—Reformed Church Messenger.

Self Our Principle.

When self is our principle and end, we rise no higher than ourselves, but when God becometh the life of our soul we follow after Him and rise far above the highest point to which nature could conduct us.—Episcopal Recorder.

Quality, Not Quantity.

Dear hustling brother, it is the quality, not the quantity, of your work that counts.—Congregationalist.

WOLCOTT STRUCK OUT.

Resented Criticism on Bimetallic Commission.

Mr. Allen's Constituents Are Disparaged.

Majority of the Senators In Favor of a Bond Issue.

Washington, June 4.—There was a sensational passage last evening in the senate between Mr. Allen (Pop., Neb.) and Mr. Wolcott (Rep., Col.). In the course of some remarks on bimetallism, drawn out by a statement Mr. Chandler made in withdrawing his amendment—a statement which characterized as "eccentric characters" the four senators who had voted against the bill authorizing the international bimetallic committee—Mr. Allen declerad that the work of the bimetallic commission had been a failure and that no good could have been expected of it, as international bimetallism was a delusion and a snare. An appropriation of $100,000 had been made for the commission, which had travelled through Europe on a mission which was foredoomed to failure.

SENATOR WOLCOTT.

Mr. Aldrich pressed the amendment of the minority of the finance committee providing for the issue of one hundred millions of certificates of indebtedness and three hundred millions of bonds, to be used exclusively for the payment of the expenses of the war. After an extended debate by the vote of 45 to 31 the bond amendment was incorporated in the bill as a substitute for the amendment to issue legal tender notes. The bond proposition received the votes of 37 Republicans, seven Democrats and one Populist. The Democrats who voted for it were Cannery, Faulkner, Gorman, Gray, Lindsay, Mitchell and Murphy, and the Populist was Kyle. No Republicans voted against the issue of bonds, the votes in opposition to bonds being cast by 21 Democrats, five Populists and five silver Republicans.

Just before adjournment last evening, a sensational speech was made by Mr. Wolcott in reply to some suggestions concerning the bimetallic commission made by Mr. Allen. Mr. Wolcott regarded Mr. Allen's statements as personally offensive, and he made a lashing attack upon the Nebraska senator and the Populist party.

Mr. Wolcott, who was the president of the bimetallic commission, was evidently indignant as he took the floor. He stated that the three commissioners appointed by the president spent more than six months in Europe, traveling where their duties took them. They were accompanied by a secretary, and the entire expense of the work accomplished was only $16,000. Every member of the commission, in accepting the appointment and performing his duties, sacrificed thousands of dollars. Mr. Wolcott said: "It is undignified and unbefitting a senator of the United States to stand on this floor and suggest that the commission spent money it was not justified in spending. I am getting tired," continued Mr. Wolcott, hotly, "of hearing that sort of suggestions from the senator from Nebraska. Through him they are now being circulated in the west by means of the 'patent insides' which constitute the bone and sinew and most of the brains of the Populist party.

"I suppose that at some cross roads in Nebraska where nothing is known of Europe except that it is on the map of the world some people of the senator's kind have gotten together and resolved that no country except the United States is enlightened enough to have ideas on the money question. They are not aware that the great leaders of thought in England, France and Germany favored bimetallism more than a quarter of a century before the Populist party or the senator from Nebraska was ever heard of. Fortunately, however, the bimetallists of Europe are not hampered in their work by the long-haired cranks who clog the passage of enlightened financial legislation in this country."

Mr. Wolcott stated that the resolve of the Indian government to adopt the gold standard had come to the friends of bimetallism like a flash of lightning from a clear sky. France, he declared, was in favor of bimetallism, and yet the cultivation of that financial sentiment was what Mr. Allen called a delusion and a snare. "The experiment now being tried in India," continued the senator, "in the opinion not only of the bimetallists of the world, but also of nine-tenths of the gold men of London, will result in absolute failure. He is an enemy and not a friend of bimetallism who stands up in this presence and talks about international bimetallism being a delusion and a snare; and yet it appears that he has no argument to present, except that embodied in the statement—untrue, unpleasant and undignified—that the bimetallic commission took a large sum of money and squandered it."

Mr. Allen made a brief reply to Mr. Wolcott, speaking calmly. He stated that he had not charged the commission with extravagance. What he did say was that the appropriation was made when it was evident that the effort to be made would be a failure. He had contended therefore that the money ought not to be expended at all. He was not, he concluded, afraid of the senator (Mr. Wolcott) in the senate or elsewhere.

Mr. Wolcott proposed an amendment to the amendment of the committee upon coinage of the seigniorage. It was in the nature of a substitute and, after being slightly amended, a direct vote upon it was reached and it was agreed to, 48 to 31. Mr. Jones (Dem., Ark.) gave notice that he would move hereafter to substitute the committee amendment for the Wolcott amendment; which provides "that the secretary of the treasury shall immediately cause to be coined, as fast as possible, into standard silver dollars, to an amount of not less than $4,000,000 per month, which shall be of like weight and fineness, and of like legal tender quality as those provided for under existing law, all the silver bullion now held in the treasury; and to issue silver certificates of similar design and denominations and of the same quality, payable and redeemable in like manner as those authorized by law, to the amount of the gain or seigniorage derived from the purchase of silver bullion by the treasury under the act of July 14, 1890, until the sum of $42,000,000 shall have been issued."

Heureaux, the Tyrant.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 4.—A correspondent at Puerto Plata cables an account of the repulse of a revolutionary party under General Jiminez in Monte Cristi, San Domingo. Generals Augustin Morales and Rominjo Buetz were killed. Five of the insurgents were taken prisoners and shot, and the others escaped in the steamer Fanita.

President Heureaux is said to have recently resumed the arbitrary execution of his opponents, sometimes openly, sometimes stealthily. The tragic disappearances of men of political note have been frequent of late in Dominica. At the close of the last revolution the rebels buried hundreds of stands of arms rather than surrender them. These are supposed to be in the hands of the insurgents.

The Dominican consul here received a dispatch from Heureaux saying that the attempted revolution had been defeated; that General Jiminez fled at the first fire of the government troops, taking refuge on board the Fanita, and that all the others who landed, with the exception of three, had been killed.

Games Played Friday.

The Torontos beat the Springfields easily, 9 to 3. Dolan was knocked out of the box in the first inning.

The Pittsburgs easily defeated the Phillies, 8 to 4. The Quakers were weak at the bat and their fielding was ragged.

The Brooklyns scored two runs in the first inning of the Chicago game, and they proved enough to win, 2 to 1. Donahue was put out for kicking.

The ex-champions were unable to hit safely when hits were needed to win from the St. Louis team. Both teams fielded brilliantly. Score: 5 to 4.

The Montreals defeated the Providences because they hit harder, 9 to 7. Both teams fielded raggedly.

The Washingtons made seven errors and the Louisvilles five in Friday's game, which the Kentucky club won, 16 to 4. Five of the 16 were earned from 10 hits.

The Dartmouths defeated the Amhersts yesterday for the third time this season, 6 to 3.

Boston Jottings.

Boston, June 4.—Three hundred and fifty women, graduates of the Boston normal school, met yesterday afternoon to protest against the city's discontinuing that institution.

A party of United States seamen and marines was attacked by a mob of toughs while passing through Hudson street yesterday. A fierce street fight resulted, in which the sailors were severely injured. John Kelley, a seaman on the Katahdin, had a bad fracture of the lower jaw and contusions and cuts about the head and body.

A police officer found an unknown man in a doorway in Roxbury, seemingly very ill. The man was taken to the city hospital, where it was found he had taken a dose of aconite. At the hospital the man revived enough to say that his name was Harry Watson, but that was all he was able to say, and he died at 0:45.

The Trade Situation.

New York, June 4.—The flattering outlook reported in nearly all the grain growing sections of the country, and particularly as regards growing wheat, has been of a nature to dominate the trade situation, says Bradstreet's. Reports as to distributive trade are encouraging this week. A hopeful feature is the generally reported good trade at retail, not only in the west, but also in the east, where unfavorable weather conditions have heretofore checked demand greatly. The volume of orders already received for fall delivery by wholesalers is, however, of such proportions as to lead to the impression that the fall demand will be the best seen for years.

Business failures in the United States this week number 178, against 231 last week, 192 in 1897, 236 in 1896, and 207 in 1894.

No Grounds to Prosecute.

London, June 4.—The Madrid correspondent of The Standard says: "After consulting with the law officers, Sagasta has arrived at the conclusion that there are no grounds to prosecute Castelar for the article attacking the queen regent."

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Henry Whipple, judge of the third judicial district of Rhode Island, dropped dead of apoplexy in his office in Westerly.

Mrs. Nancy Lord, a demented woman in West Brookfield, Mass., died from the effects of burns received by a kerosene lamp explosion.

About 1000 of the 1400 striking longshoremen in Philadelphia are at work on the terms of the American Longshoremen's union and the strike is practically over. Only four firms have refused to come to terms with the men.

There was a collision at Readville, Mass., last night between two freight trains on the New York, New Haven and Hartford road, in which no one was injured. Three cars were derailed and considerably damaged, and traffic was delayed for two hours.

A sensation has been created in St. Petersburg by the news of an unexpected attack by 1000 natives on a Russian post, garrisoned by 300 infantry, at the town of Andijan, province of Ferghana, Turkestan. It is said that 20 of the soldiers were killed and 18 wounded.

FRUIT AND FLOWERS

OUT OF DOOR ROSES.

The Yard Culture of the Rose—Twelve First Class Varieties.

There are three important things to be considered in the yard culture of roses. First, a suitable location; second, suitable soil, and last but not least, suitable varieties. An Indiana correspondent of Gardening, who points out these essentials, says: I know of many persons who go to the woods to get light soil from old tree stumps which they use for preparing a bed for roses, and after planting their roses in this soil and watering them carefully feel discouraged that they do not make a strong growth.

In order to grow roses in the yard the first important thing is a good open exposure, if 30 or 40 feet away from large trees so much the better. A yellow, rather heavy fibrous loam with good drainage is considered the ideal soil for roses. Spread two or three inches of well rotted cow manure over the bed, thoroughly mix same to the depth of a foot or a trifle over. A bed prepared in this manner should grow first class roses. If your soil is a hard, sticky clay, it should be removed to the depth of 15 inches and replaced with soil such as the above.

I have often been asked the best varieties for outdoor culture, and if I was to be confined to but three varieties I should plant Clothilde Soupert, Mme. Caroline Testout and Kaiserin Augusta Victoria. These are three gems of the first water, perfectly hardy here, good growers and of good color.

For a list of 12 varieties: Clothilde Soupert, pink, shading to white; Mme. Testout, clear pink; Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, white shading to light yellow in center; Meteor, velvety crimson; Belle Siebrecht, rosy pink; American Beauty, deep rose; La France, pink; Champion of the World, rosy pink; Mignonette, very dwarf, carmine pink; Wootton, light red; Mme. de Watteville, white with pink shadings, very beautiful; Souv. de la Malmaison, flesh color.

These varieties are all hardy in this vicinity (except Mme. de Watteville) if planted in a well drained soil. A light covering of manure, mostly straw, thrown carelessly over the plants late in fall will be beneficial.

Japanese Plums.

No type of fruit has awakened so much interest of late years as the Japanese plums. Their advantage, according to L. H. Bailey in American Gardening (from which the cut is reproduced), is not that they are better than the old type of domestic plums, but that they add variety to our plum flora. It is always an advantage to have many kinds from which to select.

As a class, according to this authority, the Japanese plums are inferior in quality to the domestic types, and yet the Burbank and some others are fully as good as the Lombard, if not, in fact, better. The particular merits of the Japanese plums are their productiveness, early bearing, long keeping qualities and beauty. They supply varieties in summer before any of the valuable domestic types ripen their fruits. They are so exceedingly productive as a class that they tend to overbear, and it is probable that we shall find complaints of the trees being short lived. The best quality of the plum is ordinarily not developed except by heroic thinning. Trees which bear so heavily as these Japanese plums should receive extra care in thinning, tillage and fertilizing. The Burbank has yellow flesh and yellow skin overlaid with red.

THE BURBANK PLUM.

Setting Strawberry Plants.

The strawberry can be transplanted almost any time of year, except when the ground is frozen hard or covered with snow, yet there are certain seasons—i. e., spring and early fall—more favorable than others for this work. The objections raised to fall setting are that many of the plants fail to live and runners are insufficient to produce a full crop the next season. In those sections where warm weather extends well into November, followed with mild winters, fall setting is desirable and successful, says an authority on the subject.

Fruit Notes.

The Gaudy strawberries appears to be well adapted to moist land.

Equal weights of ground bone, muriate of potash and acid phosphate is reported a popular formula among New Jersey growers who mix their own fertilizer for strawberries.

Whenever blighted portions show in pear trees, cut them out.

Denver Field and Farm says that certain portions of Montana are developing into fine fruit districts.

Among the newer black caps nothing will surpass the Conrath for size and earliness and the Kansas for a midseason berry, according to a report from the Indiana station.

It is advisable to remove the wires used to fasten labels on nursery trees before the trees grow sufficiently to receive injury from them.

The York Imperial is pronounced "the coming apple of the west" by an eminent authority. It is grown especially in Illinois and Iowa.

"A Ten Pound Boy."

Many women seem to have been denied the precious gift of motherhood because of some weakened condition of the special organism which makes motherhood possible; but in the great majority of cases such a difficulty is not by any means incurable. In thousands of instances Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, by restoring the natural, healthy condition of the organs distinctly feminine has been the means of conferring upon childless women the one inestimable blessing.

A Georgia clergyman, Rev. G. H. Akridge, of Pelham, Mitchell Co., Ga., in a letter written to Dr. Pierce, says: "We had been married six years without offspring, when my wife commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I then wrote to you for advice, and your instructions were to give 'Golden Medical Discovery' alternately with the 'Favorite Prescription.' This we did. The result is restoration of my wife to good health and a ten pound boy. In honor of the world-famed Dr. Pierce, I have named him Pierce. 'Favorite Prescription' is certainly the medicine for invalid women."

The vast experience and skill which Dr. Pierce has acquired during his thirty years' practice as chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N.Y., has made his name known and his medicines recognized as standard remedies in every civilized country on the globe. His great thousand-page illustrated book, the "People's Common Sense Medical Adviser" has had the greatest sale of any medical work in any language. A free edition has been published and a paper-bound copy will be sent to any family absolutely without charge except the mere cost of mailing which is 21 one-cent stamps. Send these with your address to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N.Y., or if preferred send 31 stamps for a heavier cloth-bound copy.

A man or woman who neglects constipation suffers from slow poisoning. Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. All medicine dealers.

Body Washed Ashore.

George Now of Charles street, Houghs Neck, was patroling the shore about 4.30 this morning in search of any wreckage that might be washed ashore. He had reached a point just west of "the Willows," when he saw what he at first supposed to be a bundle of clothing. Upon closer examination he found it to be the body of a man. It was badly decomposed and had evidently been in the water for a long time, the head and arms having been eaten off by fishes.

Mr. Now, walked to Quincy centre and notified the police, who in turn notified Undertaker Hall. He and Chief Litchfield went down and removed the body, which has been placed in the receiving tomb at Mt. Wollaston cemetery. From the clothing it is supposed to be the body of a sailor.

Mr. Now receives a reward of $5 from the county for finding the body.

Vandalism.

When Rev. D. M. Wilson returned to Quincy this week for a brief visit from Brooklyn, he found that during his absence, vandals had been at work at the Peter Butler mansion, which he occupied when residing in Quincy. Several windows had been smashed and a quantity of flour and molasses had been strewn about the kitchen floor. The police, who investigated the case, say that the work was evidently that of boys. The damage will not exceed $5.

There will be a grand union meeting of the Braintree churches in the Town Hall, at 7 o'clock tomorrow evening, in the interest of carrying on Y. M. C. A. work in the army. The method of work will be to maintain a tent with each regiment or brigade at State camps, or at the front, equipped with reading tables, correspondence facilities, organ, singing books, etc. The Grand Army, the Relief Corps, the Young People's Societies, the Churches and all patriotic citizens are invited. The speakers will be William H. Breed of Boston, and George S. Budd, Assistant State Secretary of the Young Men's Christian Associations of Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

The contract for the flag staff to be placed in front of the Town Hall was awarded to a Cambrdge firm for $198. It has been decided to have the flag raising, parade and grand demonstration at 2 o'clock June 17. Major Morrison has been invited to act as Marshall.

Prof. Louis F. Gomez of Worcester spent Memorial day with friends in town.

Examinations for admission to Thayer Academy will be held on Saturday June 18.

Rev. C. H. Williams will address the graduates of the Monatiquot grammar school on Thursday June 23, at 10.30.

There will be a grand demonstration by the citizens along Quincy avenue when the new electric line is opened which will be in about ten days.

Plans are being made for an elaborate display of work on Parents day at the Monatiquot school.

The largest flag in the south part of the town was flung to the breeze by Edward Shay on Memorial Day.

Boston politics have reached an active stage in the house. Mayor Quincy and several members of his cabinet and lots of Republicans and Democrats from Boston have urged the committee on rules to admit a bill for some change in the mode of electing aldermen. They have made out so good a case that tacit consent has been given, if the Boston members can agree upon a bill. But that agreement has not been reached yet, though a paper is in circulation.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued case of Gilbert E. Holbrook, for being a common drunkard, was called, and again continued one month.

George L. Horton was fined $4 for drunkenness at Quincy.

The continued case of Alice B. Clay and Nelson Orcutt for adultery at Holbrook was called and they were held for the grand jury.

A peculiar case was heard in the district court this morning. Last month Antonio Marceleni was arraigned in court for keeping a liquor nuisance at Quincy. Frederick Trenter officiated as interpreter for the government and Nicholas Garbarino officiated in the same capacity for the defendant. When the case was first called Marceleni pleaded not guilty. When the case came up later upon a continuance, the defendant withdrew his plea of not guilty and entered a plea of nolo-contendere.

The case was then continued to give the defendant time to raise the money. When the case again came up he appeared with a lawyer and claimed that the interpreters had misrepresented him and demanded a trial. This morning the hearing to determine what the plea was in the case was heard and the two interpreters were examined as to what the plea was. Both testified that Marceleni desired to retract his plea and enter one of nolo contendere.

The whole question, according to the testimony, hung upon the translation of the word nolo into the Italian language. The court ruled that the defendant fully understood what he was doing when he entered the plea.

The defendant testified that he did not understand that he entered a plea of nolo and that his plea was not guilty.

The court continued the case one week for judgment.

—Senator Allen of Nebraska has compelled his son, who was given a lieutenant colonel's commission in the state militia, to resign and go into the ranks as a private. He says merit rather than family name should govern in the army; and he's just right.—Milford Journal.

Who will add to the list?

Keith's Theatre.

One of the most thoroughly enjoyable sketches ever produced at Keith's, is that entitled "A New Year's Dream," in which that clever soubrette, Patrice, appears. She has not been seen in Boston for nearly a year, and therefore she will be royally welcomed the week of June 6, when she is featured as the star attraction of an alluring programme. Some of the other attractions are: Eva Williams and Jack Tucker, who in a certain line of character impersonations have no equals on the stage, Watson and Hutchings, who are credited with presenting one of the most original and amusing German comedy sketches in the varieties; James Harrigan, famed tramp juggler, a rarely witty and dexterous artist. This week's novelty, a Gettysburg camp scene, introducing patriotic and wartime songs, rendered by a soloist and a chorus of fifty voices, will be continued with a change of songs. The biographic motion pictures seem to be gaining in interest all the time.

Castle Square Theatre.

The Castle Square Theatre management announces as its attraction for the coming week the romantic drama "An Enemy to the King," written for Mr. Edward Sothern. This play deals with the adventures of Sieur de la Tournoier during the religious war of the 16th century between Henry of Navarre and Henry III of France, and presents the hero as the central figure of a series of most exciting and interesting scenes and incidents. Mr. Sothern made it the principal production of his season of '96-'97 and played it with marked success for three weeks at the Hollis Street Theatre in March of last year, these being the only performances the play has had in Boston. The elaborate staging demanded by the scenes of the play, the picturesque costumes and effective accessories will all be liberally supplied in the Castle Square production. Following the "An Enemy to the King," comes William Gillette's laughable comedy "All the Comforts of Home."

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

An Energy Club.

What a marvelous success a young man would make of his life if he put into legitimate business a fraction of the energy that he often expends in amusements. What a curiosity a boy would be if he worked as he plays baseball! The entire community would turn out to look at him, and he would create a greater sensation in his neighborhood than a bicycle race. It would be an excellent plan to organize in every town and village what might be termed an energy club. Boys and girls alike would be eligible to membership, the only condition being that whatsoever they should do should be done with their might. An energy club with weekly or monthly meetings, when records of good work faithfully done could be produced, where notes could be compared upon the best methods of accomplishing certain ends and aims and when advisers who have the warrant of maturity could offer suggestions on the best ways to utilize the force of the members, would be a great advantage to the young residents of any city.—Philadelphia Times.

Biggest and Smallest.

The big dog is 6½ feet long and weighs 300 pounds. He is owned in Rutland, Vt. The little fellow, owned in Cincinnati, weighs three-quarters of a pound. These are the extremes of the canine world so far as known.

A Singing Mouse.

A good deal of skepticism prevails as to the fact of there being singing mice, but, having kept such a songster for four years, an English gentleman is in a position to speak with authority:

She was caught in a coal mine, was brought to the surface and handed over to the narrator. Thus commenced an acquaintance which soon ripened into intimacy and which was only terminated by her death. There was no doubt about her song—a pretty birdlike warble, rising and falling alternately and of sufficient power to carry from the top to the bottom of the house when all was quiet.

In appearance she was just an ordinary house mouse, with the usual well groomed coat, the cascade of whiskers, the beady black eyes and an elegant tapering tail, like the rest of her tribe. It was her song alone which singled her out from the dumb millions of her fellows, and this song she poured out almost without intermission during her waking hours.

Our First Flag In Action.

Daring Paul Jones, commander of the Bonhomme Richard, had the honor of hoisting the first flag of stars and stripes over an American vessel, and this same flag was also the first to be saluted by a foreign power in recognition of the United States. This historical banner still exists and is in possession of the Stafford family, descendants of the Lieutenant Stafford who during the battle between the Bonhomme Richard and the English ship Serapis, leaped into the sea to rescue this flag and then nailed it to the masthead. The flag was made in 1777 by Misses Mary and Sarah Austin, under the direction of General Washington and Captain John Brown. It was presented to Captain John Paul Jones, who carried it to victory many times and finally gave it to his trusted lieutenant. The flag is made of English bunting. Originally it was 6 feet wide and 15 feet long, but it is now not over 7 feet in length.—Chicago Record.

Some Chestnut Conclusions.

There has been much discussion as to how the horse chestnut tree derived its name. Some scientists have declared that it is so called because of the shape of the leaf, which resembles a horse's hoof. This resemblance is particularly marked near the intersection of the twigs. But other equally learned men have asserted that the prefix "horse" simply means large, or coarse or strong. Hence the name horse chestnut is due to the size of the nut the tree bears. In the same manner horse leech, horsefly, horse laugh, horse sense and horse radish have no connection whatever with the animal, but denote size or strength.

Ought to See His Brother.

Teacher (to a scholar with a very dirty face)—Jimmy, I think you are just about as dirty as any boy in the city.

Jimmy—You'd ought to see my brother.

Teacher—Does your brother have a dirty face oftener than you do?

Jimmy—Well, mother says she don't believe he's washed his face since he got it. —Truth.

Good Partners.

If the fox and the cock were barbers,
They wouldn't succeed alone,
For the fox always carries the hairbrush,
While the cock he has the comb.
—Edward Fraser.

She Remembered the Text.

A little girl heard a sermon from the words "My cup runneth over; surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life." On returning home she was asked if she could remember the minister's text and replied: "Yes, indeed. It was 'Mercy! Goodness! My cup's tipped over.'"—Woman's Journal.

It Was Rude.

Dorothy and Marjory were out with their nurse when they met a negro man, and Marjory said:

"Oh, see! There goes a nigger!"

"Why, Marjory," exclaimed Dorothy, "you must not say 'nigger!' It's dreadful rude. You should say 'coon.'"—Harper's Bazar.

A WEEK FRAUGHT WITH IMPORTANCE.

Decisive Blows Against the Spanish Expected.

President McKinley Sanguine of the Result.

Troops to March Overland Upon Santiago.

A Section of Admiral Sampson's Squadron to Bombard San Juan.

Washington, June 6.—It is expected that this week will see the climax of the war. Santiago and Porto Rico are to pass into the possession of the United States. Against both places a military and naval expedition of great force is to be directed, and before many days ought come the news of two notable engagements. Both will be successful. On this point the president, who is especially interested in the immediate taking of Porto Rico, has no doubt whatever. He knows that at Santiago the Spanish fleet is helpless, and that the insurgents around the city are ready and waiting to co-operate with our army. The latter will land near Santiago and will march overland to the rear of the Santiago fortifications, taking them by storm. It will be a great battle, unless the Spaniards run away, and while there are certain to be some casualties on our side, they will be comparatively light.

At or about the same time, a large section of Sampson's squadron will appear before San Juan, and with the aid of the troops which will be landed from transports, the taking of that city will be commenced. The president is anxious that Porto Rico shall be in the possession of the United States before Spain actually sues for peace.

Information which is entitled to every credence indicates that the troops have not yet started, and for the good and sufficient reason that they are not ready. Reports which reach the officials show that the army at Tampa is in a frightful state of inefficiency. The supplies which ought to have been delivered to the men days and weeks ago are still locked up in the freight cars, and the worst of it is that the officers whose business it is to distribute the supplies do not know in what cars the equipments are located.

In some cases it has been necessary to force an entrance into the cars to learn the nature of their contents. Everything has been at sixes and sevens. General Miles, who has been in Tampa long enough to discover the true situation of affairs, has found ample ground for the complaints which he has forwarded at great length to Washington. General Shafter tells a similar tale, and altogether it looks as if confusion held full sway at Tampa.

The president, however, does not propose to endure any further delay. He sent orders to Tampa yesterday directing that the troops be hastened to Santiago and Porto Rico. He has become as impatient as the rest of the country, and there is no doubt that under his urgent command the movement will soon be under way. He is willing to wait until everything is ready, but he wants this point of readiness reached at once. Consequently, if troops have not started they will begin to go out at once.

There is little prospect that the armorclads under Rear Admiral Sampson's command will be able to try their metal against the Spanish armored cruisers. By sinking the collier Merrimac, he closed the channel so effectually as not only to prevent the escape of Admiral Cervera, but the ingress of his own ships. There is no wrecking ship with the American squadron, and none will be sent to that point, so it is evident that the army will be given the work of capturing or destroying the ships.

This is proposed to be accomplished by the erection of siege guns on the high hills surrounding the harbor. These guns are now on the way. The accomplishment of this work will follow the destruction of the Spanish military force now defending that city. When it is completed 24 5-inch Armstrong siege guns, manned by experienced artillerists, will point down toward Admiral Cervera's ships, and, if that officer does not surrender, a storm of shells will be hurled down upon him which will be disastrous.

The dynamite cruiser Vesuvius, which can go within short range of the harbor where Admiral Cervera's ships are, will be able to drop dynamite shells in their vicinity, and Admiral Sampson's men-of-war can add to the work by firing shells over the hills, as was done by the Spaniards during the reconnoisance made by Commodore Schley a few days ago.

It is evident that the outlook is very gloomy for Spain. The naval war board is a unit in declaring that it is impossible for Cervera to escape. It is desired by the officials that there shall be as little loss of life as possible, and for this reason it is hoped that Admiral Cervera will surrender as soon as he can honorably do so.

"I doubt very much if Admiral Cervera will attempt to blow up the Merrimac and escape through the channel," said a naval expert yesterday. "It is my belief that when the Spanish army has been defeated, Cervera will destroy his ships and go ashore, where he will surrender. The Spaniards will never permit these ships to fall into our hands."

SINKING OF THE MERRIMAC.

Confirmation of the Surmise as to the Purpose of Sampson.

Key West, June 6.—Saturday's surmises as to the meaning of the loss of the Merrimac were correct. There was method in the apparent madness. Admiral Sampson caused it to be known aboard the ships that eight volunteers were wanted for the perilous task of running the vessel past the batteries and sinking her. It was a desperate undertaking, as every man in the fleet knew, for the chances were very great that if the Merrimac passed the batteries unscathed she would be blown up by a mine. This, however, did not deter either officers or men from volunteering. In fact, they jumped at the chance, and 4000 signified their willingness to carry out the admiral's plan. Finally, however, Naval Constructor Hobson and seven other men were picked out, the former commanding the gallant crew. They at once went on board the collier, where preparations were made for the work ahead of them. After everything had been arranged the officers and crew of the Merrimac left her, going on board other vessels of the fleet.

While the Merrimac lay "stripped to the buff" for her last, desperate run she was inspected by the Associated Press correspondent. With hatches off, gaping cargo ports swung back, and everything valuable removed save her engines and 2500 tons of coal, which scarcely seemed to count in her cavernous hold, she was not an inviting spectacle. The seven men who were to risk their lives in her were as cheerful as schoolboys on a frolic, despite 24 hours' sleeplessness and hard work. Coxswain Deignan, with professional pride, explained the several stations of the forlorn hope crew. J. E. Murphy was to cut loose the forward anchor and Daniel Montague the after one, and they were then to jump overboard and swim to the lifeboat which was towing astern. Philipps, Kelly and Crank were to stop the engines and knock away the kingston valves to flood the hold, and Lieutenant Hobson and Charette were to fire the torpedoes from the bridge. Words cannot paint the cool, matter of fact heroism of these enlisted men, so calmly confident of success in their audacious undertaking, so implicitly trustful in their young lieutenant who was to lead them, so oblivious of everything except that they were going in. They did not speak of coming out, with the exception of Deignan, who said nonchalantly: "Oh, I guess we stand a fair show of getting out, but they can't stop us going in"—this last in a most matter of fact style, as though going in was the only point worth considering.

Knowing that a tentative plan was for the fleet to chase the Merrimac in as a pseudo blockade runner, firing blank cartridges on her and searchlights to point out to Hobson the harbor entrance, everyone waited for this pyrotechnical display, but it did not come. Hobson had apparently chosen the less spectacular but equally desperate plan of quietly stalking the forts alone and in darkness. Black cloudbanks to the westward had hidden the moon for two hours before its setting, depriving Hobson of his own wish for just a bit of light to guide him in under the Spanish guns. Fate could scarce have been harder. At 3 the moon showed for a few moments blood red in a hand's breadth opening of the clouds just on the horizon, and then it was extinguished in the sea.

"Too late," said everyone; "he will never have time to run in by that."

Almost at the same moment dawn broke in the east as quietly as night had fallen the previous evening. "He has missed his chance," was the remark. Suddenly a dazzling flash like a heliograph ray leaped from the battlements, followed by a slow, spreading cloud of white smoke. There was no report, but far up the coast a white jet of spray leaped from the sea. The battleships were waking up. Glasses were trained where the Merrimac had been. She was gone. The Vixen had been mistaken for her in the uncertain morning light. Glasses swept the horizon searching for the Merrimac. She was nowhere visible. Bright flashes and billowing smoke rose from point to point where the harbor batteries were located. The Spaniards were awake, sure enough, and buzzing like bees in an upset hive.

"Hobson has run in on them and fooled us all," was said; "but," it was added, "what are the idiots shooting at?"

The spray from the shells rose everywhere, beyond the Brooklyn and inside the Texas, but the fire was seemingly concentrated westward, close to the shore. There a tiny thread of smoke disclosed their target—the New York's launch, which Ensign Powell had gallantly held close under Morro's walls until after daylight, when, driven out by the fire of the big guns, he had run far up the shore, under the partial cover of the bluffs, and had turned and eventually boarded the Texas out of range. Then he passed to the New York. The brave fellow was broken hearted at not finding Hobson and his men. Lying closer in than the warships, Powell had seen the firing before daylight, when the Merrimac and her dare-devil crew, then well inside Morro castle, were probably first discovered by the Spaniards. He also heard an explosion which may have been caused by Hobson's torpedoes. The ensign was not sure. He waited vainly, hoping to rescue the heroes of the Merrimac, until he was shelled by the forts.

For an unknown reason the Spaniards made no attempt to blow up the vessel with their mines. She was hit a number of times from the batteries, but the shots did not check her progress, and she went along until she reached the narrowest part of the channel, when she dropped her anchor. With a time fuse the men prepared an explosion in the fore hold. They lit the fuse, entered a rowboat and pushed off. There must have been a large hole torn in her hull by the explosion which followed, for she sank in a short time.

Meanwhile Constructor Hobson and the brave men with him pulled away from the ship. They had gone only a little way when the explosion occurred and the Merrimac gave a lunge and plunged to the bottom, going down in 35 to 40 feet.

It was, of course, impossible for Hobson and his crew to pass out of the harbor in face of the fire from the batteries. They therefore calmly proceeded to row to the Christobal Colon, the flagship of the Spanish squadron, where they yielded themselves prisoners of war. Though they had shut off all chances of escape for the Spanish fleet, Admiral Cervera recognized and admired their bravery. They were treated kindly, and later in the day the Spanish commander sent out a boat with a flag of truce to Admiral Sampson with an offer to exchange his prisoners for some of the Spaniards who are now confined at Atlanta.

Hospital Ship Arrives.

Brooklyn, June 6.—There was a small crowd at the navy yard when the hospital ship, the Solace, was warped into the dock Sunday afternoon. Several ambulances were on hand and 54 patients, one by one, were carried out on the stretchers, or led down the gangway by tender hands and transferred to the marine hospital.

Dr. Thomas F. Street said yesterday that all had improved greatly during the four days' trip. When they left Key West he was almost certain that there would be some deaths aboard, as some of the men were in an extremely serious condition. Four who are afflicted with lung diseases made the entire voyage in swinging hammocks on deck, and the others took occasion to draw in the fresh breezes at all times by day and by night.

The Beleagured City.

Havana, June 6.—The council of secretaries of the autonomist government has decided not to allow the shipment of sugar to American ports, but will allow it shipped to neutral ports in blockade runners which bring provisions and coal that can be landed in any part of the island without paying custom house duties. The council also ordered the mining of coal that has been discovered near Guanagay, in the province of Havana, which will be placed at the disposal of Admiral Manterola. A credit of $85,000 has been voted to promote the cultivation of the zones near the mine.

A commission of the Cuban chambers has formally tendered congratulations to the commanders of the Spanish cruisers, Conde Vendadito and Nueva Espana, for the courage they displayed in going out to meet the ships of the squadron blockading Havana some time ago. The chambers have sent a joint telegram of congratulation to Admiral Cervera because of the courage shown by him during the bambardment of the fortifications at Santiago.

General Blanco has issued an order prohibiting the presence of foreign correspondents in the island and threatening to put all such on trial as spies according to the military code.

Pablo Luna, a native of New Orleans, has been arrested for making insulting remarks about the Spanish fleet.

The military commander at Santiago has proposed rewards for two ensigns and a gunner, who made three shots that were seen to land on the American warships during the bombardment.

Gone to Honolulu.

San Francisco, June 6.—The United States sloop of war Mohican came down from the Mare island navy yard Sunday morning, and, after a brief delay, sailed for Honolulu. It is understood that she will remain on duty at that port, replacing the Bennington, ordered to join Admiral Dewey's fleet at Manila. The coast defense vessel Monterey and the big collier Brutus, which is to tow her from the Hawaiian islands to the Philippines, were to have gone with the Mohican, but shortly before the time set for their departure the chief engineer on the Monterey discovered her evaporator was not in good working condition. At first it was believed the taking out of the defective tubes and the insertion of new ones would require about 36 hours, but this work has been so expedited that it may be completed by this afternoon.

THE MONTEREY.

Havana's Fortifications.

Key West, June 6.—The impending invasion of Cuba and the Santiago situation are the only topics of interest. Intense anxiety is felt for more and definite news from Commodore Schley and Rear Admiral Sampson, and the north coast blockade has become a minor incident. The only arrival Sunday from off Havana reported an unchanged condition there. The ships are still stationed in line and have relaxed none of their vigilance, but during the past few days nothing has occurred to vary the tedium of the wait. There has been no hostile demonstration from the shore, and, so far as the immediate vicinity of Havana is concerned, the only sign of life thereabouts is the incessant work being done on the fortifications.

Report of a Combat.

Cape Haytien, June 6.—Advices from St. Nicholas say that Saturday some distance off Jean Rabel, on the northwest coast of Hayti, half way between Port de Paix and St. Nicholas, a combat took place between three Spanish and four American ships. The American ships are said to have withdrawn from the combat. One of the Spanish warships entered the harbor of Jean Rabel for water. The officers of ships lying at St. Nicholas were extremely reticent.

Jean Rabel is an insignificant seaport, and there is no telegraphic station there. It is thought possible that the Spanish ships encountered were the vanguard of the Cadiz fleet. The names of the American ships are not ascertainable, but it is believed here that they were probably scouts.

A dispatch from a government source at Port-au-Prince says: "A Haytien informant, now in Santiago de Cuba, cables that the destitution there has greatly increased since the bombardment began, and the military commander has been forced to reduce the rations of the soldiers, among whom there is much discontent."

Sinking of a Torpedo Boat.

Kingston, Jam., June 6.—A dispatch from Port Antonio says: "A vessel that has arrived here from Santiago de Cuba reports that the Americans sank on Friday night the Spanish torpedo boat destroyer Terror."

[The assumption, based upon dispatches from Madrid, has been that the destroyer Terror, after leaving Port de France, went to Porto Rican waters, and it is probable that the Port Antonio dispatch confuses her with her sister destroyer, the Furor, as has several times been the case in dispatches from other points.]

Boston Opinion.

Boston, June 6.—The Globe treats it as "a splendid fortune to belong to a country that can inspire such heroic devotion as was displayed by the seven American sailors in the harbor of Santiago."

"Of course," remarks The Journal, "if the sunken Merrimac closes the channel at Santiago so that the Spanish cruisers cannot depart, she also closes it so that the American battleships cannot enter; but all this was duly considered before the collier was sent in on her hazardous errand."

Murderer's Revolting Daring.

New York, June 6.—Mrs. Angelo Pepro was murdered at Elizabethport, N. J., last night by a man who broke through the door of the Pepro apartment, and, seizing the woman, slashed her throat with a razor in the presence of her husband and four children. The murderer, whose identity has not been ascertained, dropped his victim and escaped while her husband, paralyzed with fear, knelt praying for mercy. The woman died soon afterwards.

Bay State Capital.

Boston, June 6.—Ex-Senator William H. McMorrow died Sunday afternoon at his home in Dorchester after a day's sickness. He was born in South Boston in 1871, and served in the lower house of the legislature in 1894-95 and in the senate in 1896.

Jonathan A. Lane died Sunday of heart failure. He was a distinguished citizen and well-known reformer.

With the Ball Clubs.

The Louisvilles, St. Louis and Washingtons are floundering at the foot of the championship ladder, and will be but a poor attraction from this out. The race has settled down to a struggle between the Cincinnatis, Bostons, Baltimores, Clevelands and New Yorks. Of these clubs the Bostons have shown decidedly the best form, have played the best and fastest ball, and, barring accidents, should win the pennant with far greater ease than they did last season. The Bostons were the only club to win a majority of games from the Cincinnatis in Cincinnati this season, and they made the best showing of any club in the western series.

The clubs stand as follows as regards percentage: Cincinnati, .737; Cleveland, .658; Boston, .632; Baltimore, .583; New York, .579; Pittsburg, .525; Chicago, .462; Philadelphia, .457; Brooklyn, .429; Louisville, .341; Washington, .316; St. Louis, .289.

Bransfield of the Newports is not hitting the ball as successfully as he did when with the Bostons in the south.

Catcher Bowerman and Outfielder O'Brien have been sold by Hanlon to the Pittsburgs for the purpose of reducing the Baltimores' expenses. The price received was $2500. Hanlon claims that the Baltimore management is losing $300 a day, due to bad weather, poor attendance, and the schedule.

Saturday's National league winners were the Cincinnatis, Brooklyns, Baltimores, Louisvilles and Pittsburgs.

Sunday baseball was inaugurated at the new shore resort, Mount Hope park, by the Fall River team with the New Bedfords as opponents in the presence of 1000 spectators. Dee's team clinched the victory in the second inning, when six runs were scored by loose fielding and poor control of the ball on Walker's part. Score: 7 to 2.

Interdenominational.

At the Young People's meeting of the Universalist church Sunday evening, representatives from the Methodist, Congregationlist, and Unitarian churches were present and took part in the services, making the occasion a kind of interdenominational love feast. It was a very enjoyable and profitable meeting and shows how easily the theological differences melt away when people come together in the true Christian spirit. Rev. Mary T. Whitney of South Boston gave a thoughtful and helpful address; which thoroughly interested all present. A song by Mr. Sampson was also a pleasant feature.

Odd Fellows' Monument.

On Tuesday of next week there will be dedicated in the Odd Fellows burial lot at Worcester, near the Odd Fellows home, a monument of Quincy granite. It is a beautiful symbolic memorial, having a base 6 feet, 6 inches square, 2 feet thick. It is surmounted by a globe 5 feet, 6 inches in diameter, weighing nine tons. The lot was donated by Grand Master Corkhill of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts. Addresses will be made by prominent Odd Fellows.

Big Dog Show.

The "open air" dog show of the New England Kennel club was held at Braintree Saturday, although it rained all day, but it was held in the kennels. The attendance was large. About 250 dogs were shown and awards were made. W. G. Kendall of Altantic took two prizes for Boston terriers.

COUNCIL BUSINESS.

A Debate Probable Tonight.—Many Reports.

It is more than likely that there will be a tilt at tonight's meeting of the City Council between the members of the Finance and Street Committees. At the last meeting of the City Council the Committee on Streets reported orders laying out Putnam street, East Elm avenue and Payne street as public ways, and for the paving of Hancock street. These orders were then referred to the Committee on Finance who it is understood have undone the work of the Street committee, and will report against all these orders except the paving of Hancock street, where they increase the amount recommended by the Committee on Streets.

Other business that will come up tonight will be report by the Committee on Licenses on a number of minor licenses, and an order authorizing the Board of Health to issue a license for a slaughter house.

The Committee on Streets will report on the petition for rebuilding Crescent street, lights on Elm place and possibly on the widening of Hancock street at the corner of Granite street and between School street and the Music hall building.

The Committee on Sewers and Drains will report upon the petition to drain Sagamore and Prospect streets, the rebuilding of retaining wall of Furnace brook, and catch basins and drains on Garfield street.

The Committee on Fire Department will report on the communication of Chief Engineer Packard in relation to alterations to the several fire stations.

The only matter in the calendar is the order relocating the street at the junction of High and Franklin streets. A large number of applications for minor licenses will be received.

Ex-Congressman Morse.

Our telegraphic news today reports the death of Hon. Elijah Morse,, the ex-Congressman of Quincy's old district. Although we have heard for two or three years of impaired health, his death came rather unexpected as he was of untiring energy.

The Herald says: "No public man in our state was better known than the late Elijah Adams Morse of Canton. His career had been a somewhat remarkable one, and his success in life was the outcome of a persistent and earnest endeavor, which permeated his individuality even in his youthful days, to amass a fortune and to become distinguished among his fellowmen. He attained both objects, and though he never arrived at the distinction of becoming a great man, he held many important public positions, filled them all with honor and integrity, and exerted a large influence for good in his day and generation."

The Journal adds: "Throughout his career he was always mindful of the welfare of the toilers from whose ranks he had come. His earnest work for temperance reform was in their interests. Mr. Morse carried his habits of industry into the House of Representatives in Washington, and the very large popular majorities which he received year after year were a tribute to the fidelity with which he sought to satisfy every wish of his constituents.

The following tribute is from the Globe—: "The dea h of ex-Congressman Elijah A. Morse, though it had been expected for some time, removes a most interesting figure from the stage of public and private activity in the state and in the nation, for he had become a well-known national character through the wide-spread comment that his views and peculiar reform movements were bound to elicit. As to his character and motives, he will be best judged by the many warm and devoted friends whom his movements in behalf of temperance, virtue and recitude naturally drew to him. As a type of the persistent, energetic New Englander who knows no such word as fail in business pursuits, he i worthy of unstinted admiration. That his motive in all he undertook was the good of the community a decent charity will concede, now that he no longer lives to answer those who might criticise his judgment."

The Boston Advertiser says: "In the State legislature and in congress Mr. Morse earnestly and strongly advocate the cause of the free public school, restriction of imigration, additional naturalization restrictions and safeguards for the ballot, legislation for the protection of chasity and temperance, and other measures of moral re form, and against lotteries. He was kindly and considerate employer of labor, and a liberal contributor to various public benefactions at home and abroad. His purse was always open to the poor and destitute. The most practical proof of his genuine kindness of heart was displayed in a notice which was posted in his factory in June, 1888, which, stating that it was necessary on account of the condition of business to close the factory, said that all employes would be paid during the depression a part of their wages, although there was nothing for them to do."

Christian Commission.

The people of Wollaston took a lively interest Sunday evening in the union meeting in the interests of the Christian Commission. Rev. Mr. Crathern of Braintree, who was announced as the principal speaker, was at the last moment unable to be present. The Wollaston pastors, however, were well informed on the subject especially Rev. Edward Norton, who had personal experience in the Civil war. He spoke interestingly and exhibited a Bible and other articles he had at the front.

Rev J. E. Bagley, Rev. Preston Gurney, and Rev. J. E. Waterhouse also took part in the meeting. The collection taken netted over $20.

Disturbed the Peace.

The next time that Quincy men want to give vent to their enthusiasm by cheering for Admiral Dewey they will take some other night than Sunday, and some other place than Weymouth especially that part of Weymouth where Officers Pratt and Butler look after the welfare of the town. Sunday night two who had been at East Weymouth on a visit were near the the Congregational church about 8 o'clock, when someone called them Spaniards. They retaliated by giving three cheers for Dewey. It was then that the officers placed them under arrest. They were fined in court for disturbing the peace.

City Council this evening.

The sunshine yesterday and today was appreciated.

There will be 281 grammar school graduates this year.

Wollaston responded nobly for the Christian Commission.

H. H. Pratt is to close up his bicycle store and go to Taunton.

There will be a musicale at the High school at 8.15 tomorrow morning.

The parish assessors of the First church have called a meeting for Wednesday evening.

Saturday was not a very good day for the Braintree dog show but for all that Quincy was well represented.

The question of disbanding the Quincy club will be discussed at a meeting of the club to be held tonight.

William T. Spargo, who was injured in a bicycle accident last week, is reported as more comfortable this morning.

There was just a little rain early Sunday morning to keep up the record, the weather bureau reporting 2-100th of an inch.

The Christian Commis ion meeting to have been held in the First church next Sunday afternoon has been postponed one week.

Some fine specimens of sewing, the work of pupils of the Quincy schools, is shown in the window of the School Committee rooms.

Many took the electrric cars Sunday and went to Nantasket beach to see the surf caused by the recent storm. It was well worth seeing.

The new sidewalks in Wards Two and Three are all ready to receive the concrete just as soon as the weather becomes anyways settled.

A few bicycle riders were out Sunday but the bad condition of the streets prevented a large number from enjoying the day on the wheel.

Rev. John W. Day of Hingham preached a powerful and impressive sermon Sunday at the First church subject: "Life is short."

John O. Holden was always one of the best places to obtain choice gift articles, and A. A. Linscott the new proprietor has added many novelties.

Hon. William N. Olin, Secretary of State, will address a mass meeting in the interest of the Christian Commission at Atlantic at 4 P. M. next Sunday.

The late Elijah Morse when a senator from this district in 1886 gave his salary to public libraries of the district, and in 1887 to the Grand Army Posts.

Mr. C. C. Collins of the Quincy Yacht club came down alone from Boston on Saturday afternoon during the height of the gale in is new Cape cat, "Hustler" with four reefes in.

The Quincy Yacht club's large float was damaged by the storm. It is probable that about twenty feet will have to be cut off of this float in order to make it sea-worthy, one end of it being so badly smashed.

The tides have been exceedingly high during the late storm and anything not fastened firmly has been carried away. Small lots of planks and lumber have been washed ashore around Fore river.

It is an old saying that there is but one Saturday during the whole year that the sun does not shine sometime during the day. If this is true we shall see the sun every Saturday hereafter this year as last Saturday the sun was hid all day.

Burto, clown juggler, of this city, plays a return engagement at Tony Pastor's theatre, New York, City, week of June 6. Week of June 13th at the Bijou Philadelphia, and opens on the Pennsylvania and New England park circuit at Savin Rock park, New Haven, Conn., June 20.

To shorten the hours of labor is a good thing but how is it with the laborer who goes to work at 7 o'clock in the morning and don't return until most 6 at night; how is he to do his trading during the day if the stores close at 6? One merchant says evening trade is worth more than day trade.

No clew yet as to th identity of the man whose body washed ashore at Houghs Neck Saturday. Medical Examiner Gilbert viewed the remains during the day but no mark of any kind was found upon the body and there was absolutely nothing in the pockets of his clothing. The body will be buried by the city.

LEDGER---LATEST.

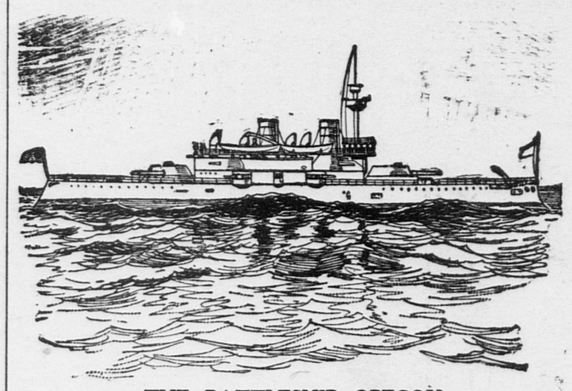
GREAT DAY FOR THE OREGON.

She Sinks the Torpedo Boat Destroyer Terror with One Shell.

Capt. Clark and Men Must Feel Repaid for Long Journey Round the Horn.

Kingston, Jamaica, June 6.—The Spanish torpedo boat destroyer Terror was sunk with all on board by the United States battleship Oregon. The Oregon saw the swift Terror sneaking along, evidently trying to make Santiago. The Oregon signaled her to surrender but she failed to do so. The Oregon then fired a thirteen inch shell which struck home and the Terror sank almost immediately.

NOTE—The Terror was one of the three torpedo boat destroyers in the Spanish fleet, the other two being the Furor and the Pluton. The Terror had a displacement of 350 tons, and her speed was rated at 28 knots. Her principal guns were two 12-pounders and two 6-pounders.



THE BATTLESHIP OREGON.

The Oregon is 348 feet long and has a displacement of 10,288 tons. She cost $3,180,000 and steams 15 knots an hour. Her crew consists of 424 men. Four 13 inch, eight 8 inch, four 6 inch and 30 smaller guns compose her armament.

Troops Landed.

Kingston, Jamaica, June 6—Five thousand American soldiers have been landed near Punta Cabrera, on a point a little west of Santiago, where they made connection with Gen. Garcia's army of 1,000 insurgents. The troops also landed two heavy seige guns.

NOTE.—Punta Cabrera is on the southern coast of Cuba, and less than twenty miles west of the entrance to the harbor of Santiago, and 125 north of Jamaica. The coast in the vicinity of Cabrera and Santiago is mountainous.

Spanish Report.

Madrid, June 6—A dispatch to the Impartial says that the American fleet ineffectually bombarded Santiago Saturday for forty-five minutes.

TODAY'S COURT.

John J. Gilmore and Frank P. Curry were fined $5 for drunkenness at Weymouth.

G. A. Palano and Luigio Luciano were fined $5 each for disturbing the peace at Weymouth.

Benjamin T. Raymond was arraigned for being an idle person at Weymouth. He was sentenced to five months at the House of Correction.

The liquors seized from Thomas Holloran at Quincy were forfeited.

Joseph Maisano was arraigned for forging the name of Giovanni Maisano, his father, to an order for $4.50. Case continued until Thursday.

John Allinson, a Muhlenberg lawyer, is a wag of whom the Madisonville (Ky.) Hustler tells a story illustrative of the fact that even in the presence of death the ruling passion asserts itself.

He became ill at his home in Greenville with what was supposed to be heart disease, and a physician was hastily summoned. When he arrived, John was gasping for breath, and his friends expected him to die at any minute. When the doctor asked him what was the matter, he coolly replied, "Doc, I have an intimation that my case is about to be called, and if possible I want to get a continuance."

The doctor went to work and, contrary to everybody's expectation, did get John a continuance, and he is still practicing law in Greenville.

Little Items of Interest About Town.

At the vestry of the Baptist church, Friday evening the members of the class of '99, W. N. H. S. gave a reception to the teachers and members of the other classes. On account of the inclemency of the weather, the attendance was somewhat smaller than it would otherwise have been, but those present pronounced it a very successful and enjoyable affair. A fine musical entertainment was furnished by pupils of the school. At about 8.30 a dainty lunch of ice cream and cake was served, after which the young people indulged in games until 10 o'clock. They then gathered about the piano and passed the remaining time with singing of college songs and national hymns. Fred V. Jarey, president of '99, was master of ceremonies.

About twenty friends of Miss Bertha White, gathered at her home on Baker's avenue, Saturday afternoon to aid her in celebrating her ninth birthday. The afternoon was spent in playing games. At 4 o'clock a dainty lunch of ice cream and cake was served after which the little folks made their departure. Bertha was the recipient of numerous birthday gifts.

Preston MacDonald of Quincy attended the reception given by the class of '99 W. N. H. S. Friday evening.

Miss Marion Mann of LaSelle Seminary is visiting her parents in East Weymouth.

Miss Sadie Osgood is riding a handsome new wheel.

Little Yelma Rosnold who has been ill with scarlet fever is now on the road to recovery.

The pupils of John H. Gutterson will give a piano-forte recital at his home on Commercial street, tomorrow evening.

At the Baptist church Sunday evening, Rev. F. B. Cressey preached to the members of the Ladies' Cemetery Improvement association. The subject was "The Beautiful Graves of Our Beloved Dead."

Rev. N. S. Hill of Webster, Mass., preached at the Universalist church Sunday.

Newcomb Square.

To the Publishers of the Daily Ledger:

In the Ledger of Saturday, June 4, an item read as follows: "The residents of Quincy Neck are going to celebrate the opening of the Quincy avenue electric road, at Ship square."

The name was new to the old inhabitants and not appropriate. Why not call it Newcomb square, as it, and the surrounding property has been in the hands of the Newcomb family over a hundred years. This would be in honor of our Councilman Mr. Arthur T. Newcomb, of Quincy Neck.

S. A.

The singular part of this suggestion is the fact that it was Councilman Newcomb who informed the Ledger that the celebration would be at "Ship Square." Councilman Newcomb is a modest young man, but it cannot be denied but he has been one of the most active at Quincy Neck, and that he has been the most successful in securing improvements in that section of the city. He and his ancestors are worthy of the honor proposed.

Blackheads are difficult to get rid of, once they appear. They are caused by the clogging of the pores of the skin by dust or foreign matter. Alcohol, 90 per cent, applied by means of a piece of chamois skin will give tone to the skin and remove unsuspected dust and dirt, at the same time stimulating the small glands and removing by constant use the blackheads.

After exposure to a harsh or chilling wind it is well before retiring to rub a quantity of fresh cream on the face, removing after five or ten minutes, to be applied again, followed by a generous puffing of rice powder. Remove in the morning by lait virginal and tepid water.

CAPTAIN CLARK'S SCRUPLES.

Treatment of the Oregon's Commander by a Chicago Real Estate Agent.

Captain Charles E. Clark, who has achieved fame by bringing the battleship Oregon around Cape Horn, was stationed in Chicago, as inspector of the Ninth lighthouse district, from 1887 to 1891. During most of that period he resided on Pearson street, opposite the waterworks. The friends he made during his four years' residence in Chicago are still enthusiastic admirers of the naval officer.

"Captain Clark is absolutely the best fellow on earth," S. F. Picking, who has had charge of the business end of the lighthouse service for these many years, said recently. "I have never known a naval officer who had more friends than Captain Clark. His long service here is the best evidence of the efficiency of his work for the government. He is just the boy to bring the Oregon around Cape Horn or any other place. He would get her through if the hole was big enough."

Captain Clark, during most of his residence in Chicago, occupied a house belonging to John Dowling, near the waterworks. When Captain Clark rented the house, the real estate agent brought him one of the interminable leases to sign. He read it over and decided right there that he never could obey all the conditions in that lease, and, being extremely conscientious, he declined to sign the formidable looking document. Dowling heard of the captain's scruples and told him to move in, and he could pay the rent or not, just as he wanted to. He remained over three years. Dowling generally acknowledged the receipt of his rent by such gifts as he thought a naval man would enjoy.—Chicago Post.

Ideal Housecleaners.

"There are some traits which may be set down as common to servants," said madam, coming out of the awful vortex of housecleaning and giving me a moment of her rather disturbing society in the library. "When a thing is lost, every maid will take her oath she never saw it, didn't know you had it, and, though it may have been bought last week, that it has not been in the house during her dynasty.

"Two women of that class cannot come together without dropping all other mundane affairs and exchanging experiences. Nothing but fire or an attack by the Spaniards can put a premature period to a conference over the back fence, wherein two mouths have but a single gab, two heads do bob as one.

"The ideal housecleaners are colored men. Next year I shall abscond and turn the premises over to the perfect pair of them who are now bringing order out of chaos. For when all is said and done the honest, industrious colored man is the best house servant in the world."—Chicago Post.

An Envelope Library.

Take a package of large envelopes, write E. L. in one corner and the number in the opposite corner at the top. Into each envelope place a good short story or poem, taken from some periodical. On the back of each envelope write the name of the story or poem it contains, also the name of the author. Tie each envelope with ribbon. The stories or poems of some favorite author may be preserved in this way. They make pretty gifts for invalid friends or those traveling who have little room for books. Tinted envelopes with ribbons of the same shade are very neat. A spray of forgetmenots may be painted in water colors on the lower corner of each envelope.—Ruth Raymond in Housekeeper.

To Round the Throat.

To have a rounded throat exercise the throat by singing. Sing whether you have a "voice" or not, deeming the exercise valuable. At night wrap the throat in a linen cloth wet with scented oil. This will nourish the skin and soften its outlines. Exercise the throat every day by turning the head from side to side slowly and never fast. Try this ten minutes every night and morning. If the hair falls out, change your diet and improve your general health. Friction is too rough treatment for ordinary skins. If used to prevent wrinkles, it should be gentle and with a little oil on the fingers.—Exchange.

Some Treasury Girl Widows.

Lots of treasury girls at Washington are widows, hundreds of them are old maids and several thousand are sweet, marriageable girls, with pretty faces, good hearts and a high grade of culture and education. Many of them have had governors and generals for their fathers, not a few are the widows of noted soldiers and statesmen, and all are far above the average of their sex the United States over. Many have traveled widely. — Philadelphia Times.

Women have the reputation of being sympathetic, but if a lecturer of their own sex is to be believed they are far less responsive than men, and an audience composed entirely of women is regarded as much more formidable than a mixed one.

Photography, which was taken up as a means of amusement by many women, has developed into a lucrative means of livelihood for the sex, and many of the most successful studios are now owned and run exclusively by women.

After washing woodwork always wipe it with a soft cloth. This prevents drops of water being left to dry on and to discolor the paint.

If you want a nice complexion do not veil the face on damp or rainy days.

THE SOLDIERS' RATIONS.

In Wartime Coffee Becomes a Real Elixir of Life.

No man can feel like a real soldier so long as he is fed like a civilian. When he takes the field, the recruit will be obliged to give up roast lamb and green peas, broiled live lobster, pate de foie gras, pastry, butter and numerous other comestibles which had seemed to him necessities. In place he must settle down to a diet of "salt horse," pork, bacon and occasional fresh beef, beans, rice, hominy, infrequent potatoes and bread, with tea or coffee to wash it down. When it comes to active service at the front, his menu will probably dwindle down to salt pork, hard tack and coffee. The pork will be cooked or raw, according to circumstances, and the coffee ditto.

But the half of a tin canteen makes not a bad frying pan in which the pork can be cooked, and it gives the convenience for frying hard tack—and fried hard tack is a delicacy that every soldier learns to love, no matter how high a civilian may turn up his nose even at the thought of it. Or if you have no frying pan or no fire a slice of salt pork between two crackers makes a not unpalatable sandwich. But no soldier need to suffer on hard tack and coffee alone. He will often grow fat on this diet. But the great thing is coffee. It is the soldier's best friend. It is the elixir of life. It is life itself. Ask any old soldier and see what he will say.—Boston Transcript.

How They See It In Florida.

As the United States at present occupies a corypheus position in the belligerent world as well as intellectual spheres it is the height of improbability that any attempt will be offered calculated at interception without the due sanction and approval of this government.—Tampa (Fla.) Tribune.

To the billows and the breeze!

That wakes thy laureate's lay.

SPANISH SPY SYSTEM.

Early Check to Its Work Likely to Be Sustained.

Complaint Made to the British Ambassador.

Canadian Law Sure to Be Applied to the Plotters.

Washington, June 6.—Steps have been taken by which it is expected that Lieutenant Carranza, who has been conducting the Spanish spy system from Montreal, with his assistant, Mr. Du Bosc, formerly first secretary of the legation here, will be expelled from Canada within the next few days unless they adopt their own means to leave before an international question is raised as to their presence in Canada. The Carranza letter, detailing his system, was communicated to the British ambassador, Sir Julian Pauncefote, together with other information bearing on the operations of the Spanish officials in Canada. The ambassador was quick to act in the matter, and, without waiting the slow process of the mail, he cabled the entire matter to the foreign office.

No doubt is entertained as to the speedy action of the authorities at London, now that a specific case has been made out against the Spanish officials in Canada. They would have taken the initiative ere this had there been anything more than suspicion as to the operations of Carranza and Du Bosc; but the Carranza letter, for the theft of which a Montreal detective was tried and acquitted, was proof positive, and the British officials moved quickly and on their own volition toward securing adequate redress. The state department has not cabled Ambassador Hay, not deeming it necessary to do more than simply lay the facts before the British ambassador here. It is expected that Lord Salisbury will call the attention of the Spanish government to the undesirability of having Messrs. Carranza and Du Bosc remain in Canada, as their operations are so obviously hostile to the United States. This, however, may become unnecessary if the Spanish officials withdraw from Canada at once, as there appears to be no disposition to prosecute them, or to give them an enforced expulsion so long as they are willing to close their operations and depart. The British statutes, as well as those of Canada, have specific provisions against the use of British or Canadian territory, by foreigners temporarily seeking asylum there, as the base of hostile operations against countries with which Great Britain and her colonies are at peace.

About a week ago an effort was made by the Spanish officials to enlist the sympathy of the British ambassador here with an alleged British subject imprisoned at Tampa, who, it is now believed, is the Spanish spy alluded to in Lieutenant Carranza's letter. A Canadian lawyed arrived here last Sunday and made a personal appeal to Mr. Pauncefote to intervene in behalf of the man imprisoned at Tampa. There were suspicious circumstances connected with the case, and the ambassador asked for a specific recital of the facts. These were not forthcoming, and the case was not pushed. When the Carranza letter appeared stating that one of his spies had been caught at Tampa, it became apparent for the first time that the efforts toward intervention were designed to secure the release of this spy.

Aside from the official action of the British government it is quite likely that the Canadian officials will take some action against Carranza and Du Bosc under the Canadian statutes. When Sir Louis Davies, minister of marine of the Canadian cabinet, was here recently, he spoke of the determination of the Canadian authorities to maintain the strictest neutrality and to see that the Carranza party did not use Canada as a base for hostile operations against the United States. He referred to the difficulty in making out a specific case against them, saying that it was not enough to present mere suspicion. He said, however, that if such a case should be secured the Canadian authorities would act promptly in putting an end to the abuse of the hospitality shown by the Spanish officials. The Carranza letter furnished just such a case, and leaves no doubt that the dominion government, as well as the authorities at London, will see that the Carranza-Du Bosc party no longer abuse their residence in Canada by making it the headquarters of a spy system and a base of information for General Blanco, Admiral Cervera and the authorities in Madrid.

The capture of the Carranza letter is the most important piece of work done by the secret service in connection with the war. At no time since the Spaniards established themselves in Canada have they been free from the espionage of the secret service officials. The exact method of obtaining the letter is not made public, but it was practically this: Two men and a woman entered the house at the same time. One might not have had to search thoroughly. While passing through Carranza's room the letter was seen on the dresser. While looking at the dresser one of the men placed a piece of flypaper over the letter, and when he picked up the flypaper the letter came with it. Passing hurriedly to the front door he handed the document to another detective in waiting. The latter took the first train to the United States, and Chief Wilkie was notified that the letter was on its way. As soon as it reached Washington it was translated and its contents used.

Part of the letter was not made public, as the information in this paragraph is still to be acted upon by the secret service. There are several things in the letter which are considered of much importance, especially to Carranza, who cannot hope to escape the censure from Spain that will follow the publication of his comments on the bank of Spain and Admiral Camara. He also takes Admiral Cervera to task for allowing himself to be bottled up in Santiago. All these things will make it interesting for Lieutenant Carranza when he returns to Spain.

Captain Gridley Dead.

Washington, June 6.—Captain Charles Gridley, commander of the Olympia, is dead. The announcement of his death was received by the navy department Sunday afternoon in a cablegram from Paymaster Galt of the navy dated at Kobe, Japan, June 4, and directed to Secretary Long. The dispatch contained this simple announcement: "Captain Gridley died today. Remains accompany me on Ceptic."

Captain Gridley is the first American officer of great prominence whose death is a direct result of the existing war with Spain. As the commander of Admiral Dewey's flagship and one of the admiral's chief advisers, Captain Gridley achieved distinction at the battle of Manila bay, and added to his previous laurels by winning high praise from his superiors in the service for distinguished gallantry and ability. He fought his ship from the conning tower, while Admiral Dewey directed the movements of his squadron from the deck of the vessel. It was not known until some time after the battle that Captain Gridley had suffered therefrom, and even now the precise nature of his trouble is not disclosed.

Captain Gridley leaves a wife and three children in Erie, Pa., and a mother and brother in Washington. He was a native of Logansport, Ind., and had been in the service since 1860, when he entered the academy in Annapolis. On March 10,1882, he was promoted to commander, and during that summer was on duty at the torpedo station. From October, 1882, to February, 1884, he was chief navigation officer at the Boston navy yard. His assignment to the Olympia was made July 18, 1897.

San Domingo Outbreak.

Cape Haytien, June 6.—According to the latest advices from Monte Cristo, General Jiminez, the leading spirit in the revolutionary attempt; divided his men into two columns, one of which attacked and took the fort, the other marching to the governor's house. Governor Galito was seized, and the demand was made upon him by Jiminez that he sign a paper accepting the leadership of the revolutionists for the northern district. Governor Galito refused, saying that he was too old to take part in a revolution. General Jiminez then told him he was a prisoner, and he was marched out between files of insurgents. In the street, however, a column of government troops met the column, and in the combat which ensued, Galito escaped. The government force, being stronger, pressed back the insurgents, who for half an hour retreated slowly.

Revolutionists in Monte Cristo say a mistake was made in showing any clemency whatever to Governor Galito, instead of killing him offhand, for Galito immediately began blood-thirsty measures of vengeance upon all the employes of the mercantile house of which Jiminez was the head. To the number of 16 they were adjudged guilty of conspiracy and taken out and shot. Among them were several boys not more than 17 years old. In the fight six insurgents were killed, and about 24 have been executed since.

Death of Mr. Morse.

Canton, Mass., June 6.—Ex-Congressman Elijah A. Morse died at his home in this town Sunday afternoon, aged 57 years. He leaves a widow and three sons. He was born at South Bend, Ind., his father being Rev. Abner Morse. During the civil war Mr. Morse went to the front as a private in company A of the Fourth Massachusetts infantry. He entered politics in 1875, being elected to the lower branch of the state legislature, and later to the senate. In 1888 he was a member of the governor's council, and in the same year was elected to the Fifty-first congress. He served four terms in congress, retiring in 1896.

REBELLION AND RIOT.

Spirit of Anarchy In Parts of the Orient.

Authorties Are Terrorized by Mountain Robbers.

Japanese Soldiers Massacre Unoffending Villagers In Sheer Wantonness.

Tacoma, Wash., June 6.—The steamship Victoria brings Hong Kong advices to May 12. The spirit of rebellion and riot seems to pervade many parts of the orient. Five thousand robbers are assembled in one band in the mountains of Loynge, near Canton. They commit crimes of every description, plundering, robbing and killing as their fancy dictates. The local authorities are terrorized and dare not cope with them. Recently the house of an influential mandarin was robbed. The mandarin offered rewards of $20 for the capture of each robber. Seven robbers were captured, but the mandarin then refused to give the rewards. The dishonesty of the mandarin has made the robbers bolder than ever, for all poor people have made up their minds not to interfere with their plundering because they claim the rich cannot be trusted. The Canton authorities have offered rewards for the capture of men known to be supplying arms and ammunition to the robbers. On April 26 a small band of brigands attacked the office of the magistrate of Kuming. They carried away valuables worth $10,000 and released the prisoners confined in the jail.

Four Chinese mariners were fatally burned by an explosion aboard a small Chinese gunboat, which was practically blown up. The gunboat was bound from Manking to Canton with pay for the Cantonese troops. Coming to a locality infested by pirates, the captain ordered his men to load all the guns in readiness for an attack, at the same time cautioning them not to smoke opium near the powder magazines. This warning was disregarded and the result was an explosion of the magazines by which all the guns were discharged simultaneously. The captain succeeded in rescuing three wounded men who jumped into the river. The hull of the gunboat was badly damaged.

The rebellion in Formosa has been confined largely to the central and northern parts of the island. Now an uprising is expected in the southern end, according to a correspondent of the Hong Kong Press, who writes that the feelings of the populace there have been wrought up to the boiling point by the butchery of innocent countrymen and helpless women and children by Japanese soldiers in the Hozan district. A company of Japanese soldiers followed a band of Formosan robbers to their lair in the hills, but the robbers escaped by means of a secret exit from a big cave in which they took refuge after firing into the soldiers and killing several. Maddened by defeat the Japanese are said to have vented their fury and thirst for blood upon the peaceful village of Loonah Ting, several miles distant. It is alleged they set the village on fire at night, and when the vallagers rushed out they were shot down by a cordon of troops surrounding the town. Twenty-four men, two women and four children are known to have been killed. Only half a dozen remain of over 200 which formed the village.

Three thousand black flag soldiers arrived at Wu-Chou on May 5. These soldiers hate customs officers. Turning themselves into a mob, they attacked the custom house, but were driven back by the prefect's soldiers. The soldiers belong to an anti-foreign secret society. Much alarm prevails at Wu-Chou over the reports that all foreigners there are to be massacred.

Suffered Severely.

Chatham, Mass., June 6.—A three-masted schooner which was sighted Saturday drifting over the shoals in a helpless condition with every prospect of being wrecked was discovered Sunday morning safely anchored under the lee of the Handkerchief, and proved to be the Helen G. Moseley, loaded with ice from Bath for Philadelphia. Two boats from Monomoy found that she had suffered severely in the gale, losing a boat, rudder and anchor chains. She had two small anchors out bent onto hawsers. Her captain reported that there was five feet of water in her hold, but otherwise he was not in immediate danger. A tug arrived later in the day from Vineyard Haven and made arrangements to tow the Moseley to that port for repairs.

THE ARMY NOT YET EQUIPPED

Too Much Red Tape at Washington Prevents Embarkation from Tampa, Florida.

Washington, June 7.—It is time that the truth should be spoken. Not a man of the regular army has left Tampa for Cuba, although orders were given to move five days ago. The excuse which is given is that the army is not ready, and this is true. Although it has been known for over a month that an invasion of Cuba must shortly come, and although transports have been waiting at Tampa since the first of May, at a cost of $35,000 a day, the 10,000 which are needed for immediate operations at Santiago are still lingering at Tampa because they are not properly equipped.

These men are not volunteers; they are regulars, the best-drilled soldiers in the world, and the best fitted to cope with an enemy on even terms; but the red tape and dry rot in certain bureaus of the war department have left them in such a condition that they are unable to move, even with the general commanding the armies on the spot. General Miles has telegraphed to Washington protesting against the conditions which tie his hands and the hands of General Shafter; and now that these conditions are appreciated something will probably be done. But enough harm has been done already.

Part of the trouble is with the railroads. Supplies are side-tracked in freight cars 10 miles outside of Tampa, which nobody seems to be able to get at; but the real trouble lies in Washington, in the quartermaster general's department, which is utterly unable to appreciate the fact that war is on, and that urgent conditions demand a breaking away from the routine of official red tape. The navy has been ready from the beginning. The day war was declared every branch of the naval service was prepared for whatever might come. This was due in no small measure to the restless activity of Theodore Roosevelt, who appreciated the need of the hour, and who ruthlessly cut redtape in fitting the navy to meet it. He was encouraged in everything he did by Secretary Long, who was equally alive, as he is now, to the urgency of the situation.

Monday was a day of almost angry impatience in the White House and the war department. The president has followed up his emphatic orders of Sunday with urgent telegrams. Secretary Alger has been equally energetic. "Break open the cars," he wired General Miles yesterday. "Take 20,000 of your troops if necessary, but get at the supplies that are in the freight cars and distribute them among the men."

"I am informed," remarked Secretary Alger, "that owing to the lack of invoices and bills of lading it is impossible to determine in which of the freight cars now sidetracked in long lines at Tampa the supplies needed by the outgoing army are located. It seems to me," said the secretary, impatiently bringing his fist down on his desk, "that with 20,000 men under General Miles' command at Tampa it ought to be a very easy thing to break open the cars and thus determine the nature of the articles which they contain. Having learned this much it cannot take more than a few hours to distribute the contents of the cars among the men."

The administration, needless to say, finds it hard to be patient under the inevitable delay, but consoles itself with the thought that the Spanish cannot profit by it. The president still believes that the Spanish defense must break down before long, and that it will not be necessary to carry the war into Spain, although it will be prepared to do so, if it sees that it cannot otherwise be brought to an end.

Admiral Sampson and Commodore Schley will have to wait in front of Santiago harbor, according to the present expectation of the navy department, until General Shafter's expedition arrives. They will not lie idle, but so far as is known here now they will not be able to do anything more than to keep the Spaniards from adding to their sea defenses, unless Armiral Sampson sees some way of accomplishing what the army is expected to do.

After a lot of conflicting rumors of naval engagements, the landing of troops and such matters, at the navy department, there came at the close of the day one important bit of news embodied in a report from Admiral Dewey of important successes achieved by the insurgents at Manila. This was that the insurgents have been actively engaged within the province of Cavite during the past week. They have won several victories, taken prisoner about 1800 men and 50 officers of the Spanish troops, not native. The arsenal of Cavite has been prepared for occupation by the United States troops upon their arrival on transports.

Price on Aguinaldo.

Manila, May 29, via Hong Kong, June 7.—Many natives will try to secure the large reward the government has offered for the capture of the insurgent chief, Aguinaldo, dead or alive. Already several of the insurgent officers have been assassinated.

It is officially declared that four armored cruisers, with colliers, torpedo boats and transports, carrying 10,000 troops, have left Spain for eastern waters. The Spaniards are utterly unimpressed by the naval defeat here. They explain that their squadron was vastly outclassed and are confident of a victory on shore. They are determined to fight to the end as the ships did. Evidently they will never learn common sense until Manila is annihilated by street and house fighting in the outer city and by a bombardment of the walled citadel.

The insurgents raided a railway station 10 miles to the north of Manila and killed three priests and an officer. There has also been a pitched battle at a Spanish post south of Manila, near Cavite, the result being that the insurgents retired. The Spanish casualties were 150.

At Manila the work of constructing defenses goes on, and there are sandbag breastworks in all directions. The Americans are always using their searchlights, but they never interfere with the work on the defenses. The Spaniards believe that they are short of ammunition.

The governor has issued a proclamation offering the natives great concessions and declaring that the Americans will be powerless on the land.

Meanwhile the insurgents are steadily advancing along the coast, supported by the United States gunboat Petrel, and are driving the Spaniards into Manila. They have captured five important positions nine miles from the city and over 400 Spaniards.

In the Right Place.

Off Santiago, June 7.—The Merrimac lies in just the place where it was desired to locate her, and Admiral Sampson says that even in daylight and with no interference could she have been better located for the purpose of blocking the channel.

After Captain Oviedo had delivered his message from Cervera as to the welfare of Hobson and associates, Admiral Sampson improved the opportunity to show off the ships of the American fleet. In succession the Texas, Oregon, Marblehead and Iowa steamed close by the flagship in response to a signal from the admiral, and Captain Oviedo was given an opportunity to judge what chance he and his fellows of the Cape Verde fleet will have for their lives if they ever come sailing out of the harbor of Santiago de Cuba.

In discussing the Merrimac, Captain Oviedo, as well as the Americans, was surprised that any of the men aboard the boat had escaped. He said that all the Spanish batteries had been turned upon the Merrimac and that she was literally riddled again and again. The Spaniards thought that she must go to the bottom, but she kept straight on her course, guided by the cool heads and the steady hands of the American tars upon her deck. "Lieutenant Hobson blew up his ship himself," said Captain Oviedo, "and I suppose he destroyed it when he reached the place in the channel he considered desirable. She could not have lasted much longer anyway, for we were tearing her to pieces with shell. After the ship went down Lieutenant Hobson and his men swam ashore in a heavy fire and were taken prisoners. Admiral Cervera, indeed all of us, considers the act of Lieutenant Hobson and his crew one of the bravest in the history of naval warfare."

Massachusetts Second.

Tampa, June 7.—In spite of the rumor that the Second regiment will not go out with the first expedition, Colonel Clark is making every effort to have his regiment prepared when called for by General Shafter. The ammunition for the regiment, 500 rounds to a man, and shelter tents have arrived. Colonel Clark gave orders to his staff field officers that they should call together the line officers and non-commissioned and instruct them to make all necessary preparations for a movement on the transports.

What Blanco Reports.

Madrid, June 7.—General Blanco reports that the blockade of Havana has been so relaxed ever since the American fleets were concentrated near Santiago that he has been able to send reinforcements, war stores and provisions to many parts of the coast, while merchant vessels are entering and leaving Havana and other ports quite easily. He also cables that the home rule government, the insular parliament and the autonomist authorities are now in regular working order with the support of all loyalist parties; while "the rebels are singularly inactive and lack provisions and supplies owing to the rigorous watch on the coasts by the Spanish garrisons."

The Gullible Dons.

Madrid, June 7.—In the chamber of deputies yesterday the minister of the colonies, replying to enquiries on the subject, said the government had no information tending to confirm the Spanish reports that the United States cruiser Baltimore had been blown up by internal explosion at Manila except the fact that Lloyd's Gazette "had erased the Baltimore from its list of American ships."

Deputy Comas asked if a note had been sent to the powers "pointing out the American violations of international laws," and he urged the government to include in such a communication the fact that "the Americans had furnished arms to an almost savage race in the Philippine islands." Mr. Giron declined to say whether a note had or had not been sent.

To Cremate Gridley.

Washington, June 7.—A private dispatch from Mrs. Gridley, widow of the late commander of the Olympia, was brought to the department by a friend of the family. She asks that the remains be cremated at Yokohama if there are facilities there for this disposition, Otherwise she wishes to have the remains embalmed and sent to this country. The department will do everything possible to comply with the desire of Mrs. Gridley.

"Bravest I Ever Saw."

Key West, June 7.—Captain Miller of the Merrimac, in speaking about the sinking of the collier, said: "Lieutenant Hobson's act was the bravest I ever saw or heard of. The idea was to block the narrow channel from the harbor. Whether Hobson proposed sinking the Merrimac I do not know, but he arranged the details between himself and the commander. Every officer and man in the fleet would have volunteered to go, but Hobson, being a naval constructor, was the man for the place.

"The plan was carried out perfectly. The only thing we had not counted on was the Spaniards keeping such a sharp watch. Undoubtedly they knew something was afloat. They permitted the Merrimac to pass between the Morro and Estrella forts without noticing her; but when she was in range of the other forts every gun in the harbor was opened on her. We could not count the shots, the firing was so furious. The forts must have fired a thousand times."

Aid Association's Idea.

Boston, June 7.—The Massachusetts Volunteer Aid association wants $50,000 for the purchase of a hospital ship to assist soldiers and sailors at the front. The governor received a letter from Chairman Draper of the association, and transmitted the same to the legislature with his approval.

The proposition of the association is to purchase and properly equip a steamer which could carry supplies of all kinds to the men in the field, and also serve in some sense as a hospital ship, and as a transport for invalid men either from the battlefields in Cuba or from southern or West Indian ports to hospitals or refuge further north.

The Boston Ancients.

Boston, June 7.—The Ancient and Honorable Artillery company of Boston attained its 260th anniversary Monday, and the event was celebrated with all the pomp and glory of past observances. With full ranks the company marched to the Old South church to attend divine service.

After the church service the company returned to Faneuil hall and sat down to its annual dinner. At the speaker's table sat Colonel Bradley, captain of the company; Adjutant F. M. Trifet, toastmaster; Collector Lyman, Mayor Quincy, General Appleton, General Blood and Colonel Billings, of the governor's staff; ex-Governor Boutwell, Secretary of State Olin, Speaker Bates, Admiral Belknap, Lieutenant Colonel Supplee and Rev. Dr. Meredith. The speeches were of an unusually eloquent nature, the valor of the American navy and army being the principal theme.

The drumhead election on the common followed, and the principal officers elected were as follows: Captain, Laurence N. Duchesney, Lawrence; first lieutenant, George H. Innis, Boston; second lieutenant, Sergeant James M. Usher, West Medford; adjutant, Captain J. Henry Brown, Boston.

Senators Pledged to Adjourn.

Washington, June 7.—The time or manner in which the Hawaiian resolutions shall be brought up in the house has not yet been determined. Representative Hitt of the foreign relations committee and other leading advocates of annexation have expressed absolute confidence that consideration would come this week. The matter may come up under a special rule to be reported from the committee on rules, but a member of the committee declares that no rule will be reported, but Mr. Hitt will be recognized to call up the resolutions. The question of consideration then being raised, the house could vote to proceed with the matter.

The senators who are most strenuously opposing the annexation of Hawaii claim that they have a sufficient number of senators pledged to adjourn in preference to taking up the resolution, even though the house acts favorably upon the question. They say that seven Republican senators are included among those who have thus pledged themselves.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, June 7.—The bill for the appointment of conservators of the property of aged persons who are unable to care therefor was ordered to a third reading by the senate Monday, while the bill for the protection of public parks and boulevards from disfigurement by advertisements was rejected.

The joint judiciary committee reported against the bill to reduce the liability of innholders for losses by guests.

The coinsurance bill, amended so as to limit risks to 10 percent on capital and assets, was passed to be engrossed.

In the house Mr. Noonan of Boston opposed the bill to forbid the use of trading stamps, saying it interfered with legitimate business. An amendment was adopted to allow sellers themselves to offer inducements to trade. All other amendments were rejected and the bill was passed to be engrossed.

Both Laws Needed.

Washington, June 7.—Senator Hawley has introduced a bill for the punishment of persons who may wilfully injure or destroy any submarine mine or torpedo or harbor defense system owned by the United States. The offense is made a misdemeanor punishable by fine or imprisonment. Mr. Hawley also introduced a bill for the punishment of persons for photographing fortifications. This offense is made a felony punishable by imprisonment for 10 years, or by fine of $25,000, or both.

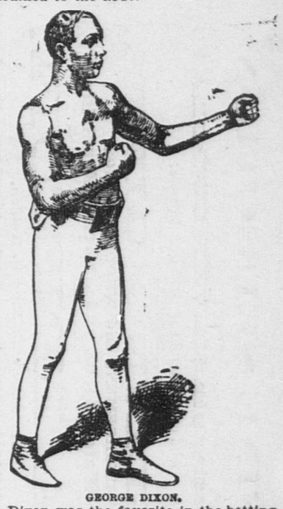
DIXON BEATS SANTRY.

Colored Boxer Renews His Reputation With the Gloves.

A Bout of Twenty Rounds In New York.

Decision Given Him Because of His Better Showing.

New York, June 7.—Although George Dixon, the colored boxer, has not been heard of much lately in the ring, he demonstrated last night in his bout with Santry of Chicago that he has not lost any of his skill with the gloves. The weight called for in the agreement was 125 pounds, and Dixon said that he was about two pounds below that weight. Santry was also under weight and looked trained to the hour.



GEORGE DIXON.

Dixon was the favorite in the betting at 2 to 1, but very little Santry money was in sight. They shook hands at 10:20 and, after being cautioned by the referee as to the rules, the bout began.

Round 1—Dixon led for the head, but was blocked. Dixon forced the pace and put two lefts to the ribs without getting a blow in return during the entire round.

Round 2—Santry's ribs and stomach were red from the effects of Dixon's blows when he came up for this round. Santry led and landed very lightly on the face with his left. Dixon swung a very hard left on the ribs, and Santry swung his left on the breast. Dixon played for the stomach and swung right and left on the head, forcing Santry to the ropes.

Round 10—Dixon began with a left jab on the face, and then sent his left to the face and ribs. They exchanged lefts on the face, and George forced the pace and swung two lefts on the ribs. Santry backed to the ropes. Santry swung a hard left on the ribs, and Dixon smiled. Santry rushed and hooked his left twice on the face. Dixon landed a right hook on the head. Santry jabbed his left on the mouth, and the spectators applauded both boys generously.

Round 18—Santry uppercut George on the face with left, and Dixon swung left on the face. They exchanged lefts on the head, and Dixon swung left to the ribs. At close quarters Santry hooked left and right on the head. Dixon swung left on the ribs and Santry swung left on the face. Both landed with lefts on the ribs.

Round 19.—Santry swung a very stiff left on George's head, and then uppercut him with his right on the chin. Dixon swung left on the head and again on ribs. Santry failed to send anything back in return and clinched. Dixon swung left on the head and another on the neck without return.

Round 20.—They shook hands and Dixon rushed into several clinches. Dixon forced Santry to the ropes, but did not land. Santry swung a left uppercut on the face and the exchanged lefts on the breast. Both jabbed lefts on the face. Dixon swung left for the body, but missed, as Santry stepped back out of harm's way. George jabbed left on the face and swung left and right to the head just at the end of the bout.

The referee declared Dixon the winner, and some of the friends of the Chicago man hissed.

Fitz Makes a Promise.

New York, June 7.—Bob Fitzsimmons has promised to meet "Kid" McCoy in the ring in a battle for the pugilistic championship of the world. Mutual friends brought the big pugilists together, and the man who defeated Corbett promises to give the new aspirant for the heavyweight championship a chance to prove his worth.

Flaherty Forced to the Ropes.

Buffalo, June 7.—Martin Flaherty of Lowell and Billy O'Donnell of Memphis, Tenn., fought a 20-round draw at the Olympia Athletic club last night. The men weighed in at 124 pounds. O'Donnel had all the better of the first 10 rounds, showing great cleverness. Flaherty did the better work until the 19th round, when O'Donnell woke up and made a whirlwind fight, forcing Flaherty to the ropes repeatedly.

Good Afternoon.

That the post of danger is sometimes the place of safety was well illustrated in the battle of Manila. As the ships sailed into the harbor, Admiral Dewey stood on the bridge of the Olympia, his flagship, with her commander Capt. Gridley. Fearing that both might be killed or disabled by the enemy's shot and the ship left without a superior officer, Admiral Dewey ordered Capt. Gridley to take position in the conning tower and kept the place of greater danger for himself. But the concussion of the heavy guns ruptured a blood vessel and has resulted in the death of Capt. Gridley, while the Admiral, in his more exposed position, passed through the battle scathless.

Uncle Sam may not own a boat named the "City of Quincy," but the little steamer City of Quincy which recently run between Quincy and Nantasket is much in evidence in transporting batteries in the harbor. Monday she conveyed Battery H from Fort Warren to Marblehead, and Batteries D and C to Salem Willows.

Defend the Flag.

Rev. F. A. Frigugliett, pastor of the Catholic parish of this city, delivered the sermon at St. Mary's church on Sunday and, in the course of his remarks made special reference to the present war. This was not the time, said Fr. Francis, to ask whether or not the country was in the right or wrong in the present contest. It was enough to know that our country was at war with a foreign nation and therefore our prayers should be offered up for the repose of the souls of those brave fellows who had been killed while defending the flag, for the success of American arms and for the honor and glory of our country's standard. At the conclusion of his remarks, Fr. Francis offered up special prayers for the objects outlined above.

The Selectmen of Hyde Park have granted the Stoughton, Canton & Boston street railway a location from Readville to the Milton line. The company also desire locations through Milton to Canton and to Mattapan. Commenting on these locations the Herald says, there is a great demand from the metropolitan district to make the Blue Hill reservation accessible by the electric cars, and the need of such a connection, from the standpoint of public necessity and convenience, now that the Elevated company is to be extended to the Milton line at Mattapan, with the New Haven road and Norfolk Suburban electric line terminating at Readville, becomes apparent day by day, and would be patronized by thousands who would visit the great institution of the people at Blue Hill, as well as making important connection to Canton and Stoughton, the people of which are anxious for the road to come.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued case of James O. Sypher and Lizzie Mason for adultery was called and the complaint dismissed.

Patrick Murphy of Quincy was arraigned for non-support of his wife. Case continued until July 7.

The case of Joseph H. Johnson for threatening assault on his wife was called and he was defaulted.

John Murphy and John and William Good, three juveniles, were arraigned for breaking and entering the engine house of the Scandinavian Granite Co. and the larceny of gunpowder, dynamite, cartridges and caps. Case continued until Thursday.

IMPROVEMENTS WANTED.

If They Do Increase the Tax Rate a Little—Finance Committee Overruled.

As was anticipated, there was a tilt at Monday night's meeting of the City Council between the Committee on Finance and Committee on Streets, which resulted in a victory for the latter, inasmuch as the Council ordered the orders from the Committee on Streets that were reported adversely by the Committee on Finance to be recommitted.

Councilmen Cain and Freeman were absent.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The City Auditor forwarded a communication stating that bills for 1896 and 1897 for highways amounting to $11.85, and outside poor for 631.35, had been filed with him for payment. To Committee on Finance.

Commissioner Knowlton forwarded a communication stating that he had given a temporary location for the erection of a flag pole on Grand View avenue, Wollaston, and suggesting that the City Council make it a permanent one. To Committee on Streets.

PETITIONS.

Petitions for soldier's relief were received from Thomas Smith and E. DeGreaney. To Committee on State Aid.

A number of petitions for minor licenses were received and referred to the Committee on Licenses.

A petition was received that Goddard avenue and Federal avenue be accepted as public highways. To Committee on Streets.

A petition was received from Ward Six remonstrating against the building of concrete sidewalks on Newbury avenue and Billings street. To Committee on Streets.

A petition was received calling attention to the bad condition of Old Colony street, and requesting that it be drained. To Committee on Sewers and Drains.

REPORT OF COMMITTEES.

The Committee reported ought to pass with a slight amendment in relation to payment of the notes, on the order appropriating $5,000 for a city stable.

Amendment adopted and order took its second reading.

The Committee on Finance reported ought not to pass on order to rebuild North street.

Councilman Newcomb hoped report would not be accepted. The street was in a very bad condition. It was very narrow at the causeway and was unsafe.

Councilman Sidelinger said the Finance Committee had reported adversely simply on the matter of economy. There were three other orders they had reported on in the same way, as the Committee thought these could wait a little while.

Councilman Parker asked the Commissioner his opinion as to the street.

Commissioner Knowlton replied that Councilman Newcomb had stated it as it was. At the causeway it was but fourteen feet wide.

Councilman Sidelinger asked the Commissioner if a fence would not make it safe at this point.

Commissioner Knowlton replied yes, but it would make the street still narrower.

Councilman Packard understood the Street Committee were unanimous on their report. He moved the order be recommitted.

Councilman Little said the reason that the Finance Committee reported as it did, was because there was such a call for appropriations for the main streets that this could wait a little while.

Councilman Jameson thought it advisable to have street made safer.

Councilman Swithin thought a fence would cost nearly as much as to fill in the bank.

Councilman Hultman said if a fence was built it would only make the street narrower than it was now, and on one side there was no place to put a fence as the bank had been washed down. The money recommended in the order would make part of the street safe.

Councilman Badger thought it would cost the city something for damages if a team went over the bank.

The motion to recommit was declared lost. Vote doubted. The motion was then carried by a vote of 11 to 9.

The Committee on Finance reported ought not to pass on the laying out of Payne street.

Councilman Clark hoped report would not be accepted. The street was only 100 feet long and but a small outlay was necessary to put it in good shape.

The response to a question by Councilmn Sidelinger said the report was made in the interest of economy.

Councilman Packard asked if this was a street where land could be taken cheaper now than a few years later.

Councilman Parker replied that perhaps $300 or $600 would be required for land. It could never be taken cheaper than at present time.

Councilman Little said he had been informed that if land was taken the parties would sue the city.

Councilman Packard moved to recommit.

Councilman McGrath thought the matter might as well be settled now. There were parties on the street who objected very much.

Councilman Packard said it made no difference what the people on the street wanted, we are here to widen the street if it is necessary for the public.

It was voted to recommit.

The Committee on Finance reported ought not to pass on order laying out East Elm avenue.

Councilman Willard had a personal interest in this street, and the Street Committee. They had spent much time on these matters and considered them carefully. He would like to take the Finance Committee over that street and see if they would make the same report. It was a disgrace that a street so important as this should not be in better shape. There were five large holes that were always full of mud. There was such a thing as being penny wise and pound foolish. The street was in an unsafe condition.

Councilman Packard moved to recommit. Voted.

The Committee on Finance reported ought not to pass on order accepting Putnam street as a public way.

Upon motion of Councilman Packard the order was recommitted without debate.

The Committee on Fire Department reported an order appropriating $975 for repairs upon the several fire stations. To Committee on Finance.

The Committee on Licenses reported an order authorizing the Board of Health to issue a slaughter house license. Adopted.

The Committee on Licenses reported an order granting a number of minor licenses, which was adopted.

The Committee on Sewers and Drains reported an order appropriating $475 for a catch basin on the corner of Sagamore and Prospect streets. To Committee on Finance.

The Committee on Sewers and Drains reported an order appropriating $500 for catch basins and drains on Garfield street provided Joss Bros. & Co. pay $500 as part payment for taking water from their mill. To Committee on Finance.

The Committee on Sewers and Drains reported an order appropriating $500 for a retaining wall on Furnace brook on Willard street. To Committee on Finance.

The Committee on Streets reported leave to withdraw on the petition for a light on Elm place. Accepted.

The Committee on Streets reported an order defining and relocating the line on Washington and Canal streets at their junction. Ordered to a second reading.

The Committee on Street reported an order appropriating $3500 for the regrading of Crescent street which also provides for a gravel sidewalk with edgestones, abutters to pay one-half the cost of edgestones. Read and referred to Committee on Finance.

Councilman Parker offered an order for the relocation of Hancock street, between School street and the Music Hall building.

President Pinkham enquired if it related to the matter now before the Council, and learning that it did, he ruled it out, deciding that it should come from the committee.

It was thereupon voted that a recess of ten minutes be taken that the Committee on Streets might sit.

The Committee then reported an order for another hearing on the widening of Hancock street at Granite street and between School street and the Music Hall building. Adopted.

The order in the calendar for the relocation of Franklin and High streets at their junction was given another reading

MILTON.

Tomorrow evening there will be a grand flag raising at East Milton with speeches and music. The flag is a beauty and of good size, being 20 by 10 feet. It will be suspended over Adams street between Clark's news stand and Quimby's. While William Clark, the Ledger agent, was on the roof of his store this morning making arrangements, he slipped and fell to the sidewalk. At first he thought he was unhurt, but as he proceeded about his work his wrist pained him more and more and a doctor pronounced it a severe strain.

The curb stone is being laid about the square on Adams street and Granite avenue, and will be a marked improvement.

Many men are at work on the Bates place on Granite place laying it out into houselots. A new street has been run through to Church street, and it said there will be considerable building this season.

The White Mountains.

The American Institute of Instruction will hold its next annual meeting in North Conway, New Hampshire, July 5-8, 1898. Are you going?

It promises to be one of the largest and most enthusiastic meetings the Institute has ever held. The programme is one of exceptional interest, embracing topics and naming speakers sure to be helpful and stimulating to school officials and teachers of every grade. Manual and Moral Training, Art and Science Cultue, Human Interest in Natue Study, How to Manage Troublesome Children, Child Study, Woman's Place and Power in Educational Affairs and the Present Status of Education in New England are among the topics to be presented and discussed by the most distinguished and progressive educators, both men and women, from every New England state.

North Conway occupies a first place in the hearts of tourists and sojourners. No greater variety, of mountain views and climbing can be found anywhere. In North Conway and the adjoining villages over two thousands guests can be easily accommmodated and in the numerous attractive places near, as many more, all within sight of, and a day's journey to Mount Washington and other reachable mountain summits. The local arrangements were ever more complete and satisfactory. A reception committee upon application will secure entertainment at any price desired.

THE DAILY EVENTS.

The Litte Items About the City Yesterday and Today.

An east wind tempers the heat this afternoon.

The record was broken yesterday; no rain fell during the 24 hours.

"Did you go to the christening yesterday?" Quincy had a little son.

Tomorrow at 4 P. M., the postponed Tree Day exercises at Wellesley will take place.

You remember the wreck on the railroad near the Quincy station? Yes. Well, forget it and remember the Maine!

Messrs. George H. Wilson, Henry L. Kincaide, Wilson Tisdale, Fred W. Tirrell., E. H. Doane and A. G. Durgin participated in the festivities of the Ancients on Monday.

Friday will be class day at Tuft's college and the grounds at College Hill will be handsomely decorated. There will be a band concert, tree exercises, spreads, dancing and a concert.

At Merry Mount Park Monday afternoon, the St. John's Juniors defeated the St. Mary's of Randolph by a score of 12 to 7. The features of the game were the catching of Mahon and the pitching of Dunn for the St. John's, the pitching of Egan for the St. Mary's.

Unless all plans fail, the new street rail way line to Weymouth via Quincy avenue will be opened to the public Saturday afternoon, and a grand time is anticipated, to include band concert at Quincy Neck and Weymouth, and one of Pawsey's famous clam bakes at Hayward's grove.

The red, and white blue signal lights which Mr. Al. Williams hoisted on the Wollaston flag staff on Monday evening, attracted attention throughout the city. In a few days, possibly tonight, a ten foot pole, carrying six lights will be hoisted to the truck, and every night thereafter.

It took one of the largest cars of the Quincy and Boston street railway to carry the party of 75 members of George L. Gill Rebekah lodge who visited Steadfast lodge of East Weymouth Monday evening. Delegations were also present from Rising Star lodge of Randolph and Abigail Adams lodge of South Weymouth. The home lodge initiated seven candidates in a very creditable manner, and entertained the visitors hospitably.

It will be observed that the grand total of children in the city of five to fourteen years of age, inclusive is 4745, a gain of but 25 during the year.

The gain was wholly in Wards One (11), Ward Two (5), Ward Five (59) and Ward Six (1). There was a tie in Ward Three, and Ward Four shows a loss of 51.

In 1897 the number of eight-year olds stood at the head; this year it is the six-year-olds.

The number of boys and girls in the city is very equally divided, the boys outnumbering the girls by 57. In Wards Four, Five and Six, however, there are more girls than boys. The summary:

Sudden Death.

People of Atlantic will be shocked to hear of the sudden death of Charles H. Hall of Walker street, which occurred early this morning of, heart failure. He has been apparently in good health was seen out Monday. He leaves a a widow, two sons and a daughter. It will be a shock to his many friends.

PERHAPS TODAY.

Col. Whitney Will Receive His Orders From Governor

To Recruit Fifth Regiment Under the Second Call.

Co. K Must Then Have 106 Officers and Men.

The following information comes at the right time to keep Co. K intact, as it is said some members contemplated recruiting with other regiments now at the front when the recruiting officers arrived. The Herald says, Interest at the State House centres in the troops that are to meet the second call of the President. It is anticipated that the war department will permit the state to place an additional militia regiment in the field and that by noon today such orders will come to the Governor's hand. The 5th infantry, of course, will be invited to meet this call in part, and it is not impossible that before another 24 hours Col. Whitney's command will be called upon to recruit its companies to the required 106 officers and men each, and be ready to take the field.

It has been suggested that the 5th be called on for but eight companies, the other four to consolidate, and that the 1st, and 2d corps be invited to make up the remaining four companies. Gen. Dalton is authority for the statement that such a move would not be considered, but that the 5th would be taken entire, and each company be required to recruit to the maximum at home stations.

The recruiting officers for regiments in the field are expected here before the week is out, so that the enthusiastic military man will have any number of organizations to choose from, should he desire to go to war.

The matter of paying the troops in the field is beuing carefully considered, and before many hours the method will be in operation. That both officers and men are to have some money is settled, how it shall be done is the question.

The surgeon-general's office has been moved into the quarters formerly occupied by Col. Capelle, assistant adjutant-general. Dr. Bradford, Gen. Blood's active assistant, is busy getting things in shape and incidentally refitting the supply of drugs and hospital stores reduced by the draft on them by regiments that have gone to the field.

A self-constituted committee on recruiting for the United States army, consisting of veterans of the late war, held a meeting at the American House, yesterday after noon, and, after two hours' debate, resolved that the committee was heartily in favor of keeping all organizations in the field recruited to their maximums before raising new regiments, and also advocated that the state pay to enlisted men in the United States service be $7 a month. "and that the Governor be urged to sustain the hands of the war department in keeping enlistment or original vacancies."

It was also resolved that "we approve of the establishment, in harmony with the war department, of a camp of instruction, which shall promote the maintenance of regiments in the field at their maximum." It was voted to present the action of the meeting to the Governor and council for their consideration.

TRADING STAMPS.

Prohibitive Bill Passed by the House.

The Massachusetts House on Monday placed a heavy foot on the trading stamp business. A prohibitive bill was passed to be engrossed in that body. The Journal reports the proceedings as follows:

The bill to prevent the giving of trading stamps or other devices, as an inducement for trade, came up for its engrossment late in the afternoon. The bill was opposed by Mr. Noonan, who characterized the measure as pernicious and paternal. Mr. Stevenson of Pittsfield and Mr. Dubuque of Fall River favored the bill on the ground that the trading stamp business, which was aimed at, was a fraud and a delusion, bordering very near the line of lottery.

Mr. Hayes of Lowell offered an amendment that the bill should be applied to trading stamps only. He thought the practice of giving "other devices" to induce trade a fair and legitimate way of advertising.

Mr. Dubuque of Fall River again, in support of the bill, spoke of the confusion resulting from different decisions from the lower courts and the application of the law of 1884. Some of the courts had decided that this law applied to stamps and fines were imposed, and other decisions had been the other way, but through the payof the fines by the trading stamp concerns, there had been no decision by the Supreme Court. Hence, in some localities the business of trading stamps was carried on, while in other places it was prohibited.

Mr. Whitaker of Wrentham favored the bill. He contended that merchants and traders were not in the habit of giving something for nothing and the public eventually paid full price for the trading stamps.

Mr. Stevenson of Pittsfield offered an amendment to allow the retailer to give something with the article purchased. Mr. Innes of Boston offered an amendment that the act should not take effect until 1899. Mr. Dubuque opposed the Hayes and Innes amendments, the latter because the companies could make 10 year contracts before the operation of the law and then be exempt under the exemption of existing contract clause. The Hayes and Innes amendments were rejected, the amendment by Mr. Stevenson adopted and the bill then passed to be engrossed.

GREAT SACRIFICE.

An exchange says, it was a Brooklyn widow who, on being chided for adding her diamond solitaire earrings to the details of her sable trappings of woe, justified herself by saying that they were the very condensation of grief crystallized tears.

It has been the fortune of another bereaved resident of the town of sepulchred popularity to attain an elegaic fame accomplished by few if any of her sex. Those in this vicinity who have recently had the misfortune to have a death in their families have been made the recipient of the following circular, mailed them with timely enterprise by a woman who owns a marble yard near one of Brooklyn's best known cemeteries:

"I beg leave to inform you that if you intend or have concluded to purchase a monument or tombstone for your lot, that I have a large assortment of the same, of the finest and latest designs to suit all tastes. Owing to the death of my beloved husband, necessity compels me under the present circumstances to dispose of some of my stock at a sacrifice, thus offering you at the same time an opportunity which you will seldom meet again in purchasing a monument or tombstone at a very low figure. I therefore kindly invite you to favor me with a call and examine my stock, as it is no trouble to show it.

"Hoping you will give the matter close consideration, and realize my position, I remain, respectfully yours,

——— ———"

For several generations undue honor has been paid the French widow who made in the "marble minstrel's voiceful stone" in Pere la Chaise relate how she continued her husband's business "at the old stand." But the professional Brooklynite has given her the appropriate spades and beaten her out the game.

Teaching Children Application.

Set easy tasks for the little ones. Do not make them too long, but have it clearly understood that they are never to be left until they are completed. Even though the thing in hand occupies but five minutes, let nothing interrupt it. Completion should be the watchword, the inspiration, the beginning and the end of a child's duties. When this is once thoroughly inwrought into the mind, subsequent teaching becomes easy and later lessons will lose their most formidable features. It is not altogether what we have to learn that is to be dreaded, but the undisciplined faculties which we bring to bear upon the undertaking.

A well trained child should never know when its first lessons in application were taught it. The possibility of acquiring knowledge is nowhere better demonstrated than in the proficiency of the children of some of the crowned heads of Europe. At the ages of 10 or 12 years they are able to speak several languages with the utmost fluency, are well grounded in all fundamental branches, read, write and speak correctly and have a comprehensive idea of very many of the important facts of life. —New York Ledger.

Washing Delicate Goods.

Flannels.—Soak in cold borax water. If very soiled, make a slight lather, souse up and down and rinse well. Must never be rubbed.

Red Table Damask.—Never use hot water; hang evenly; snap well; never iron.

Corsets.—Remove steels in front and sides; put corsets on board and scrub with tepid lather of castile soap. Rinse under faucet, pull until straight and dry in cool place, pulling when partly dry.

Silk Stockings.—Wash in lather of castile soap, rinse very thoroughly in clear water, turn wrong side out, wring dry in a cloth. When nearly dry, stretch and rub in hands to shape them. Do not iron.

Silk Underwear.—Make lather of white soap; water hot, not scalding. Squeeze in hands, rinse through two waters, shake, snap and pull into shape. Pull into shape when nearly dry. Do not iron.

Bluing.—A good test for discovering the presence of the dangerous prussian blue is to dissolve a little washing soda in water, add bluing and heat over fire. Pour into a glass. When cold, a brown deposit of iron shows presence of prussian blue.

Her Friends Perplexed.

There are still housekeepers who boast of the amount of housework they can accomplish and the early hour at which it is performed. It is unusual to find such a woman nowadays outside of the covers of some ancient social history, so the occasional appearance of the woman with old fashioned ambitions is interesting. The modern, ordinary, everyday woman was boasting mildly the other day of some of her small duties performed when the heroine of ancient days broke in in tones of unyielding superiority, "Why, the other morning I was up and made my beds and had my dishes washed before breakfast." "What?" said the astonished listener. "Yes," repeated the capable housekeeper. "I was up and made by beds and washed my dishes before breakfast." And now her friends are wondering if she is that shiftless individual who leaves her dinner dishes overnight or if she is a modern Sapphira.—New York Times.

For the School Luncheon.

A variation of the school luncheon sandwich is made by using salmon mixed with some sort of sauce or condiment. A bit of mayonnaise dressing left over may be used with it. The fish is to be flaked fine and rubbed into a smooth paste. Cold boiled salmon can be used or a can of salmon freed from the oil, and with hot water poured over it to rid it entirely of the oily flavor, the fish being allowed to get perfectly cool before being used in a sandwich. It may be added that this treatment of a can of salmon puts the fish in excellent condition to cream in the chafing dish for a night supper. Brown bread is best for fish sandwiches, as it seems to take away any unpleasant strength of the fish flavor.

Opening Engagement Cooled the Ardor of the Chief Plotter.

Key West, June 7.—The steamer Fanita, formerly of the Clyde line, which sailed from Mobile, May 24, in a suspicious manner, concealing her destination, arrived here yesterday afternoon. She was well down in the water and fully loaded apparently. Her captain and crew refused to make any statement regarding the trip further than that the Fanita sailed from Mobile with a general cargo, discharged it and had now called at Key West for orders. This statement in no way tallies with the appearance of the vessel, which is certainly not in ballast. It was learned later from a reliable source that the Fanita had taken a cargo of arms and ammunition, with several tons of dynamite, from Mobile, and that, so far from being engaged in peaceful and legal traffic, she had been for two weeks on a filibustering expedition.

From Tampa, the Fanita was ordered to Mobile, ostensibly to take an expedition to Cuba under the charge of Generals Jimines and Morrillo, both Dominicans, but strong sympathizers with the movement for Cuban independence. The cargo was taken on board and during the night the Fanita, with the two generals, a captain and another officer, slipped out to sea without exciting suspicion. On the afternoon of May 25, she was sighted and hailed by an American warship in gulf waters. An ensign was sent aboard the Fanita to examine her papers and inquire as to her destination. He was told that she was bound with supplies for the insurgents, and she was allowed to proceed unmolested. Her voyage was uneventful after that until she reached Great Inagua, where the expedition was met and joined by Chris Roberts, an expert pilot, well acquainted with the Cuban shores. A hurried consultation took place between Roberts and General Jimines, and the Fanita's captain was ordered to steer for Port de Paix, Hayti, it being unsafe to land in Cuba. Shortly after a Spanish gunboat was sighted cruising along the coast, but she took no notice of the Fanita, despite the fact that she was then almost within the three-mile limit.

Port de Paix was reached in safety and General Jimines went ashore and sent dispatches. On his return he ordered the Fanita to Cape Haytien. There General Jimines again went ashore, returning to the ship with 10 men, who, he told the captain, were laborers engaged by him to unload the cargo as soon as the vessel reached Cuba. He added that his advices were still to the effect that it was unsafe to land an expedition in Cuba just yet and that he desired to touch at Monte Cristo, San Domingo, where important news awaited him.

Monte Cristo was reached on June 2. On casting anchor, the captain was surprised to see General Jimines come on deck in uniform and fully armed, followed by General Morrillo and the other two officers, similarly equipped. They ordered 31 rifles and two cases of ammunition to be put aboard the long boat that was to row them ashore, and then commanded the 10 laborers to take their seats in the boat. Roberts remained on board the Fanita. The captain understood that something was wrong; but he was reassured by Roberts and General Jimines, and shortly after 6 o'clock in the morning, the boat was rowed ashore by three sailors and the second mate of the Fanita. No sooner had they reached the wharf where General Jimines and his party landed, than a volley of musketry was heard, and three of the party fell wounded. The first to fall was General Morrillo, pierced through the breast by a bullet. Troops were seen advancing in large numbers and the little band of 14 was soon cut down to five. The sailors in the Fanita boat were seized with terror and shoved off from the wharf amid a rain of bullets. General Jimines jumped into the boat just in time, and, seizing an oar, joined the crew in pulling for dear life. The last that was seen of the landing party was the figures of two men covered with blood, their clothing torn from their backs, struggling desperately against superior odds in the face of blazing and smoking musketry.

Jimines reached the Fanita in safety, and none of the crew was injured, but it was a miraculous escape. The captain hoisted the boat, and, without losing a moment's time, put to sea. The Fanita headed for shore, where she landed Jimines and Roberts on Friday, and then returned here without delay with her entire cargo. The captain refuses absolutely to make a statement, but evidently he was imposed upon and knew nothing of the character of the expedition.

Yesterday In Boston.

Boston, June 7.—It is proposed to mount new guns at Fort Warren. With these it will be one of the strongest fortifications in the world, having about 1200 feet of embankment.

Yesterday was class day at the institute of technology. Of the 320 in the freshman class, 198 graduated.

At a meeting of the Boston presbytery, Rev. George W. Mead was received from the presbytery of New York, and his installation over the Newport church will occur June 13. Rev. L. V. Price resigned the pastorate of the church at Brockton, and Dr. Dewing was appointed the moderator of the same. A committee was appointed to take steps toward inviting the general assembly to hold its meeting at Boston in 1900.

The Oregon Election.

Portland, Ore., June 7.—Scattering returns from the city and from five interior counties indicate the election of the Republican state ticket. The chairman of the Republican committee says that with 12 holdover senators the Republicans will have a majority in the legislature. The vote for congressmen in both districts will probably be close.

Rioting In Ireland.

Belfast, June 7.—At a late hour last evening the troops were compelled to charge mobs numbering several thousands. The rioters stoned the police and troops. One constable, who fell from his horse, was savagely beaten with stones. Altogether this was the worst rioting that has occurred since 1886. Over 50 policemen have been injured, and 24 have been taken to the hospitals with fractured skulls and severe scalp wounds.

Brazil's Friendliness.

Washington, June 7.—Another evidence of the friendship of Brazil for the United States appeared in the presentation of the new minister, Mr. Assis. Mr. Mendonca, the retiring minister, a few weeks ago, when he took his leave, delivered an address remarkable for the warmth of the friendly sentiments expressed; yesterday the new minister, in a brief address, delivered a panegyric upon the United States. President McKinley made a friendly reply.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Charles W. Chase, one of the leading financial men of Haverhill for many years, and widely known, died yesterday afternoon, aged 76.

The Spanish cabinet has decided that no effective blockade exists, and will so notify the powers. An informal notification has already been made.

General Castillo, commanding the Cuban forces in the west and north of the province of Santiago, has been concentrating 4000 Cubans in the vicinity of the city.

A severe earthquake occurred in northern Kentucky Monday morning. At Paris several persons were thrown from their beds. At Millersburg the people were panicstricken, and many fled from their homes.

Advices received by friends of J. H. Edwards, secretary of the Young Men's Christian association of Reading, Pa., who went to Cuba last March, say that he has been arrested as a spy and has gone insane.

At the city election in Norwich, Conn., the Democrats carried everything excepting one city sheriff. Mayor F. L. Osgood was re-elected by 845 majority. The Democrats will have control of the city government for the first time in 10 years.

Orlando Harvey of Chester, Pa., secretary and solicitor of a building association, was arrested yesterday charged with the misappropriation of $37,000 of the association's funds. A large number of working people have lost their savings of years.

Death Sometimes Spares.

A pathetic story of fact is told by an ex-Confederate soldier of one dark night on the skirmish line during the war. When on the instant that his musket was aimed to kill a Union picket the latter, suddenly inspired with a sense of his own defenceless condition, began to sing those beautiful words: "Cover my defenceless head with the shadow of thy wing." The Confederate withheld his hand. He could not fire. The picket's life was saved.

Death sometimes spares the one who seems marked to be his victim. Let no one despair, even in the darkest hour. Many a man who seemed picked out for death by consumption has found respite and safety through the use of that wonderful "Golden Medical Discovery," which Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., invented thirty years ago, and which has brought new life and hope to almost countless thousands of men and women.

Every day brings a multitude of letters to Dr. Pierce, telling gratefully what his medicines and his advice have done to restore health and happiness to homes where hitherto sickness and misery had reigned supreme.

A gentleman living in Stillwater, Washington County, Minnesota, Mr. C. J. McNaney, writes: "In the spring of 1884, I was taken ill with consumption, and after trying everything I could hear of and doctoring all summer my physician said I had consumption, and that my left lung was nearly gone, and that I could live but a short time. About twelve bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery brought me out all right, and I cured myself of two more attacks of the same trouble. I am satisfied that the 'Golden Medical Discovery' will cure consumption if taken in time. I consider it the best medicine in the world for the diseases for which it is recommended."

WON AND LOST.

The Bostons Victorious and Unsuccessful Monday Afternoon.

Boston, June 7.—The largest crowd of the season, outside of holidays, attended the two games yesterday afternoon between the Bostons and Captain Tebeau's Clevelands. More than 6000 people sat the games out, although the weather was decidedly chilly at the end of the second contest. The home team were easy winners of the first game, with Klobedanz doing the box work, against Cuppy and Powell. In the second game Lewis pitched a splendid winning game ordinarily, but "General Inability" to hit when chances offered threw the home team down in the smallest score of the season on the local grounds, coupled with a couple of unfortunate errors in the field.

CAPTAIN OLIVER TEBEAU OF CLEVELAND.

Kloby had rather better command of the ball in the first game of any time recently, and was only hit five times in all. Two of the five hits came in the first inning, and along with two bases on balls two of the four Cleveland runs were scored. Third Baseman Wallace found the Boston pitcher for two two-baggers, but the rest of the team found him difficult to time safely.

The feature of the first game, which the home team won, 9 to 5, was the batting of Hamilton, Collins, "Kloby" and Tenney for Boston, and the fielding of Hamilton, Tenney, Long, Duffy, Collins and Lowe. Childs, Wallace, McKean and O'Connor excelled for the visitors. Powell relieved Cuppy in the box in the second inning, as the home team were showing a liking for Cuppy's slow ones.

In the second game Lewis held Cleveland to five singles, well scattered through the nine innings, and only one figured in the run getting, that being McAleer's timely hit in the second inning, scoring the only two runs of the game. The score:

Snappy ball enabled the Washingtons to defeat the Louisvilles, 8 to 5. John Doyle, who covers first base, succeeds Thomas Brown as manager of the Washington team.

Massy, first baseman of the Springfields, contributed to Monday's defeat of the Torontos by a homer with two runners on bags.

The Browns' rally in the seventh, coupled with the Vermonts' errors, gave the game to the Providence team, 9 to 7.

The Phillies defeated the Pittsburgs by better all around playing, 7 to 5.

The erstwhile champions in Baltimore were afflicted with "that tired feeling" yesterday, and the St. Louis broke even on the series, 6 to 3.

The Montreals made three hits, including two home runs, in the first inning yesterday, netting nine runs, but the Providences batted out a victory in the eighth, 11 to 9.

The Pawtuckets could not hit McKenna, while the Brocktons found McCafferty opportunely and won easily.

The Newports shut out Manager Doe's players in New Bedford, 6 to 0. Two home runs, after errors had given the side a chance to live a little longer, did the business. Pitcher Gallagher got one with a man on third, and Bransfield one with the bases full.

Manager Finn of the Newports has taken the management of the Rochesters, and Captain Kelley, the first baseman, is in charge of the Newport team.

Fifteen hits off Meekin of the New Yorks, as against four off Britenstein, not to mention the five errors charged to the giants tell the tale of yesterday's game in New York with the Cincinnatis, the latter winning 10 to 1.

With four new players, the Tauntons defeated the Fall Rivers in the 12th inning yesterday, 10 to 7. McMakin, the new pitcher, gave great satisfaction, and Armstrong held him without an error.

Manager Shannon of the Wilkesbarre club is in correspondence with the Springfield club for the exchange of Pitcher Coakley for Pitcher Korwan.

William Barnie, manager of the Brooklyn baseball team, received his release yesterday. The directors of the club met and decided on Barnie's release as the first step towards bringing the club to a higher point in the pace for the championship. Mr. Barnie was with the Brooklyn club nearly two years. Griffin, captain of the team, was appointed to succeed Barnie.

A committee of Reading, Pa., pastors swore out warrants yesterday for the arrest of the players of the Reading and Hartford baseball clubs for playing a game Sunday. The Hartford players had left the city for Newark.

SHOTS TOLD.

Santiago Defenders In a Deadly Rain.

FORTS ARE SILENCED.

Landing Effected by a Squad of Marines.

Kingston, Jam., June 8.—Within three hours the American fleet silenced nearly all the fortifications at the entrance to Santiago. The formidable Estrella and Cavo batteries failed to reply during the last hour of the bombardment, and they were so shattered that it is doubtful if they can be of the smallest service in the future.

A heavy fog and a steady rain prevailed during the engagement. The American gunners, however, rose superior to the mist, and their eyes, supplemented by high skill, directed the shot and shell with terrific effect.

Again the Spaniards proved to be miserable marksmen. They managed to hit the Massachusetts once. Her fighting top was struck, but that was all the damage. The other ships did not suffer, so far as can be learned. Not one of the American sailors is reported killed. One man on the Suwanee was injured. It is believed that he was the only sailor wounded during the bombardment.

The cruiser Reina Mercedes, some of whose guns had been removed and set up in the Socapa fortress, is reported to have precipitated the engagement. She had run out into the harbor near where the collier Merrimac lay sunk, and her actions looked suspicious to Admiral Sampson. He concluded that Admiral Cervera had sent out the Mercedes to attempt to blow up the Merrimac, and thus reopen the channel. The order to open fire was then given and the heavy guns of the fleet poured in a rain of shell, which made it impossible for any of the Spaniards to approach the Merrimac. At the same time the fleet was moving nearer to the harbor. Several shells struck the Mercedes, one of them bursting in the rear of the pilot house. The damage was tremendous. So desperate did her situation become that Admiral Cervera, who watched the fire from his flagship, the Almirante Oquendo, hoisted signals ordering that the crew abandon the ship. This they did, though it was accomplished only with great peril.

When the American ships hauled off at 11 o'clock, the crews had their dinners, and then Admiral Sampson ordered a continuation of the bombardment. It was during this second bombardment that the marines were landed at Baiquiri, a little port some distance east of Aguadores. A sharp cannonade was begun against the landing party by the new fort constructed under the direction of Lieutenant Ordonez recently. The American ships at once shelled the fort, quickly silencing the guns and making of the work a mass of ruin. Lieutenant Ordonez, who is the chief ordnance expert of the Spanish army, was himself severely injured in the bombardment. So were Captain Sanchez and Lieutenant Yrizar of the artillery, and Captains Perez and Garcia of the infantry.

Word of the landing of the Americans was quickly sent to Santiago, and a Spanish force of infantry and cavalry was dispatched to drive them back. The two forces met near the landing place, but the American marines, who were assisted by the insurgents, routed the Spanish column. The loss to the Spanish forces is said here to have been heavy. There is no report as to the loss of the Americans. The Americans and the insurgents are now strongly entrenched a quarter of a mile from the shore, where they can be seen by the ships. Several of the ships have taken up permanent positions to cover the marines in case of a second attack from the Spanish forces.

TROOPS MOVING.

Beginning of the Long Planned Invasion of Cuba.

Washington, June 8.—Troops are leaving Tampa. Their destination is Santiago, and 27,000 men, of whom 16,000 will be regulars and 11,000 volunteers, will comprise the expedition. This will leave another 15,000 regulars and volunteers at Tampa available for the movement upon Porto Rico, which will be started as soon as the volunteers who are at Jacksonville can be equipped and made ready to join the Tampa forces.

There has been a shaking among the drybones at Tampa, and more has been accomplished in 48 hours than in two weeks previously. When the trains bearing the guns arrived at Tampa it was discovered that the army was without adequate machinery to lift them from the cars to the ships. Some trucks which were provided were found to be totally unsuited for the purpose for which they had been procured, and considerable time was lost in procuring adequate machinery. Now, however, these siege guns are finally reported to be on board the transports and ready to be forwarded. It is said at the war department that not only was new machinery absolutely necessary, but that new wharves had to be constructed because the old wharves began to sink under the weight of the artillery.

When the troops arrive at Santiago they will be landed upon pontoon bridges, which will run from the ships into the mouth of a river near Santiago. It will probably take a day for the operation of landing to be completed, and also for the insurgents to communicate and connect with the American forces. There will be altogether an army large enough to quickly subdue the entire Spanish force now congregated at Santiago, and the battle ought neither to be long nor severe.

Judging from the newspaper reports of the breach Sampson has made in the coast defenses, there is every reason to believe that little difficulty will be found in the actual debarkation of the troops, particularly if marines are already ashore to guard the landing. A suspicion is entertained in some quarters that Sampson was hastened in his movements at Santiago by the news of the intended departure of the troops from Tampa, and made this attack in order that the navy alone might have the honor of effecting the first occupation of Cuban soil. It is likely that the first troops of the regular army to take up a position ashore will be the members of the engineer battalion, although they are so badly hampered by the siege trains they carry that they must be greatly delayed in making a landing. These guns have given infinite trouble, for the transports that were hastily chartered were so lightly constructed as to require a great deal of strengthening before the great masses of steel could be safely placed in them.

The extent of Sampson's attack upon the defenses has brought out one fact clearly, namely, that he has practically unlimited power as to the time and character of an attack, and that he is unhampered by restrictions from Washington. The exact nature of his orders has never been made public, but a naval official in a position to know what they are says that the admiral has had greater power conferred upon him than has ever been given to any commander-in-chief. It is for him to decide on the time for an attack, and the place and manner of its execution. He may attack before troops arrive, or, in his discretion, act without the co-operation of troops; if circumstances warrant, he may refrain from any operations. In short it is said that Admiral Sampson is complete master of the tactical and strategic operations by the naval forces off Santiago. This is in line with the policy approved by the highest naval authorities.

Nine Were Killed.

Madrid, June 8.—The following dispatch has been received from Admiral Cervera: "Six American vessels have bombarded the fortifications at Santiago and along the adjacent coast. Six were killed and 17 were wounded on board the Reina Mercedes; three officers were killed and an officer and 17 men were wounded among the troops.

"The Americans fired 1500 shells of different caliber; the damage inflicted upon the batteries of La Socapa and Morro castle was unimportant. The barracks at Morro castle suffered damage. The enemy had noticeable losses."

Instructed to Rush.

San Francisco, June 8.—Rear Admiral Kirkland has received instructions from Washington to expedite work on the Yorktown. The Philadelphia will be commissioned July 1, and the Yorktown should be ready in about two months. The torpedo boat Rowan will soon be tested in Portland, and the torpedo boat Davis has already been launched. They will shortly be put in commission, and the department is of the opinion that these boats, with the Philadelphia and Yorktown, will give ample protection to the coast.

WILLIAM A. KIRKLAND.

Landing Party Repulsed.

Madrid, June 8.—In the chamber of deputies Captain Aunon, minister of marine, read Admiral Cervera's dispatch and a dispatch from General Blanco to the effect that General Linares had repulsed an American attempt to effect a landing of troops at Aguadores. The senate unanimously resolved to congratulate the army and navy.

State Arsenal Ablaze.

Hartford, June 8.—An attempt to burn the state arsenal was made about midnight. The fire department prevented a serious result and the fire wasted its force on a barn.

Rushing to Hawaii.

San Francisco, June 8.—The Belgic arrived from the orient via Honolulu yesterday, but was sent into quarantine, three cases of smallpox having developed on board since her departure from Hong Kong. One case was landed at Nagasaki, another at Kobe and the third at Honolulu. No new case has developed since the steamer left Honolulu, and it is thought that the disease has been stamped out. The vessel and cargo will be thoroughly fumigated.

The Belgic reports sighting the first transport, which left this city May 25, about 150 miles east of Honolulu. The Belgic sailed from Honolulu June 1. The Charleston had arrived at Honolulu two days before, and was recoaled at the time of the departure of the Belgic. Preparations were being made at Honolulu for the reception of the troops which were expected to arrive there on the day the Belgic left. The town was beautifully decorated, and a public reception was to be given the men on the troopship.

Boston Opinion.

Boston, June 8.—"We want Porto Rico to hold for indemnity," argues The Post, "and we want Havana for the control of Cuba. Sampson's fleet can take both of them for us. Why should there be any longer waiting?"

"Monday's battle at Santiago," says The Journal, "is, after Manila, the most thorough and important victory which the American navy has yet won in the present war; and, like Manila, it was won without the loss of an American life or injury to a single American vessel."

In The Advertiser's opinion "the bombardment of the forts and harbor of Santiago shows that the American fleet is not through with that port yet. It looks as if the administration were determined not to let up in its work at that point until the Spanish squadron is either sunk or captured."

This piece of biting sarcasm was taken from today's Globe: "It is not true that the troops at Tampa are waiting for the gulf of Mexico to freeze over, so that they can cross to Cuba on the ice."

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, June 8.—The first matter taken up in the house was the question of suspending the rules to admit for consideration by the legislature the bill prepared by Mayor Quincy and his advisers for a new method of electing aldermen in the city of Boston. The bill provides for the election of 12 aldermen-at-large to be nominated by districts, and 25 common councilmen, one from each ward. Suspension was refused.

The committees on military affairs and ways and means reported a bill providing that privates in the United States army or navy from the state of Massachusetts shall in addition to their pay from the national government receive $7 a month from the state. The bill authorizes appropriating $1,500,000 from the state treasury for this purpose. It authorizes city aid for the relatives of soldiers and sailors.

The senate transacted but little business of importance. After continued discussion the resolve appropriating $15,000 for the Woman's Charity club was substituted for an adverse committee report.

Infringement Claimed.

In the United States Circuit court this week the suit of the Tubular Rivet and Stud Co. vs. William O'Brien et. al. for infringement of letter patent owned by complainants has been heard.

These patents relate to a machine for securing in place or "setting" lacing hooks such as are used in shoes. The hooks which are set by the machine are not patented, but are public property. Complainant leases machines to shoe manufacturers, giving a chattel lease, one of the conditions of which is that the leased machines shall be used only in setting hooks manufactured by complainants, or sold under its authority. Defendants are said to have infringed the patents on the machines because they have sold lacing hooks which may be set by means of complainants' machine with intent that they shall be so set, to manufacturers having said machines under the lease. The case comes before the court upon the demurrer to the bill and also upon a motion for a preliminary injunction. Taken under advisement, F. P. Fish and W. K. Richardson for complainant; W. A. Macleod and C. A. Reed for respondent.

Wollaston Yacht Club.

At a regular meeting of the Wollaston Yacht club Tuesday evening, four new members were admitted.

Further preparations were made for the first open race to be held on Aug. 6.

A committee was appointed to furnish a piano, to be put in on or before June 17.

The boats remaining in the yard will all be in the water inside of another week, when the yachting season so far as the club is concerned, will be fully inaugurated. New boats have been enrolled this spring which makes the club much stronger in its fleet. The first Burgess cup race takes place on June 17.

—A "curfew" ordinance was passed to be enrolled by the Cambridge aldermen Tuesday evening. It forbids any child under 14 years of age being upon any public way or place after 9 o'clock at night, unless accompanied by a parent, guardian or other adult person, or performing or returning from employment.

SIGOURNEY BUTLER.

Sudden Death Last Night of Pneumonia.

Sigourney Butler, Esq., of Boston, reported seriously ill Tuesday with pneumonia, died before many people read the announcement, his sickness being brief.

Mr. Butler lived in Quincy the greater part of his life in the old Butler residence near the present High school, and was prominent in politics, church affairs and yachting circles. He was at one time chairman of the Democratic Town Committee, and also chairman of the School Committee. He was an ex-Commmodore of the Quincy Yacht club, and an active member of Christ church and choir during his residence with us.

He was born in Boston, Oct. 24, 1857, and was graduated from Harvard college in 1877. He took the full course at the Harvard Law School, graduating in 1880, and was soon after admitted to the bar. For many years he practised both in Quincy and in Boston. In this town he shared an office with the late John Quincy Adams.

While in college he became a member of the Independent Corps of Cadets, and served for ten years, and then became a veteran member.

In President Cleveland's first administration he was appointed second comptroller of the United States Treasury. He was so much appreciated by the President that in 1893 Mr. Cleveland requested him to become his private secretary. Mr. Butler was compelled to decline.

Upon his return from Washington in 1885 he became one of the attorneys of the Boston & Maine railroad, a position which he held at the time of his death. In addition, he had a large private practice, and he was the secretary of the Boston Bar Association.

In 1896 he was appointed a member of the board of visitors to the West Point Military Academy. In the same year he attended the Indianapolis convention. He held the presidency of the Young Men's Democratic club of Massachusetts.

He was a member of the Somerset club, the Apollo club and Eastern Yacht club, and of the Metropolitan and Alibi clubs of Washington. He was one of the candidates selected by the preliminary ballot of the alumni of Harvard University for membership in the board of overseers, to be voted for at the coming commencement, having received a large vote. An aged mother and two sisters mourn his loss.

In Two Engagements.

A letter under date of May 1 has been received by Quincy friends of Joseph Newcomb on board U. S. S. New York. He writes about being under fire for the first time two days previous at Cabanas. He says, we were fired upon by a battery from the shore. Call to general quarters was sounded right away, and we sent back such a mass of shot and shell that you could see Spaniards running over the hills in all directions. None of their shots did us any harm, but three or four of them went right over us. It was very exciting.

Under date of May 15, he writes of the engagement at Porto Rico. He says all went well for three hours and we had done lots of destruction, when a shell came and burst right alongside of my gun, killing one of my gun crew and injuring three other men pretty badly about the legs.

It blew holes right through their legs. They are getting along nicely now. We have a hospital ship here and they were transferred to it, where they will get good care. The man who was killed never knew what struck him.

Recital.

Quincy was well represented Tuesday evening at the home recital of the piano-forte pupils of Mr. John H. Gutterson at his residence on Commercial street, Weymouth. The recital was by his more advanced pupils among whom was Miss Alice Bacon Hultman of Quincy. Miss Hultman was heard in the duet "Thousand and One Night," and in a solo, "Pilgrim's Chorus." The playing by the pupils was very much enjoyed by the large number present and the perfect time and uniformity of touch of the several pupils speaks volumes for Mr. Gutterson's skill as a teacher.

CARD OF THANKS.

The parents of Max Lovell Butler desire to return most sincere thanks and acknowledgements to the people of Quincy, of all churches, for their most sympathetic letters and tokens of affection during the late trying days.

WEYMOUTH.

Little Items of Interest About Town.

Messrs. Michael W. White, '98, and George P. Hunt, 1900, of the Harvard Medical school, are taking the annual '98 "exams" during this month.

During these warm days the third rail electrics from East Weymouth to Nantasket are well patronized.

Mr. John Fenwell of East Weymouth entertained several of his friends at his home on Broad street, Monday night.

The young ladies of the Y. P. C. U. of the Third Universalist church of North Weymouth will hold an enjoyable social entertainment in the church parlors tonight. Quincy talent will furnish the entertainment. Ice cream will be for sale.

The Ladies' Social circle of the M. E. church, East Weymouth, will meet this afternoon and evening. Supper will be served at 6.30.

The condition of Miss Josie Cunningham of East Weymouth still remains very critical.

Mr. N. D. Canterbury of East Weymouth has purchased a fine looking horse.

Miss Alice Fenwell of East Weymouth is entertaining as her guest, Miss Gertrude Odell of Ohio, for a few weeks.

The public schools of Weymouth will close on June 24 for the summer vacation, so gladly welcomed by scholars and teachers worn out by their labors.

Mrs. C. R. Maybury and Master Howard C. Maybury of Neponset were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Chubbuck of North Weymouth on Monday.

The annual fair and sale held at the Church of Immaculate Conception, East Weymouth, under the direction of the Rev. Fr. Begley, is still drawing a large audience nightly.

Mr. George P. Hunt of East Weymouth is driving a handsome team.

A number of East Weymouth business men will start for the Klondike in a few weeks.

John Moulton has enlisted in the Light Artillery for a term of three years. He was sent to Tampa Monday night.

Harry S. Hathaway has enlisted in the Engineering Corps for a term of three years, being on a furlough until Thursday. Mr. Hathaway has had a large and varied experience in the construction and operations of telegraph and electric-lines; he being an expert electrician. He has had experience in Africa and other foreign lands and will be a valuable acquisition to the army.

A base ball team composed of boys whose age averages fifteen years has organized under the name of the Weymouth Stars. This team would like to cross bats with any team of their age.

Cordial Welcome.

The Standard of New Bedford speaks a cordial welcome to Rev. and Mrs. Yeoman at Wareham on Friday of last week. They recently removed from Quincy to that place. The Standard says:

Despite the inclemency of the weather a large number of the members of the First Congregational church and their friends met at the chapel Friday evening at the reception given to Rev. and Mrs. J. Herbert Yeoman. The chapel was charmingly decorated with flowers and bunting. At 8.30 o'clock the ushers, Miss Florence N. Thompson and John W. Allen, began to present the company to Mr. and Mrs. Yeoman. Receiving with them were Mr. and Mrs. George P. Bolles and Mr. and Mrs. William W. Marsh. After the presentation there was a pleasing programme, consisting of violin solo by Miss Babcock and Mrs. Gardner, as accompanist, of New Bedford, reading by Mrs. Oglesbee of Marion, solo by Mr. Charles Dean of Marion, duet by Mrs. Jenkins and Mr. Charles Dean, and trio by Mrs. Charles, Mrs. Jenkins and Mr. Charles Dean of Marion. At the close of the programme the company joined in singing America. Ice cream and cake were then served.

"What's in a Name?

Editors of the Ledger:

Howard street and Quincy avenue are to be bombarded Saturday by the opening of the street railway line to Weymouth. If a name is to be chosen for that locality by all means call it "Newcomb Square" instead of Ship square as suggested. Chief Packard well remembers 17 years ago one morning about 4 o'clock when Mr. Benjamin Newcomb's store at the corner was burned. It was just before the Fire man's muster at Weymouth. Mrs. Bessie Young and Mr. David Newcomb present residents and descendants of the old Newcomb stock, and Quincy Neck for three generations has been known as a nest for Newcombs. Let it be "Newcomb Square."

☞ A song which is proving a popular hit at Keith's theatre this week, is "Old Glory Forever," written by Capt. George A. Delvin, formerly of Quincy, and sung by Stephen Townsend. It is published by H. F. O'Dell, 165 Tremont street, and is for sale at all music stores.

In Tuesday's Ledger the figures of the school census of 1896 and 1897 were transposed, the comment being all right.

A party of about 30 boys and girls passed through Quincy Tuesday afternoon on wheels. It was a school excursion.

Mr. Charles Jones of South street is now well fortified, for his stone wall is nearly completed. It is a good piece of work and an improvement.

The bells on two bicycles rang out loud Tuesday night on Temple street. A lady had presence of mind enough to jump in time to avoid an accident.

Mr. William T. Spargo, who was so severely injured last week in a bicycle accident, was removed Tuesday to the McLean asylum at Somerville.

Representatives Newcomb and Thompson both voted in favor of admitting to the Legislature Mayor Quincy's aldermanic bill for Boston, but the necessary majority was not obtained.

It is the intention to make Fensmere beach an attraction at night as well as day. On Tuesday Electrician Lynch connected 200 lights with the dynamo established. It is a private plant, and will be appreciated by the public.

Under the will of Catharine S. Cushing late of Weymouth admitted to probate this morning bequeaths $100 to the Social Circle of the First Universalist church, Weymouth, and $100 to the Ladies' Village Improvement Association of Weymouth.

The second annual "married men's "bicycle run" from the T. R. & S. Co. will be held next Sunday, June 12. Some sixty promise to be in line for the run to Scituate where they will be furnished with a fish dinner by Chadwick at the Centennial.

The Greenleaf Land Co. has taken a start this year, and it is not surprising as it is excellent property in a very desirable neighborhood. On Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock the company will offer some of the choice lost at public auction. A plan of the land will be found on the last page.

Four lodges in this vicinity are to constitute a battalion in the grand Odd Fellows parade in Boston in September, the Mount Wollaston, John Hancock of Wollaston, Crescent of East Weymouth and the Cohasset lodge. It will be known as the South Shore battalion and will engage a first class band.

By the Fire Marshall's report but a single city in the Commonwealth had a smaller loss by fire in 1897 than Quincy. Newburyport with 17 fires had a loss of $779 while Quincy with 39 fires lost $8,881. While this city ranks 21 in size among the cities and towns of the State there were 84 which reported a larger loss. The total loss for the 4030 fires in the State was $4,369,428 an average of $1085 per fire. The loss in Quincy per fire was less than $228.

—The court figures indicate that the drinkers are taking a long time to get used to the change and there is not the falling off in the number of arrests that was predicted the first week of license.—Brockton Enterprise.

A BACKWOODS MURDER

Augusta, Me., June 8.—A special to The Kennebec Journal from Mars Hill says that Frank Murphy murdered his father while the latter was asleep Sunday evening, using an axe for the purpose. Afterwards he cut off both feet and horribly mutilated the body. Murphy escaped to the provinces, but the sheriff is after him.

Is Out of Politics.

Philadelphia, June 8.—W. F. Harrity has received official notice from Chairman Jones that a majority of the Democratic national committee having voted in favor of recognizing James M. Guffey as the Pennsylvania member of the committee, Mr. Guffey's name will be placed upon the roll of the committee. Mr. Harrity said: "The action of the committee is of little moment to me personally. Nearly two years ago I gave public notice of my withdrawal from active participation in politics. Since then I have not attended any meetings of any political convention or committee. I regret, however, that the Democratic national committee has taken such action as would seem to indicate that only those who believe in the free and independent coinage of silver can remain in the party organization. I was personally opposed to that doctrine, and so notified Chairman Jones while the campaign of 1896 was pending. I have not changed my views with respect to the currency question; and I am still opposed to the free coinage of silver. Furthermore, I believe that the time is not far distant when it will become apparent to the masses of the Democratic party that they are being misled by those who now lead them, and that the present blind leadership of the party will be repudiated by the Democratic people of both state and nation."

BRAVERY OF SPANISH.

Fought at Manila Until Last Hope Was Gone.

Destruction Wrought by an Olympia Shell.

Americans' Salvation Due to Enemy's Bad Marksmanship.

San Francisco, June 8.—Among the passengers who arrived on the Belgic Tuesday from Hong Kong were four men who participated in the fight of Manila on May 1. They are Paymaster G. A. Loud of the McCulloch, Dr. Kindleberger, surgeon of the Olympia; Ralph Phelps, secretary to the captain of the McCulloch, and J. C. Evans, gunner of the Boston. They all say that the Spaniards fought bravely, even after the last vestige of hope had gone, and stayed by their guns as long as they could be used.

Dr. Kindleberger gives a graphic account of the terrific fight. He was on the Olympia through it all. In the first assault the flagship took the lead, the other vessels following in her wake at four ship's lengths. The Spanish fleet was approached by laps, each turn bringing the contestants nearer. By this plan the American vessels frequently poured broadsides into the enemy, but were themselves more exposed to fire. At one time the smoke became so dense that it was necessary to draw aside, allowing the cloud to lift. The vessels were examined, and it was found that they had sustained no damage. Breakfast was served to the men, and in a few minutes they re-entered the fight with the greatest enthusiasm. The second fight was even more fierce than the first. It was in that that the Baltimore was struck. During the first fight the Spanish admiral's ship put bravely out of the line to meet the Olympia. The entire American fleet concentrated fire on her, and she was so badly injured that she turned around to put back. At this juncture the Olympia let fly an eight-inch shell, which struck her stern and pierced through almost her entire length, exploding finally in the engine room, wrecking her machinery. This shell killed the captain and 60 men, and set the vessel on fire. In the heat of the fight two torpedo boats moved out to attack the fleet. They were allowed to come within 800 yards, when a fusillade from the Olympia sent one to the bottom with all on board and riddled the other. The second boat was later found turned upon the beach, covered with blood.

In the second fight the Baltimore was sent to silence the fort at Cavite. She plunged into a cloud of smoke and opened all her batteries on the fortifications. In a very few minutes a shell struck the ammunition, and the fort blew up with a deafening roar. The work on the Baltimore was glorious. After the principal ships had been destroyed the Concord, Raleigh and Petrel, being of light draft, were sent close in to handle the remaining vessels of the fleet. They made quick work of them.

In taking possession of the land fort several hundred wounded Spaniards fell into the hands of the Americans, and nearly 200 dead were accounted for on the spot. Holes in which numbers had been hastily buried were found. The dead were returned to relatives so far as this could be done, and the wounded were cared for in the best manner by the American surgeons. The Spanish loss footed up 400 killed, 600 wounded and a property loss of from $6,000,000 to $10,000,000.

The day of the fight was clear and hot; not a breath of air was stirring. After the first battle the Americans were greatly fagged out by heat, and the rest and breakfast allowed them by the commodore were of inestimable benefit. When the men were at breakfast a conference of all officers was held on board the Olympia, when the plan of the second battle was given by the commodore. Several shots struck the Olympia and she was pierced a number of times. One shell struck the side of the ship against the hospital ward. The chaplain and nurses, who were watching the fight through a porthole a few inches away, were stunned by the concussion.

Paymaster Loud, who was on the McCulloch during the battle, could see every movement of the American ships, and could also see the Spaniards. "For two hours," said Mr. Loud, "the steady thunder of cannon was kept up. The roar was terrible. At one time I really thought we would be beaten. This was after the fire had been kept up an hour. It looked as if every gun on the Spanish ships had turned loose on us together, and the shore line was a veritable blaze of fire from the batteries. The din was simply indescribable. Tons upon tons of shot fell over our ships. There was steel enough to have sunk our entire fleet. Our salvation was in the bad marksmanship of the Spaniards. They handled their pieces like children. Nearly all of their shots went wide. Most of them were high, flying over the fleet and falling into the bay beyond. Some of the batteries, however, were better trained. Several guns maintained a raking fire on the fleet. Nearly all of our ships were struck by both large and small shot, but no damage of consequence was done.

"When we left Manila on the 5th, Commodore Dewey was in possession of the shore fort and arsenal. Considerable ammunition and some of their guns were captured. Manila has not been taken, and it was not the intention of the commodore to do so at that time. The city and its suburbs were completely at the mercy of our guns, and we could have laid it in ruins in a very short time, but the force on the warships is too small to land and take possession. When the troops arrive from San Francisco, Commodore Dewey will demand the immediate surrender of the city and the troops stationed there. If a refusal is given, fire at once will be opened from the warships and forcible possession will be taken. There will be no difficulty in holding Manila and the Philippines. Complete subjugation of the Spanish forces in the group will be accomplished without trouble and with very little danger to American life. The insurgents are very friendly, and at the time we left were besieging the town in large force. They are acting under orders of Commodore Dewey."

Both Dr. Kindleberger and Gunner Evans had been ordered home before the battle of Manila, but when they learned that a battle was imminent they obtained permission to remain with the fleet.

When the Belgic left Hong Kong on May 10 the bubonic plague was raging, many deaths occurring among the white population. One hundred and fifty miles out from Honoluiu the Belgic sighted the transport steamers Australia, Peking and City of Sydney, which vessels signalled all were well on board.

Providence, June 8.—Ex-Champion John L. Sullivan was a winner in litigation over $1500. The suit was brought by Frank V. Dunn, and his show manager, Sherwood, was made the defendant, but Sullivan was really the principal involved.

Dunn asserted that he put up money for the Sullivan show, and that when there was a profit Sullivan received 50 percent of the net. Dunn could not particularize as to the different accounts, and the jury decided for Sullivan, after a brief deliberation.

BEAT CINCINNATIS.

Nichols' Delivery Too Much For the Ohio Club Tuesday.

Boston, June 8.—Shortstops may come and go, but if one man demonstrated a claim to the highest honors of the short field, that one was Herman Long yesterday in the afternoon game with the Cincinnatis. In the second, after Miller struck out, Corcoran singled to left, and Irwin followed suit. Vaughn's hit was headed for center, good and fast, but Long made a wonderful pick-up and quick toss to Lowe, who put Irwin out at second, and Lowe threw to Tenney, getting Vaughn by several yards. It was one of the quickest double plays ever executed, and brought tremendous applause to Herman as he went in.

JOHN A. M'PHEE.

There was splendid baseball by both teams, particularly for Cincinnati, when Collins' foul fly was taken by Vaughn on a back run to the stand, in the first, and nailed Tenney trying for third, thus making a double play. McBride, the new Cincinnati fielder, had lots to do, and he did it well, making six catches in center and assisting in a fine double play after taking Lowe's fly.

The Boston men gave an up-to-date exhibition of clean, hard hitting, earning nearly every run scored. Hamilton, with three hits, including a homer with a man on base, and a double, was the chief high hitter, and the only "Nick" helped win his game and was next high heavy chieftain with three clean ground shots to left. McPhee and Corcoran, with two safe ones apiece, were the only ones to "find" Nichols. Score:

To Amend Volunteer Act.

Washington, June 8.—By direction of the committee on military affairs Chairman Hull introduced in the house a bill to amend section 10 of the volunteer act temporarily increasing the military establishment of the United States in time of war. It repeals the proviso that officers appointed or assigned to the staff of commanders of army corps, divisions or brigades shall serve only in such capacity, and that when relieved from such staff service such appointments or assignments shall terminate. The bill provides that assignments of officers of the volunteer staff shall be governed by the same rule and regulations as the regular army. The action is taken on the recommendation of Secretary Alger, who says that under a strict construction officers are restrained from performance of other duty than that of the post to which appointed. The passage of the amendment will be expedited.

Massachusetts Volunteers With the Regulars.

Landing Not Likely to Be Effected Before Sunday.

Uses to Which Siege Guns Will Be Put When Landed In Cuba.

General Lee Is to Head the Movement Upon Porto Rico.

Washington, June 9.—The military expedition to Santiago is under way. It seems now to be a question whether the army will have an opportunity to enjoy a share in the glory of capturing Santiago. The navy under Admiral Sampson has already planted the stars and stripes upon the shore batteries. Of course, he has only cracked the outer shell, but he will get at the kernel if he has half a chance. Today 27,000 men are on the gulf of Mexico sailing in the direction of Cuba.

Sampson has been ready since Monday. If troops had been at hand when he completed his bombardment of the defenses of Santiago, the first land battle of the war would already have been fought and the stars and stripes would be floating proudly from Santiago's citadel; but the troops were not there. The dispatch from Sampson announcing his bombardment of the forts contained an urgent appeal for men to effect a landing. He will have to wait now until Saturday, when the transports from Tampa arrive, before he can complete the work which he has begun so brilliantly. The force which General Shafter takes, with him is much larger than was intended originally. It will contain not only regulars but several regiments of volunteers; and among them is the Second Massachusetts.

It is expected that the expedition will reach Santiago by Friday night or early Saturday morning, but it will take as long to land the troops on Cuban soil as it did to embark them at Tampa, and consequently no engagement need be expected until next Sunday. The point selected is near Santiago, in a sheltered bay, where the troublt of reaching the shore is reduced to a minimum. The present plan is to have the insurgents meet the American army, and General Shafter will command the combined forces. They will attack the batteries along the inner harbor at Santiago which do not yet seem to have been bombarded, and when these have surrendered, as they certainly will after a short struggle, the army will proceed to invest the city, and its surrender will, it is expected, follow almost if not quite as speedily.

When the fortifications have been captured the siege guns which are being carried on the transports will be trained upon the ships of Admiral Cervera. Already his squadron has been demoralized by the sinking of the Reina Mercedes and the disablement of the Vizcaya, and when he finds that escape is impossible and destruction certain he will undoubtedly lower his flag.

A large force of regulars, as well as many of the volunteers, which have been at Tampa, will be left at that point under the command of General Coppinger, and the force which remains behind will probably proceed to Fernandina at once. That port will probably be made the place of departure for the military force intended for the occupation of Porto Rico. This expedition will probably be under the command of General Lee, who is at present in command of 10,000 troops at Jacksonville. This force will be undoubtedly transferred to Fernandina at an early day and placed on board of some of the transports, of which there are about 10 waiting for the troops. It is proposed to bring back some of the transports from the Santiago expedition for use in the Porto Rico expedition.

The invasion of Cuba proper will be begun with the ending of the operations against Porto Rico and Santiago. That may be a month off, but by that time everything will be ready for the landing of 100,000 men. Some of the troops which have become seasoned in the Santiago and Porto Rico campaigns will be withdrawn, and with the reserve force will be sent against Blanco and his soldiers.

MORE PORTS PEPPERED.

Warships Send Projectiles Into the Port of Guantanamo.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 9.—Five American warships at 5:30 o'clock Tuesday morning began to shell the fortifications of Caimanera, on the bay of Guantanamo, which cuts into the southern coast of Santiago province, east of the city of Santiago. Many Spaniards are reported to have been killed.

The Americans' fire was most effective, driving the Spanish gunners in consternation from the defense of their works, and then from the town of Caimanera, in which they took refuge. The inhabitants of that place also joined in the rout.

As the walls of the fortifications began to tumble upon them, the Spanish gunners deserted their posts of duty and ran to the town, which was in a state of high excitement. With the silencing of the forts a still greater panic fell upon the residents of Caimanera, who feared the Americans would complete their work by destroying the town, and there was a general movement to places of safety.

The military commander of the district has issued an order to burn the town, if necessary, to prevent the Americans from profiting by its occupation. Similar measures, it is understood, are being taken at Santiago.

Guantanamo is a Cuban port of considerable importance situated at the head of a deep bay about 50 miles to the eastward of Santiago. It his already been the scene of lively brushes, when our cruisers have sailed in to take a little target practice on the Spanish batteries there. It was here that the Spanish allege that two American warships did irreparable damage to precedent and international law by entering with the Spanish colors displayed.

Formed a Junction.

New York, June 9.—A special from Cape Haytien says the Americans and insurgents have formed a junction near Santiago and that a land attack on the city is momentarily expected. The Spaniards claim to have 24,000 seasoned troops in Santiago.

The special further says that Colonel Thenuz, a renowned Austrian artillerist in the Spanish service, was killed in Monday's bombardment of the forts of Santiago harbor.

Quaker Guns Mounted.

Kingston, Jam., June 9.—During the Santiago bombardment the Dolphin shelled a small fort near the beach where Spanish troops were seen, but no reply was made from this point, and it was afterwards discovered that the Spaniards had mounted several Quaker guns there. Only two pieces were seen cast of Morro castle and these were silenced.

During the bombardment a shell exploded on the port quarter deck of the Vizcaya. It dismounted one of her guns, damaged the rudder and injured several seamen. The Furor, which was cruising in the harbor, made several rushes out from her post. In one of these a shell exploded over her bow, tore open the forward deck, damaged her turtle back and compelled her to take refuge further up in the harbor.

Very little damage was done to the American ships. Some of the vessels suffered somewhat from the recoil of the heavy guns. The casualties on the Reina Mercedes numbered 39.

General Butler on Duty.

Washington, June 9.—So far as known at Camp Alger, nothing has been decided upon as to moving the troops. It was determined, however, to make no further rearrangement of the regiments in the present camp until water, etc., is supplied at the new quarters. Machinery for sinking wells was in operation yesterday.

Major General Butler succeeds General Guenther as commanding officer of the Second division. No serious cases of illness have developed recently.

Not to Establish an Eastern Camp.

Washington, June 9.—The intention of the war department officials for the present at least is not to establish a general camp in the east for the assembling of a large body of troops as was suggested would be done in a recent statement. General Frank, commanding the department of the east, has assigned the troops under his command to seacoast fortifications, which disposed of most of the men under his command, leaving but a few to rendezvous at any central point. It may be that under the second call for 75,000 men such a camp may be established, but Adjutant General Corbin intimates that nothing will be done in the matter at this time.

Has Manila Fallen?

New York, June 9.—A dispatch to The World from Hong Kong says: "A report has reached here that Manila has fallen. It is said to be now occupied by the Philippine insurgents commanded by General Auguinaldo. The rebel junta and wealthy Philippine islanders resident here are jubilant over the news.

"The United States consulate has been crowded all day. Mr. Wildman has been the recipient of hundreds of congratulations, for the members of the junta give him almost as much credit for the reported capture of Manila as they give to General Auguinaldo himself, since Mr. Wildman has been their unswerving champion and has advised in all their plans. Wildman does not credit the report that Manila has been actually occupied yet, but he believes that it will be by next Saturday. The Spaniards have been fighting desperately, but their marksmanship is poor and they have lost heavily."

Moment For Peace.

London, June 9.—A Madrid correspondent cables to his paper as follows: "On analyzing the opinion that the psychological moment for starting peace negotiations has arrived, I found it was based not on the consciousness that Spain is rapidly exhausting her resources, but on the belief that the great majority of Americans have already tired of the war; that President McKinley is consequently becoming unpopular, and that the peace suggestions of the Paris edition of the New York Herald were inspired by President McKinley himself. As for Spain, my friends maintain that she is in no hurry, as recent events have shown her powers of passive resistance to be far greater than has been supposed. The conquest of Cuba, they say, will require two years at the least, and probably much more; and if the island is ever conquered it will be, they argue, a white elephant for the United States. The conclusion is that America has much more reason than Spain to desire a termination of hostilities."

Massachusetts Military Notes.

Boston, June 9.—Massachusetts will deal more liberally with its men who have gone to the front than perhaps any other state. Eight days' pay will be given to all officers and men, just as though they had been on their eight days' tour of duty, and they will receive the $16, as nothing will be deducted for caterers' fees, the United States having undertaken to pay the latter from the time the men arrived in camp. All the members of the militia who volunteered and who were rejected for physical disability will be paid for the time they were in camp. All accepted recruits who were mustered into the companies and who went with the regiments will be paid from the time they joined the regiments until the date of muster in of the colonels.

The following petitioners for companies to be attached to the provisional militia have been approved and the companies will be mustered into service and designated as follow: Henry W. Pitman and others of Somerville, as the Third company of infantry; Benjamin H. Pellison and others of Haverhill, as the Fourth company of infantry; Robert Treat Paine, Jr., and others of Boston, as the Fifth company of infantry; Samuel H. Borofsky and others of Boston, as the Sixth company of infantry; Isaac H. Marshall and others of South Framingham, as the Seventh company of infantry; Edwin H. Gray and others of Orange, as the Eighth company of infantry; George L. Fowler and others of Lowell, as the Ninth company of infantry.

Brigadier General William A. Bancroft, Second brigade, having accepted a position in the same grade in the United States volunteers, Colonel Jophanus H. Whitney, Fifth regiment, will assume command of the brigade.

Forced From Havana.

Havana, June 9.—Tuesday afternoon the British cruiser Talbot sailed from Havana. On board were Messrs. Phil Robinson and H. J. Whigham, the English newspaper correspondents who were arrested some time ago at Matanzas.

SISTER MARY WILBERFORCE.

The Talbot also carried Messrs. Edward and Pinkney, who were expelled from the island on suspicion of being spies, and a number of other passengers. These included "Sister" Mary Wilberforce of the British Red Cross society, who arrived in Cuba a year ago and against whom an order of expulsion was issued last January because, as asserted, she had failed to comply with certain government orders. This order, however, was not enforced then, Miss Wilberforce being allowed to remain on the island. Charges having recently been brought against her, the edict of expulsion was carried out. Miss Wilberforce was taken on board the steamer by force, though she was treated with all possible gentleness.

Nice Present For the Admiral.

Washington, June 9.—A delegation from the Young Men's Business club of Cincinnati brought to the white house yesterday a beautifully illuminated copy of the "Address to the American Flag," written by Drake. This was intended for presentation to Admiral Dewey "as a token of admiration for the magnificent ability and great bravery displayed by him in the planning and execution of the battle of Manila, the culmination of the glorious victory which startled the world, proving American officers of the army and navy are unexcelled." The magnificent piece of pen work was carried to the navy department, where it will be held subject to Admiral Dewey's disposition.

Brakeman Disemboweled.

Manchester, N. H., June 9.—Frederick Rivers, head brakeman on the Lawrence freight due here at 6:20, fell from the cars at Londonderry last evening and was killed. His left arm and leg were cut off, the right leg was left hanging by a shred and he was disemboweled.

JOSEPH ELLIS' CRIME.

Killed His Wife For Rebuking Him For Intemperance.

The Victim's Fearful Struggle For Life.

Closet of a Boarding House In Lowell the Scene.

Lowell, June 9.—This city was the scene of another murder last night, the second within 30 days, but, unlike the first case, the murderer took the trouble to release the world of his presence without the aid of the machinery of the law. Joseph Ellis, a weaver, 31 years old, cut the throat of his wife at their home and afterward disposed of himself in a like manner.
their home and afterward disposed of himself in a like manner. Mrs. Ellis is dead and Ellis passed away four hours later in a hospital.

The couple boarded with Mrs. James Whitworth, the husband being employed at the Faulkner mills, and the woman working for the United States Bunting company. They ate supper together, and at that time there was no evidence of any trouble between them.

Mrs. Ellis, as was her custom after supper, assisted Mrs. Whitworth in washing the dishes, and the first intimation of the trouble between the husband and wife was conveyed by the screams of the woman. Mrs. Whitworth, who was at the back of the house at the time, found Ellis and his wife struggling in the pantry, the former flourishing a razor. Mrs. Whitworth and her daughter, 15 years old, grabbed the man and did their best to prevent him from using the weapon, while James Chadwick, who was in the vicinity, started in search of the police.

Just what followed cannot be ascertained, as Mrs. Whitworth and her family refuse to say anything about the matter, although they asserted that they were not present at the time the deed was done. James Hyland and W. F. Daly, who had been summoned by Chadwick, entered the room and found Ellis and his wife still struggling in the pantry. When Ellis saw them he closed the door. The men smashed it in and dealt several vigorous blows upon Ellis' head with a block of wood and a milk pitcher. These had no apparent effect. Hyland then landed a blow with his fist near the temple of the murderer, which had the effect of taking the fight out of him. As the blow struck him Ellis relaxed his grip upon his wife, who fell upon the floor with a long gap in her throat. Hyland and Daly then grabbed Ellis and pulled him through the door to the lawn, where they discovered that he had inflicted a mortal injury upon his own throat. The woman expired in a few moments, her last words being: "Oh, my dear."

Ellis and his wife were natives of England and had lived in this country for about 12 years. Prior to coming to Lowell they lived at Bridgeton, Me., where Mrs. Ellis left her husband on account of his drinking habits. He followed her here, and they had lived together a little over four months, Ellis promising to do better.

The only explanation that can be advanced as to the cause of the murder and suicide is that Ellis had been drinking and his wife had reproached him for it, whereat he became angered and committed the awful deed. He was not drunk at the time, however. They left a child of three years, who lives with friends at Bridgeton.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

An important conference of the members of the Jewish faith of this country and Canada began yesterday in New York. It is the outcome of a great deal of discussion among orthodox Jews, who have felt for some time that too many of the younger element of the faith were slipping away from it.

At a special meeting of the Pawtucket government, a communication was received from Frederick Clark Sayles, the first mayor of the city, informing that body of his intention to present the city with a public library, as a memorial to his wife, Deborah Sayles. The offer was accepted by the city in joint convention.

Summer Train Service.

The only change in the Quincy trains by the summer schedule, which will go into effect on Sunday, will be the discontinuance of the 10.34 P. M. inward and 11 P. M. outward on week days.

Quincy Adams, Wollaston, Norfolk Downs and Atlantic also lose these trains. On Sundays, Atlantic will have one additional train from Boston, but not one that will accommodate the general public much; an earlier train leaving Boston at 6.18 A. M.

West Quincy will have the same service to Boston but will have additional trains to and from Braintree, as these trains from Boston will run through: 9.18 and 11.18 A. M., 1.18, 6.48 and 7.18 P. M. on week days, and 6.18 P. M. on Sundays. These additional trains will leave Braintree for West Quincy and Boston: 6.11 and 6.41 A. M., 12.11, 2.11 and 4.11 P. M. on week days, and 7.11 A. M. on Sundays.

Arrested in Italy.

Freckerick Trenton is taking the necessary steps to secure the release of his brother-in-law Octavius Lancisi, who is at present confined in prison in Florence, Italy, upon suspicion of having been one of the recent bread rioters. Previous to last January Lancisi had lived in Quincy for several years and was employed as a granite polisher. Last January he went to Italy for his health and was arrested as stated above. He is a naturalized citizen of the United States and proclaims his innocence. His friends hope to be able to get the government to secure his release.

Guild Sale.

The spring sale of the Guilds of Christ church was held Wednesday at the parish house from 3 to 11 o'clock. The object of the sale was to raise funds to help pay off the debt for repairs recently made, and a good sum will be realized. Tables for the sale of useful and fancy articles, candy, ice cream, cake, etc., were arranged about the room and were in charge of the ladies of the several guilds of the church. The attendance was very large.

TODAY'S COURT.

John O'Donovan was arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy. Case continued to June 11.

Morris Marcus was fined $10 for violating the rules of the Metropolitan Park Commission by driving an express wagon on the parkway.

NAVAL GALLANTRY.

Chapter of American History Recalled by Hobson's Act.

History repeats itself in bravery as well as in other things. The gallant exploit of Lieut. Hobson at Santiago, now filling so much space in the public eye, was a wonderful exhibition of nerve daring, but it was fully in line with the antecedents of the American navy. Even President Harrison is reported as saying:

"Lieut. Hobson and his heroic crew not only went with the Merrimac into the range of an awful fire, unable to reply, but the interior of their vessel was loaded with torpedoes for her destruction at the proper time. They went in unable to fire one gun at the enemy and prepared to destroy the very deck under their feet. We search the pages of history in vain to find some act of heroism for country and flag that approaches this."

With all due respect to this high authority we think the pages of American history reveal a number of instances which approach this in heroism for country and flag. In the little war of Tripoli there were, at least, two acts which bear a close resemblance to Hobson's great deed, and which for real heroism have never been surpassed since. The first of these, was the recapture and destruction of the United States ship Philadelphia, in the harbor of Tripoli, by Stephen Decatur and a concealed crew on the Ketch Intrepid.

In chasing a small craft of the enemy, the Philadelphia had run ashore on the coast of Tripoli, been captured with Capt. Bainbridge and all the crew, lifted off the shoals and taken to Tripoli. Moored in that harbor, she was being repaired and fitted up, to go out and prey upon American commerce.

Knowing this, Com. Preble, then in command of the American fleet, determined to destroy her and communicated his purpose to Lieut. Decatur the commander of the Enterprise, and that spirited officer caught fire at the idea and begged the opportunity to undertake the work himself. Calling his ship's crew to quarters he asked for volunteers for the hazardous enterprise and every man immediately offered to follow the gallant leader. But Decatur selected seventy-four officers and men, and concealing the most of them from sight, entered the harbor on the little Ketch Intrepid, under the guise of an innocent trading vessel from Malta, with only a pilot and ten or twelve men visible he worked past the batteries and to the side of Philadephia. Here the pilot told a pitiful story of the loss of anchors in a gale, and the Turks, thoroughly deceived even helped the Ketch to make fast to the frigates chains.

For some little time the Ketch lay thus under the frigates guns, which could have blown her out of the water, and during this trying ordeal the utmost coolness was maintained by the Americans while the conversation was kept up to cover the deception.

At length however, the Turks discovered the anchors of the Ketch, and suspecting the ruse, flew to arms with the alarming cry of "Am ericans." Then Decatur and his crew climbed over the rail and beating down all opposition, gained possession of the deck. The Turks leaped overboard, and Decatur burnt the lost frigate to the water's edge and safey returned, through the fire of the gun boats and batteries to the fleet.

As Cooper justly says—"In whatever light we regard this exploit it extorts our admiration and praise. In the service, the enterprise has ever been regarded as one of its most brilliant achievements and to this day, it is deemed a high honor to have been among the Intrepid's crew."

The second instance bears a still greater resemblance to Hobson's deed, and had a far more tragic conclusion. This same Ketch Intrepid was afterwards converted into an "infernal" by being filled with combustibles, and was sent into the harbor of Tripoli with the intention of exploding her in the midst of the enemy's cruisers. She was fitted up as a floating mine, and carried 100 barrels of gun-powder in addition to shot and shell scraps of iron and other things which might damage an enemy's shipping. A train was laid connecting the magazine of these explosives with a room filled with splinters and light wood, designed to fire the magazine, and at the same time keep the enemy from boarding, by exciting fear of an explosion. The vessel, thus prepared, was commanded by Lieut. Somers and manned by two inferior officers and ten men, all volunteers for the desperate undertaking.

When Somers was asked by Com. Preble, how long he wanted the slow match should burn, he gallantly replied: "I do not ask for a slow match at all." This was the spirit of the men that made up the little devoted band.

In the silence of the night, and anxiously followed by the eyes of the whole fleet, the Intrepid sailed forth upon her dangerous mission, and passed from sight into the harbor's mouth. What then occurred no one will ever know. She was discovered by the enemy and fired upon by the forts and the gun-boats. But whether she was destroyed by a shot from these guns, or the magazine was accidently exploded, or she was blown up by Somers to prevent capture will never be revealed. But sometime before she reached the desired position, there was a terrific explosion; "a fierce and sudden light illuminated the panorama; a torrent of fire streamed upward and a concussion followed that made the cruisers in the offing tremble from their trucks to their keels." All night, the crews of the ships outside, watched and waited, leaning over the rails and listening for the sound of oars, but no joyful sound broke the silence of the night. Blackened and unrecognizable fragments of the 13 bodies were afterward found in the harbor, but the cause of the explosion is a mystery to this hour.

The act of those brave men, passing deliberately into the fire of hostile ships and forts, literally sitting on a powder magazine, has no superior in the record of heroic deeds.

We would not detract in the least from the glory of Hobson's grand and heroic act, but it is scarcely just to the equally heroic men of other days to say—"we search the pages of history in vain to find some act of heroism that approaches this." Surely Somers at Tripoli was not far behind—was not a whit behind—Hobson at Santiago.

THE OPENING.

Of the Quincy Avenue Line to Weymouth Saturday.

It has become a time honored custom with the Quincy & Boston street railway, when they open a new arm of its road, to celebrate the event in an elaborate manner, Saturday afternoon they will open a new line over Quincy avenue to Weymouth and arrangements are being made upon an elaborate scale to observe the event. The programme as now laid out includes a trip over the line, band concerts by three bands, a flag raising, fireworks and one of Pawsey's celebrated clambakes. Invitations to the affair have been issued to the city officials of Quincy, the Selectmen of Braintree and Weymouth and to representatives of the press.

Special cars will leave City Hall, Quincy, at 3 o'clock and after a trip over the line a return will be made to Hayward's grove for the clambake and speeches.

Among the speakers will probably be Mayor Russell A. Sears, Hon. Frank A. Hobart of Braintree, Representatives T. H. Newcomb and James Thompson, Senator James H. Flint, John Kelley, President John R. Graham of the street railway, President Walter S. Pinkham of the City Council, C. C. Mellen of Braintree, ex-Mayor H. O. Fairbanks and H. H. Faxon.

Councilman Arthur W. Newcomb will preside at the post prandial exercises.

In the evening there will be a band concert, flag raising and fireworks at the Weymouth end of the line and a band concert with fireworks and possibly a flag raising at Newcomb square, Quincy Neck.

Admission to the clambake will be by ticket, which have been sent to the officials above mentioned.

Rest and Fun.

Everybody wants a little change and fun in summer, but no unselfish body wants to take it all alone. He invites his wife, his children or his friend to share it with him; and, if he is really thoughtful, he remembers that there are thousands of poor city people who have no money to spend in getting away from the hot walls and pavements, and makes a contribution to the Fresh Air Fund.

This helping hand of summer recreation work for the poor and especially for children is now a recognized institution in Boston, and is entering upon its nineteenth season after a remarkable record of popular support and growth. It utilizes the electric car lines, the harbor, and the parks for the benefit of the needy, and in addition has its own little rural paradise of Rosemary Cottage at Eliot, Maine, to which overworked mothers and little children are sent for a fortnight as guests of the donors to the Fund.

By careful administration a little money is made to go a long way, yet a great deal of money is devoted to hospitable kindness in the course of the summer. A nickel means a long electric ride into the county; thirty-two cents provides a visit too the shore or a share in one of the famous picnics in Franklin Park, while seven dollars gives a mother or a child two delightful weeks at Rosemary Cottage. If so much pleasure for those who will appreciate it most can elsewhere be purchased at such bargain-counter prices, we do not know where it is.

Contributions should be sent to Rev. D. W. Waldron, 7-A Beacon street, Room 19, Boston, Mass., by whom they will be promptly acknowledged.

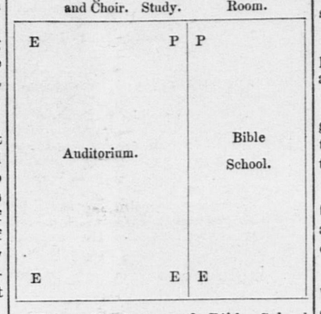
THE NEW CHURCH.

First United Presbyterian to be Unique in Arrangemen.

The contract for the building of the First United Presbyterian church on School street has been awarded this week to W. R. Lofgren of this city. The foundation was built some time ago, and on the Seventeenth of June the corner stone will be laid.

The new edifice is of an attractive style of architecture and when complete will cost about $10,000. At first, however, the tower will not be built, thereby reducing the first cost about $2,000.

The interior is unique for Quincy, and may best be explained by a rough plan.



The auditorium and Bible School room are side by side, so arranged that the platforms P P may be united into one in a semi-circular form or used separately. Additional room in the rear of the platform is used for a pastor's study and an infant room, while the organ and choir are located at the right of the platform. There are entrances to the auditorium through vestibules at EE E. The auditorium has a bold floor, the rear seats being raised. The seats run diagonally from E to E so that there are two main aisles, also outer aisles and half an aisle.

The Bible school room, 20x40, with a seating capacity of 175, may be connected with the auditorium by rolling door. The auditorium itself is 46 by 50 and has a seating capacity of 375. The infant room and pastor's study also connect and will seat more. A. Lawrence Valk was the architect.

A Tribute.

Lovable is the word says the Herald, that best describes the personal characteristics of the late Sigourney Butler in the estimation of those who knew him best. He was genial, chivalrous and generous, inspiring all those who enjoyed his acquaintance with a feeling that amounted to genuine affection. To this quality he added a rare intelligence and a strength of character that made him as courageous and self-reliant as he was winning in his personality. It might be said of him as Rudyard Kipling has said of a relative whose death be moaned:

He scarce had need to doff his pride,
Or slough the dross of earth,
E'en as he trod that day to God.
So walked he from his birth,
In simpleness and gentleness and honor and clean mirth.

Festival and Sale.

Large and juicy strawberries, delicious ice cream, attractive sales tables, and a musical entertainment were the treat at the festival given by the ladies of Bethany church, Wednesday evening. The entertainment arranged by the Music committee included a piano duet by Misses Addie and Annie Miller, vocal duets by Miss May V. Hastings and Mrs. Ernest Fitts, song by Wendal Luce, reading by Miss Norma Lowe, and song by Miss Hastings. All were enjoyed by the audience.

The executive committee of the Young Men's Democratic club of Massachusetts has adopted resolutions on the death of Sigourney Butler, and appointed a committee to attend the funeral.

A meeting of the parishioners of the First church was held last evening to take some formal action upon the recent death of the son of their pastor Rev. Ellery C. Butler. Definite plans however were not completed.

A lady at Quincy Point was alone Wednesday night, and hearing strange noises at the windows was somewhat frightened. She could not see anybody but kept hearing noises, and when her husband returned explained the strange tapping, tapping, at her windows. He discovered it was nothing but the June bugs attracted by the light from within.

Sigourney Butler was noted for acts of courage and daring. It was during the first election of Grover Cleveland to the White House, the year Quincy young men had a torchlight battalion. They were called to the city to enter a big parade. Leaving the train the torches formed in line in the depot. Major Butler to enforce his orders drove directly into the depot on horse back, about the first time a horse was ever in the Old Colony station.

Highland Park.

Quincy ladies and children will be pleased to learn that Highland Park is open. The stage entertainment season started in Monday afternoon. The sun shone down with plenty of warmth, and the whole scene seemed just as natural as it could have done at any time during the summer. A large afternoon crowd was out to see the opening show, and they evidently enjoyed it very much. Mr. Gorman who provides the shows this year, has done well in the first attempt and will certainly win the favor of the public if he continues on in the same plane. The Alabama Troubadours are the funmakers of the week. They are old friends of the Highland Park habitues, having played here a week last season. There have been a few changes in their make-up, but generally it is the same clever band of children of the south. They are black, everyone of them, although there are gradations of darkness.

Milton Flag Raising.

There was a grand flag raising at East Milton Wednesday night and the citizens turned out in crowds to lend their voices to the cheering. Previous to the unfurling of the flag the West Quincy band paraded from the line between Milton and Quincy through the principal streets ending in front of the Rugby block, where with patriotic music, the burning of red fire and cheers from the crowd the flag was unfurled and suspended across Adams street. Following the flag raising there were patriotic speeches by Rev. A. S. Gilbert, John Graham, John Cobb and others.

No, no, Mr. Williams, no union down in the Wollaston flag yet. The people will forgive you, however, for this unintentional mistake. This morning, however, he got the topping and down-haul ends of the halyards mixed with the result of a union down flag when it was broken out, much to the amusement of the large crowd who were watching the ceremony.

Young Woman Stabbed.

Dover, June 8.—The authorities kept secret until yesterday the stabbing of Annie L. Battis of Manchester, Vt., on a street in this city. Her assailant attacked her suddenly and thrust a dagger into her side. The young woman succeeded in reaching her room, but has since been in a serious condition.

County Solicitor Nason engaged a detective named Hunter of Boston, who obtained a warrant for Van V. Rogers. The suspect was taken before Miss Battis, who stated that the man resembled her assailant except that he seemed too tall. This did not appear sufficient to hold Rogers, and he was released. Miss Battis was assaulted once before and, according to her story, by the same man.

Rioting In Ireland.

Belfast, June 8.—Last night there was a renewal of the rioting that began Monday during the demonstrations in honor of the revolution of 1798 and the anniversary of June 6, 1886, when seven civilians were shot on Shank hill road by the constabulary. The nationalists attacked a body of Orangemen who were leaving their work, and there was a veritable hurricane of scrapiron and other missiles.

The police at first were overpowered; but, having been reinforced, they cleared the streets with a free use of their clubs. The military has been ordered out, and it is feared that there will be a renewal of the disturbance.

Disastrous Fires.

Chicago, June 8.—The National Fire Protection association held its second annual convention here yesterday. There were representatives from the boards of New York, Philadelphia, Providence, Hartford, Boston, Pittsburg, St. Louis and New England. President U. C. Dresby of Boston, in an address, urged the necessity of improved construction, not in material as much as in arrangement. The most disastrous fires, he said, originated in buildings with open connection from room to room and floor to floor. The remedy is in architecture safeguarding the air and elevator shafts and the light wells.

CAPTAIN OF THE IOWA

HOW "FIGHTING BOB" EVANS GOT HIS TITLE AT ANNAPOLIS.

When Ordered to Lower a Bible Text That His Mother Wanted Hung In His Room, He Refused—Her Wish Was More Binding Than a Military Order.

Captain Robley D. Evans of the battleship Iowa did not win his title of "Fighting Bob" in the civil war. He won it as a cadet at Annapolis and merely clinched his right to it in the war.

When Evans entered Annapolis as a youth, there was a rule that no cadet should hang pictures or ornaments on the walls of his room.

The purpose was to prevent sons of wealthy parents from making a display which the poorer cadets could not emulate.

When Evans' trunk was carried to his room, the first thing he did was to take from it a brass headed nail and a framed Bible text.

Standing on his bed, the new cadet hammered the nail into the wall with a convenient shoe. He hung the text on the nail and was standing back reviewing it with his head on one side when an officer burst into the room.

"Take that thing down," he shouted.

"What thing?" demanded Evans, with his hands in his pockets and his chin advanced.

"That—that picture thing," spluttered the officer.

"'Tisn't a picture," said Evans convincingly.

"Take it down!" roared the officer.

"Go to blazes!" retorted Evans.

The officer thought his dignity might be compromised if he attempted to enforce the order. He reported to the officer of the day. That official summoned Evans before him, explained the rule and ordered him to take down the text.

Evans said his mother had asked him to hang the text on the wall of his room, and his mother's wish was more binding on him than a military order.

"The text will hang there as long as I am a pupil of the academy," he said firmly.

The officer of the day referred the matter to the commandant. Evans stood firm and the commandant made a report to the navy department. A letter came commanding Cadet Evans to at once lower the text.

Evans stood pat. Other officials wrote letters and finally the secretary of the navy himself ordered that the text be removed.

Evans wrote to his father. The senior Evans wrote back for Bob to stand by his text and if it should be taken down to pack it in his trunk and come home.

Mr. Evans, senior, told the church people about it. They held an indignation meeting, the leaders wrote letters to their congressmen, the newspapers got hold of it, the congressmen asked questions in the house, and letters by the bushel poured in on the secretary of the navy.

The rule was not abrogated, but a quiet wink was passed down the line and Bob Evans' Bible text staid on the wall.

The cadets of the academy gave the lad the sobriquet of "Fighting Bob," and it has clung to him ever since.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

MANILLA NOT HEALTHY.

Expedition to Philippines Will Not Be a Summer Picnic.

Official reports bearing on the sanitary condition of the Philippine islands are much in demand at the present time by those who contemplate going there or who are interested in friends who may be dispatched on the military expedition under command of General Merritt. These reports are not satisfactory to those who had regarded the Philippines as something of a summer resort—a far eastern paradise, as it were. The islands are generally represented to be extremely unhealthy and the climatic conditions worse upon strangers than Cuba at its most inhospitable seasons. The bubonic plague in epidemic form prevails at Hongkong, only 600 miles from Manilla, and at several points in the Philippines. This disease, according to accepted reports, is more fatal than yellow fever and preys with particular violence upon unacclimated strangers.

The Philippines at the present time are in the enjoyment of their winter season, which produces a brand of temperature worse than St. Louis in August, when the mortality from sunstroke is 100 a day or thereabouts. Soldiers contemplating a trip to the Philippines will have no need to make any provision for encountering Klondike weather.—Nicholas in Chicago Post.

All Mankind Benefited.

To fight for freedom is to fight in the interest of all mankind. No matter just how the Philippine problem is settled, the inhabitants of those islands cannot but benefit by the result of the conflict which was begun in the interest of a young nation on the other side of the globe.—Chicago News.

Turning a Steak.

There is a difference in the practice of the most skillful cooks as the number of times a steak should be turned while cooking. Some say but once, others every two minutes, making three or four times in all. Let the plate or platter be heated upon which the steak is to be served and carry the dish immediately from the fire to the table. There is no dish in the world that so rigidly requires to be eaten hot as steak. Some wag says, "A cold cup of coffee, cold batter cakes, the cold shoulder, a cool reception, all are tolerable—we can use philosophy and forget them, but a cold steak is abominable; it is barbarous."—Caterer.

The Refrigerator.

In placing the refrigerator see that it is put where it can be well lighted and drained, never allowing the drain pipe to connect with the sewer. A refrigerator in bad condition is a menace to health. Once a week at least take everything movable from the interior, wash in hot soapsuds, rinse with soda water, wipe dry and put outdoors in the sun for an hour to dry. Wash the refrigerator thoroughly in the same way, using a flexible wire for the drain pipe and skewers for the corners and grooves.

Average Size of Children.

The average child in its fourth year should be 3 feet high and also weigh more than 28 pounds; in the sixth year, 3½ feet high and weigh 42 pounds; in the eighth year, 4 feet in height and 56 pounds in weight; at 12 years, 5 feet in height and 70 pounds in weight is a fair average. Growth is very irregular in children and young people generally. Perhaps two inches may be gained in two months, and for the next ten months not over an inch, even up to the age of 10 or 12 years.—New York Ledger.

Ventilation.

A trained nurse says that, in spite of all teaching, the hardest thing she has to fight against in her work in private houses is the nonventilation of the sickroom. To shut up an invalid as nearly airtight as possible seems to be the shibboleth of the majority of persons. Yet sick people, more than others, need the strengthening qualities of fresh air. Drafts, of course, are to be avoided, but a lot of fresh air is obligatory in every case.

Takes Care of Birds and Flowers.

A young woman in Chicago supports herself by taking care of other people's birds and flowers. She goes daily from house to house, feeding and watering pet birds and cleaning their cages. She then turns her attention to the plants and window boxes, cleansing leaves and giving a dose of fertilizer when needed and in other ways keeping her feathered and floral patients in excellent condition.—Woman's Journal.

MORLEY ON ALLIANCE.

Opposed to Gloomy Talk About the Isolation of England.

Intimate Relations With This Nation Favored.

Irish Vote In America a Factor In Treaty Making.

London, June 9.—John Morley, Liberal member of parliament for Montrose, speaking at Leeds and referring to the Birmingham speech of the secretary of state for the colonies, Joseph Chamberlain, on the subject of an Anglo-Saxon alliance, said that he did not believe a word of all the "gloomy talk about England's isolation and threatening prospects" unless she secured an alliance with Germany or America.

JOHN MORLEY.

"England's naval power is gigantic, her financial resources and credit are firmer than ever," said Mr. Morley, "and the spirit of her people to repel invasion or protect their rights is as great as at the beginning of the century. The whole country desires more intimate relations with the United States, an end always diligently worked for by Lord Salisbury and Mr. Gladstone. It is inconceivable, however, that a treaty between Great Britain and the United States could be entered upon without taking into consideration the Irish vote in America. If that vote is against the treaty, it is not the fault of the Liberal party."

Proceeding to discuss the kind of alliance intended, Mr. Morley said: "If it is an alliance for peace and harmonious co-operation for the mutual good, it will indeed be the dawn of brighter days; but is that what is intended, or is it to be an alliance between the jingoes of America and the jingoes of England—an alliance not for peace, but for menace and war?

"I know that tens of thousands of the best and wisest men in America believe that hardly any more inexpressible calamity can befall mankind than that a community, as Lincoln nobly said, 'conceived in freedom and dedicated to the happiness of free and equal men,' should entangle themselves in the unrest and intrigue of militarism which are the torment and scourge of the old world."

Referring to a possible alliance between England and Germany, Mr. Morley asked "What are we going to give Germany to induce her to run risks for the sake of our trade? It must be remembered," he continued, "that Germany is the great trade rival of England, and that it is Germany who kindled the conflagration in China." Summing up the whole situation, the speaker said: "Regarded in the light of cool and sober common sense, this policy of alliances in the east or the west amounts to nothing."

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, June 9.—The bill providing for the nomination of 12 Boston aldermen by each political party was passed to engrossment in the house yesterday.

The soldiers were not forgotten, and families of those in the field will be cared for, while the soldiers will receive $7 a month from the state.

The Torrens land transfer bill was passed to engrossment almost unanimously.

The committee on banks and banking reported a bill, on the message of the governor, to limit the connection between savings banks and other banks and national banking associations, so that their management will be practically and wholly distinct and separate, even though they occupy the same room and use the same vaults.

The committee on ways and means reported in the senate that the extermination of the brown-tail moth should be placed in the hands of the state board of agriculture instead of the gypsy moth commission.

Mr. George of Essex made an argument for the substitution of his bill to further regulate assessment insurance. By a vote of 11 to 10 the substitute bill was adopted.

What is to become of the cattle commission has been a question ever since the legislature has seen fit to deal so roughly with that erstwhile powerful body. Shorn of none of its prerogatives, only that the legislature has refused all appropriations to make them fruitful, this commission has become absolutely useless, and a message of the governor, sent to the senate yesterday, was for the purpose of finding out what the legislative intent is with regard to that commission.

Found a Can of Powder.

Springfield, Mass., June 9.—While unloading a carload of coal for the Hadley Thread company in Holyoke yesterday, a shoveler discovered a can of giant powder in the coal. The can contained about five pounds of the explosive, enough to cause a disastrous explosion if it had been shoveled into the fire under a steam boiler.

The coal was bought through a dealer of Boston, and, as it is understood to have come from mines in Pennsylvania from which the United States government obtains a part of its soft coal for the navy, it is thought that a number of such cans may have been put into the coal by Spanish sympathizers or spies in the hope of disabling an American warship. The mine agents have been notified of the find.

HEARTBREAKING GAME.

Willis Gave Eight Bases and Yet the Bostons Won Yesterday.

Boston, June 9.—There was a heartbreaking game, from a Cincinnati standpoint, in town yesterday, and Manager "Buck" Ewing on the bench even forgot to "tip his men off" when to kick. Willis gave eight bases on balls during the game, the same number he extended to the reds in that great 5 to 4 game the champions won in Cincinnati, and he held the visitors yesterday to the same number of hits as out west. The young pitcher struck out eight men, and was accorded grand support.

Ewing selected Hawley, who has won more games than any other league pitcher up to date, to win the second game of the series.

There was an entertaining wedge yesterday, if it had missed at the time, it is doubtful if the home team would have won quite so easily. It came when Captain Duffy gave one of Hawley's curve balls a tremendous rap for a home run, in the third inning. It sent a procession of eight legs across the plate. Cincinnati was never in the reckoning after that hit, showing how opportunely it came. Herman Long later on in the game got a homer over the left field fence off the first ball pitched, and, all in all, at the bat and in the field Herman had a great big day. Tenney started a great double play in the second inning, after Irwin, the first man, had gone to first on balls, by stopping Vaughn's ground ball and throwing Irwin out at second and then hustling back to first base, where Long threw back to him in time to get the hitter.

HERMAN LONG.

A jumping catch by Elmer Smith was one of the features. For Cincinnati only McPhee touched Willis successfully for more than a hit. Vaughn caught a fine game and Smith accepted five chances in left field. Score:

The New Yorks were outplayed by the Chicagos. Rusie was hit hard in the fifth and sixth innings and was relieved by Gettig in the seventh. Score: 9 to 1.

The St. Louis team defeated the Philadelphias in a poorly played game, 9 to 7. Carsey and Wheeler were hit hard and retired in favor of Sudhoff and Orth.

Mercer pitched well, the "senators" batted hard and the Pittsburgs made errors. The Washingtons won, 10 to 3.

The Clevelands turned the tables on the Brooklyns in Brooklyn, 8 to 2. Wilson pitched a clever game for the winners.

The Browns of Providence continued their series of victories by defeating the Harvards, 5 to 1, in a well-played game. The Cambridge players were unable to connect with Sedgwick's delivery, and by poor work in the infield permitted four runs, which should not have been made.

The Yales defeated the university of Vermont baseball nine, 10 to 7, in a slow game.

The new men in the Taunton team increased their batting averages yesterday, McCafferty of the Pawtuckets being pounded all over the field. The slaughter came in the ninth, up to which time the game was close and interesting. Hits went out and runs came in so fast in this inning that the Pawtucket fielders were a tired lot of players when the game ended, with the score, 19 to 11.

The New Bedfords were too easy for the Brocktons to make the game interesting. Thatcher pitched excellent ball. Vickery was as wild as a hawk and was given wretched support.

Superior field work on the part of the Newports won the game in Fall River, 8 to 5. Cronin pitched good ball, but slow infield support gave the visitors opportunities to score when they should have easily been prevented. A shakeup is expected in the Fall River team.

Nops pitched a fine game for the Baltimores, and was given superb support in the game with the Louisvilles, who lost, 6 to 2. A feature was Clarke's one-hand catch of a fly after a hard run.

An Outspoken Clergyman.

Cleveland, June 9.—At last evening's session of the Congregational Home Missionary society, an address relating to general home missionary work was delivered by Rev. W. G. Puddefote of South Framingham, Mass., eastern field secretary of the Home Missionary society. He said that one of the alarming symptoms of the times was the enormous growth of material riches compared with spiritual results. No nation or race had yet arisen that placed the spiritual condition above the material, and until the spiritual and moral condition of the people were placed first, no nation could be really prosperous no matter how great its riches. When we were stirred to do great deeds for God in the spiritual field as we were now stirred to help the cause of the Cubans, the millennium soon would be seen over the horizon. When senators and congressmen would vie with one another in righting the awful wrongs in the nation as they did to straighten other nations, we would be better able to help the world.

Yesterday In the Hub.

Boston, June 9.—Lieutenant General John M. Schofield, lately in command of the army, arrived in this city yesterday, accompanied by his wife and daughter. He will spend the summer at his cottage at Bar Harbor.

Thirty of the big guns which have rested quietly on the grass in the Charlestown navy yard for many years are to be removed to different points along the coast as soon as the state is ready for them.

At the meeting of the executive council the governor renominated Bank Commissioner Warren E. Locke of Norwood. Other nominations were as follows: Benjamin S. Atwood, Whitman, trustee Medfield insane asylum; Frederick A. Fisher, Lowell, special justice Lowell police court, in place of J. F. Frye, resigned; Emery Grover, Needham, justice district court of northern Norfolk; Edward S. Fellows, Hyde Park, clerk district court of northern Norfolk. The name of A. S. Covel of Boston was sent in as trustee of the Lowell textile school.

Yesterday a jury returned a verdict of $18,000 for the plaintiff in the case of Margaret McNeil, by her next friend, vs. the Boston Ice company. The plaintiff is 4½ years old. In August, 1896, she lost a foot by being crushed by a cake of ice which fell from the defendant's team.

The National Piano Manufacturers' association, which was organized a year ago, met in annual convention yesterday. The officers elected include Henry F. Miller of Boston as president.

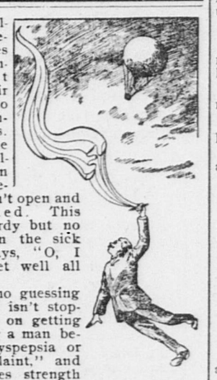
With impressive ceremonies the cornerstone of the new Masonic temple was laid yesterday afternoon by the grand lodge of Massachusetts at the northern corner of the foundation.

G. A. R. of Vermont.

Burlington, Vt., June 9.—The annual encampment of the Vermont department of the G. A. R. opened yesterday afternoon. In his report Commander E. W. Jewett said that on Jan. 1, 1897, the total membership was 4623; the membership Jan. 1, 1898, was 4377, a loss of 246, of which 89 were by death and most of the balance of the loss is by discharge and for non-payment of dues. The following officers were elected: Commander, L. B. Harris, Lyndonville; senior vice commander, J. H. Lyon, Colchester; junior vice commander, W. E. Bliss, Calais; medical director, Dr. C. C. Smith, Gaysville; chaplain, Rev. W. H. H. Avery, St. Albans.

Leaned Over His Gun.

Hazleton, Pa., June 9.—A. S. Van Wickle, a millionaire coal operator and philanthropist of this city, was killed while participating in a clay pigeon shoot beyond the city limits. While leaning over his gun with the barrel pointing to his body, the trigger was touched, setting the weapon off. The full charge entered Van Wickle's body, and shortly after being conveyed to his home he died. Mr. Van Wickle was one of the most prominent operators of the Lehigh region, and was president of the Van Wickle Coal company, which controls several collieries.



A daring balloonist sometimes tumbles nearly two hundred feet through the air hanging on to a parachute until it opens. "O! well," he says, "It usually opens in time." Sometimes it doesn't open and he is doomed. This seems foolhardy but no more so than the sick man who says, "O, I guess I'll get well all right!"

Disease is no guessing matter. If it isn't stopped it keeps on getting worse. Many a man begins with dyspepsia or "liver complaint," and gradually loses strength and vitality until before he knows it his lungs are attacked and he finds himself in consumption. The parachute doesn't open.

The only real safety for a man whose strength is failing from any cause whatever is to renew the sources of vitality at their fountain-head. The best agency for this purpose is the wonderful "Golden Medical Discovery" originated by Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute of Buffalo, N. Y. This "Discovery" goes directly to the aid of the enfeebled digestive forces and enables them to make healthy nourishing blood, thereby building up solid muscular strength and active nerve force and energy.

The absolutely marvelous things it does for sick people is shown by the experience of Mr. Frank A. Startz, of Fayetteville, Fayette Co., Texas, who writes: "It affords me pleasure to testify to the remarkable curative power of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I was severely afflicted with trouble in my lungs—spitting up blood, and was so weak I was unable to continue my work. I tried several remedies which gave me no relief, and I had commenced to think there was no hope for me. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery was recommended to me, so I tried it and began to improve at once, and was soon able to resume work. I consider it a wonderful medicine."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser sent for 21 one-cent stamps to cover mailing only. Cloth binding 31 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

It is claimed that, while it has the required properties of ether, chloroform, nitrous oxide gas, it lacks the disagreeable and dangerous qualities of these drugs. TRANSPORTS ANCHOR.

Movement Upon Cuba Receives a Check.

Alarmists' Reports as to the Presence of the Enemy.

Spanish Warships Said to Be In Waiting.

Naval Officials Appear to Be Skeptical as to the Story.

New York Paper Says Mistake Was Made In Signaling.

Washington, June 10.—Nearly 30 transports are anchored in the gulf or Mexico, with 27,000 men cooped in them. They sailed from Tampa, but had not gone far before they were brought to a halt because of information which reached the war board that four Spanish warships were lying in wait for them. Additional convoys have been ordered to reinforce the ships already selected. The report may or may not be true, but no chance of the loss of any of the troopships is to be taken.

Military and naval officers are in a flutter over the suspicion that they have been outwitted by the Spanish navy. Having sent the transports to sea with 27,000 men, there now comes the disquieting rumor that four Spanish warships are lying in the path of the troops. The worst of it is that the naval war board seems to have been taken entirely by surprise. They confidently supposed that all of the Spanish navy was either bottled up in Santiago harbor, or else was safe on the other side of the ocean. If this information is not correct they confess themselves baffled. So certain was the war board that the ocean was clear of danger that it was not deemed necessary to provide anything more than the merest display accompaniment of naval strength for the army.

The highest in authority affect not to believe the story, and it is certainly true that no official confirmation has been received. Experience has shown, however, that official dispatches are always from 24 to 48 hours behind the press reports, and as the latter have proved so frequently accurate, there is considerable color for the belief that this latest story is also true. If it should prove to be accurate, the transports will be held up at Key West and some battleships, including the Oregon, may be sent out to smash the enemy.

The naval officers are endeavoring to reassure their military colleagues, asserting positively that they know the position of every ship in the Spanish navy, and that it is impossible for any fleet to be roaming at large in West Indian waters. They acknowledge that if any large cruisers or battleships had attempted to force the blockade at Havana, the attempt would have undoubtedly been successful, for all the fighting vessels of our navy are now concentrated at Santiago, leaving the entrance to Havana harbor guarded by only a few gunboats and revenue cutters. It is the belief of the officers that small gunboats have run out of the bays and harbors along the Cuban coast where they have been hiding, and have made their way into Havana harbor in order to be under the protection of the fortifications at that place. Accurate information, however, as to exactly what has happened is lacking at the navy department.

Word comes from the New York World that the report originated in a mistake in signaling. The story was that a government tug from Cardenas joined the fleet off Havana and reported that on Tuesday night an auxiliary gunboat sighted four vessels, which she took to be a battleship, two cruisers and a torpedo boat, between Salt Cay and Padre Del Cruz light. When within speaking distance the gunboat hoisted the private fleet signal. The strangers answered with three masthead lights, which was not the required signal, and then put out all their lights. The gunboat cruised after the strangers for a while and then abandoned the chase. It is thought one of the vessels was the British cruiser Talbot, which left Havana Tuesday.

If the invasion proceeds according to schedule, the bombardment of San Juan and the capture of the island of Porto Rico may occur sooner than has been anticipated. The success of the naval expedition against Santiago makes it very apparent that the large army which has been sent to attack that town will not be needed, and that it is very probable that upon the arrival of the transports at Key West some 15,000 troops will be detatched and ordered to Porto Rico.

The entire flotilla of transports will move together to the eastern end of Cuba, and according to the program as now suggested, will be joined by a portion of Admiral Sampson's squadron and proceed to Porto Rico, while some 10,000 or 12,000 troops will move through the windward passage to Santiago and there co-operate with Schley in the future operations against the latter point. The expedition to Porto Rico will be under the command of Major General Coppinger, with Major General Lee the second officer in command.

Last Monday night the city of Tampa was in a state of wild alarm. Martial law was declared and the Georgia troops were placed on guard to prevent further bloodshed. A riot occurred among the United States regulars and volunteers, and four men were killed. A squad of colored regulars from the west, white intoxicated, was met by some southern volunteers and a fight followed. When it abated it was found that four of the negro regulars had been killed and several others were dangerously wounded. On Tuesday morning business was at a standstill. The residents of Tampa and Ybor City were frantic with fear and remained indoors. The town was immediately placed under martial law and order was partly restored.

Bread For the Boys.

Washington, June 10.—Although the boys of the Massachusetts Sixth and Ninth regiments have been paid, they will not be able to fill the void caused by short and poor rations by gorging themselves today with pie, lemonade or shortcake, as by an order the sale of these things is prohibited, much sickness being attributed to their use. The order came from General Graham on recommendation of the chief surgeon, who also promulgated a bill of fare for breakfast, dinner and supper. In order to comply with its provisions the troops must have a larger supply and a greater variety than they have at present, as they have not had at any time the full government allowance. This fact became so apparent to Congressman Fitzgerald on his visit to Camp Alger that he introduced a bill in the house yesterday authorizing the secretary of war to employ as many bakers as necessary to accompany the army and bake a sufficient supply of bread at all times.

JOHN F. FITZGERALD.

Prepared to Shoot.

Off Santiago, June 10.—Admiral Sampson is determined that the work for which Lieutenant Hobson staked his life shall not be undone; and, upon the first suspicion that the Spaniards are endeavoring to raise or blow up the wreck of the Merrimac, which now bars the entrance to the harbor of the Spanish fleet, the batteries and forts will be bombarded and reduced to ruins. Neither will he permit any more guns to be mounted in the batteries which command the entrance. In the event of bombardment Morro castle alone will probably escape. Built of stone, its walls would crumble like mortar if our guns were directed against it; but it is now an inviolate fortress, because it holds the heroes of the Merrimac.

No Interrogatory.

London, June 10.—Patrick O'Brien, member for Kilkenny city, questioned the government in the house of commons yesterday as to whether the British ambassador at Washington, Sir Julian Pauncefote, had taken steps to find out from President McKinley the terms of peace which the United States would grant to Spain. The parliamentary secretary for the foreign office, in reply, said that there was no foundation for the rumor.

"Perfect Hell of Fire."

Kingston, Jam., June 10.—Commodore Schley paid a beautiful tribute to the valor of Lieutenant Hobson and the gallant crew of the Merrimac, as he sat on the after-deck of the Brooklyn. Pointing toward the grey walls of Morro castle, where Lieutenant Hobson and his brave men were said to be incarcerated, the commodore spoke as follows: "History does not record an act of finer heroism than that of the gallant men who are prisoners over there. I watched the Merrimac as she made her way to the entrance of the harbor, and my heart sank as I saw the perfect hell of fire that fell upon these devoted men. I did not think it possible one of them could have gone through it alive. They went into the jaws of death. It was Balaclava over again without the means of defense which the light brigade had. Hobson led a forlorn hope without the power to cut his way out; but fortune once more favored the brave, and I hope he will have the recognition and promotion he deserves. His name will live as long as the heroes of the world are remembered."

Asked to Intervene.

London, June 10.—The Rome correspondent of The Daily News says: "A new appeal has been made to the pope to intervene, or use all his influence to obtain the interference of the powers. It is asserted that the queen regent has even submitted to the pope the question of her retirement in order to allay public discontent."

Boston Opinion.

Boston, June 10.—"The country will now learn," remarks The Journal, "how well United States soldiers can endure the summer climate of Cuba. The results are awaited with anxiety and the hope is the test may not last long."

"Any American who should call for three cheers for Spain just now would probably be roughly handled; and yet Spain needs cheering if any country does," The Globe believes.

It is the opinion of The Post that "had the government been ready to follow up Dewey's success by the actual occupation of Manila and the possession of the archipelago, there would be today no question of arrangement with the armies of Asiatics who are operating against Augusti with renewed vigor."

Critical Point In Thursday's Game Turned to Bostons' Advantage.

Boston, June 10.—John T. Brush's Cincinnati "reds," heralded from their own bailiwick as the coming champions, after twice yielding rather easily to the real champions, made a fight yesterday more in keeping with their reputation. It was a very even contest, with the Bostons doing the better batting and the Cincinnatis the better fielding. The Bostons won in the ninth inning on a lucky home run by Stivetts. Klobedanz and Hill, both "southpaws," did the pitching, and the honors were about even. Score:

Earned runs—Bostons, 3; Cincinnatis, 2. Two-base hit—McPhee. Home runs—Klobedanz, Stivetts, Smith. Stolen base—Stahl. Double play—McPhee and Beckley. First base on balls—By Klobedanz, 2; by Hill, 4. Hit by pitched ball—McBride. Struck out—By Klobedanz, 3; by Hill, 6. Time—1:54. Umpires—Cushman and Heydler. Attendance—3350.

Both pitchers were hit hard and often in Baltimore. The orioles were slightly more fortunate in bunching their hits. The Louisvilles' errors were costly, for they lost, 8 to 6.

The Philadelphias defeated the St. Louis team yesterday in a well-played game, 5 to 2. Hughey and Donohue pitched good ball and were well supported.

Today the Bostons are 39 points behind the leaders and stand second with the Clevelands.

In the ninth inning of yesterday's game in Montreal, the Springfields scored three runs. Montreal tried a rally, but fell on one run and was beaten. Score: 8 to 6.

Doheny's erratic twirling lost the game for the New Yorks, 8 to 10. In the eighth, Grady was put out of the game for disputing the umpire. This season's records for strikouts, wild pitches and time of play were all broken. Wood and Kilroy pitched for the Chicagos.

Superior fielding, opportune hitting and fearless base running by the Newports tell the story of the work in winning yesterday's game from the Pawtuckets, 8 to 1.

The Brocktons won from the New Bedfords through hard hitting, 8 to 1.

Wretched fielding on the part of the Tauntons made it an easy victory for the Fall Rivers. Moore's work on second was especially bad; he made four errors on the easiest kind of chances. Score: 9 to 2.

The Brooklyns lost to the Clevelands, 11 to 2.

The Washingtons won an errorless game from the Pittsburgs by good hitting, 9 to 1.

Boston Woman Enriched.

New York, June 10.—Though wealthy, James McKerron, 62 years of age, died in this city alone and in needless squalor. He was parsimonious and eccentric. For four years he had lived in two unlighted and illy ventilated rooms. He was a recluse in his habits. His dead body was discovered yesterday. Life had been extinct probably 15 hours. Death is supposed to have been due to starvation.

McKerron was supposed to be worth over $87,000. His only living relative is a woman whose name and address were written as follows on a piece of paper found in McKerron's room: "Mrs. Cunningham, near Lincoln Square, 645, between I and K, Boston, Mass."

Want an Increase.

Rockport, Mass., June 10.—Two weeks ago the Cape Ann branch of the National Stone Cutters' union notified the Rockport Granite company that it wished an increase of wages, and last Friday a committee visited the management of the company and presented a new bill, calling for an increase. The company returned the bill, the demands of the union not being accepted, and the men stopped work during the afternoon of that day. The strike affects about 90 workmen.

SUED BY A SHOEMAKER.

Lynn Man Wants Financial Balm For Wounded Heart.

Lives With His Wife, Yet Sues For Alienation.

Leather Manufacturer With Money Is the Plaintiff.

Lynn, Mass., June 10.—Arthur Audette, a shoemaker living at 16 Cottage street, has entered suit for alienation of the affections of his wife against William H. Green, one of the most prominent men of the city, whose property he has caused to be attached in the sum of $15,000. A peculiar feature of the case is Mrs. Audette's claim that her husband is still living with her and that the first intimation she had of trouble between Mr. Green and her husband was received through reading of the attachment.

Mr. Green is a member of the firm of Kelley & Green, who carry on the business established by Thomas Green, one of the pioneer morocco manufacturers in this city. He is young, handsome and happily married. Mrs. Audette, whose affections he is said to have alienated, is younger than he and rather plain in appearance. She came to Lynn a few years ago from Canada.

Audette claims that his wife and Mr. Green have been keeping company for some four months, and that until this began his home life was happy. Since that time, he says, they have not lived happily together.

Mrs. Audette talked freely of the case, which she says will develop nothing to her discredit. Said she: "This matter is a complete surprise to me. I knew about it Wednesday for the first time, when my sister, who had heard of an attachment against Mr. Green by my husband, asked me the meaning of it. I hurried home and asked him about it. He would not tell me anything, except that he did not trust me, and that he intended to sue Mr. Green for breaking up his home. This is very funny, as the home is not broken up, and my husband still lives with me. I know Mr. Green and have known him for some years, but the acquaintance is not intimate, nothing more than speaking as we meet on the street. One night last summer he drove by the house in a new carriage. I was in the doorway and he stopped and called my attention to the new turnout. My husband was very jealous about this.

"My husband is nearly twice my age, and is very jealous, but he has never had cause to reproach me and has none now. Once he brought suit against a pool room in Lynn, claiming that he lost much money there, and he had some trouble with the Red Men about drawing benefits. He is very anxious to have money; and he is all the time after the dollar. There is really not a word of truth in his charges, and he has no cause to drag me into any such disagreeable publicity."

Mr. Green's defense is a general denial. He states that Audette has no foundation in fact for the allegations he makes.

Cure For Consumption.

Denver, Colo., June 10.—The feature of the 51st convention of the American Medical association was a remarkable address by Dr. J. B. Murphy of Chicago upon the subject of the lungs, with special reference to the discovery by him of a cure for consumption, or tuberculosis of the lungs. Dr. Murphy's treatment is based upon the fact that the sore spots in the lungs have a tendency to heal, the healing process being retarded by constant expansion of the tissue in breathing. The treatment consists in the introduction of pure nitrogen into the lung cavity through a hypodermic needle. The action of the nitrogen compresses the lungs and gives them an entire rest. After a few weeks the nitrogen is withdrawn and air admitted the lung expanding to its usual dimensions.

Personal.

Those interested in Quincy of years ago would enjoy a talk with George H. Locke, the veteran tax collector, who resides at 101 Washington street. Although 83 years old his health is good and his head clear. He came to Quincy in 1841, when the population was but 3,500, and he says only half a dozen of the present voters were on the voting list then. He was a fellow boarder at West Quincy with Solomon Willard and when that gentleman predicted that that section of the town would be built up with stores, churches and schools, he hardly believed it. Mr. Locke is the oldest Selectman of Quincy, serving in 1870 and 1871, the first year with Ensign S. Fellows and Eben W. Underwood, and the last year with Mr. Underwood and Charles N. Ditson.

FREE DELIVERY.

Will Probably be Extended to Atlantic and Wollaston.

The following letter is self explanatory and shows that Congressman Barrows is watchful for the interests of Quincy.

House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.

Mr. Charles L. Hammond, Postmaster, Quincy, Mass.,

My dear Mr. Hammond: Some time ago I received a petition from citizens of Wollaston and Norfolk Downs asking for an extension of free delivery to those places. You also have made it known to me that it is necessary that the facilities for free delivery in Quincy should be extended in other directions.

I have taken occasion to urge the attention of the Department to those needs. In response to these requests the Department ordered an inspection with the result that it is fully convinced of the reasonableness of those petitions.

I am now happy to be able to say that in a personal interview with Mr. Machen, Superintendent, Free Delivery System, I received an assurance, since confirmed in writing, that the extension would be made as soon as practicable, that is to say by the first of October. The change cannot be made until the appropriations for the next fiscal year are available. The following is a letter received by me from the Superintendent of free delivery.

"Referring to our personal interview this morning regarding the demand for the extension of the free delivery service at Quincy, Mass., and the necessity for additional carriers to serve the additional territory, I have the honor to inform you that this matter will receive favorable consideration as soon as possible after the appropriation for the next fiscal year becomes available.

"As the extensions will involve the discontinuance of the Wollaston post-office and the establishment of a station, it will require some time to make the changes, and as the present service can undoubtedly be efficiently maintained during the summer months, when mails are light, it will hardly be necessary to allow additionl carriers before October 1st next."

Very respectfully,
(Signed) A. W. MACHEN.
Superintendent Free Delivery System.
June 1, 1898.

I congratulate you and the people of Quincy upon the early prospect of this extension. It is made possible first by the determination of Congress to grant sufficient appropriations to make our free delivery system more effective, and also by determination of the Department to recognize the growth of your city and the needs of better service."

Yours sincerely.
S. J. BARROWS.

Organ Recital.

The organ recital of John Herman Loud at Christ church, Thursday evening, was a grand musical treat enjoyed by many. Under Mr. Loud's fine touch the organ seemed to talk as it seldom has before. Mrs. Christian Thelen and Mr. Walter E. Loud assisted and were at their best. So sweetly did Mrs. Thelen sing "Ave Maria" to violin obligato that she repeated it by request in part two. Mr. Loud, our talented young violinist was especially fine in Aria for G string, but all his numbers were enjoyed.

HOUGHS NECK.

The new hotel, "The Fensmere," has been opened to the public. The dance hall will be opened Saturday night and the clambake on June 17. Mr. Meyers, the proprietor of this new hotel, has expended a large amount of money at "Fensmere Beach" and has given Hough's Neck something it has always lacked and he should therefore meet with success.

The Fensmere is located near the end of Sea street and is a most beautiful spot. The hotel is near the street and is surrounded by broad piazzas from which a fine view is obtained. On the first floor is a large dining room, office and billiard room, the second and third floors being given up to rooms of which there are forty-two. The servants quarters are in an adjoining building. The building has sanitary plumbing with large bath rooms and is lighted throughout with electric lights, current being furnished by a private plant.

A little to the west of the hotel is a large stable, and beyond that is a large dance hall and clam bake pavilion, near which is located the steam and electric lighting plant.

To the north of these buildings is a large pond, which has been made by removing the sand to a depth of nine feet in the centre. Water for this pond comes in through a tide gate which is so arranged that when the tide receeds the gate holds the water in the pond, making bathing possible at all hours. Near the shore of this pond is a large bath house with numerous lockers, while in the centre of the pond, on a little peninsular, is a band stand so that the bathers can enjoy music while they are taking their dip. Everything about the Fensmere is on an elaborate scale and it will be conducted in a first class manner.

The road between Palmer street to the Willows is being widened; a large force of men and teams are at work.

Mr. Arthur Dunham is putting new screens into the post-office.

There are four new stores opened this season.

Mr. J. L. Harvey is to alter over the dance hall and put in a billiard and pool room.

There are to be three mails per day after June 10th.

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll and family have arrived at their cottage, the Carroll, west side.

The electric road has laid tracks around Great hill, west side.

Most all the stores opened Thursday for business.

Mr. Joseph Costello is making repairs to the Casino, preparatory to opening.

The electric road is to add another trip, 10.10 from Quincy to Houghs Neck

Mrs. Fred Tirrell started Thursday afternoon about 1.30 for a drive; and just after leaving her home the horse fell for some reason, and Mrs. Tirrell jumped from the team avoiding an accident. A broken shaft and harness was all the damage done. Men from the house came to her assistance.

THE FIFTH GOING.

Will be Recruited to Its Full War Strength.

Coolidge sends this dispatch from Washington to the Journal:

It can be stated with perfect confidence that the Fifth Massachusetts Regiment, increased to the full number of men required by the War Department, will be taken as part of the quota of Massachusetts on the second call for Volunteers.

The number of men required from Massachusetts under the second call is just enough to permit of the filling up of the four infantry regiments already in the service, and the sending out of the Fifth with its full complement. If, however, the First Massachusetts Heavy Artillery had been recruited to the full strength of 200 men for each battery it would not have been possible to send out the Fifth or even to recruit fully the other infantry regiments.

It has been decided, notwithstanding orders which have been sent to the First Regiment, under a misapprehension, that the Heavy Artillery as at present constituted, will not be disturbed, and the full quota will be made up of infantry.

Granite Cutters' Strike.

The granite cutters of the Rockport Granite Company are out on strike to force an increase of wages, they having presented a new schedule to the company a few weeks since. The men claim that they are paid the lowest of any granite workers in New England, and as they say that the business is now in better condition than for some time they have asked an increase averaging about five per cent., which they claim will still make them the poorest paid of any similar workers in New England. The men have been receiving thirty-eight cents per foot for six-cut granite, and ask an increase to forty cents.

Apportionment a Secret.

A Washington dispatch to the Financial News says: Adjt-General Corbin announces that he will not make public the apportionment of the volunteer troops among the States under the second call of the President. The enlistment of the 75,000 men will proceed precisely as enlistments are made for the regular army. The Governors of States are notified by the department how many men are to be enlisted under the second call, and how the enlistment will be made, but this information will not be given to the public.

—Mrs. Grover Cleveland is biographically treated by the June Ladies' Home Journal in the most unique manner. Her closest friends have united in contributing a series of characteristic anecdotes, recording some of her sayings and doings, and these perfectly reflect the former mistress of the White House. They are vastly more interesting and accurate than the usual biographical sketch, inasmuch as they do not picture Mrs. Cleveland as another person sees her, but mirror her precisely as she is—by her own words and deeds. A number of photographs are published in connection with anecdotes. They are the first made by Mrs. Cleveland since she left the White House.

—Money is not patriotic, it never enlists, except for a good big bounty, and it is ever on the alert to drive a sharp bargain with its government.

☞ The complete schedule of the National League Base Ball games for 1898, issued by the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Ry. is a very handy book for lovers of our national game. It not only shows the opposing teams and where they play each day in the season, but contains spaces for filling in scores, pitcher's names, hits, runs and errors, with interesting items about the 1897 games. Anyone can procure a copy of the book by sending 4 cents in postage to A. J. Smith, G. P. A. Cleveland, O.

PATRIOTIC NOTES.

A Budget of Locals which is Full of Inspiration.

When the June morn waits the roses,
When the sunset's on the lea,
When the dew-drops kiss the posies
When the daylight cannot see,
When the moon beams gleam their brightest beneath the noble trees,
Which toss their century branches in the cooling evening breeze;
There's many pretty places all around about,
But Quincy takes the palm from all beyond the shade of doubt.

Some men, probably, who read this ad. and who will need clothing shortly, will not even take the trouble to investigate an often repeated assertion that we sell clothing and all men's furnishings 10 to 20 per cent. less than Boston stores.

A dispatch from Atherton to the Boston Advertiser says: Now that a general advance from Tampa upon Cuba is being made, the forces at Chickamauga, including the 8th Massachusetts, will probably be ordered to Tampa, and those at Camp Alger, comprising the 6th and 9th Massachusetts, to Chickamauga, the policy of the department being to work the different corps slowly to the front and without any retrograde movements.

The soldiers now embarking from Tampa will go to Santiago, while the remaining great bulk of troops now being concentrated in the south will be used in the proposed operations upon Havana just as soon as the plans are perfected.

Another holiday next Friday.

Miss Julia Kiley of Milbury is the guest of Miss Mary Barry of Sagamore street.

The annual Adams Gold Medal exercises will probably be held Monday morning at the First church.

The school children have got it down fine, only one more Friday to go to school before the long vacation.

Mr. I. Hugh Martin and Stephen Edwards, Jr., of Atlantic join the Knights of Columbus Tuesday evening.

Joseph White, a well-known young man of West Quincy joined the regular army this week.

Chief of Police Litchfield and Officer Bradley went fishing Thursday night but the only thing they caught was a cold and a couple of minnows.

The funeral of Sigourney Butler was held this noon from St. Paul's church Boston. The burial was in the family lot at Mt. Wollaston cemetery in this city.

The closing meeting of the year of Quincy Teachers' Association was a social held Thursday evening at the High School hall. A little business was transacted, and after an impromptu entertainment refreshments were served.

The alarm from Box 56 at 12.03 this noon was rung in for a slight fire upon the roof of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. freight house near the Wollaston depot and was caused by sparks from the passing locomotive. The damage was trifling.

Many will be surprised to learn that the new war revenue bill will tax bowling alleys, billiard rooms, exhibitions and shows, express and freight, life insurance, fire insurance, leases, mortgages, passage tickets, proxy voting, patent medicines, legacies, certificates, bonds, etc., etc.

Saturday afternoon Mr. George E. Mavers, the runner, and Mr. Robert E. There is also arranged along the front of the building 140 other lights making a total of 346 lights which are used in the illuminations. The work of arranging and wiring the lights was done by Chief Electrician McLane of the railway.

Christian Commission.

The present reactionary trend from multiplying organization appear in the new Army Christian Commission, which is a union of two societies—the Y. P. S. C. E. and the Y. M. C. A.—to do the work of two others—the Christian and Sanitary Commissions. If now our numerous missionary societies in local churches would resolve themselves into two—one for home missions, the other for foreign—as is already done in some places, church work would be wonderfully simplified. — Congregationlist, June 12, 1898.

A great photographic camera for taking full length life-size portraits has been made and used with much success by Werner & Son, Dulbin. The camera takes a plate 7 feet high and 5 feet wide.

The Baby's First Shoes.

Every one who has had the care of small children has noticed how the progress of a baby just beginning to walk is retarded by the putting on of shoes, even those with flexible kid soles. However soft the kid may be, it cramps the tender foot, and it is always some time before the baby adjusts itself to the new conditions.

The length of time varies with different children, some taking to the strange footgear readily, while others take days to do so.

In one case known to the writer a precocious baby who walked early positively refused to put his foot to the ground with the new shoes on them. When they were taken off, he was ready to stand or step, but when they were on he regarded them calmly, making no open objection, but could not be coaxed to walk.

In this dilemma baby's mother chanced to see the story of a similar case in the family of an army officer, where the difficulty was solved by the use of a pair of moccasins such as are worn by the Indians, a diminutive pair of which had been given by a squaw. She purchased a stout chamois skin and manufactured a pair, guided by a pair of squaw's moccasins which were among her souvenirs of a trip to the Pacific coast.

The new footgear worked like a charm. Baby accepted it with satisfaction and wore the moccasins until he was old enough to walk on the street and desired to put on "shoes like other boys." After the first pair they were made with double soles, which were sufficiently thick for outdoor wear.

The moccasins are not for sale in shoe stores, but may be found in the infants' department in some first class dry goods stores. The pattern thus obtained, it is easy to make them at home, and there is nothing so comfortable and so satisfactory by way of a first shoe.—Exchange.

WOMEN WHO DIFFER.

DISTINCT TYPES IN NEW YORK, CHICAGO AND WASHINGTON.

As They Are Seen on Fifth Avenue, Lake Shore Drive and Connecticut Avenue. The Washington Girl Preferred by Men, but the Others Outpoint Her.

The United States boasts three beauty promenades of special prominence. These are esplanades along which fashion disports itself in remarkable raiment and notably on Easter Sunday. They are placed in New York, Washington and Chicago and are named Fifth avenue, Connecticut avenue and Lake Shore drive. Of the three the last is incomparably the handsomest. On one side curl the blue waters of the lake; on the other is the bosky wealth of Lincoln park, pale green in the early spring. On Lake Shore drive the air is sharper and better. Sweeping over the miles of Lake Michigan it brings a deeper color to thin skinned cheeks. It adds quickness to gesture and silver to laughter. It is good for women's lungs. It is good for the lungs of men who line the edges of the broad pathway. It helps to disarm criticism. In looking at and judging a pretty woman the best thing to have is good humor.

The women who frequent these display grounds are markedly different in type. The New York woman will be recognized as a New York woman on State street. A Chicago woman is unable to hide her birthmarks upon Broadway. A Washington woman ought to be known anywhere. In painting their several portraits it is necessary to use only a coarse brush. They lend themselves readily to delineation. Each of the three cities furnishes individual types of extreme beauty. Preference is largely a matter of taste, which itself is a matter of education and early surroundings.

The New York woman is well built and carries herself well. She is apt to be long legged and has a long stride. She is taught to hold her shoulders back and her chin high. She looks straight ahead, and a gaze that apparently takes in nothing takes in everything. This has been bred in her by life in a crowded town—a town to whose crowd Chicago's crowds are mere handfuls. She is graceful, with a cultivated grace that smacks of Delsarte. Her hands are large and well formed, as are her feet. The latter are large because she does much walking. She is apt to be narrow hipped and flat chested. She is big boned, and, if spare of flesh, the bones are prominent. Her lower limbs are thin, but the bicycle has done much for them. For three generations and more her waist has been too much pinched. She is apt to be blond or an approach to blond.

One of the rarest things in New York is a genuine, native born brunette. By genuine brunette I mean the clear olive skin which shows the dusky red of the cheeks, the long lashed, dark eyes of shine and the masses of raven hair. That is the healthy brunette—surely one of the most beautiful of women. The New York woman has a good complexion and, almost without exception, sound and brilliantly white teeth. Her mouth is large, and good teeth are a necessity. Her eyebrows are thin, but distinctly penciled, and her nose tends to the aquiline type. As a general thing the lips are thin and the ears small. She is not a woman in whom the animal masters the mental. Her manners, when she wishes them to be, are perfection—refined, gentle, cordial, frank and modest. The female aristocrat of New York—and only aristocrats frequent Fifth avenue at Easter—is high bred. Her behavior with the other sex shows it. There is nothing of the don't touch me reserve of the awkwardly bashful woman and no invitation to undue freedom. She is of the world, liking male companionship and unconsciously enforcing male respect.

The woman of Chicago is western. She could not hide it if she wished to. She is stronger than her New York sister—better built. She has more muscle. She is not so tall, but is broader. Her forehead is not so high, but she measures more between the eyes. She is not so handsome a woman, but is more attractive. Her face is apt to be irregular. The nose is frequently retrousse. The lips, if not thick, are full. As Chicago is a new city, and a composite city, she is a new and composite product. She is of all types—short, long, blond, brunette and brune.

One of the handsomest women in Chicago is of the pure Saxon kind—flaxen locks, creamy skin and light blue eyes. Another is of Peruvian darkness. There is much red hair in Chicago. She is an open air woman. She is assertive and self reliant. She is distinctly of the kind of whom you hear it said, "She is able to take care of herself." There is a good deal of the "new woman" in the Chicago woman. Frequently she is in business. She runs to short skirts and common sense shoes. She rows, fences and wheels. For all that she wears her Easter clothes like a woman, and when she surrenders her freedom makes a good mother. In the east the large family is the exception; in Chicago it is the rule. Every local woman seems to think herself entitled to the three children set aside for her by Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

The Washington girl—all Washington women are girls until they grow old—is a compromise between the type of the north and the type of the south. She is of the woman womanly. She has peculiar delicateness of face and figure. The bosom is full and the hips beautifully rounded, yet the form is slender. Hands and feet are small. The height is oftener under 5 feet 5 than over it. The eyes are apt to be hazel or dark and are always bright and tender. The eyebrows are somewhat heavy and strongly marked, and the lashes are long. The complexion is singularly clear. The face has great regularity of feature and the average of beauty is high. Washington and New Orleans are the only American cities in which one may see the women walk with Spanish grace. On this account Connecticut avenue, when Easter bonnets cluster, is strangely pleasing. The Washington girl is apt to know politics. She is thoroughly devoted to society. She dresses as well as the New York women, with more of southern lightness to her clothing. If we could have a show—as we have a horse show—in which women could be competently judged point by point, I do not think that the Washington girl would class so high as the New York woman or the Chicago woman, but I believe that most men would prefer her.—Chicago Times-Herald.

His Wealth In Wives.

Customs, as they affect the marital habits of the world, are an endless source of interest to mankind. They diverge widely and are most suggestive of the state of civilization existing in various sections of the world. Economists assert that American men remain single because of their inability to support families, whereas the men of south Africa estimate their wealth according to the number of wives they have taken unto themselves. James O'Haire, a Catholic missionary in Umtata, writes that "whereas civilized man is expected to support his wife, the Pondo leaves to his women folk the privilege of supporting him." He states further that the number of wives a man has settles the question as to his previous wealth, for each wife was bought, and for her he must have paid her father from 8 to 30 oxen. Consequently his wealth may be estimated by the number of wives and children, because the whole transaction may be described as natural human farming. Each daughter is worth, say, ten oxen; if she be comely, she may possibly sell for 20 oxen; then, too, the sons work in the care of cattle, for the Kaffir properties consist entirely of cattle. The women all work, but the head of the family, the man, never works after marriage. "The dignity of labor is so noble a thing that one cannot but admire the complete self abnegation of the polygamous Pondos in leaving it all to the females, and yet the absence of work does not seem to prey upon their spirits." Pondo men are said to be as happy as the day is long. They smoke tobacco and drink beer and eat heartily. They sleep most of the time, then rise and laugh and sing and dance. They are without care or sorrow.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Men In Domestic Service.

Women are certainly striving constantly to occupy the positions of men where brain work is the active principle, and there is now some indication that women may in time be crowded out of the domestic or menial situations. While this will not affect the class of women who are fitted for what is called more elevated places, the sex will, in a measure, be influenced, and, it is claimed, will suffer by giving up their prerogative, for what can be done for the ignorant, untrained woman if she cannot serve in households? Those who have tried men in the various branches of domestic service usually like their work so well as to be unwilling afterward to employ women. In many of the hotels of Europe men are the only servants. As cleaners they are invaluable, because of their strength, and they are also thorough. They have good taste and are found to be excellent housemaids as well as butlers. Many women employ men as maids, especially in traveling, as they can accomplish a greater number of duties than women. A large number of women prefer to arrange their own hair and to costume themselves unaided. It has also been found that in many instances men pack trunks better than women.—Chicago Tribune.

Memories of Wartime.

As on each recurring anniversary the shrill notes of the fife, the rattle of drums and the rhythmical tramping of soldiers will be heard on Memorial day. The valiant old war tunes which stirred the hearts of Grant's and Sherman's armies will again swell from frequent bands. These and the bugle call will sound merry to the crowds gathered along the street, who will applaud, but they will recall the whistle of the bullets to the veterans, who will keep time with short stride as they march behind the tattered remnants of their battle-flags.—Exchange.

After a Long Silence.

IS THROUGH THE HOUSE.

The War Revenue Bill Not Far From Enactment.

Exciting Episode During the Discussion.

Grosvenor of Ohio Accused of Being Under Influence of Liquor.

Washington, June 10.—At last night's session of the house, Mr. Dingley urged the necessity for passing the war revenue bill. He said the house conferees made no effort to eliminate the tax on tea owing to the decisive vote by which the senate had incorporated it. Because the new crop was just about to arrive stocks on hand were very low. The consumption in the country amounted to 100,000,000 pounds annually. Relative to the coinage of silver bullion, Mr. Dingley explained that the provision would result ultimately in an increase of circulation outstanding by the amount of the present seigniorage or about $42,000,000, the provision declaring explicitly that the coinage should proceed at the rate of not less than $1,500,000 per month, and the dollars should be used for the redemption of silver certificates which, when redeemed, should be cancelled. The provision was materially different from the law of 1890.

Mr. Bailey expressed hearty concurrence in what he called the "candid admission of the gentleman from Maine that the coinage feature amounts to nothing and is practically a reiteration of what is already law." He then criticised generally the bill as being chiefly burdensome to those who were least able to bear additional burdens. He attacked especially the provision relating to mixed flour as unconstitutional and was intended not to raise revenue, but to destroy an industry.

Mr. Pierce (Dem., Tenn.) attacked what he declared the negligence of the administration and its failure to relieve quickly the distress in Cuba which had largely precipitated hostilities. "Where now are the starving women and children to whom our warships were to take other ships laden with food?" cried Mr. Pierce. "They are all dead, a member says, and it is true. All that will greet our soldiers and sailors now when they land on Cuban soil will be the bleaching bones of women and children as the monumental evidence of the humanitarian policy of this Republican administration."

Further digression from the bill was indulged in by Mr. Swanson (Dem., Va.), who vigorously dissented from any inclination to turn the war into one of aggression, to end with this country holding great colonial possessions. He attacked the bond and other features of the bill, besides the tobacco taxes. Mr. Swanson criticised the administration in its conduct of the war and antagonized the bill as conducive to the interests of monopolists and the very rich.

Mr. Grosvenor (Rep., O.) made an impassioned response. He said: "Had Sagasta, had Blanco, had Cervera been given the opportunity to make a speech on this occasion, they would not have made so incendiary an appeal against the prosecution of this war as the gentleman from Virginia has uttered. I denounce his unpatriotic and untruthful utterances." Continuing, he was bitterly personal in his declarations, charging the Virginia member with being servile to narrow political motives. "He would starve the soldiers of the Union while he would prattle a little about liberty," said Mr. Grosvenor. He declared it was not possible to frame a speech with "more hostility to the government and more antagonism to the people than the speech of the gentleman from Virginia." He referred to the Virginian as representing a "contestible district." A laugh was created when he referred to the battleship Oregon as having recently "sunk a Confederate torpedo boat." He explained the mistake by the "unpatriotism" of the gentleman from Virginia."

Mr. Swanson in reply said: "The only reason I can give for the unfair, unjust, unpatriotic and untrue, personal attack upon me is that the speaker is in such a condition that he does not know whether he is fighting the Confederate or Spanish forces." He then made an eloquent defense of his district. Later Mr. Swanson again secured the floor and declared his belief that the Ohio member would never have made the "brutal attack had he been sober."

Mr. Grosvenor declared he had attacked the sentiment of the Virginian's speech and not the personality of the member. He denied having referred to the latter's district as "contemptible," and said he had used the word "contestible." This declaration was greeted with hisses and general protests from the Democrats and corroborative expressions from the Republicans. He denounced Mr. Swanson's insinuation that he (Grosvenor) was not sober as a weapon "which no honorable opponent would use" in a debate such as the one in progress. The Democrats jeered and the Republicans applauded the denunciation.

The bill was passed—154 to 107.

The act as approved by the house puts a tax of $2 on all beer, lager beer, ale, porter and other similar fermented liquors, brewed or manufactured and sold or stored in warehouses, or removed for consumption or sale, for every barrel containing not more than 31 gallons; and at a like rate for any other quantity or fractional part of a barrel, with a discount of 7½ percent on all sales by collectors to brewers of the stamps provided for the payment of the tax. An additional proviso was added as follows by the conference: "That the additional tax imposed in this section on all fermented liquor stored in warehouses, to which a stamp had been affixed, shall be assessed and collected in the manner now provided by law for the collection of taxes not paid by stamps."

Special taxes from July 1: Bankers employing a capital not exceeding $25,000, $50; employing a capital exceeding $25,000 for every additional $1000, $2; surplus included in capital. The amount of such annual tax to be computed on the basis of the capital and surplus for the preceding fiscal year. Savings banks having no capital stock, and whose business is confined to receiving deposits and loaning or investing the same for the benefit of their depositors, and which do no other business of banking, are not subject to this tax. Brokers, $50, but any person having paid the special tax as a banker shall not be required to pay the special tax as a broker. Pawnbrokers, $20. Commercial brokers, $10. Custom house brokers, $10. Proprietors of theaters, museums and concert halls in cities of more than 25,000 population, $100. This does not include halls rented, or used occasionally for concerts or theatrical representations. Circuses, $100. No special tax paid in one state is to exempt exhibitions from tax in another state, but one special is to be imposed for exhibitions within any one state. Proprietors or agents of all other public exhibitions or shows for money, not enumerated here, $10. Bowling alleys and billiard rooms, $5 for each alley or table.

In lieu of the tax now imposed by law, a tax of 12 cents per pound upon all tobacco and snuff, however prepared, manufactured and sold or removed for consumption or sale; upon cigars and cigarets manufactured and sold, and removed for consumption, or sale, the following taxes to be paid by the manufacturers: $3.60 per 10000 on cigars weighing more than three pounds per 1000; $1 per pound on cigars weighing not more than three pounds per 1000; $3.60 per 1000 on cigarets weighing more than three pounds per 1000, and $1.50 per 1000 on cigarets weighing not more than three pounds per 1000; provided, that in lieu of the two, three and four ounce packages of tobacco and snuff now authorized by law there may be packages thereof containing one and two-thirds ounces, two and one-half ounces and three and one-third ounces, respectively, and in addition to packages now authorized by law, there may be packages containing one ounce of smoking tobacco.

Dealers in leaf tobacco, whose annual sales do not exceed 50,000 pounds each, $6. Those whose annual sales exceed 50,000 and not 100,000, $12, and if their annual sales exceed 100,000 pounds, $24. Dealers in other tobacco whose annual sales exceed 50,000 pounds, $12. Those selling their own products at the place of manufacture are exempted from this tax. Manufacturers of tobacco whose annual sales do not exceed 50,000 pounds, $6. Manufacturers whose sales exceed 50,000 and not 100,000 pounds, $12; manufacturers whose sales exceed 100,000 pounds, $24. Manufacturers of cigars whose annual sales do not exceed 100,000 cigars, $6; manufacturers whose sales exceed 100,000 and not 200,000 cigars, $12. Manufacturers whose sales exceed 200,000 cigars, $24. Any person who carries on the business for which special taxes are imposed by this act, without having paid the special tax, is made guilty of a misdemeanor, the penalty being a fine of from $100 to $500, or imprisonment for not more than six months, or both. It is provided that until appropriate stamps are furnished, the stamps heretofore used to denote the payment of the internal revenue tax on fermented liquors, tobacco, snuff, cigars and cigarets, may be imprinted with a suitable device to denote the new rate of tax, and shall be affixed to all packages containing articles on which the tax imposed by this act is paid.

Section 10 provides for a tax stamp on telegraph messages, but exempts messages of government officers and employes on official business, and also of telegraph companies over their own lines.

Bank checks, drafts or certificates of deposit not drawing interest or order for payment of money drawn upon or issued by any bank, trust company, etc., two cents. Bills of exchange (inland), drafts, certificates of deposit drawing interest or order for payment of money otherwise than at sight or on demand, or any promissory notes, except bank notes issued for circulation and for each renewal of the same, for not exceeding $100, two cents, and for each additional $100 or fractional part thereof, two cents. Bills of exchange (foreign) or letters of credit, if drawn singly for not exceeding $100, four cents, and for each additional $100 or fractional part thereof, four cents. If drawn in sets of two or more for every bill of each set, where the sum does not exceed $100 in any foreign currency, two cents, and for each additional $100 or fractional part thereof, two cents.

A tax of one cent is imposed for every telephone message for which over 15 cents is charged. Any telegraphic message, one cent. Indemnifying bonds, 50 cents.

Certificate of profit of any association and on all transfers thereof, on each $100 or face value, two cents.

Insurance—On each life policy for each $100, 10 cents on the amount insured. Policies on the industrial or weekly plan, 40 percent of the amount of the first weekly premium. Fraternal beneficiary societies and orders, farmers' local cooperative companies, employes' relief associations, conducted for the exclusive benefit of members, are exempted.

Insurance (casualty, fidelity and guarantee)—Each policy and bond for performance of duties, or any position or other obligation of the nature of indemnity, and each contract or obligation guaranteeing validity of bonds or other obligations issued by any public body, or guaranteeing titles to real estate or mercantile credits, executed by surety companies upon the amount of premium charged, one-half of one cent on each dollar.

Lease, land or tenament, not exceeding one year, 25 cents; exceeding one year and not exceeding three, 50 cents; exceeding three years, $1.

Manifest for custom house entry or clearance of cargo, if vessels tonnage does not exceed 300 tons, $1; exceeding 300 and not exceeding 600, $3; exceeding 600 tons, $5.

Mortgage of property exceeding $1000 and not exceeding $1500, 25 cents; and on each $500 in excess of $1500, 25 cents.

After five hours devoted to the consideration of the bill to enable volunteer soldiers to vote in congressional elections, the conference report upon the war revenue bill was presented to the house yesterday. Consideration was interrupted by a recess to 8 o'clock, at which hour the report was taken up again and after three hours' debate, involving a wide range of subjects and some sensations, it was adopted, 154 to 107.

Mr. Pierce (Dem., Tenn.) made a vigorous attack upon the prosecution of the war and the alleged delay in sending relief to the Cubans. A sensational feature was the clash between Mr. Grosvenor (Rep., O.) and Mr. Swanson (Dem., Va.) growing out of the former's attack upon the latter's speech in criticism of the revenue bill.

Bay State's Capital.

Boston, June 10.—The formal transfer of the steamship Marmion to the Massachusetts Volunteer Aid association was effected yesterday. A large number of cots will be placed in the saloon, which is to be extended to give additional room.

The first bathing fatality of the season here was reported to the East Boston police yesterday afternoon. Nicholas Hyde, aged 13, was the victim.

John H. Lee was re-elected president of the Democratic city committee by acclamation last evening. The other officers are: Vice presidents, Joseph J. Norton and Stiles Gannett Wells; secretaries, John F. McDonald and Timothy E. McCarthy; treasurer, John H. Sullivan.

The contract for the illumination of the dome of the state house was awarded yesterday, and Boston's great beacon will probably be first seen on the night of July 4. The installation consists of about 500 16-candle-power lamps.

Andy Watson and Billy Hill, the latter better known as "Muldoon's pickaninny," fought 13 rounds to a draw before a South Boston club last night. Hill had his hands full, as Watson did most of the leading. The bout was for 12 rounds, but in the excitement an extra round was fought by mistake.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, June 10.—The house bill relative to trading stamps was sent to the committee on the judiciary by the senate.

Without a word of debate the house bill on the relations of cities and towns to street railway companies was ordered to a third reading.

A bill limiting to $500 the liability of innholders for losses sustained by guests was substituted for an adverse report.

The house bill to prevent over-insurance was amended by Mr. Chamberlain, providing for a return with interest at 6 percent of any over-insurance premiums, and the amended bill was then ordered to a third reading.

The house honored the memory of Elijah A. Morse and adopted resolutions expressive of sympathy and regret. It is the general belief that the legislature will not adjourn until the latter part of next week.

Mr. Lodge's Allegation.

Washington, June 10.—In the senate Thursday Senator Lodge said that when the bill appropriating $388,000 to pay the claim of the Methodist book concern was before the senate he had offered an amendment providing that not more than $5000 should be paid to any agent or lobbyist for working for the bill. His amendment had been received with indignation. "We were assured," said Mr. Lodge, "that no part of the sum appropriated was to be paid to agents; but it now develops that a contract existed for the payment of 35 percent of the proceeds to lobyists, and that one man has received the immense sum of $100,800"

OUR CABLE CUT.

Possibly by Spaniards in Suburbs of Boston.

There is some serious trouble with the telephone trunk line system today, and it has been impossible to get Boston direct or through the exchanges adjoining Quincy. It is also said that it is impossible to communicate with points south of Quincy. Just where the trouble is the operators of the Quincy exchange do not know. It is understood, however, that the trunk line serivce has been burnt out. Men are at work upon the line and it is thought that they will be in working order by night.

ORDERS TODAY.

Capt. Kincaide of Co. K Summoned to Boston.

Capt. Kincaide of Co. K is in Boston this afternoon by orders from headquarters and it is more than probable that arrangements are being made for the calling out of that regiment.

To Porto Rico.

A Washington dispatch to the Journal says, there is high authority for the statement that the Sixth Massachusetts, now at Camp Alger, in common with the Sixth Illinois and Eighth Ohio, will be sent to Porto Rico. They will be under the command of Brig. Gen. Garrettson, and are soon to be ordered to Fernandina, Florida. It is believed that the Ninth Massachusetts will also be sent to Porto Rico. Efforts are being made to secure this assignment for it.

Kindly Remembered.

Boston, June 11.—A special to the Herald from Camp Alger says the companies of the Mass. Sixth are often remembered by people at home. Friday all the camps received packages and boxes by express, companies E, C and G being especially favored. Companies C and G each received a barrel of provisions from the children of the Butler school of Lowell, and blue neckerchiefs from the children of the Congregational churches of Lowell. Company E got wall pockets, sponges, provisions and pails for bathing purposes for each tent. J. J. Valentine also brought out a large package of smoking tobacco for each tent.

Miscreants at Work.

It has recently came to light that some miscreant is getting in his work in Quincy centre. His particular delight seems to be in cutting plate glass windows in the stores on Hancock street. The windows look as though a person who wore a diamond ring had passed along and for pure deviltry had made a cut on the glass. In some cases these cuts are quite deep and go across the full length of the glass, while in other cases it looks as though the party had tried to make a scroll upon the glass. The windows of the Boston store, H. L. Kincaide & Co., C. F. Pettengill and the post-office seem to have received the worse cuts.

ARMY OF THE FLOTILLA

The Delay Is Regarded as Highly Unfortunate.

Postponed Operations In Santiago For Vessels.

Expectation That All Anchors Will Be Weighed Monday Sometime.

Washington, June 11.—Time alone will determine whether there was sufficient cause for delaying the Santiago expedition at Key West. In the meantime the delay is regarded as highly unfortunate. It postpones operations at Santiago for a week at least, for Sampson has been obliged to send so many of his best ships to act as convoys that further attempts at land operations with marines will be impracticable.

The storming of the Spanish stronghold with the comparatively small force left at the disposal of Admiral Sampson might result unfortunately to our men. It would require the massing of our troops and the pressing of the battle to a focus, but with a command as great as will be at the disposal of the American commanders upon the arrival of reinforcements, the Spanish fortifications and strongholds can be stormed in detail, forcing them to divide their garrisons. Late advices place the Spanish forces in the Santiago fortifications at 6000 men.

The development of Friday was an order to Admiral Sampson to furnish additional safeguards which the navy deemed so absolutely necessary, but this cannot be done before Sunday, so that the army of the flotilla will be kept idle at Port Tampa until Monday.

It is now proposed to make a great naval procession of the advancing army in order that the quartet of "Spanish warships," which seems to have escaped from nowhere, shall be duly impressed with the futility of attempting an attack. There is no doubt that the appearance of 16 men of war will be quite imposing, and undoubtedly the "Spanish warships" will run away. In fact they are really not likely to be heard of again.

The war board, with its system of securing accurate knowledge of the whereabouts of the enemy's vessels, was nonplussed at the appearance of new and unknown cruisers. It is now making every effort to learn the names and character of these additions to the Spanish squadron. Mysterious and visionary as the Spanish warships seem to be, they are nevertheless real and concrete enough to block the movement of the army.

A False Alarm, Perhaps.

Fort Monroe, June 11.—Intense excitement was caused last night shortly after 9 o'clock by a dispatch received from the signal station at Cape Henry, stating that Spanish warships were lurking in that vicinity. A short while later a message was received from Washington instructing the commandant of the fort to be on the alert.

The big searchlight began to sweep the bay and signals were flashed to the Minneapolis, Dixie and the dynamite cruiser Buffalo, which are anchored off Old Point. Quarters were sounded and the crews hastily prepared the ships for action. The gunners took positions at their posts, where they were ordered to remain during the night. The searchlights were playing on the waters. In the fort ammunition was hurried to the big guns and the troops ordered to their posts.

A dispatch from Washington, stating that one of the vessels seen was probably a German freighter, had a tendency to allay the excitement among the guests at the hotels, but the officers did not relax their vigilance.

Austria Declines to Start.

Vienna, June 11.—The government has declined to initiate mediation between the United States and Spain, as it wishes to avoid the appearance of making intervention seem only a dynastic action in the interest of the queen regent, which, perhaps, might give fatal offense to many parties in Spain. Nevertheless, a decided opinion is held that the time for intervention is very near at hand, although a hesitation to take the first step is evident everywhere. The probability is that Russia will undertake the initiative. It is known that the American government has become more approachable on the subject of intervention.

With regard to the Philippines no doubt exists in official circles in Vienna that the islands cannot remain in the hands of America. The insurgents will reject all foreign control and, moreover, it is scarcely conceivable that America could provide a sufficient force to enable her to take full possession of so extensive a group of islands. The probability is that the powers will find a way out of the difficulty by establishing a sort of protectorate, which, perhaps, England might undertake. One fact, however, is incontrovertible—the united cabinets are agreed that the Philippines must remain an open market for the commerce of the world.

The Monterey Delayed.

San Diego, June 11.—The Monterey and her coal consort, the Brutus, supposed to be speeding towards Honolulu and Manila, were sighted at noon Friday steaming south towards San Diego at a good rate of speed. Paymaster Rogers and an ensign came ashore. Rogers stated that they had simply dropped in for coal and water, and would sail this afternoon for Honolulu. Being asked if there was anything the matter with the engines, machinery, or crew, he said: "Nothing whatever. All is well on board." Coal is now being taken on. The ensign stated that they met heavy weather the second day out and lost overboard 83 tons of coal which were secured in the netting.

Shafter a Blockader.

Tampa, June 11.—The trial of John Young and James Johnson, colored members of the Tenth cavalry, is now in progress at Barrow before the circuit court. They have been indicted for the murder of Joab Collins, who was killed in a melee while the soldiers were encamped at Lakeland. Great difficulty was experienced by the sheriff in obtaining witnesses. He made application to General Shafter at Port Tampa for two witnesses, but the general refused to give him the men.

A corporal of the national guard of the District of Columbia was severely injured by unknown persons. It is thought his skull is fractured.

The action of two strangers, who proved to be Spaniards, has excited considerable suspicion. They have driven out toward the lake from which water is obtained for ships in the harbor. A company will be dispatched over the bay to guard the lake, as well as the tanks supplied from it, and the strangers be arrested.

Spanish Activity In Santiago.

Kingston, Jam., June 11.—Conservative authorities believe the United States troops will have to carry out their plan of campaign without placing much reliance upon the insurgents. Several officers have made trips ashore and taken observations of the interior harbor and the fortifications, locating the exact positions of Admiral Cervera's four ships. It is hardly likely, however, that the Spanish admiral keeps them moored at the same place both day and night.

The naval officers have been doing splendid and daring work in carrying communications to the insurgents, landing arms and making trips ashore for the purpose of gaining information. Upon the Suwanee and Vixen this work has been chiefly devolved.

During the last few days the activity of the Spaniards has been particularly noticeable. Oxen trains have been making their way to the batteries; detachments have been working on emplacements, and there have been other signs showing that the Spaniards are preparing a desperate resistance. Some guns from Admiral Cervera's ships may be removed to the forts. The insurgents, about 5000 strong, have taken a position on a mountain to the westward. Two thousand insurgents of this gathering are unarmed. General Maximo Gomez, now about 150 miles inland, is making his way toward the coast.

To Force the Passage.

Kingston, Jam., June 11.—It is believed the navy will follow the landing of troops by forcing the passage of the narrow channel leading to the harbor of Santiago, fishing up the sunken mines and compelling Admiral Cervera to make a stand. If the destruction of the Spanish fleet is successfully carried out it will end the last vestige of Spanish dominion in eastern Cuba. The harbor of Guantanamo is completely under the control of the American fleet, and the landing of marines at that point is expected to occur simultaneously with the landing of troops at Santiago.

Bombarded Baiquiri.

Havana, June 11.—Friday several American warships bombarded Baiquiri, some distance east of Aguadores and near the railway line to Santiago. Official advices from Santiago say that the bombardment "caused no damage." Baiquiri is a mining locality, and some of the mines are under American control.

Explosion of a Torpedo.

Jacksonville, June 11.—A torpedo exploded while being tested at St. John's bluff yesterday, instantly killing J. J. O'Rourke and Edward Houston of this city, seriously injuring Lieutenant Harts of the United States engineer corps, and painfully wounding a stenographer named Barnham and a negro laborer.

For several weeks Lieutenant Harts has been engaged in laying mines in the river at the bluff. He has been assisted in the work by O'Rourke, who for a number of years had been line foreman of the Western Union Telegraph company. Friday O'Rourke and Houston were near the cable house testing a torpedo. Harts was about 15 feet away, and the stenographer and negro a few yards distant. O'Rourke had the testing wires in his hands and Houston was bending over the deadly explosive.

In some unaccountable manner O'Rourke connected the battery wire with the firing plug instead of the testing plug, and a terrific explosion took place. Houston was blown to atoms. O'Rourke was instantly killed, but was not very badly mutilated. Lieutenant Harts was struck in the small of the back and in the head by pieces of the shell. Barnham and the negro were also struck by pieces of the torpedo.

By strange coincidence O'Rourke's father was killed by the premature explosion of a shell. After the war, he was digging the ground at Fort Sumter, when his pick struck a shell lying embedded in the earth, which exploded, killing him instantly.

J. W. Keifer of Ohio.

Washington, June 10.—Secretary Alger expressed his gratification at the nomination by the president of J. Warren Keifer of Ohio to be a major general in the volunteer army. He said that by virtue of his brilliant record in the civil war and his physical condition, General Keifer was admirably equipped to re-enter the army. The secretary caused to be prepared from the records of the war department a statement of the services of Keifer during the war.

Boston Opinion.

Boston, June 11.—"Admiral Sampson has hewn out a path for the army to land near Santiago, and now is the time to strike," says The Journal.

"The revulsion of feeling in Madrid and throughout Spain is said to be intense and the Spanish people," The Advertiser argues, "have a right to feel that they have been duped in a useless and unpardonable manner."

"Why not force the fighting at vital points and end the war, which has already lasted much longer than the disproportionate strength of the two nations justifies?" The Post asks.

A Lack of Sociability.

Chicago, June 11.—At a convention of social Democrats yesterday Treasurer James Hogan accused his predecessors in office of incompetence or worse. Delegates in an uproar demanded that Secretary Keliher be given a chance to answer the charges. The secretary declared he would answer in writing when they were preferred in writing.

"I HAVE NOT RESIGNED"

Chamberlain's Answer to Critics of a Recent Speech.

Lampooned by the Leader of the Liberals.

Stricutres on the Irish Strongly Resented by John Dillon.

London, June 11.—Sir William Harcourt, the Liberal leader in the house of commons, in asking information in the house as to the foreign policy of the government, criticised at length the recent speech of Mr. Chamberlain, secretary of state for the colonies, in Birmingham. He referred ironically to the "pitiful spectacle of the secretary of state for the colonies standing, cap in hand, before the powers, and seeking an alliance," remarking: "The Chinese question must be settled in friendship and concert with Russia." He asked if it would not have been better for Chamberlain to "postpone his insults to Russia" until the talked-of alliance had been secured.

SIR WILLIAM VERMON HARCOURT.

Mr. Chamberlain, on rising to reply, was received with government cheers and Irish hisses. He denied that there was any discrepancy between himself and other members of the cabinet. "I believe," he said, "that our interests are much more closely allied to the interests of Germany than to those of Russia. The cabinet is not responsible for every single word uttered by its members; but it is responsible for every declaration of policy and every important statement of fact. If there had been a difference of opinion between Lord Salisbury and myself, it would have been my duty to resign. That is my answer to all these charges. I have not resigned, and I have not been rejected by the prime minister. Therefore there is solidarity." Mr. Chamberlain declared that the object of his Birmingham speech was "not to lay down a policy, but to state facts to the country as to what I conceive to be the conditions and great problems we are called upon to face." The speech, he continued, had been made; and there was not one word of it that he intended to withdraw. Great Britain could stand alone; but, in that case, she could not exercise the controlling influence she had hitherto exercised in China. "So long as we are without an alliance," he said, emphatically, "it will be impossible to preserve the independence of China against inroads."

JOHN DILLON.

Repeating the leading features of his Birmingham speech, Mr. Chamberlain declared: "If it became known that we were willing to consider an alliance, it is not unlikely that advances would be made to us. A mutual understanding with one of the great powers would save a very large addition to the navy." In concluding he referred to the "importance of a close understanding with America," adding: "In my opinion on such a matter the United States would not listen to the Irish vote." Whether England or America were menaced, he said, he hoped it would be found that blood was thicker than water, and without desiring to force either nation to enter an alliance with which a majority of both peoples did not thoroughly sympathize, he would repeat his conviction that the closer, the more defined and the clearer the alliance between the United States and England, the better it would be for both nations and for civilization. Mr. Chamberlain's speech ended amid loud cheers from the government benches.

John Dillon, the Irish leader, protested against Mr. Chamberlain's insults to the Irish in America.

Sir Charles Dilke's motion for a reduction in the foreign office vote as a rebuke to the government's foreign policy was then rejected by a vote of 254 against 148.

In a speech in favor of his position the mover said that England's relations with the United States were due to the influence of Ambassador Pauncefote and not to the government. "Everyone will welcome an alliance of hearts with America," he continued, "but no alliance could be a war alliance."

Debate In the Commons.

London, June 11.—Sir Charles Dilke, member for the Forest of Dean division of Gloucestershire, in the house of commons yesterday, moved a reduction in the foreign office vote and attacked the

FRUIT AND FLOWERS

SWEET PEA CULTURE.

Advice About Training, Fertilizing and Watering—Picking the Flowers.

Sweet pea seed, as is well known, is sown early. In regard to the care and training of the plants, a writer in Gardening advises as follows: For supports employ either light brush or wire netting. The latter is perhaps the cheapest and best. That of three inch mesh is the most serviceable, and it should be at least 3 feet 6 inches high, increasing the height according to the vigor shown by the plants in any particular soil or location. Stakes driven on either side of the line will be required to support the wire, and they should be four feet apart and arranged with such alternation as will insure to those on opposite sides of the line a space of two feet apart. It will be necessary occasionally to run a light string along the line, fastening the vines in position to the wire. This applies also where coarse brush is employed.

Sweet peas are gross feeders, and delight in plentiful supplies of water during dry weather. Wood ashes are good for them, and a mulching of thoroughly decayed manure or grass mowings from the lawn can be applied with advantage.

Flowers should be closely picked every day so as to prevent the formation of seed pods. If the flowers are allowed to remain on the vines, the seeds will speedily mature in hot weather and shorten the flowering season very materially. Where plantations of any considerable extent are made varieties to name are preferable to mixtures, however fine the latter may be.

The varieties are so numerous and all are so beautiful that a good selection is rather difficult to make, but the following will be found valuable in their respective colors: White, Blanche Burpee and Emily Henderson; mauve shades, Emily Eckford and Princess May; blue shades, Captain of the Blues, Boreatton and Duke of Clarence; rose and pink shades, Apple Blossom, Blanche Ferry, Early Blanche Ferry, Peach Blossom, Duke of York, Katherine Tracy, Mrs. Gladstone and Royal Robe; scarlet and crimson, Brilliant, Ignea, Cardinal and Mars; shades of yellow, Mrs. Eckford, Lady Beaconsfield and Alice Eckford; variegated, America, white, red and pink; Aurora, orange and white; Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain, white and rose, and Princess of Wales, mauve and white.

The journal mentioned illustrates that highly praised novelty of the season, Stella Morse, a rich creamy buff, the edge deepening into rose pink.

Annuals For the Flower Garden.

Among the annuals growing from seeds nothing is better than the nasturtium. It will give great satisfaction in almost any part of the country, but seems to be peculiarly adapted to the New England states and often reaches its highest degree of perfection in the almost barren soil of the seashore. Seeds can be sown in the ground by the 15th of May. The soil should be only moderately rich. The dwarf varieties are best for beds. The plants bloom in great profusion and come in a variety of tints and colors. Tropæolum majus is the climbing variety of nasturtium.

Besides the foregoing, a writer in Vick's Magazine mentions as desirable annuals the phlox drummondi, Chinese pinks, poppies, marigold, calliopsis, helianthus, asters, verbena, sweet alyssum, portulaca, salpiglosis, collinsia, godetia, gilia, Gaillardia mimulus, nicotiana, nigella, mirabilis and petunia.

The Boston Sword Fern.

Dr. Hexamer says of all his plants there is not one that has given him such pleasure as the Boston sword fern. It has been easy to grow and has grown so easily to such a superabundance of fronds as to be a wonder to passersby whenever he wheels it out to the front through the winter whenever the temperature is above 50 degrees. This bath is to wash it free from dust. It is potted in soil that is a large part leaf mold. It is never allowed to become quite dry. More plants, Dr. Hexamer says, die from standing in water than from any other cause.

For Carnation Rust.

A writer in an English paper gives this recipe for preventing rust in carnations, which he received from a gardener in Germany, whose plants were unusually fine and in healthy condition. He mixes 2 pounds of vitriol and 4 pounds of freshly slaked lime in 27 gallons of water and stirs well together until it is clear, not blue, and then he adds 2 pounds of sugar and mixes all again. With this he syringes his plants once a week, early in the day. The syringing should be done quickly, finely and evenly.—Exchange.

PRESIDENT McKINLEY REVIEWING THE VOLUNTEERS AT CAMP ALGER, MAY 28. FROM HARPER'S WEEKLY.

AFTER A DRAWING BY G. W. PETERS. Reproduced from Harper's Weekly. By Permission. Copyright, 1898, by Harper & Brothers.

On the twenty-eighth of last month the President of the United States, for the first time in thirty years, inspected the condition and witnessed the manœuvres of an army prepared to take the field against the enemies of the nation. This notable review took place at Camp Alger, twelve miles from Washington, where 14,000 men of the National Guard of eight states have been sworn into the Federal service and are encamped, awaiting orders to go to the front.

President McKinley is an old soldier and his long and active experience in the Civil war has taught him the strength and weakness of volunteer armies. The parade, therefore, was no mere formal matter—it meant business. No detail in the appearance of the men and their equipment escaped the trained and watchful eye of the President, and he was constantly pointing out to Secretary Alger, who stood beside him, the visible evidences of the lack of preparation for active campaigning. It must be acknowledged that such defects were extremely noticeable, but the President was assured that the equipment would be throughly completed before another week was over.

From a spectacular point of view the parade was completely satisfactory, and the march past, as illustrated by a picture in Harper's Weekly, was stirring and impressive. The enthusiasm and physical condition of the soldiers envoked much admiration from the President's party, and all the military authorities agreed that the hardy looking men with proper accoutrements and arms would make as fine a body of troops as could be wished for.

After the review President McKinley made a long tour of inspection around the camp, in order to satisfy himself concerning its condition by personal and careful observation. Every regiment greeted him with hearty cheers, and officers and privates were unanimous in their satisfaction over his visit. Indeed the entire nation is to be congratulated that its present Executive is desirous and fitted to take an active and effective part in preparing the forces of the country for war.

WOMAN AND HOME.

A LONDON COOKING SCHOOL THAT HAS MADE ITS FOUNDER RICH.

A fortune with her frying pan is what Mrs. A. B. Marshall, a handsome young English woman, can boast of having earned. Her fortune is as large and solid as the most ambitious could hope to win in the Klondike, and her establishment is one of the most important in all London. A number of years ago she laid the foundation of her present prosperity by opening a modest but very practical school of cookery. At first there were small classes of ladies who gathered under Mrs. Marshall's personal instruction in a couple of little rooms, yet so ably did she teach them that her fame spread abroad, and women wishing for regular employment as cooks came to her for training.

This development of her calling gave her the idea of opening an establishment in London where every detail of the kitchen need, supply and comfort would be carefully and scientifically considered. To this day the business goes under the title of "Marshall's School of Cookery," but any one who visits the establishment on Mortimer street realizes that this plucky woman has done something more than carry on a school. The department of instruction is maintained as vigorously as ever, and every one, from duchesses to draymen's wives, in need of kitchen lore come to these classes for training, but the business has a dozen equally as valuable branches. One of the most important is the intelligence office, to which householders resort when in search of cooks and to which cooks come in quest of employment.

Clergymen's wives in from the country and countesses in their carriages patronize this intelligence office, where the cooks registered are all trained and vouched for by the firm. When a woman graduates from the cooking school, she is given a diploma, which is a high recommendation wherever she may apply.

Across the hall from the intelligence office is the supply bureau, from which customers are sold all imaginable daintiss, canned, boxed and bottled, and such fancy groceries as Mrs. Marshall herself refines and prepares. Next to this is the editor's office—for the firm publishes its own series of recipe books, and an attractive little monthly budget of kitchen news, containing advice to cooks, recipes, etc. On leaving this department one passes into the shop where kitchen utensils are sold. Here the latest improvements in coal, charcoal, gas and electric stoves are exhibited, with the most recent inventions in wood, copper, tin, iron and aluminium utensils.

In addition to all these departments is the exhibition hall. In spring and autumn the graduating classes are examined and show their prowess here, and the patrons of the house are invited in to taste of the new dishes of Mrs. Marshall's invention and to see her cooks at work. The hall is then filled with long tables set luxuriously as for dinners, luncheons, suppers or breakfasts. The most recent patterns in menus, floral and fruit decorations, the arrangement of roses and the lighting of tables are displayed, and the whole exhibition is accompanied by a series of lectures on the culinary art.—Chicago Record.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning June 12. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Christian courage; examples from books or life.—Mark x, 32-34; Acts xxi, 10-14.

Christian history is replete with illustrations of courage of the highest character. There have been times in the history of the world when it required the greatest physical and moral courage to confess Christ and to stand firmly by Christian faith and duty. In many places in the world today similar courage is demanded. These demands for Christian courage have been faithfully met, both in the past and in the present. For their faith in Christ men have been willing to hazard their lives and not a few have willingly stood the supreme test itself and have sacrificed their lives for the sake of their religious convictions. If we were to call the roll of earth's honored dead, we would find upon it the names of an innumerable multitude, who died as martyrs to their Christian faith, and of a countless host of others who, although not called upon to suffer martyrdom, yet displayed matchless courage and heroism in the defense of their faith. All honor to Christianity's courageous dead, and may their spirit fall upon the disciples of Christ today and their example inspire us to noble, heroic and self sacrificing deeds for Christ and humanity!

Christ Himself heads the long list of courageous Christians, if we may so speak of Him. He Himself has left us a matchless example of the courage that should possess all Christians in battling against wrong and injustice and in performing the duties of life. Long before His death He knew that He must die as a martyr, and yet unflinchingly and steadfastly He turned His face toward Jerusalem to meet the crisis of His life, and when it came, with a calm courage and fortitude that impressed itself upon all who saw Him die, He gave His life for the world. It has been well said, "Socrates died like a philosopher, but Christ like a god." Only divinity itself could explain His calm courage, His sublime trust in God, Himself and the issues of His life and death.

Paul the apostle certainly ranks next to Christ in the category of brave and heroic Christians. Luke gives us in the topical reference an illustration of Paul's courage. Paul is at Cæsarea on his way to Jerusalem after his last great missionary journey. A certain prophet named Agabus came down from Jerusalem, "took Paul's girdle and bound his own hands and feet and said, "Thus sayeth the Holy Ghost, so shall the Jews at Jerusalem bind the man who owneth this girdle and shall deliver him into the hands of the gentiles." Then all tried to persuade Paul not to go to Jerusalem, but he bravely replied, "What mean ye to weep and to break my heart, for I am ready not to be bound only, but to die at Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus?" Nor was this magnificent language a mere idle boast. Paul meant it, and he proved it by his subsequent history. Let us receive an inspiration from the examples of Christ, Paul and all heroic Christians.

Bible Readings.—Num. xiii, 20; Deut. xxxi, 6; Joshua i, 6, 7; Judg. iv, 14-16; vii, 15-23; II Sam. x, 9-13; II Chron. xix, 8-11; Ez. x, 1-4; Ps. xxvii, 14; xxxi, 24; Isa. xli, 6, 7; Dan. vi, 10-23; I Cor. xvi, 13; Eph. vi, 10-18.

The Sense of Sin.

The missionary among people whom we complacently call "heathen" is often asked if he finds them ready to confess that they are sinners. He must answer yes or no according to the point of view and according to the meaning intended by the questioner. Unconverted people at home and abroad are essentially alike in this matter. They will tell you that they do not claim to be better than their neighbors and that they are well aware of coming far short of perfection, though they will doubtless also resent any suggestion as to particular instances that they are not quite as good as anybody whom you chance to know and that they are not really examples to many who make louder pretensions.—Commonwealth (Baptist).

A Leader and Commander.

There is deep significance in the prophecy that the Messiah should be given as "a leader and commander to the people." There must always be a head. Every flock must have its shepherd; every tribe must have its chief; every nation must have its leader. To be adequately led, to be wisely commanded, is one of the deepest needs of the human race. Instinctively the people seek for a leader; especially at the time of any perilous crisis, the cry of their hearts is, Who shall lead and guide us?—Reformed Church Messenger.

Truth Is Truth.

There are times in the history of every individual, as well as every church, where things look blue. When there is a going back on the truth once attained, and when the ordinances of worship are corrupted, and when men who once spoke out against the inroads of corruption become silent as the grave, it looks blue for the rest of the faithful ones. But no matter who comes or who goes, truth is truth and God is true to it.—Christian Instructor.

The Purpose of Life.

Do the tears that arise in the heat of the strife
Seem to hide from your vision the purpose of life?
Do the myriad cares of laborious days
Leave a doubt in your heart whether living them pays?

Banish doubt and plead on. Life was given to man
As a part of creation's mysterious plan.
Each must carry what burden the years may bestow
Until burdens and bearers alike are laid low.

At the end of the road is a couch and a pall,
And it may be the couch is the end of it all,
Or it may be the spirit, released from the clod,
Shares the freedom of time with the infinite God.

'Tis but folly to dig into moss covered creeds.
Let your life be a record of generous deeds.
Not the wisest may fathom futurity's plan,
But the weakest may live as becometh a man.
—Frank Putnam in London Public Opinion.

Henry H. Faxon—Houses, rooms, etc., to let.

Good Afternoon.

The next time the City Council undertakes to instruct the Public Library in patriotism it will do well to make a prelimiary investigation as to whether there is anything of this sort lacking in that quarter. The order instructng the library authorities to hang out a flag had been anticipated by several weeks.—Herald.

Such an order seems to be more necessary in Quincy.

Car Run to Weymouth.

The first car to run over the Quincy avenue line was number 48 which left Quincy at 8.10 last night in charge of Conductor Polin and Motorman John Conlan.

On the car were noticed President John R. Graham, John F. Merrill, B. J. Weeks, John A. Duggan, Arthur W. Newcomb, Eugene C. Hultman, Fred W. Austin, George Magee, F. W. Crooker and others.

The citizens along the line were delighted to see that their hopes were at last realized.

Soon after reaching the Neck the car was met by Selectman J. P. Hayward John Kelley, N. F. Hunt, C. A. Hayward J. F. Sheppard and F. E. Hayward who were taken aboard. When the car reached the bridge the party was taken over to Kelley's store and given the best that the house afforded.

The trip was made without a slip of any kind and the officials expressed themselves as well pleased with the manner in which the work has been done.

ANOTHER CONTEST.

Prize Already Assured for High School Pupils.

Mr. Henry H. Faxon offers for a third time liberal prizes for excellence in declamation at the Quincy High school.

The prizes for excellence in English composition, and in translation from Greek, Latin, German and French, are offered by Mr. Luther S. Anderson and Mr. Faxon. As the number of pupils at the High school next September will probably reach 475, and as the brightest and most ambitious girls and boys are beginning already to think of the next contest, there will be a large number of contestants.

The High school is extremely fortunate in having friends who are willing to show their interest in such a tangible way.

It will be remembered that Mr. Wendell G. Corthell furnished the prizes for declamation for four years, and that Dr. Joseph M. Sheahan has furnished the prizes for essays and translations, for six years. Mr. George W. Morton, also, gave consolation prizes one year to those contestants who were not otherwise provided for.

The judges of declamations have been:

1893—Mr. Sylvester Brown, Mr. Edward Southworth and Mr. John W. McAnarney.

1894—Mr. William R. Tyler, Miss Carrie E. Small, Mr. T. Henry Wason.

1895—Mr. Theophilus King, Mr. Rupert F. Claflin and Hon. James Thompson.

1896—Hon. Charles Francis Adams, 2d, Mrs. C. Theodore Hardwick and Mr. James F. Harlow.

1897—Rev. William Gallagher, Ph.D., Dr. Horace Mann Willard and Dr. Joseph M. Sheahan.

1898—Hon. Russell A. Sears, Miss Mary W. Dewson and Mr. Walter S. Pinkham.

The judges of essays and translations have been:

1893—Mr. Merton E. Keith, Miss M. Elizabeth Hardwick and Mr. James F. Harlow.

1894—Mrs. Frederick A. Claflin, Miss Mary L. Flint and Mr. Henry M. Wright.

1895—Miss Mabel E. Adams, Miss Kate A. Raycroft, Mr. James F. Harlow and Mr. Charles H. Porter, Jr.

1896—Mrs. Albert F. Schenkelberger, Mrs. Frederic A. Tupper, Miss Minnie J. Pratt, Miss Florence Hayes, Mr. Robert B. Porter.

1897—Rev. Walter R. Breed, Dr. H. C. Hallowell, Mrs. Everett C. Bumpus, Mrs. James E. Bagley, Mrs. C. Theodore Hardwick and Mrs. William E. Alden.

1898—Rev. William Gallagher, Ph.D., Dr. Horace Mann Willard, Mr. James A. Beatley, Mrs. Albert Schenkelberger, Mrs. W. G. A. Pattee, and Mr. Charles Theo. Hardwick.

Trophies for Handicap Races.

The committee having in charge the handicap races of the Quincy Yacht club—Secretary Whiting and Mr. William H. Shaw—have announced that the awarding of trophies will be based on the following conditions:

A Quincy Yacht club penant will be awarded the winning yacht in each race.

At the end of the season a championship trophy will be awarded to the yacht winning the highest percentage.

Percentages for each race will be figured as follows:

100 per cent. for winning first place.

75 per cent. for winning second place.

50 per cent. for winning third place.

25 per cent. for each other yacht completing the course within the time limit.

The total amount of percentage will be divided by five,—the number of handicap races.

It is probable that the championship trophy will be a handsome silver loving cup.

George Odiorne Dead.

George Odiorne, formerly of Quincy and for many years an attache at Downer Landing, died suddenly at 3 A. M. yesterday at Crow Point, Downer Landing, where he has resided for several years. He was for many years connected with the Melville Gardens there, in charge of the main entrance. He was about 65 years old. The cause of his death is supposed to be heart disease. He was working about the grounds on Wednesday, although suffering from a severe cold.

Lunch at Opening.

Messrs John P. Squire & Co. of Boston, the well known provision men, have kindly donated the hams, frankforts, etc, for the collation to be served to the general public this afternoon at the opening of the new street railway extension to Weymouth. A cart load of these provisions arrived early this morning and there will be enough to give everybody a lunch. This collation will be served under the direction of Caterer Nash.

TO FRAMINGHAM.

Co. K Will be Recruited and Mustered Next Week.

Col. Whitney of the Fifth Regiment was in Washington Thursday, in the interests of his regiment, which is anxious to go to the front. He is said to have been successful, and it is probable that Co. K will go to Framingham next week.

Massachusetts will be requested to furnish one infantry regiment, armed and equipped, and this will necessarily be the Fifth. Then it will be necessary for company commanders to commence recruiting their companies, for each company will have to number 106 officers and men. When a company commander has his company full, the United States mustering officer, Capt. Weaver, will visit the company's station, muster the men and probably send them to Framingham, where the regiment will doubtless be assembled.

The above is confirmed by the Journal which says: Gov. Wolcott was asked Friday morning if the current reports that the Fifth Regiment would be accepted as part of the State's quota under the second call for volunteers were true. Gov. Wolcott said that assurances had been received that the Fifth would be accepted by the War Department. They had been received by him personally, he added. He expressed no doubt that the Fifth would have an opportunity to go to the front.

Entertained Teachers.

The entertainment at the annual meeting of the Quincy Teachers' Association Wednesday evening was furnished by pupils of the High school. It included the following numbers:

Piano solo, Miss Dunbar, 1900.

Recitation, "Driving Home The Cows," Miss Mitchell, '99.

Vocal solo, Miss Phelan, 1900. Accompanied by Miss Dunbar.

Violin solo, Mr. Emerson Bates, 1901. Accompanied by Mr. Fred Mitchell, 1901.

Recitation, "The Revolutionary Rising in 1776," Miss Mitchell.

Violin solo, Mr. Bates, Accompanied by Mr. Mitchell.

The entertainment was extremely pleasing throughout, and reflected great credit on the pupils.

Street Railway Rumor.

It is rummored that the Rockland & Abington Street Railway may purchase the control of the Braintree & Weymouth Street Railway and that they very much desire a through line to the Braintree depot and to the Beach via East Weymouth, also to the Weymouth Park. It is said also that the Brockton road would be interested in such a deal as they desire to run through eight-wheelers to the East Weymouth depot to connect with the third rail.—Weymouth Gazette.

Used the Mail for Fraud.

A Boston paper reports that Harry Johnson, 30 years of age, of Quincy, was brought before United States Commissioner Fiske, yesterday, upon a charge of having used the mail in an alleged scheme to defaud. He is alleged to have corresponded by mail in connection with an advertisement in a Swedish newspapers regarding alleged obscene literature. His case was continued until June 13 for examination, and he was allowed to go on his own recognizance.

The rails have arrived for the double track between City Square and Adams street and between Squantum street and Neponset bridge.

Although the morning was threatening and it sprinkled at noon, the street railway has a nice pleasant afternoon for the opening of the Quincy avenue line.

Some of the stores have posted signs in their show windows to the effect that they are to close Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings at 6 o'clock.

Messrs. Sheahan the contractors building the sewer on Hancock street, Wolaston, have struck an unusual large amount of quicksand, and are experiencing considerable difficulty in building the sewer.

The concrete sidewalk on Washington street between the Universalist church and Pond street is a completed and will be ready for use as soon as it has hardened a little. It is a great improvement over the old gravel sidewalk.

We recently stated in these columns that our aged and much respected citizen, George H. Locke, came to Quincy in 1841. That was a mistake. He came to Quincy in 1836, and started business in 1841; and has been a constant subscriber to the Patriot to this date.

The Merry Mount Tennis club of Wollaston has again come into possession of its championship cup. Mr. Charles W. Bates challenged Mr. Hackett of New York, who holds the cup, to play for it on Friday. On that day Mr. Bates received a telegram from Mr. Hackett saying that he would not come on and would forfeit the cup.

Last Sunday morning at the Atlantic Memorial church the pastor's discourse was on "Worship" and was filled with inspiring thoughts. The Sunday morning previous he delivered a fine sermon on "Patriotism," broad in it spirit as humanity itself. Sunday evening "Modern Conversation" was the theme of the pastor's talk. At the morning service Miss Susie Hall and Miss Annie Hall sang a duet and in the evening the evening quartette sang the anthem "Father O Hear Us." The Christian Endeavor met at 6.15 as usual. Next Sunday being Floral Sunday the Children's day Christening will be a part of the service.

Little Items of Interest About Town.

At the Pilgrim church, North Weymouth, Sunday morning, Rev. T. H. Vincent will discourse to the children.

At the Porter M. E. church, Lovell's Corner, exercises will be held at 2 P. M. Sunday.

Bridge street, North Weymouth was opened this week to public travel.

Miss Grace Beals of North Weymouth is the happy possessor of a new wheel.

Children's Sunday will be observed tomorrow in several churches of Weymouth by appropriate exercises.

Mrs. Harriet P. Richards, ninety years of age; was buried on Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Her home was in East Weymouth.

Those parents who have not seen the children in the schools working at the Sloyd lessons, should visit the Jonas Perkins grammar school at East Braintree. The exactness and finish of the things made in wood by the graduating class are an important part of an education to both boys and girls.

Father Holland and Rev. H. S. Snyder are to address the Jonas Perkins school on the 23d of June at 2 P. M.

The schooner Joel Sheppard came through the bridge today at East Braintree, and landed a load of coal at Mr. Sheppard's wharf.

Faelten System.

Mr. Carl Faelten, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Reinhold Faelten, gave an exhibition Thursday evening of the fundamental training and musical instruction as taught at the Faelten Piano-forte school, Boston. The large parlors of the Quincy Mansion school were filled with an interested audience of people who had been invited to see the character of this instruction, which differs essentially from the ordinary piano-forte instruction of the past and most of that in vogue at present.

Mr. Faelten, by means of charts explained the features of the system and it was illustrated by a class of young children, some of whom who had been in the school less than a year.

The knowledge of intervals—major and minor scales, transposition and the remarkable feats of memory displayed by the little ones at the piano who played the same theme in different keys as called for at random by the audience was a surprise to all. The playing, too, by children, whose training has been entirely by this system, not only greatly delighted but astonished the hearers. The fingering, the accuracy and delicacy of touch, the appreciativeness of the playing and withall the remarkable precision spoke well of the correctness of the method.

It is a system on a sound scientific basis, in which the haphazard work of too much of the ordinary instruction has no part. This recital was designed to give to those who would naturally be interested in such instruction an opportunity to see its merits. It is proposed to open classes for such fundamental training at the Quincy Mansion school next year as a part of the regular piano-forte work.

Y. M. C. A. Summer Resort.

The popular seashore summer resort of the Young Men's Christian Association at North Lubec, Me., will open July 1st. During the past nine years, hundreds of young men and women and families have found this to be an ideal place. Too much cannot be said about the perfect drainage, climate, etc. Deep sea-fishing in British waters, within a few miles of the wharf. The water is so smooth that a case of sea-sickness is unknown. Skipper Peterson, of the Mt. Hermon School, will have charge of the sailing and fishing parties. Indoor and outdoor sports,—rowing, sailing, bowling and tennis are popular diversions.

Opposition to Blanchard.

The Brockton Enterprise says, there is to be a lively contest for the Republican nomination for county commissioner in Norfolk county. Already the friends of candidates are laying plans to capture delegates to the nominating convention. So far three candidates are prominently mentioned —Thomas Blanchard of Stoughton, the present chairman of the board; John J. Hayes, a leading citizen of Dedham, and Frank A. Fales of Norwood, a prominent citizen of his town and an ex-member of the legislature. Lewis A. Whittaker of Franklin is also spoken of in connection with the nomination, but it is not knownas yet positively that he is in the field.

BROTHERS IN ARMS.

Dembo Factor Has Enlisted Several Sons and Grandsons In the Army.

There are few more interesting characters in the United States than the famous old Seminole chief, Dembo Factor, who, at the age of 114, is boiling over with patriotism and anxious to go to the war. He has enlisted 14 of his sons, grandsons and great-grandsons in the army. Some of them are in the volunteer service and others with the regulars. The aged veteran appeared at Fort Clark a few days before the regiment started for Key West and went to headquarters, accompanied by six of his grandsons who were in the regular army, to beg the officers to allow him to go along with the boys to Cuba.

He, like nearly all other Seminoles on the little reservation, looks more like an African than an Indian, and there must be considerable negro blood in the whole race. They, however, have all the race characteristics of Indians. They speak the Seminole language, many of them being incapable of understanding a word of English, and nothing arouses their indignation quicker than for one to hint that they look like negroes.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The South's Pride In Hobson.

Alabama is proud of her noble young son, who so signally illustrates his state and country in the very jaws of death. Hobson's deed of daring puts the south forward as nothing else could have done on the seas, for the civil war made it impossible for any of the older ranking naval officers in this war to be southern. He shows the sort of metal the south is giving the united country in this time of need.—Montgomery Advertiser.

—No; this country does not need the Phillipines nor any other far off abode of Mongolians and mongrels. If Spain, or any other nation, will pay the cost of the war they might have the Phillipines and welcome. The American policy says the New World for Americans; and the Old World for the nations thereof.—Massachusetts Ploughman.

DEWEY'S FAMOUS FIGHT

Fresh and Graphic Details of the Manilla Victory.

THE SPANIARDS FOUGHT BRAVELY

Paymaster Loud and Surgeon Kindleberger Describe the Famous Battle—The Two Torpedo Boats That Made a Dash at the Olympia—They Were Riddled by the Smaller Guns and One Boat Sank With All on Board—Coolness and Bravery of the Spanish Admiral.

The steamer Belgic arrived at San Francisco recently from Hongkong bringing three Americans who were eyewitnesses of the great naval battle at Manilla. They reached Hongkong by the dispatch boat McCulloch. They are Colonel G. A. Loud, acting paymaster of the dispatch boat McCulloch; Dr. Charles H. Kindleberger, surgeon of the Olympia, and J. C. Evans, gunner of the Boston. Kindleberger and Evans are going home, as their terms of service have expired. Colonel Loud was paymaster of the McCulloch, but was relieved when he reached Hongkong, coming back on leave of absence. Colonel Loud gives a good story of the fight, which he was in a position to watch carefully by the aid of a good glass. He said:

"After leaving Hongkong we steered straight for the Philippines, and as we approached the coast the Baltimore, Boston and Concord were told off to go on in front to see if they could discover anything of the enemy. No enemy, however, was seen, but in Subic bay the Kite came across a couple of small schooners, whose occupants were questioned as to the whereabouts of the Spanish fleet, but without satisfaction, they even pretending not to know where Manilla is. It was about 6 o'clock on Saturday evening when we left Subic bay. We expected to sight the Spaniards every minute, and accordingly steamed slowly along. A sharp lookout was kept and everything was ready for action. Still nothing hove in sight, and late in the evening we arrived outside Manilla bay, entering the broad channel in regular battle order.

"The vessels steamed slowly by Corregidor island, which divides the entrance to Manilla harbor into two channels. There was perfect stillness on each ship of the fleet. The men were at quarters, and everything was in perfect readiness as they steamed slowly through the wide channel to the south of Corregidor island. Six of the ships had passed through unnoticed, when a rattling fire from the shore batteries told that the fleet had been sighted. The shots dropped near the Boston and McCulloch. The McCulloch answered with three shots, and the Boston also fired several shots. None of the projectiles damaged any of the vessels, and after the shots from the Boston and McCulloch no further attention was paid to the fire from the forts. The fleet slowly advanced up the bay to Manilla and arrived opposite the city about 4:30 a. m., when day was breaking.

"We soon made out the Spanish fleet in the harbor of Cavite. Including four small gunboats, there were about 14 vessels altogether drawn up in line, backed and flanked by the batteries of Cavite, which were very heavily mounted, the ordnance including several 10 inch guns. The Spaniards gave us a warm reception, and we soon found that the Don Antonio d'Ulloa and the Reina Cristina (the flagship) carried much heavier guns than we thought. They, however, did no execution, while the broadsides poured by our vessels, as, headed by the Olympia, they steamed across the mouth of the harbor, soon made an impression.

"We fired the port battery and then came around and fired the starboard battery, repeating this operation four or five times. The second time we came around Admiral Montijo came out in the Reina Cristina and gallantry assailed us. We received him warmly, and I do not know how in the world he escaped with his life. While the old admiral was standing on the bridge a shot from one of our vessels blew the bridge clean over, but the admiral somehow escaped, for we saw him afterward calmly pacing the deck. Finally, finding he could do no good, he turned to get back into the harbor, but before he could take shelter an 8 inch shell from the Boston struck his vessel in the stern and set her on fire. Later she sank with some 200 men. The admiral was among those who escaped.

"The Castilla was next to take fire, and the Don Antonio d'Ulloa followed. Two torpedo launches which lay in wait off Cavite attempted to run in with torpedoes against the Olympia, and there were some trying moments for the crew. The shells from the big guns did not succeed in hitting such small objects as they rapidly approached. When within 800 yards of the flagship, the secondary batteries of the Olympia sent in a perfect hail of 6 pound shells, smashing up the leading boat, killing all on board and driving the second launch back on the beach with 12 shot holes through her. This boat was afterward found covered with blood.

ADMIRAL MONTIJO.

"By this breakfast time had arrived, and the commodore gave a signal to haul off a short distance, not going to anchor, however, and the commanding officers had a consultation. The attack was resumed at about 11 o'clock. This time we directed our attention to the Cavite batteries, the Spanish fleet having been practically annihilated. The Baltimore took the lead. She had orders to attack the shore batteries, and she went and did the cheekiest thing of the whole day. The batteries mounted 10 inch guns, a shot from one of which would, if it had struck her, have blown the Baltimore into atoms. The vessel, however, to the admiration of the whole fleet, went in full speed until she got close under the batteries. Then she swung round and let them have it with a vengeance. It was wonderful to see her gallantly sail into the teeth of the guns and silence them.

"Not only the fleet, but all defenses of any importance had by this time been destroyed. I shall not soon forget the sight which the harbor presented. The smoking hulks of the Spanish vessels which had not yet sunk were seen to be strewn with corpses and wounded men, and bodies were floating about in the water. I should think the Spanish lost about 500 men killed and wounded, while on our side not a man was lost and only one badly hurt.

"The first part of the battle lasted over two hours. The steady thunder of the cannon was kept up. The roar was something terrible. The terrific fire was kept up from the forts and Spanish ships upon our fleet. It looked to us from the McCulloch as though our vessels could not possibly survive the fusillade. Heavy shells and solid shot fell around them like hail from the clouds, and many exploded immediately over the ships. At one time I really thought we would be beaten. This was after the fire had been kept up for an hour. It looked as though every gun on the Spanish ships had turned loose on us altogether, and the shore line was a veritable blaze of fire from the batteries. The din was simply indescribable. Tons upon tons of shot fell over our ships. Yes, there was steel enough to sink four fleets.

"Our salvation was the bad marksmanship of the Spaniards. They handled their pieces like boys. Nearly all of their shots went wide of the mark. Most of them were high, flying over the fleet and falling into the bay beyond. Some of the batteries, however, were better trained. Several guns maintained a raking fire on the fleet. Some of our ships were struck by both large and small shots, but no damage of consequence was done."

Surgeon Kindleberger adds a few facts to Colonel Loud's story. He was on the Olympia throughout the fight. He said:

"In the first assault the flagship took the lead, the other vessels following in her wake at four ship lengths. The Spanish fleet was approached by laps, each turn bringing the contestants nearer together. By this plan the American vessels frequently poured broadsides into the enemy, but were themselves more exposed to fire. At one time the smoke became so dense that it was necessary to draw aside to allow the cloud to lift. The vessels were examined, and it was discovered they had sustained no damage. The men were badly fagged by the two hours' work at the guns in the great heat, and breakfast was served. Then they re-entered the fight with the greatest enthusiasm.

"The second fight was even more fierce than the first. It was in that that the Baltimore was struck. During the first fight the Spanish admiral's ship steamed bravely out to the line to meet the Olympia. The entire American fleet concentrated its fire on her, and she was so badly injured that she turned around to put back. At this juncture the Olympia let fly an 8 inch shell, which struck her in the stern and pierced through almost her entire length, exploding finally in the engine room and wrecking her machinery. This shell killed the captain and 60 men and set the vessel on fire.

"The Spanish admiral immediately transferred his flag to the cruiser Isla de Cuba. Several smaller vessels of the American fleet and the Boston centered their fire on this ship, and literally tore her to pieces. The admiral was slightly wounded and escaped in a small boat into Bacoor bay and finally to Manilla."

Gunner Evans of the Boston, who directed the fire of one of the big guns on the cruiser, says that throughout the battle the fighting forces of all the ships were as cool as if engaged at target practice.—New York Sun.

Spanish Chivalry.

Admiral Cervera has proved himself to be a most polished and chivalrous gentleman. His conduct in advising Admiral Sampson of the safety of the crew of the Merrimac and his commendation of their bravery was worthy of the Chevalier Bayard or of Sir Philip Sydney. That he could rise to such a height in the face of the popular clamor against America in Spain shows that he is as brave as he is courteous. That such men as Cervera and the Spaniards at Manilla, who fought until the decks of their ships sank beneath them into the water, should be sacrificed to the cruel and imbecile government of Spain naturally excites pity.—Baltimore Sun.

SPEAKING THE SHIPS.

Untraveled dweller by the haven side,
I saw the great ships come, sojourn a day,
Then set their eager sails, their anchor weigh
And give themselves to rocking wind and tide.
I spake them not, nor they to me replied
Of where their void and lonely journey lay.
Now, since my lips have tasted midsea spray,
In common speech I hail those wanderers wide.
To this, "Proud Scotia gave thy ribs to thee!"
To this, "Thy masts have known the Apennines!"
Or, "Tagus empties where thy frame was planned!"
Or, "Say, thou gallant one, if true it be,
Thou hither camst with hoard of Levant wines
And dulcet fruits from many a sun loved land!"

—Edith M. Thomas in Century.

A FRIENDLY RUSE.

Mr. Garraway stood up as young Mrs. Bradshaw rose from her seat at the dinner table. It had been rather a quiet dinner, and he had had to do nearly all the talking. Bradshaw opened the door, and Mr. Garraway noticed that each avoided looking at the other. Ernest Bradshaw closed the door and came back to the table. He cracked a walnut, and on opening it threw it into the fire.

"Bad?" said Mr. Garraway. He was starting a cigar and he had refilled his glass. He was perfectly at home with the Bradshaws.

"Yes," said young Mr. Bradshaw violently. "Of course it's bad. Worst of it is that you never know until you try."

Mr. Garraway owed his success as a solicitor mainly to knowing exactly when not to do the wrong thing. Young Bradshaw lighted a cigar and after a few puffs let it go out. Then he stood up with his back to the fire—it was his fire—and looked at Garraway.

"I want to ask you something, Garraway. Do you ever have people coming to you to draw up deeds of separation?"

"Oh, yes; pretty often."

"Well, would you mind being of some use to me—and to Ellen?"

"Why, certainly. I've known you both—Mrs. Bradshaw especially—for a long time. But you two don't want to be separated? Why, man alive, you haven't been married a year!"

"Garraway, look here. We have had a row, a dispute, or whatever you like to call it."

"What I should call it," said Garraway, rising and speaking with some ascerbity, "would be a little disagreement between two excellent young people who ought to know better."

"Nevertheless, my dear Garraway"—the young husband's lips quivered—"nevertheless we have agreed to part."

On the piano in the drawing room up stairs a few chords were struck and the clear voice of Mrs. Bradshaw rang out. Garraway, getting on in the thirties, and sober man of law, found the hand that held his cigar shaking for a moment.

"You see," said Bradshaw; "perfectly jolly over it."

There was a sudden stop and a crash on the piano, as though the player could keep it up no longer.

"Look here, Bradshaw"—Mr. Garraway passed his hand carefully over his smooth, spare hair—"look here. Call at my place at 11 tomorrow morning, and I'll do what is wanted."

"Thank you, Garraway."

"Shall we go up stairs? I must arrange with her."

The demure, precise little clock on the mantelpiece in Mr. Garraway's chambers struck 11 o'clock. A small boy entered with a card.

"Thank you, Judd. Show the lady in, Mr. Gibson."

Mr. Gibson withdrew his work to the outer office, stepping aside at the door to permit a slim, girlish figure to enter.

"How do you do, Mr. Garraway? I'm not late, am I? I did not know the place, and I had a little difficulty. I presume you are aware of the nature of my errand?" said the visitor.

"We often have little difficulties in the law, Mrs. Bradshaw. If everything worked smoothly, we would starve. I had no chance of speaking to you last night," said Mr. Garraway, "excepting to ask you to call, but I had a brief conversation with Bradshaw, and he assured me that you had quite made up your mind about the matter."

"He is, in this particular instance, quite right." She put her lips together and looked as determined as she could.

"And so I am to draw up the deed of separation?"

"If you please."

"It's rather rough on me," went on Mr. Garraway, with an effort at humor. "Why, it seems only yesterday that I was his best man, and you and he went away to Neuchatel, and we cheered you as you left Victoria station. Do you remember?"

"Would you mind telling me, please, when the document can be drawn?"

"And do you remember your first dinner after your return, and how jolly we all were? Why, you were as comfortable as anything until a week or so ago—weren't you?"

"What I propose to do," said the stern young lady, with just the suspicion of a catch in her voice, "is to go abroad with my aunt for a year or two and leave the house just as it stands for Ernest to live in. He can get a housekeeper, you see, and"—

"By Jove!" cried Mr. Garraway. "That's not a bad idea!"

"You think—you think it will work all right, Mr. Garraway?"

"Oh, I think so! I'll tell you why. Of course you want Ernest to be comfortable, don't you?"

There was a softening of her eyes.

"Oh, yes! It is only our one great quarrel of last week that is parting us, and"—

"I know; I know. Now, look here, Mrs. Bradshaw. I wouldn't take so much trouble if I were only your lawyer, but I'm your friend as well, am I not?"

"Dear Mr. Garraway, we two have always been good friends."

"Well, will you allow me, then, as an old friend, to give you a little advice? I should advise you to make up this difference of opinion with Ernest. I'm told—of course I'm only a bachelor—but I'm told that all young couples have their quarrels to begin with, and they do say—here again I speak, of course, as a mere bachelor—that the making up is always the most delightful part of it."

"Mr. Garraway, I thought you would argue in that way, and it is very good of you, but my mind was made up before I came here, and nothing that you can say will alter it. A woman must judge for herself in these matters."

"Quite so. I think that to a certain extent you are right, and if it is useless to say anything after your present resolution, why"—

"You may be sure of that," said young Mrs. Bradshaw confidently. "Ernest must put up with the consequences. And you will see to the drawing up of the deed?"

"It shall be put in hand at once."

"I should like to leave London this day week if possible."

"I dare say," said Mr. Garraway, with great amiability, "that that can be managed."

"There is only the question of a housekeeper. Somebody must be there to look after the servants."

"It is there I think I can be of some assistance to Ernest." Mr. Garraway spoke with genial assurance. "It so happens that a client of mine is looking for precisely a situation of this kind."

"How extremely fortunate!"

"She is a good manager, she's a widow, and she has had charge of a house similar to yours."

"That's capital. As I say, I shouldn't like the house to go to rack and ruin. When could this old lady come, do you think?"

"This—who?"

"This old lady. The widow. When could she come?"

"Oh, but"—Mr. Garraway smiled pleasantly—'you are laboring under a slight mistake, Mrs. Bradshaw. The lady is not old."

"Oh! She is not young, I suppose?"

"Well, as a matter of fact, she is rather young. By the bye, I ought to have her portrait here somewhere."

It had cost Mr. Garraway a shilling, this cabinet portrait, in a shop in the Strand that morning. The shopman couldn't tell him who it was, didn't know her from Adam, he said, but she was an exceedingly pretty girl in demure black, and the wily Mr. Garraway was content.

"Surely, surely, Mr. Garraway," gasped young Mrs. Bradshaw as she gazed at the portrait, "this is not the kind of person for a housekeeper."

"Oh, yes," said Mr. Garraway airily. "She'll do all right. Bradshaw would like her very much, I'm sure, after she had been in the house a week or two. I'm told she is a capital manager."

The bunch of scented narcissus at the lady's bodice was bobbing up and down as she continued to look at the photograph.

"You see, the great thing is to get some one who would make poor Bradshaw comfortable and not compel him to be always at the club."

She put the photograph down on the table.

"This lady," said young Mrs. Bradshaw definitely, "shall never come into my house."

"No," agreed Mr. Garraway sweetly. "Of course it would be in Ernest's house. I am sure that on my recommendation"—

"Do you mean to say, Mr. Garraway, that you would recommend a person like this for such a position?" Mrs. Bradshaw had risen from her chair and spoke indignantly.

"Now, Mrs. Bradshaw, pardon me. I can't allow you to speak ill of a client of mine. I have every reason to believe that she is a well bred young lady and comes from one of the best families. I have no doubt in my own mind that she will make my friend Bradshaw, whom I look upon as one of the best fellows in the world, very comfortable indeed."

There was a rap at the door, and the smart boy entered with a card.

"Show him in, Judd."

Mr. Garraway went toward the door to receive the newcomer, not before, however, he had seen a handkerchief go to the eyes of his young visitor.

"Bradshaw," he whispered at the door, "listen to me, man. Your wife's in there crying. Go and kiss her and make it up."

And bundling the worried young Bradshaw into the room in the most unprofessional manner Mr. Garraway went and spoke in the outer office with Gibson.

"I shan't be back for an hour, Gibson. Tell that lady and gentleman so if they ask for me. I'm going down to see counsel in the temple."

It was an hour and a half later that Mr. Garraway sauntered back. The small Judd followed him into his room and put some more coal on the fire.

"Mr. and Mrs. Bradshaw gone, Judd?" demanded Mr. Garraway.

Master Judd said, "Yessir."

"What the deuce are you grinning about, Judd?"

The excellent Judd said it was nothing special. Being pressed, however, Master Judd confessed that, entering the room about 20 minutes after his master had left, he saw the gent and the lady kissing each other "like 1 o'clock and as 'appy as"—

"Judd!" said Mr. Garraway severely, "I am surprised at you. I am surprised that a man, just now perhaps of tender years, but one who is possibly destined for the highest honors, should be guilty of the highest impropriety—and gross unprofessional impropriety, sir—of noticing a matter of this kind. I'm surprised at you, perfectly surprised at you. Would you like very much to go to the theater tonight, you young scoundrel?"

Master Judd, with some emphasis, said, "Rather!"

"Then here's half a crown for you. Now be off. I'm rather behind with my work today."—Exchange.

OUR MODERN GUNNERS.

They Rely on Science In the Firing of Every Shot.

THEIR ACCURACY IN AIMING.

The Man Behind the Gun Nowadays Must Be a Mathematician of No Mean Order. The Old Time Gunner Out of Place on a Modern Battleship—Determining the Range—How Shots Are Fired.

Ask a modern man-o'-war's man what a powder monkey is and he will smile at your seeming ignorance and tell you that the powder monkey was a boy who, in the days when a wooden frigate was the ideal line of battle ship, used to hand the powder up from the magazine in the vessel's lowest hold to the gun deck, adding that he is now obsolete. The passing of the powder monkey is one of many things which mark the difference between the old navy and the new. The difference began when the hydraulic lift supplanted the powder monkey, when the ordinary seaman became something more than a mere man of brawn and courage and ended with the transformation of the gunner from the grade of ordinary seaman. who knew but to obey orders, into a trained man capable of working with accuracy and precision.

"All the difference in the world," said an old seaman who began his naval life as a powder monkey 30 years ago, but who now cannot qualify as a gunner of any class, in commenting on the changed conditions. "Now it's all a matter of education, and, while I used to be called a good man at the butt end of an old smoothbore, my place is taken by lads, and I'm laid by."

The ordinary seaman of the present navy, who operates the small guns which compose the secondary battery of a battleship and are used only at close range, has taken the place of the old tiue gunner, and he in turn has risen and is now a warrant officer, occupying a place between the seaman and the noncommissioned officer, having a mess apart from the ordinary seaman. He is not, however, eligible to advancement further than that of a gunner of the first class. Below him are the gunners of the second class, formerly the gunners' mates, and the gunners of the third class, who in the days of the old navy were known as the gunners' apprentices. In the old order of naval affairs gunners rose from the rank of ordinary seaman and had as their only claim to their titles the skill in the point blank shooting of the time, acquired by long practice.

Besides the cool head, steady hand and keen eye of the old time gunner the gunner of the new navy must possess a gunner's education, including not only a thorough knowledge of both common and decimal fractions, but also the use and application of the principles of algebra, geometry, trigonometry and trajectory. He is taught first that to locate to a nicety the object upon which he is to train his gun he must observe it from two different points, and then having established a base line and the two adjacent angles by the science of triangulation he finds the intervening distance. Many experiments have resulted in the formulation of tables and the invention of mechanical instruments which make the calculation a matter of but a few seconds. These are based upon the science of trajectory and enable the gunner to know in an instant at what angle to elevate his gun.

Comparatively simple as this may seem with the use of the instruments and tables, it embraces in naval gunnery accurate calculations of the speed and direction of motion of the vessel carrying the gun, the speed and direction of motion of the target, if it be another ship, and the direction and velocity of the wind, not one of which can be disregarded if the range be a long one, but which at close range are overcome to a great extent by the shorter distance and by the high rate of speed attained by the projectile.

In the case of a moving vessel being the target the range is determined by means of the range finder and noted. After an interval of two minutes or a convenient fraction thereof a second calculation is made. By the tables the distance in yards between the two points is determined, and this, divided by the interval of time, gives the speed. By another table, based upon the rate of speed attained by the projectile and the range, the distance which the target will have traversed during the flight of the projectile may be obtained and the gun aimed at such an angle as to cause the shot to take effect as desired. By another process, if the ship upon which the gunner is stationed be moving, the aim can be made quite as accurate, and to this exact reduction of the science is due the almost marvelous marksmanship of the Yankee gunners in the recent engagements in Cuban waters.

While our modern gunner must know thoroughly all this, he does not have the opportunity in an engagement to apply it. To the officers in the conning tower and in the turret falls the task of determining the ranges. This is usually done by the officers on board the flagship and communicated to the officers on board the other ships by means of signals. From them the gunner in the turret gets his angle, and by means of a lever and a scale elevates or depresses his gun as his orders may require.

Then comes the task which he alone may perform. Attached to his gun, near the breech, is a powerful telescope, fitted at the outer lens with a horizontal and a vertical hair, crossing at right angles in the center. Through this he locates his mark, and having done so knows that his aim is true. In spite of the exactness of the science, it is necessary, under unfavorable atmospheric conditions, such as fog or rain, to resort to the old method of trial shots. A smaller gun is used, and by means of a range finder attached to its breech the range can soon be determined. Then the gunner applies the knowledge which has given him his rank, and science does what the greatest skill of the old days could not.

On the old wooden ship with the bristling sides the process was entirely different. The gunner, though far inferior to ours of today, had under his charge guns numbering from four to eight, varrying with the size and strength of his vessel, and by force of circumstances left the task of aiming them to the ordinary sailor, who, though without rank, was often in point of skill the equal of his chief.

The long range shot of the new guns, the one which enables the gunner nowadays to watch the course of the projectile and note the havoc it creates even at the distance of several miles, was impracticable because of the small power of the old smoothbore. The close blank shot and the broadside were the ones upon which the old gunner counted for victory. Without the aid of science he sighted his cumbersome piece, while his crew stood ready with ramrod, swab, powder and shot. Minutes were consumed in the execution of the orders, "Load! To battery! Fire!" while now each order is expected to be executed in a few seconds.

Where ten shots whistled harmlessly about the ears of the enemy then, the modern gunner feels his disgrace keenly if by chance in an entire engagement one or two of his shots miss the mark. The old gunner who as an ordinary seaman still remains in the service of the modern navy has learned long since that his time has passed, and, as a naval writer has said of him, "he resents the supremacy of the sailor who knows the what of the art of war as thoroughly as his officers know its why."—New York Sun.

HOW SOLDIERS SIZE UP.

The Yankee Is the Tallest, the Jap Is the Shortest—Both Good Fighters.

The Yankee is a much bigger man than the Spaniard, and that is an important advantage for the American in this war. With all his pride of race the haughty don is a little fellow. In stature he is least among the Europeans, averaging only 5½ inches over 5 feet. The soldier who fights under the stars and stripes averages 5 feet 7½ inches in his stocking feet, he weighs 10 pounds more than the Spaniard, and his chest girth is nearly two inches greater. These are points that count.

Of course size is not everything in a soldier. Never in history has it counted for so little as it does today, inasmuch as modern warfare is conducted chiefly by machinery, battles are fought at long ranges, and hand to hand encounters are rare. The Japanese are smaller than the Spaniards, yet there are no fiercer fighters. The American Indians, on the other hand, are superior in stature to the Yankees. But, other things being equal, the bigger man has an advantage. The Yankee is the tallest of civilized men. In Europe only the Norwegian approaches him nearly in this respect, and the Englishman is a full inch shorter.

During the present war much attention will be paid to the gathering of statistics of all sorts relating to the soldiers. This was done to some extent during the civil conflict, and some of the most interesting facts noted had to do with the varying stature of recruits from different parts of the country. The biggest men came from Kentucky, averaging a trifle over 5 feet 8½ inches. Close behind was Kansas, with Minnesota, Missouri, California and Nevada following in the order given. The men from all these states averaged about 5 feet 8 inches. Maine, Illinois and Michigan fell two-tenths of an inch below that mark, and next came Ohio and Pennsylvania. Massachusetts and Connecticut were at the foot of the list, the volunteers from the latter states averaging only 5 feet 6½ inches.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Volunteers From Hawaii.

The movement to send a company from Hawaii for service with United States troops against Spain is progressing satisfactorily. Nearly half the number of men required have had their names put down already. Great care is being exercised by those who have the arrangements in charge. About 20 men have been refused for various reasons. Young men already drilled are being secured. A number of fine shots, whose services would certainly be in demand, are enrolled. The company will go only in case that it receives an assignment to active duty at once.—Pacific Commercial Advertiser.

We Hold the Whip Hand.

There is not any danger that Europe will intervene in behalf of Spain, but should it do so an embargo on the export of wheat would cause a halt.—Indianapolis Journal.

The Dream of the Spanish Admiral.

[A. D. 1541.]

In slumber as the morning broke
(It was our homeward voyage to Spain)
Methought I gave a parting look
At the new world beyond the main.
The shores were low and soft and faint,
Half purple mist and half firm land,
On which the sunbeams seemed to paint
The semblance of a foamy strand.

I dreamed I saw a hundred ships
Where not a sail had glanced before,
And for chained hands and livid lips
I heard a newborn people roar.
To every mast a flag was nailed—
No lion crest, but stripes and stars—
And deep into the sea they sailed
To wrestle with us, old in wars.

They clove our ranks, they clomb the towers
Our loftiest galleons proudly bore;
They struck with more than mortal powers
Till Spain herself could strike no more,
And down the wind we drifted far,
And to the shore our hulks were blown.
The sea was thick with mast and spar,
And Spain was shaken from her throne,

And louder than the whirring brine,
And louder than the cannon's roar,
I heard a voice: "Vengeance is mine!
I recompense forevermore!"
Now may St. James defend us still
And may the cavaliers of Spain
Sail on and conquer whom they will
And teach me that my dream was vain.

Some Alarm Over Appearance of Yellow Jack In the South.

Possibility of the Scourge Entering the Army.

No Expense to Be Spared to Confine the Fever to McHenry.

Washington, June 11.—The announcement of the appearance of yellow jack in McHenry, Miss., means that a danger threatens the army in the south which may prove more fatal than Spanish shot and shell. The matter was discussed earnestly in the cabinet meeting Friday. Secretary Gage, under whose charge is the marine hospital service and the quarantine regulations, brought with him an official confirmation of the reports in the morning papers. It was also announced that Mobile and other Southern cities have quarantined, fearing a spread of the terrible scourge.

Secretary Gage stated that all through the spring months the quarantine regulations had been relaxed, and that persons had traveled back and forth from Cuba without undergoing the least inspection. It is not surprising that the plague has broken out in this country.

As a matter of fact, it was stated at the cabinet meeting that during the weeks through which the army was kept at Tampa there was daily fear of a report of the breaking out of the fever. This is the real reason why no more soldiers are to be encamped there.

The president manifested, throughout the discussion of the yellow fever situation, the greatest possible concern. He made many inquiries as to the precautions which had been taken to keep the disease from spreading, and asked especially as to the health reports from the troops. He was assured that up to the present time there was not much cause for alarm, and that no expense would be spared to keep the fever from becoming prevalent. Orders have been sent to begin a rigid daily inspection of all the camps in the south, and inspectors will be placed on the trains.

Bradstreet's Review of Trade.

New York, June 11.—Accompanying reports of a seasonable quieting down of the spring demand for and movement of merchandise come proofs that the spring business of the year of 1898, with a few exceptions, has largely met expectations. Particularly confirming this later view of the case are the heavy totals of bank clearings, large railway earnings, heavy exports, a total of failures well down to the normal, and exceptional steadiness in prices following the notable advances registered some time ago.

Business failures this week number 221, an increase over last week of 43, but compared with a total in this week last year of 256, in 1896 of 234, in 1895 of 232, and in 1894 of 227. Bank clearings in the United States this week aggregate $1,324,766,412, 14.5 percent larger than last week, which included a holiday; 32 percent larger than in this week a year ago, 42 percent larger than in 1896, and 56 percent larger than in 1894.

The earnings of 112 railroads for May aggregate $44,504,000, an aggregate larger than that of April and 13.7 percent larger than that in May a year ago, emphasizing the effect of the heavy grain business done by western roads as a result of the bulge in wheat. The Pacific roads, the grangers and the central western lines made relatively the best showings, but the quieting down of the Klondike boom is reflected in the smaller percentage of increase on the first named, which still lead in percentage of gain, however. The total earnings of 113 companies for five months ending with May aggregate $215,542,000, an increase of 15.2 percent over May a year ago.

To Control Thread Making.

New York, June 11.—Semi-official details concerning the consolidation of the various American thread manufacturing companies have been made public. The scheme embraces the amalgamation of all the leading thread companies in this country and England. According to report the transfer of the stock of the Willimantic Linen company, which is a party to the consolidation, will be made not later than July 1. The stock will be transferred to the English Sewing Cotton company, which is nominally controlled by three of the leading companies in Great Britain. Sixty percent of the capital stock of the American Thread company is said to be controlled by the English syndicate, which has a capitalization of $75,000,000, while the American Thread company, which was organized with English capital, holds only about $1,000,000 worth of stock in the English company. There are reports that the combined companies may buy in several large factories in Germany and Belgium. Should this be done, the new combination will have an absolute monopoly of the thread output of Europe and America.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

C. L. Newcomb of Holyoke has been elected a vice president of the American Foundrymen's association.

An official dispatch from General Blanco says the Spanish torpedo boat destroyer Terror is in Porto Rican waters.

The 6-year-old son of Edward Skillings of Portland was drowned yesterday. He fell overboard while playing on a wharf.

Constable Wall of Weimar, Tex., was killed by George Washington, a negro, who was captured and hanged to an electric light pole by 50 people.

John Lacey, aged 40, was found dead last night on the Lawrence common. It is probably a case of suicide, as he had made to previous attempts.

Arthur Connelly, aged 11 years, was drowned by falling from a bridge in Waltham, Mass. He was engaged in play with other boys, and lost his balance.

The government water barge which was lost off the North Carolina coast has been discovered on a bar about 20 miles from Wilmington. The barge at low tide has only about a foot of water about her, and it will be a difficult matter to get her off.

Marquis of Salisbury's foreign policy of concession. Referring to the United States, he said: "Our better relations with the United States are mainly due to the good influence of her majesty's ambassador at Washington (Sir Julian Pauncefote), for the government policy has been rash and feeble. Everyone will welcome an alliance of hearts with America, but no alliance could be a war alliance.

Sir Charles said he did not believe in the possibility, mooted by the secretary of state for the colonies, of an alliance with Germany. The parliamentary secretary for the foreign office, George N. Curzon, gave credit to the good influence of the British ambassador at Washington, but he asserted that credit was due not merely to the ambassador or to the exigencies of the moment, but to "Lord Salisbury's friendly, calm and dispassionate attitude during the discussion of difficult matters with America two years ago." Mr. Curzon added: "An arbitration treaty will some day be accepted." This statement was greeted with cheering. The motion was rejected after speeches by Sir W. V. Harcourt, Joseph Chamberlain and John Dillon.

COLOSSUS OF THE DAY.

Victory Snatched From the Bostons by a Long Homer.

Boston, June 11.—Corcoran and Irwin, the first two men up for Cincinnati in the ninth inning Friday, went out easily, and the crowd had commenced to leave confident that the Bostons had won again. Lewis had McBride on the list for two strikes when the batsman hit safely to middle field. It was then that Miller, the colossus of the day, pulled the brand from the burning, hit the second ball pitched far over the garden wall, scoring McBride and himself, and the well-earned success by Lewis and the home boys had been snatched away.

There was a final chance for Boston, but two men went out quickly. George Yeager, who was sent up to bat as a redeeming hope in Lewis' place, responded with a nice hit to center. Billy Hamilton, next up, was implored to "win it out," but Cincinnati's gladiator of the dying gasp, Miller, made his fifth catch of the day, amid the sighs of the home enthusiasts.

It was a great game, replete with almost perfect fielding by both teams, some of the plays being sensational, particularly the wonderful work of Captain Duffy in left field for Boston, Bob Lowe at second, and Miller for Cincinnati. Score:

Shortstop Wrigley's error in the sixth gave the Washington game to the Pittsburghs, 6 to 5.

The Brooklyns lost yesterday's game because they could not hit Young of the Clevelands at the right time. Griffin resigned as manager, and President Ebbitts has elected himself to run the Brooklyns.

Hughes was wild in the first inning and gave the Louisvilles a commanding lead, but later Frazer went to pieces and the Baltimores won. McGraw was sent to the bench for vigorous language addressed to Umpire Andrews. Stenzel and Quinn of Hanlon's team have been traded to St. Louis for "Ducky" Holmes and a money consideration.

The St. Louis team defeated the Philadelphias yesterday by more opportune hitting, 3 to 1.

Friday the Chicagos made it four straight in New York, 7 to 6. Meekin's poor pitching in the first six innings and the miserable work of his team were responsible for the defeat.

Korwan and Miner were wild in the Montreal-Springfield game, and Souders and Hemming were substituted in the fourth inning. The Montreals won by timely hitting, 13 to 10. Jacklitz made a home run with the bases full.

The Tauntons defeated the Newports by batting heavily in the last three innings. Riley started in to pitch, but was wild, and was replaced by McDougall in the fifth. Score: 11 to 8.

The Dartmouths won their first baseball championship of the tri-collegiate league since 1892, by defeating the Williams team by a score of 6 to 0. This makes seven games which the Dartmouths have won in the league series.

The Brockton people are wondering if their club can lose. Moynahan was very effective yesterday against the Fall Rivers. Cronin had fits of wildness that hurt and he was handicapped badly by McManus' poor work. Score 9 to 4.

Captain Anson, when asked if he had made the statement that he would accept an offer to captain the New York team providing that certain details could be arranged, replied: "You can say positively that Mr. Freedman has made no such offer."

The Holy Cross team defeated the club of the university of Pennsylvania in a game whose chief feature was the loose fielding of the visiting nine.

The Colbys won the pennant of the Maine Intercollegiate league, and Bowdoin and the university of Maine teams are tied for second place.

Lowell Boy Shocked to Death.

Lowell, June 11.—Jeremiah Murray, aged 12 years, was electrocuted last night. The lad climbed an electric light pole, and, clutching a wire with one hand and touching the base of the lamp with the other, formed a complete circuit, which caused him to drop to the ground. He died a few moments later.

OUR WEEKLY FASHION PLATE.

STYLISH GOWN WITH BLUE RUCHES FROM HARPER'S BAZAR

Blue and a certain shade of fawn, which are the dominant notes of color at present, combine to form a pretty pique model which is equally desirable for foulard, nun's veiling, or cashmere. A novel feature of the waist is the trimming of festooned ruches, a revival of an old-time fashion. It is an imported fancy, consisting of pleated frills of ribbon which are fringed in the weaving—a tiny fringe on each edge—and a cord is also woven in for drawing it into any required fulness or design. The yoke, now is an almost universal feature of dress, is of corded white linen lawn, an accompaniment to the smallest of gigot sleeves, which have three tucks on the upper arm and frills at the wrist. The corsage, broadened by shoulder revers, is crossed to the left side, where the ruching meets that of the skirt in a continuance effect. The skirt is of circular cut, and is trimmed to imitate an overlapping front with a rounded corner. Its width is three yards and three-quarters. The yoke is in pointed form at the back. The belt ribbon is of velvet. The proper cut of the gown can be obtained only from the cut papper patterns published by Harper's Bazar, where it appears.

Quantity of material—pique, 30 inches wide, 8 yards; ruching, 10 yards; linen lawn, 3 1-2 yards.

ACRIMONIOUS DISCUSSION.

Senator Butler Repudiates Senator Kyle's Claim to Being a Populist.

Washington, June 11.—After several hours of debate Friday, the senate, by a vote of 43 to 22, agreed to the report on the war revenue bill. The majority included eight Democrats, a Populist and a silver Republican.

Mr. Cannon criticised the conference report and said there was danger that in freeing the Cubans our own people would be enslaved. He saw in the progress of the war a project of imperialism calculated to surprise the civilized world. While he did not want to be understood as opposing acquisition of new territory, nothing had been done in congress to suggest to the government that it proceed to conquer half of the globe and advance into a policy of imperialism for which the country was unprepared.

Mr. Pettigrew pointed out that the taxes levied would fall largely upon the poor of the country, while the rich had, he declared, been protected by the bill.

SENATOR JAMES H. KYLE.

By having the clerk read a press clipping detailing the vote of the senate on the bond proposition of the war revenue measure which classed Mr. Kyle (S. D.) as a Populist. Mr. Butler (Pop., N. C.) precipitated an acrimonious discussion involving the political affiliations of Mr. Kyle. He desired it to be understood that not a single Populist voted for the issuance of bonds, and, as the chairman of the Populist national committee, he officially declared the statement to be a slander. Mr. Butler was proceeding when Mr. Gallinger made the point of order that there was no question before the senate, and the point was sustained.

On a question of personal privilege, however, Mr. Kyle secured the floor and replied sharply to Mr. Butler. "I am responsible to my conscience and to my constituents for my political views and actions, and to them only. I thank the good Lord I do not get my political inspiration through the quill of the senator from North Carolina." He believed that the people would stand by those who, in a time like the present, stood squarely behind the national administration.

Mr. Money (Miss.) called up a minor bill and, taking advantage of that, Mr. Pettigrew supplemented the attack made by Mr. Butler upon Mr. Kyle. He charged him with trading with the Republicans in order to secure his election, the understanding being that he would vote with the Republicans upon all close questions.

Mr. Kyle declared the statement of Mr. Pettigrew to be "intentionally and maliciously false."

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, June 11.—The joint committee on ways and means of the legislature reported no legislation necessary on the message from the governor in regard to the equipment of a hospital ship for Massachusetts sailors and soldiers. The probable result of this report will be that the governor will spend the money needed for this purpose from the $500,000 already appropriated by the legislature for war purposes.

The bill to establish the Greylock state reservation in the county of Berkshire, carrying an appropriation of $25,000, was passed by the house.

An attempt was made to laugh out of court the bill which provides that any commodity sold by a hawker or pedler by dry or liquid measure shall be delivered to the purchaser from or in the receptacle in which the same was measured. The measure came from the executive committee of the State Sealers association, and was intended to protect the purchasers from hawkers and pedlers. It was defeated.

The senate insisted on its action the other day when the bill to prevent advertisements in public parks, parkways and boulevards was rejected. A motion to reconsider that rejection was lost by a vote of 13 to 15.

That body fixed the salaries of the land and harbor commissioners at $3000 for the chairman and $2500 for the other members.

There was a lively debate in the senate on the bill to restrict the operations of assessment life insurance companies. The chief features are to prevent the formation of any more close corporation companies, and to compel each company to establish a reserve fund of $100,000. The senate finally voted to refer the bill to the next general court.

"What Headaches Mean."

The dreadful headaches which women suffer mean nineteen times out of twenty that there is more trouble than headache.

There is probably some unhealthy condition of the delicate organism of womanhood and often added to this the digestive functions are out of order; these two conditions cause nearly all the headaches from which women suffer.

There are two great remedies specially adapted to these ailments invented by the chief consulting physician of the famous Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute of Buffalo, N. Y., Dr. R. V. Pierce. His world-renowned "Favorite Prescription" is the most successful medicine ever known for the cure of distinctly feminine ailments and his "Golden Medical Discovery" is the one supremely effective cure for digestive difficulties.

Taken in conjunction they completely rejuvenate the nervous system of weak and debilitated women; giving health, strength and capacity to the nerve-centers; renewed power to the blood-making glands and energetic force to the entire body.

A lady living in Coshocton Co., Ohio, Mrs. W. T. Stanton, of Blissfield, writes: "I had female weakness very bad for nearly three years. Had dragging down pains in and above my hips and such dreadful pains in the back and top of my head (just as though someone was lifting me by the hair). Had no ambition, would try to work a few days then would have to lie in bed for a long time. No tongue can express the suffering I endured. I had much pain at monthly periods. I doctored most of the time with as good a physician as there is in the state, but had no ease only when I was quiet and off my feet and then I had more or less pain in my head. When I began taking Dr. Pierce's medicines I weighed 102 pounds, and was very pale and weak. I took twelve bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' and seven of the 'Golden Medical Discovery.' Now I feel like a different person. Have no pain in my head, can do all my work for self, husband and one child; am gaining in flesh. I feel it is through God's mercy and your wonderful medicines that I am cured."

Where constipated conditions exist Dr. Pierce's mild and agreeable "Pleasant Pellets" should be occasionally used in connection with the "Prescription."

Hymn of the Union.

A feature of the organ recital Thursday evening was the singing of the patriotic hymn written by Mrs. E. E. Brown and set to music by John J. and J. Herman Loud. The words have been copyrighted.

Land of our Fore-fathers, Home of the Free!
Proudly we owe our allegiance to Thee!
Thou art our birthright and shame on the heart
That for aught earth can give with that birthright would part.
Dear is each mountain top, fair is each vale,
Sweet is the sea-breath that floats on the gale
North and South, East and West one grand nation shall be,
One great Republic all glorious and free.
God of our Fathers, mighty and just,
Lord of all nations, in Thee is our trust,
Keep the fame of our country unspotted and bright,
Banish the wrong, and prosper the right.

Here is the wanderer's haven of rest,
Here is a home for the poor and oppressed;
Under our banner no despot is found,
But fair freedom and peace in our borders abound;
Land that we prize as the place our of birth,
Liberty's home, as nc'er else upon earth,
Neither kingdoms nor crowns could e'er tempt us to stray,
Homeland, dear Homeland, from Thee far away.
God of our Fathers, mighty and just,
Lord of all nations, in Thee is our trust,
Keep the fame of our country unspotted and bright,
Banish the wrong, and prosper the right.

Say, on our soil shall a tyrant,e'er stand,
Traitors or cowards dishonor our land,
Shame e'er be linked with America's name,
Or a blot ever sully her story of fame?
No, by the blood which our ancestors shed!
No, by the dust of the patriot dead!
Let the flag of our country wave proudly o'er all,
Stand firm, united, divided we fall.
God of our Fathers, mighty and just,
Lord of all nations, in Thee is our trust,
Keep the fame of our country unspotted and bright,
Banish the wrong, and prosper the right.

The continued case against Warden for breaking and entering the house of Peter W. Prior at Randolph came up. He was held for the grand jury.

Osmon Plumer was fined $50 for the illegal sale of intoxicating liquor at Quincy.

John O'Neil was fined $5 for drunkenness at Milton.

June 16 will be public day in the Monatiquot school. From 1.45 to 2.40 P. M. there will be an opportunity to inspect the work of the school and especially that displayed in the office of the principal. At 2.45 there will be an entertainment in the assembly hall consisting of a dialogue, recitations, songs and drill.

The graduating excercises of the High school will take place in the Town Hall on the evening of June 23. Rev. A. A. Winship, editor of the Journal of Education will deliver the address. Mrs. Streiferd has prepared a very fine musical programme for the occasion. The High school reception will take place on Friday evening, June 24.

Tomorrow will be Childrens Sunday in the First church and the morning service will consist of exercises by the Sunday School.

Miss O'Rourke is considered one of the best teachers in Braintree and her decision will be learned with regret. She goes to associate herself with the teaching order of the Sisters of Charity at the Mother house in Halifax, N. S.

The date for the flag raising and grand demonstration has at last been definitely fixed. It was intended to have it June 17 but as some of our organizations had made arrangements to go elsewhere that day and many others wanted the holiday for other purposes it seemed best to change the date so the celebration will take place Saturday, June 18, 1898, and will consist of a street parade, composed of all the different organizations in the town with Major W. E. Morrison as Chief Marshal. The procession will form in front of the Armory at Braintree and will move promptly at 2 o'clock, proceeding to the square at South Braintree, then countermarching to the Town Hall grounds. Speeches will be made appropriate to the occasion by Hon. Hosea M. Knowlton, Hon. John L. Bates, Speaker of the House of Representatives, Hon. Joseph H. O'Neil and Hon. Thomas J. Gargan. The Braintree Brass Band has been engaged to furnish music. A band concert will be given in French's Common in the evening.

THE HERO OF SANTIAGO.

A Friend's Sketch of Lieutenant Richmond P. Hobson as a Schoolboy.

The following sketch of Richmond P. Hobson, the young lieutenant and assistant constructor who planned and executed the closing of Santiago harbor by the sinking of the Merrimac, was written for the New York Journal by his most intimate friend and the constant companion of his early youth:

Richmond P. Hobson from infancy showed remarkable sturdiness of character and a seriousness of manner indicative of a high sense of duty, though he was foremost to enjoy the frolics with his childish companions. He was always tender in his treatment of animals and had absolutely no trace of cruelty in his nature. He was possessed of indomitable will power and was naturally a leader of his companions in their games. He was the fleetest runner and the fastest and most untiring swimmer among them. In the game of "fox and hounds" he was always selected to be the fox on account of his perseverance. It was not uncommon for him to tire out the whole pack of pursuers. His pluck was proverbial and won him great popularity among his companions. In the game of "knucks," in which two boys knock their bare knuckles together, the one who endures the pain the longer being declared winner, Richmond would never give in, though the skin was peeled from his hands. On visits to the plantation of his cousin he would mingle with the negro youths on the plantation and never refused an offer of a wrestle with the sturdiest of them.

LIEUTENANT RICHMOND P. HOBSON.

The following incident illustrates his dogged determination and sense of duty: A cousin, slightly younger than himself, had disobeyed the orders of their grandmother, refusing to dress himself in his best clothes and go to Sunday school. Richmond was sent out into the field to bring back the recreant. He used his powers of persuasion, but to no avail. He next tried force, but his cousin ran, and, as a last resort, believing Richmond, who was dressed in his Sunday suit of clothes, would not follow him, jumped into a pond. But he reckoned without his host. Richmond's blood was up. He had been sent to bring back the disobedient cousin, and he brought him, though at the expense of his new Sunday clothes.

Brothers In Arms.

The Drudy family of Muncie, Ind., have surely shown their loyalty to their country. Martin and Thomas, it has recently been learned, are with Dewey, Martin being a gunner on the Concord and Thomas a gunner on the Petrel. Patrick, another son, is first sergeant in "McKinley's Own" regiment. The other day John, the remaining son, enlisted in the regular army and went to Mobile. The boys are all iron workers by trade.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

BRIEF WAR NOTES.

Few officers know even their own vessel's signal code.

Havana toils night and day upon her defenses, the civil governor and other officials lending their hands to the work.

The British authorities at Kingston, Jamaica, decided that newspaper dispatch boats can coal there whenever they choose.

By direction of President McKinley the war and navy departments will during the war treat the Red Cross society as an affiliated branch of the service.

At present 3,000 projectiles of the heaviest type are completed daily and shipped to naval stations for transfer to warships.

Every battleship built by the United States must draw upon Missouri for a portion of its constructive material—nickel and cobalt.

J. W. Howard, son of General O. O. Howard, obtained his commission as major of volunteer engineers in the army without the aid or influence of any one. He was appointed on merit after having passed a rigid examination.

In a letter to Consul Wildman General Aguinaldo said that before attacking a town he always asked the Spanish commander to surrender. One commandant said he wasn't ready to fight and asked Aguinaldo to wait three hours. He did so.

The present output of powder in the United States amounts to 16,000 pounds a day, of which 12,000 pounds is furnished by one eastern firm and the remainder by a Pacific coast concern.

More powder has been burned in the San Juan bombardment and the occasional small engagements along the Cuban coast than has been consumed for saluting purposes since the civil war.

DEWEYLAND!

Report That Augusti Lowered Colors.

BALKED INSURGENTS.

Could Make Better Terms With the Admiral.

Washington, June 13.—General Augusti, the governor general of the Philippines, has surrendered the city of Manila. This information was conveyed to the state department Sunday night in a cablegram from Ambassador Hay in ondon. The ambassador gave no particulars. His dispatch reads: "Advices from Hong Kong state that Manila has surrendered." In the absence of positive information, the authorities cannot say whether the surrender has been made to Admiral Dewey or to General Aguinaldo, the insurgent leader.

GENERAL AUGUSTI.

It is known that the insurgents, since Admiral Dewey's victory, have been close to the city of Manila, and that it was only a question of time when General Augusti would be forced to surrender. It is regarded as probable that the surrender has been brought about by the activity of the insurgents, rather than by the American fleet, as it has been Admiral Dewey's policy to remain inactive while awaiting the troops which have been started out to reinforce him. If the Spanish general surrendered to Admiral Dewey rather than to the insurgent chieftain, he would be more assured that order would be preserved and Spanish life and property protected.

Owing to the lateness of the hour when the cablegram from Ambassador Hay was received, and its indefinite character, it was not communicated to the members of the cabinet. As soon as the dispatch had been translated from the state department cipher, in which it was received, a copy of it was sent to the White House, where the information was received with delight by President McKinley.

While Ambassador Hay did not say what was the source of his information, it is believed by the officials at the state department that the advices to which he referred were dispatches from the British officials at Hong Kong, and that they are entirely reliable.

Major General Shafter, with his army, 20,000 strong, is at last en route to Santiago. This is now officially admitted by the authorities. They are no longer concerned about the quartet of Spanish gunboats reported to be astray and waiting a favorable opportunity to pounce down upon the army transports.

With the strong fleet of naval vessels convoying the transports, no fear is entertained for the safety of the expedition. It arrival at Santiago is expected by Thursday. Thus it seems reasonable to predict that the present week will see an American flag flying over Santiago de Cuba.

The army on its way to Santiago comprises the best troops mobilized in the south. It is equipped and armed better than any body of troops the United States ever sent into the field. Our infantry is furnished nearly exclusively with the Krag-Jorgensen rifle, which is considered by ordnance experts as the most destructive rifle now in use. Insurgents, who are expected to form a junction with the United States troops at the place of landing, have been armed by the United States with modern Springfield rifles. The army has an abundance of ammunition to carry it on a long and difficult campaign.

Sixteen of the 46 ships which have been lying in the gulf with troops aboard are to remain. The force of American soldiers to throw into Cuba is a third smaller than was first planned. Two reasons are assigned for this change in program. One is that Sampson will not need as many men to complete the subjugation of the Spanish forces as was originally expected. The fleet before Santiago has achieved striking results in the few days which have elapsed since Hobson's exploit; and the encroachments upon the Spanish lines of defense have been so great that the successes already won by the navy can be followed up without calling in so large an invading force of regulars. The other reason is understood to be the desire of the administration to have ready the nucleus of an army for the immediate occupation of Porto Rico.

The president is extremely anxious to begin operations in Porto Rico without delay, and he has seized this opportunity to utilize a portion of Shafter's army of invasion, which is all ready to move at once. The force under Shafter will probably consist entirely of regulars. It is understood that the volunteer regiments are among those reserved for Porto Rico. The Seventy-first New York and the Second Massachusetts are believed here to be among those detained.

The week commences well. The navy department received a dispatch from Captain Goodrich of the St. Louis yesterday afternoon announcing that the former ocean liner had captured a British collier, the Twickenham, off Porto Rico. The vessel was endeavoring to get into San Juan, and is the same ship which was recently seen in the neighborhood of Martinique. Its cargo of coal was intended for Admiral Cervera's fleet, now bottled up in Santiago harbor, and the British captain is said to have been very much annoyed at finding himself caught. The prize was put in the possession of a crew and sent to Key West.

BLOOD FLOWS IN CUBA.

Party of Marines Attacked After an Undisputed Landing.

Kingston, Jam., June 13.—The Panther left Santiago at noon Friday. She reported to Admiral Sampson, and received orders to proceed to Caimanera. With her were the storeship Supply, which has so long been needed; the auxiliary cruiser Yosemite, manned by 300 of the Michigan naval reserves; the Scorpion and a collier. Before the arrival of these vessels the battleship Oregon and the Dolphin were ordered to proceed to Guantanamo harbor to join the Marblehead.

At 12 o'clock the Yankee, Yosemite and Porter took the troopship Panther in charge and left to effect a landing. As the squadron was proceeding down the coast the Yankee, manned by New York naval reserves, bombarded a small blockhouse and a fort at Daiquiri, 17 miles from Santiago, setting them on fire in a few minutes. This occasioned but a brief delay, and the transport and her escort arrived in Guantanamo harbor shortly before 2 o'clock.

As soon as it was seen that no resistance would be made to a landing the small boats from several of the vessels were put overboard and the landing party was soon ashore. Every precaution was taken to guard against a surprise by the enemy, but as it turned out this was needless. The first thing that was done when the men were safely ashore was to set fire to half a dozen houses which marked the entrance to the bay. This was done by order of the commanding officer, who took this and all the other safeguards possible to prevent an outbreak of the dreaded yellow fever among the men.

Saturday afternoon the marines were subjected to a bush attack by guerillas and regulars. The fighting was almost continuous for 13 hours, when reinforcements were landed from the Marblehead. Four of our men were killed and one was wounded. The advance pickets under Lieutenants Neville and Shaw are unaccounted for.

Among the killed is Assistant Surgeon John Gibbs, son of Major Gibbs of the regular army, who fell in the Custer massacre. His home was at Richmond, Va., but he had been practising in New York, and he entered the service when the war began. The others killed are Sergeant Charles H. Smith of Smallwood, Private William Dunphy of Gloucester, Mass., and Private James McColgan of Stoneham, Mass. Corporal Glass was accidentally wounded in the head. The Spanish loss is unknown, but it was probably considerable. The splashes of blood found at daylight at the positions the Spaniards occupied indicate fatalities, but their comrades carried off the killed and wounded.

The engagement began with desultory firing at the pickets, 1000 yards inland from the camp. Captain Spicer's company was doing guard duty and was driven in, finally rallying on the camp and repulsing the enemy at 5 o'clock.

The bodies of Privates McColgan and Dunphy were found, both shot in the head. The large cavities caused by the bullets, which inside a range of 600 yards have a rotary motion, indicate that the victims were killed at close range.

The bodies were stripped of shoes, hats and cartridge belts, and horribly mutilated with machetes. When they were brought in the whole battalion formed three sides of a hollow square about the camp on the hilltop. Below in the bay were the warships at anchor. Inland from the hill camp is a deep ravine, and beyond this are high hills. The adjacent country is heavy with a thicket growth. The sky was blanketed with clouds, and when the sun set a gale was blowing seaward. Night fell, thick and impenetrable. The Spanish squads concealed in the chapparel cover had the advantage, the Americans on the ridge furnishing fine targets against the sky and the white tents. The Spaniards fought from cover till midnight, discoverable only by flashes, at which the marines fired volleys. The repeaters sounded like crackers in a barrel.

The Marblehead launch, a Colt machine gun in her bow, pushed up the bay, enfilading the Spaniards, and it is thought that some were killed. The marines trailed much blood to the water's edge, and there lost it. Sharks are numerous in the vicinity. The ships threw their searchlights ashore, the powerful electric eyes sweeping the deep tropic foliage and disclosing occasionally skulking parties of Spaniards. It all resembled a transformation scene at a theater. Each discovery of the enemy was greeted by the crackle of carbine fire along the edge of the camp ridge, or by the long roll of the launch's gun, searching the thickets with a leaden stream.

Shortly after midnight came the main attack. The Spaniards made a gallant charge up the southwest slope, but were met by repeated volleys from the main body and broke before they were one-third of the way up the hill; but they came so close that at points there was almost a hand-to-hand struggle. The officers used their revolvers. Three Spaniards got through the open formation to the edge of the camp. Colonel Campina, the Cuban guide, discharged his revolver and they, turning and finding themselves without support, ran helter-skelter down the reverse side of the hill. It was during this assault that Assistant Surgeon Gibbs was killed. He was shot in the head in front of his own tent. He fell into the arms of Private Sullivan, and both dropped. A second bullet threw dust in their faces. Surgeon Gibbs lived 10 minutes, but did not regain consciousness. The surgeons of the hospital corps then removed their quarters to the trenches north of the camp.

The attacks were continued at intervals throughout the rest of the night, with firing from small squads in various directions. Toward morning the fire slackened. Dawn is the favorite time for attack, and as the east paled the marines lying on their guns were aroused. Some were actually asleep, as they had had no rest for 48 hours, and tired nature could no longer stand the strain; but no attack came. Three new 12-pound field guns, which could not be used during the night for fear of hitting our own men, shelled several squads of Spaniards after daylight. They dove into the bushes like prairie dogs into burrows, as the shells broke over them in the gray dawn.

As the correspondent of the Associated Press talked with Major Cockrell, who was in charge of the outposts, word came of the finding of the body of Sergeant Smith. He was reported as having been killed at 5 o'clock on the previous day, but it appears that he had been seen alive at 10 o'clock in the evening. When and how he was killed no one knows. Neither had the men been mustered nor had the outposts of Lieutenants Neville and Shaw been relieved. Lieutenant Colonel Huntington and Major Cockrell give high praise to the nerve and steadiness of officers and men, especially the young ones, as the engagement was a baptism of fire for a large majority. The men were in darkness and in a strange land, but they stood to their posts with courage and fortitude. The marines, though exhausted, were eager for more fighting, promising to inflict heavy punishment. They compliment the daring of the Spaniards with characteristic camp profanity.

Estimates vary as to the attacking force, some saying 200, and the figures run as high as 1000. Colonel Campina, the Cuban guide, says the Spaniards were mostly irregulars, but the reports of the discharge of Mauser rifles would indicate that they were regulars, as most of the guerillas carry Remingtons. The Cuban guerillas, as a rule, have more dash and courage than the regulars.

The new campaign uniforms proved satisfactory, and are almost invisible at a distance of 200 yards. The Lee guns caused several accidents in drawing cartridges. Corporal Glass shattered his hand. Despite the loss of the men, who are keenly regretted, the marines rejoice that they have been engaged in their first fight on Cuban soil. They sailed from New York the day war was declared and expected to land within a week at Havana. Since then, until they landed on the shore of Guantanamo, they had been cooped up on the Panther, and they had begun to fear that the troops would beat them after all.

General Blanco Telegraphs.

Madrid, June 13.—The only definite information from the Spanish side about Cuba is a short passage from an official dispatch of General Blanco to General Correa, minister of war, as follows: "Respecting Santiago, General Linares reports that 15 merchant ships, with some tugs, forming apparently a total of 24 vessels, appeared before the port about noon. Only 15 remained, the others having left for Guantanamo with the Massachusetts and the Dolphin, which cannonaded the heights of Baitiquiri. No casualties are reported. We do not know whether these merchantmen carry a portion of the contingent of the expedition."

An extremely bad impression is current as to the outcome of events. Business men are inclined to believe that the war will be short, probably lasting only another month. Military men hold the opposite view, considering that Spain can put much reliance on the elements. While the American landing in Cuba is officially denied, the authorities assert that even if it were true it would be unimportant, as the Spanish army would give a good account of itself. It is believed that the question of food supplies, so far as the peninsula is concerned, is settled at least until October.

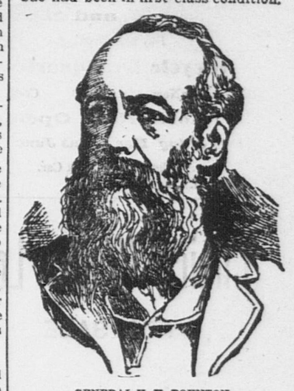
Speaks of "an Infamous and Transparent Game."

Says That Soldiers Are Not Suffering.

The Charge of an Insufficiency of Food Is Controverted.

Chickamauga, June 13.—General Boynton, chairman of the park commission, being asked by The Associated Press representative in regard to the stories of short food supplies at Camp Thomas sent out to certain sensational newspapers, said: "A few sensational newspapers in the east have recently asserted that the soldier heroes are suffering for food. These statements have been paraded in startling form, and the friends of the volunteers have been made miserable. The whole business has been deliberately manufactured. I took occasion to obtain the issue of rations for 10 days past for each of the regiments specified in these newspaper articles as suffering. In each case it turned out, not only had full rations been issued for this whole time and that no separate article making up the ration had been short, but that two vegetable rations in addition to the ration had been issued to all. Not only this, but the whole issue had been in first-class condition.



GENERAL H. V. BOYNTON.

"This wholesale attack upon the very faithful, competent and energetic officers responsible for the issue of stores seems to have been devised to bunco the public and fix its attention upon stores and supplies which these sensational newspapers now propose to forward to the so-called 'relief of the soldiers at Camp Thomas.' It is both an infamous and very transparent game, and as stated, based on qualified falsehood.

"Among the other charges against the camp, it is denounced as sickly. The fact is, the sick rate has been steadily decreasing ever since the camp was established. General Brooke's orders to prohibit the sale of pop and other slop in the park caused the sick rate to go down 20 percent in four days.

"First, for its cruelty to the friends of the soldiers at home; next, for its injustice to the able commander and his staff here, and lastly, for the implied attack upon the war department, the whole business is diabolical, and those engaged in it ought to be treated as public enemies and driven out of camp."

Every train out Sunday was crowded with soldiers who had been given permission to visit the city and the mountain. One of the trains was crowded to suffocation, and a number of soldiers mounted the top of the coaches. At a point about three miles from Chattanooga a number of telegraph wires cross the track of the railroad over which the soldier excursion train was passing. When the train reached this point "Judd" Sharp, Sixteenth Pennsylvania; C. H. Ames, Third Illinois, and Thomas Barrett, Fourteenth New York, were standing on top of a car and, not having knowledge of the wires, Sharp was caught under the chin and around the neck by one of the wires and dragged off the car, pulling with him Ames and Barrett, who had attempted to catch him and prevent his fall. The train was running at the rate of 20 miles per hour at the time. The three men were picked up and taken back to Lyttle. None of them was fatally injured, the force of the fall being broken by Sharp catching his comrades. They were badly bruised and scratched.

Only Regulars Taken.

Tampa, Fla., June 13.—The expedition that sailed from here to Key West prior to going to Santiago was made up of nearly 20 regiments of regular infantry, of from 500 to 550 men each, including, besides the regiments of the Fifth army corps, four regiments of infantry that have been in camp at Mobile and which formed part of Major General Coppinger's command at that rendezvous. The total force of regular infantry was about 11,000 men. There were also two regiments of volunteer infantry, about 2000 men altogether; the Second regiment of cavalry from Mobile, 500 men; two squadrons each from the First, Third, Sixth, Ninth and Tenth cavalry, about 2000 men; eight troops of volunteer cavalry taken from Roosevelt's rough riders, 560 men; four batteries of light artillery, 300 men and 16 guns; two batteries of heavy artillery, 200 men and 16 guns; the battalion of engineers, 200 men; signal and hospital corps, etc., about 300 men, a grand total of about 17,000 men. The regulars were practically picked men, as not a single recruit was taken, the regiments carrying only the seasoned troops.

Good Afternoon.

The concrete walks that are being laid will certainly be an improvement although the walks do not seem to have the care they should have. They are not rounding enough to allow the water to run off easily. The walk on Washington street is already quite hard, although laid but a few days and we have the impression it will crumble to pieces before it has been laid fifteen years, as most of the concrete laid in Quincy in former years have done.

We notice the walk in front of the driveway to the Universalist church has been depressed one or two inches making it difficult to drive into the yard; when it might have been raised a few inches without injury to any one. These things appear as trifles, but they should have the attention of some one.

The Wollaston Fence.

It will be good news to Wollaston people to hear that through the efforts of Mayor Sears they will soon have the satisfaction of seeing that high board fence removed at the Wollaston depot. Mayor Sears has held several conferences with Supt. Chamberlin of the N. Y. N. H. & H. R. R., and while definite plans are not completed, it is very probable that the high board fence will be removed and in its place there will be a neat picket fence of the ordinary height with posts, instead of the turn stiles now in use, so that people can readily pass through.

GRAND OPENING.

Of the Quincy Avenue Route of Street Railway.

In spite of the threatening weather Saturday morning no better weather could have been desired than that which greeted the Quincy & Boston street railway at the opening of its new line to Weymouth via Quincy avenue, which took place that afternoon.

Anyone who knows President Graham knows that he never does things by halves, and this fact was again demonstrated Saturday afternoon. That all who participated had a good time goes without saying, and they are looking forward to the time when the company shall reach out its ever lengthening lines and reclaim some section that has never had the transportation facilities that we have now so long enjoyed and which we should not know how to do without.

The new section opened Saturday is some three miles or more in length and brings into touch with the world a territory which though long neglected can not be excelled for natural beauties. According to the best information at hand, it has been forty or more years since a house was erected at Quincy Neck and today there are several houses there unoccupied. A few years ago considerable business was done. Near S. F. Newcomb's store was a stone shed which gave employment to a number of men. From the tide water at this point there was also a railroad, part of which now remains, running to Sargent's quarry which was at that time being worked, the granite being shipped from near Newcomb's store in vessels. The increased transportation facilities however enjoyed by the quarries at West Quincy made it impossible for Quincy Neck manufacturers to compete in prices and the granite business gradually ceased to exist. There came a fire and the end. There has been some little work since for semi-occasionally a vessel would come up the river for grout, but even this has practically fallen away.

Just across the river into Braintree there is one of the prettiest groves to be found between Boston and Plymouth. It is a naturally beautiful spot and it is not among the impossibilities that in the near future this will become a popular summer resort for picnic parties. Certainly few more desirable spot could be found for a day's outing. In this grove there is also located the famous trilobite quarry from which some of the finest specimens in the world have been taken and hundreds of geologist students with their professors have made pilgrimages here and spent the day with their hammers and chisels in gathering specimens. Yet they have not exhausted the supply, for the quarry has many more fine specimens within its keeping until some student succeeds in taking it away.

Aside from this the ride is a very pretty one as the hundreds who were the guests of the railroad Saturday can testify. These guests together with the Weymouth and Holbrook bands filled seven large cars, which left City Square shortly after 3 o'clock, the car containing the band leading the way. Two bands alternated in furnishing the music on the trip.

Just before the first car reached the bridge over the Monatiquot a lady was observed standing near the track. It was Mrs. John Streiferd and in her hand was a large and handsome bouquet. Mistaking one of the newspaper men on the front seat of the car for President Graham she handed him the bouquet with the remark that it was for the President. When Weymouth was reached the reporter handed it to Mr. Graham with Mrs. Streiferd's compliments.

Arriving at Weymouth a half hour was spent in looking about, and then the return trip was taken, a stop being made at Hayward's grove for a clambake gotten up by Mr. Pawsey. It was a rouser and although there was a large crowd present there was plenty for all In the clambake were steamed clams, chicken, frankforts, lobsters, dressing and sweet potatoes. There was also a clam chowder.

Outside of the grove Caterer Nash served a free lunch of sandwiches and coffee to everybody that was hungry, and he was kept busy. While this was in progress the Weymouth band gave a concert in Newcomb square and the Holbrook band was supposed to gave a concert in the grove but they could not find time to play they were so busy getting outside of the good things. It was a great picnic for the band. Later the Weymouth band came in and also had their fill of the good things.

There was to have been some speech-making at the grove but no one seemed to care to hear any speeches and this was omitted.

In the evening the Holbrook band gave a concert at Newcomb square and everybody kept open house. There were many spectators but by far the largest crowd was at Weymouth where the Weymouth band gave a concert and there was a grand flag raising with a display of fireworks.

Taken all in all it was a day long to be remembered. The Quincy & Boston commenced to run half hour trips between Weymouth and Quincy Saturday evening and these will be continued and it is possible that through cars between Weymouth and Neponset will soon be inaugurated.

The invited guests at the opening included Mayor Sears and the members of the City Government and City Council. The selectmen of Weymouth and Braintree, railroad officials from Boston and other cities, the Street Railway committee of the Legislature and others.

All along the route flags were displayed but particularly in Newcomb square at Quincy Neck, here the houses of Mrs. Hugh Jones, Joel S. Young, Stephen M. Otis, Guy Duffield and others were decorated, and in the evening were illuminated by candles. Mayor Sears and Councilman Newcomb enjoyed the hospitality of Mrs. Jones in the evening.

ODD FELLOWS.

Observe Their Annual Memorial Day at First Church.

That Odd Fellowship flourishes in this city is evident from the numerical strength shown Sunday. It was the annual Memorial day and the various organizations of the order had accepted invitations to attend services at the First church. They assembled at Odd Fellows hall about 3 P. M. and shortly before 4 o'clock took up the line of march.

First came a large delegation of Patriarch Militants mostly members of Canton Shawmut in their beautiful uniforms, then Manet encampment and guests, Crescent lodge of East Weymouth, John Hancock lodge of Wollaston and Mount Wollaston of Quincy. Headed by a drum corps a line of march was taken up as follows: Temple street to Washington, to Hancock, to Porter's corner, countermarching to the church.

The organizations occupied all the pews in the main aisle and on the sides were the Daughters of Rebekah, members of Carrie E. Ruggles lodge of Wollaston, Steadfast lodge of East Weymouth and George L. Gill lodge of Quincy.

Mayor Sears, City Treasurer Gray, City Clerk Cleaves, Chief of Police Litchfield and other city officials were among the invited guests, and many citizens were present.

Bro. John McKnight, who had the necrologic address, said that the lodge had lost since its institution in 1884 twenty-three members; three since the last Memorial day: Bro. John Scott who died July 31, 1897, Past Grand Thoms Talbot, who died Nov. 27, 1897, and Past Grand Dudley Folsom, who died May 13, 1898. Mr. McKnight extolled the virtues of these members, and their interest in Odd Fellowship. The active work of Past Grand Folsom was especially noteworthy. He had joined the order in 1843 had been the charter member of the lodge, and while in the South although he had to travel thirty miles to lodge he never missed a meeting.

The order of services included appropriate anthems by the quartette of the church, responsive reading led by Rev. Walter Russell Breed of Christ church, Scripture reading and prayer by Rev. Edwin Noah Hardy of Bethany Congregational church, and address by Rev. Mr. Breed.

When the Odd Fellows were invited to the church it was to listen to an address by Rev. E. C. Butler, but because of his affliction he was excused and Rev. J. E. Bagley consented to take his place, but he in turn was summoned on Saturday to his mother's bedside, and Rev. Mr. Breed kindly responded to the call.

It was a very appropriate address on the "Consolation of life." He spoke at length on the different sources of consolation. First, the alleviation of life; second, the law of compensation; third, communion with nature; fourth, occupation; and fifth, memory and hope. But the feeling was that all these were not sufficient, and the query was, is there nothing better. We need a guardian, a leader. Jesus was God given to console us. I am the way said Jesus. We belong to God. Let that be our consolation. It is abiding.

Injuries to bicycles are becoming so frequent at Quincy Point that bicyclists are inquiring if the diabolical work is for the benefit of repairers. Saturday night boards were found on Washington street near Chubbuck street with lots of nails standing up in them, and someone has scattered tacks between the railroad tracks which is used as a bicycle path.

WAITING DETAILS.

Governor Ready to Call Out the Fifth Regiment.

Unless all signs fail this week will see the 5th Regiment and Co. K in camp at Framingham, and possibly on the way South.

Capt. Kincaide was in Boston Saturday and all arrangements were completed as far as this state is concerned for ordering out the Fifth. All that now remains is for the details to come from Washington, and these are expected at any moment. As soon as they arrive the companies will be recruited up to the regular army strength which is 106 men including the officers.

This will take but a comparatively short time as most of the companies, Co. K at least, have enough men on the waiting list to bring the company up to the required number. Then all that will be necessary will be to uniform the new men and as there are plenty of uniforms at the State arsenal no delay will be occasioned on this account.

Capt. Kincaide when seen this morning said, while the regiment would first go to Framingham, it would probably remain there but a day or two before it would be on its way south and from present indications the boys who have been anxious to go to the front will see all the war they want.

WEYMOUTH.

Little Items of Interest About Town.

On Sunday evening at 7.30, June 19, at the Weymouth Baptist church, Rev. Frank B. Cressey, pastor, will preach a sermon on "Our schools and our country," before the School Board of Weymouth, superintendent and teachers of Weymouth schools, and graduating classes of the North and South high schools. The officers, teachers and graduating classes of the Braintree schools and of Thayer Academy, are cordially invited as special guests. There will be singing by the church choir and congregation, by pupils of the Weymouth schools under the guidance of musical director A. J. Sidelinger, and by Mr. Percy F. Baker, baritone soloist of Weymouth.

There was quite a serious bicycle accident at the foot of Weymouth hill Sunday, at the turn to Rose Cliff; two or three were piled in a heap.

Miss Hattie Thayer of Philadelphia, Penn., is making a visit with Mrs. James White at Lovell's Corner.

Mrs. Mary Buttermore is seriously ill at her home on Plesant street.

Children's Day was observed in the Porter M. E. church Sunday afternoon. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers.

New Hearing.

Judge Humphrey has decided to give a hearing in the case of Antonio Naclerio of Quincy, who was before the court some time ago for keeping a liquor nuisance at Quincy.

When the case was called, Frederick Trentor and Nicholas Garbarino acted as interpreters and their interpretation were that Naclerio desired to plea nolo-contendre, which was accepted, and the case was continued for him to pay a fine of $50. When the day of continuance arrived, Naclerio appeared in court with counsel, who claimed that his client's plea had been misinterpreted. The court records for some reason did not show that he had pleaded nolo-contendre, but simply that the case was continued for him to pay a fine.

The court gave counsel a hearing as to what the plea of Naclerio was, and has rendered his decision that inasmuch as the records did not show his plea to be that of nolo-contendre that he would give a hearing on the case July 2.

EXTRA!

AFTERNOON FIRE.

The alarm from Box 56 at 1.20 this noon was for a fire in a lot of old papers and straw in the cellar of a house at the corner of Newport and Elmwood avenues, Wollaston, owned by George Whall and occupied by D. H. Lizotte.

Whether the fire started from a smoker's pipe or from a lot of hot ashes which had been recently emptied there is not known, but when discovered, the dense smoke had completely filled the house. The fire department quickly responded and a well directed stream in the cellar soon put out the fire.

The loss will be small. Chief Engineer Choate and Engineer Holmes of Milton, who were in the vicinity of Adams street, drove down and watched the dispatch with which the Quincy boys put out fires.

CHILDREN'S DAY.

Interesting Exercise by Bible School of Bethany Church.

Interesting exercises were held Sunday morning at Bethany Congregational church by the Bible school, it being the annual Children's Sunday. A very large congregation was present, and it was necessary to put the primary department of the school upon raised seats upon the platform, where they made a pretty picture.

The exercises included singing by the kindergarten department of a sweet little song. Recitations and singing by the primary department, including a cute motion song. Essays on the life of Christ, by four of the boys graduated from the primary department were a feature, also an exercise by fifteen young ladies. The pastor's address was short with a beautiful thought which the childdren could grasp. An offering was taken for the Congregational Publishing House.

The floral decorations were elaborate, daises being the most prominent.

Supt. Branch and his co-workers were complimented on the success.

CERVERA'S ROMANCE.

He Was Stationed In Washington and Loved a Senator's Daughter.

The interest which Admiral Cervera is said to be taking to effect the exchange of Junior Lieutenant Hobson, United States navy, who was taken prisoner after sinking the Merrimac, recalls the time when, as a lieutenant commander, Cervera was naval attache at the Spanish legation in Washington, nearly 25 years ago. Cervera was a handsome fellow then. He was rich, a bachelor, and his dinners were among the finest given by diplomats during General Grant's last presidential term. Cervera was recalled to enter the cabinet of Alfonso XII in November, 1885.

While in Washington Cervera had a love affair that was much talked of at the time. He became desperately enamored of a charming young lady, the only child of one of the proudest and haughtiest men who ever sat in the senate of the United States. She was not only a senator's daughter, but as cold and proud as was her stately, aristocratic sire. Whether she smiled or frowned upon her picturesque, handsome Spanish lover cannot now be told.

In those days Cervera played the guitar with the grace of his race and possessed an admirable light tenor voice. At an evening reception given by Mrs. Fish, wife of the secretary of state, Cervera was asked to sing. He complied by fixing the attention of every one near upon his inamorata, as, gazing at her in the most fervid manner, he made her a deep bow and burst into the passionate measures of the most sensational of Spanish love songs. This was too much for the girl, and she quietly got out of the room and left the house.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

It has been discovered that all the shelfish of the Hawaiian islands are peculiar to the locality, and most of their birds and insects are found nowhere else on the globe.

PEACE RUMORS GABBLE

No Appeal From Spain to the Austrian Emperor.

Decision to Face the Inevitable Not Reached.

Domestic Situation of Graver Concern Than the War.

Vienna, June 13.—There is not a particle of truth in the rumors that Spain has appealed to Emperor Francis Joseph to mediate, or that a European congress is contemplated to discuss the ultimate status of the Philippines. All the rumors of mediation and of peace proposals have no basis in any action by Spain herself or any power. The Spanish government has not yet reached a definite decision to face the inevitable, although there is evidence that the responsible authorities individually are convinced of the hopelessness of further resistance to the American arms. It is definitely known that no European power will volunteer intermediary offices in any capacity in the present situation. The fact is, therefore, that no step whatever has been taken as yet toward bringing the war to a close except such as the officers of the American forces are taking to bring the campaign to a crisis.

The question really is, How long will it take the Spanish government officially to reach the conclusion which the government individually has arrived at almost at the inception of hostilities? The information from Madrid warrants the assertion that according to the personal views of these gentlemen they would be glad if the powers would bring diplomatic pressure to bear upon the United States to obtain the assurance that America will not retain the Philippines. If that assurance is given, Spain is prepared to sue for peace because her government is already resigned to the loss of Cuba and Porto Rico and the payment of an indemnity.

As a matter of fact, the Madrid cabinet is more harrassed and distracted at the present moment by the domestic situation than by the desperate position of Spanish fortunes in the war. This situation threatens to result in the shedding of more Spanish blood than is likely to be lost in the actual operations against the Americans. All the advices from Spain—press dispatches, business letters to bankers and traders, and diplomatic and consular communications—agree that the summer will not be far advanced before the country will be torn by civil war. The pretender, Don Carlos, fat, sleek and wealthy, is in Brussels, calmly plotting the completion of Spain's ruin. There are with him naval and military officers and civilian traitors receiving commissions, instructions and bribes. Depots for arms have already been established in many places in northern Spain. Five batteries of artillery, purchased from Krupp through a trusted intermediary, have been delivered, and are believed at this moment to be aboard a steamer at Antwerp. Spanish politicians are beginning to turn their eyes toward the supposed rising sun. Until a week ago it had been supposed that the Carlist power and courage had been exaggerated, but these ideas are vanishing before the proofs which the pretender has been able to furnish of financial backing, numerical strength, material means and preparedness.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

General Roca has been elected president of the Argentine republic for a term of six years by the representatives of the 14 provinces.

John A. McKenzie, a carpenter, was drowned in Palmer, Mass. He went in bathing with several companions, and being a poor swimmer was drowned in a hole.

Catherine Fay, aged 36, wife of William Fay of New Britain, Conn., was fatally burned by the explosion of a gasoline stove with which she was preparing dinner.

The Spanish minister of the colonies, according to a special dispatch from Madrid, in the course of a recent interview, has expressed the opinion that nothing short of a miracle can save Manila.

Charles D. Record of Readfield, Me., has been arrested on the charge of using the mails for selling obscene literature. The arrest was on an indictment found by the grand jury in the district court in Bangor.

By an explosion at the smelting plant of the Texas & Arkansas Mining company near Hatfield, Ark., caused by a water jacket allowing the water to run into the ore pit, 11 men were injured; some of them cannot recover.

N. C. Mohan, a resident of Rockland, Me., died very suddenly of apoplexy Sunday morning. He was for many years a member of the firm of Watson & Co., shipbuilders in Thomaston, and in 1890 was a state senator from Knox county.

The Spanish government has taken steps to dispatch abundant supplies to Havana by fast vessels from Spanish and foreign ports. The more important supplies from Spain will be strongly convoyed, and will be sent immediately.

H. E. Gammons, aged 35, was drowned at Lake Quinsigamond, Worcester, Sunday. The boat in which he was rowing with three companions tipped over, and he sank within three feet of the shore. He was a tackmaker, and leaves a wife and five children.

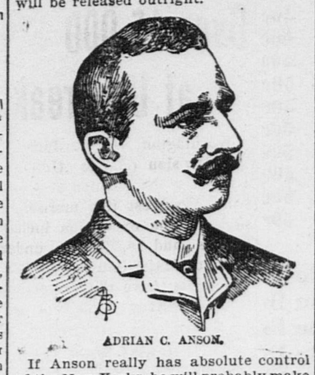
A comet was discovered at the Lick observatory in California Saturday evening. It is in constellation Scorpio about one degree northeast of the bright star Antares. The discovery was made by photograph. A plate exposed for other purposes on that region of the sky showed when developed a strong trail produced by a comet of about an eighth magnitude.

The Boston Elevated Railway company has placed an order with the Walker company of Cleveland for the construction of a direct current generator which will be the largest ever built. This monster generator will have a valid capacity of 4000 horse-power and will be capable of delivering over 5000 horsepower for a few hours at a time. The machine will weigh 360,000 pounds.

"PAPA ANSE."

Veteran of Baseball Chosen to Manage the New Yorks.

New York, June 13.—Adrian Constantine Anson is now manager of the New York baseball team. President Freedman announces that Anson will have undisputed control of the team, but that Joyce will continue to play first base and captain the team as long as Anson thinks he can fill the bill. It is safe betting, however, that Anson will begin practicing at once and in a very short time will take Joyce's place on the team. The latter will then receive a "vacation" or will be released outright.



ADRIAN C. ANSON.

If Anson really has absolute control of the New Yorks, he will probably make a number of changes in their make-up between now and next year. He realizes that the outfield is not up to date and that another heavy-hitting backstop is needed As the veteran has picked up and developed many first-class players, he is expected to strengthen the team in weak spots. The cranks gladly welcome Anson, for he is the "grand old man" of baseball, a sport and a clever gentleman. He has been a kicker in his day, but he was never regarded as a "tough mug" and is not an advocate of hoodlumism on the ball field.

The National league clubs stand as follows: Cincinnati, 682; Cleveland, 652; Boston, 644; Baltimore, 625; New York, 523; Chicago, 511; Pittsburg, 511; St. Louis, 471; Philadelphia, 439; Brooklyn, 390; Washington, 341; Louisville, 319.

Manager Long of the Reading, Pa., Baseball club had fines and costs amounting to $117 imposed for playing a baseball game on Sunday with the Hartford club of the Atlantic league. The suit was heard and determined by an alderman friendly to the manager, before whom the suit was brought, before the Ministerial association took action. The case being now in friendly hands it will go to court.

A good race is on in the Eastern league, and it is a good guesser who can pick the winner. The Providences have made a fine spurt lately, and are much in the race. Springfield has had a great deal of hard luck, being handicapped in various directions.

The percentages of the New England clubs are as follows: Brocktons, 759; Pawtuckets, 552; New Bedfords, 548; Fall Rivers, 500; Newports, 353; Tauntons, 323.

The winners Saturday in the National league were the Bostons, New Yorks, Clevelands and Baltimores. In the New England league: New Bedfords, Pawtuckets and Tauntons. The Springfields won and lost in Montreal.

Wagner's home run with a man on base won the Louisville-Cincinnati game for the Louisvilles in the eighth inning, 5 to 4.

In the Baltimore-St. Louis game last Monday, 25 base hits were made, and all were singles.

Pitcher Murphy of Hartford has a record of five shutouts and three games in which the opposing teams made but six runs.

The backers of the Fall River and New Bedford clubs complain that they have to go deep into their pockets, while people who want baseball do little or nothing toward supporting the clubs.

The Pawtuckets and Tauntons were 11 runs each when Umpire Hunt called Sunday's game at Crescent Park, R. I., at the end of the 10th inning to allow Man. Leonard's men to catch a train for home. The game was one of hard hitting, the Tauntons finishing McCafferty in five innings. Rhodes, who succeeded him, was hit hard in the eighth, and two bases on balls which he gave helped the visitors out. McDougall was touched up lively, particularly in the fifth and eighth.

The Fall Rivers beat the Newports at the Mount Hope park grounds Sunday afternoon in a game full of interest and excitement, 5 to 4. The lead was taken by the former in the seventh, with a costly error gave three runs, but the result remained in doubt until the last man was cut.

The first Sunday game this season near Cleveland was played at Euclid Beach park, nine miles from the city. A crowd of 6000 was present. A severe thunder storm interrupted the game, but there was no interference by the authorities. The latter part of the five innings was played in the rain, and the ball was so wet the pitchers could do nothing with it. Score: 3 to 1 in favor of the Pittsburgs.

The St. Louis team defeated the Chicagos in one of the prettiest games of the season, 4 to 2. Both pitchers were hit hard; only the brilliant fielding kept down the score. The St. Louises scored three runs by bunching of hits, aided by two bases on balls.

Pitcher Klobedanz bids fair to repeat this year his splendid record of last season. In 1897 he won 72.9 percent of his games for the Bostons. Thus far he has won nine games and lost three, a remarkably fine showing, and excelled by no left-hander in the business.

It is worth the price of admission to see Lajoie of the Phillies play. He comes nearer being a whole team in himself than almost any player.

Immense Damage Done.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., June 13.—A violent tornado accompanied by rain struck this city last night and did immense damage along the docks and the railroad yards. Its path lay through the Central Vermont yards and docks and the Ogdensburg Transit company's docks. The Transit company's elevator was unroofed and the contents of the house, 820,000 bushels of corn and oats, was almost ruined by the heavy rain and the water which escaped from the broken mains in the building. The roof was carried some distance by the gale, and in falling badly damaged the mill of the Skillings, Whitney & Barnes Lumber company.

DEWEYLAND!

works and six men wounded by a 4-7 inch shell striking and exploding a three pounder shell, injuries not serious; Raleigh, one pounder shell through her whaleboat, now repaired.

The Spanish fleet was overmatched in ordnance, but not in such a degree as to account for the marvelous disparity in the damages inflicted. Of guns that throw a shell of one pound and over the Spanish carried 90, while the American fleet was armed with 118 of such weapons.

The wrecks of nine vessels are to be seen. The Spanish transport Manila was found in three feet of mud up near the navy yard, but the Petrel was able to tow her off and she came out under her own steam and anchored near the squadron. She is a beautiful steamer of about 2000 tons. On board were supplies for the navy and 500 tons of coal. In addition to the Manila about a dozen tugs and launches have been seized and are now being used by the American fleet.

May 2 the Raleigh and Baltimore were sent down to demand the surrender or to destroy the forts and headquarters on Corrogidor island. A flag of truce was sent in and the surrender of the Spaniards was demanded, whereupon the governor and the colonel commanding arranged the terms with Captain Coghlan of the Raleigh. The Americans have since dismantled the Spanish guns, destroyed their ammunition and put all the Spaniards on parole not to bear arms against the United States during this war, or to attempt to fire a shot at American ships.

The Powers Communing.

London, June 13.—The Daily Telegraph says editorially this morning: "We learn from an exceptionally well informed source that communications of a character which lend themselves easily to official repudiation are passing between Vienna, Paris, Berlin and St. tion between Spain and America. It is Petersburg on the question of intervensaid that Emperor Francis Joseph has taken the initiative. Spain, however, must face the situation squarely. Cuba and Porto Rico will obtain independence, and in all probability the United States will retain the Philippines as security for the indemnity, which is not likely to be paid for many years."

All the special dispatches from Berlin this morning deny that Germany has any intention of calling a conference as to the Philippines.

On the Sick List.

Atlanta, June 13.—The list of sick soldiers at the general army hospital here includes the following members of the Second Massachusetts regiment of volunteers: Joseph L. King, corporal company H; W. H. Miller, company H; G. E. Smith, company C; John Gass, company D, and Hugh Brown, company M.

PROLONGED CONTEST.

Early Settlement of Trouble Not Looked For.

PLANNING A DECISIVE STROKE.

Flotilla Approaching the Devasted Island.

NO FEAR ENTERTAINED FOR ITS SAFETY.

Expectation That a Landing Will Be Effected on Friday.

Washington, June 14.—Peace is still remote. The end of the war is not in sight. To this conclusion the president and his advisers have reluctantly come, even though their judgment is in opposition to their hopes. They look forward now to a long drawn-out war, unless they can execute some stroke which would be absolutely fatal to Spain.

When the war began many keen observers predicted a prolonged contest. They based their belief on the knowledge that wars with Spain, from the time of Napoleon, have been long drawn out, with Spain persistently fighting against great odds, and refusing to surrender, even after the tide of war had irresistibly turned against her.

With the possibility that the war is yet to last several months, the president and his advisers are facing the new situation with the utmost frankness. It is estimated at the war department that within the next two months 60,000 American soldiers will be in the field at the Philippines, Porto Rico, Santiago and other Cuban ports not yet named, but against which aggressive operations are proposed. By that time the volunteer army now in camp, and yet to be mustered in, will be fully clothed and armed, and will be ready for the invasion of Cuba. Whether it will be sent to Havana as soon as it is ready is a question which cannot yet be answered, because it will depend entirely upon circumstances. It may be that the best judgment of the military authorities will agree that the investment of Havana shall then take place, in which event the army will be transported to Cuban soil without regard to climatic conditions. If, on the other hand, it is deemed best to wait until fall, a program of postponement will be followed out regardless of any popular demand for immediate action. In short, every step will be taken with great deliberation, even though the army be ready to move.

It has been realized for sometime that as yet no assault has been directed against a fatal spot in the Spanish nation. The Philippines, Porto Rico and Cuba may all be lopped off without injuring the parent trunk. This being the case, it may be necessary to strike the vital blow on the peninsula of Spain. As a close friend of the president remarked, it may be easier to send a fleet across the water than to send an army to Cuba.

The army is afloat to join Sampson's squadron. The first great struggle between the Spanish and American soldiery is near at hand. With this expedition under way the military authorities are turning their attention to the capture of Porto Rico, and the second expedition should soon start. With their departure the war department threw aside the veil of secrecy which has hitherto surrounded its operations, and not only frankly admitted that the troops had left, but made public the personnel of the expedition.

Lucky For the Marines.

Kingston, Jam., June 14.—The wonder is that the Spaniards did not drive the marines from this first American post on Cuban soil into the sea. There are only 620 marines there. They fought in the open, with but few rifle pits, trenches or hiding places. The tramped brush shows that the attack Saturday afternoon was made by a heavy body of the enemy. Their number is estimated by the Cuban insurgents at more than 2000, it being known that there are about 2500 Spanish troops in and about Guantanamo.

It is lucky for this little band of marines that the Spaniards are not bolder fighters, or Saturday night's battle would have been a bloody tale of heroic resistance to overwhelming numbers and the wiping out of a forlorn hope.

The Spaniards had mounted two guns on the west side of the harbor and blazed away with them late Sunday. A few shells from the Texas stopped their nonsense. The guns were not of sufficient range to reach the Americans, and, in fact, the gunners did not attempt to fire after the Texas opened on them.

Hardly an Authentic Interview.

Brussels, June 14.—The special Madrid correspondent of a paper of this city telegraphs an interview which he claims to have had with Mr. Merino, the private secretary of the Spanish premier, in which the secretary is quoted as saying formally declared that the Spanish government will accept any peace proposal which is submitted, "on the express condition that it does not emanate from the enemy;" but the premier's secretary is said to have added: "The international mediation which would be especially welcomed upon the part of Spain would be in the case of the initiative being taken by France or Austria."

What Madrid Thinks.

Madrid, June 14.—The opinion here is that a land attack upon Santiago will prove a much harder operation than is commonly supposed. The country to be traversed presents great natural difficulties. To arrive at Santiago an expedition must cross a range of of mountains called Sierra Cobre, in which there are many positions easily defended by comparatively small forces, especially against an enemy which is sure to be delimated and demoralized by yellow fever and dysentery; for this district, at all times, is the most unhealthful in the island.

Doubtless the Americans will have the assistance of the insurgents, who are thoroughly acquainted with the topography of the district and are well-seasoned against disease; but in the past history of the insurrection the rebels have never had much success in attacking fortified positions. At the same time it must be remembered that a considerable number of Spanish troops are available for defense.

The prospect of a conjoint bombardment by the American squadron does not excite serious apprehension in the minds of the Spanish military authorities. For the moment, however, the Cuban question is rather in the background owing to the hot discussion everywhere of Philippine affairs. The papers are publishing curious documents relating to the transactions for the surrender of Aguinaldo before the war.

Its Days Numbered.

London, June 14.—The Paris correspondent of The Morning Post says: "I learn from a trustworthy source that the days of the Sagasta cabinet are numbered. It is believed the cabinet is aware that the torpedo boat destroyer Terror has been lost and, despite official denials, it is rumored that there is further bad news from Cuba. Silvela, leader of the dissident Conservatives, is regarded as the coming man. The Carlists are enrolling adherents, and startling developments are expected."

Private Lamprey Dead.

Chickamauga Park, June 14. — The fourth death in the Eighth Massachusetts occurred yesterday from appendicitis. Private Timothy O. Lamprey of company B of Amesbury was brought to the hospital Friday suffering severely from cramps and exhaustion. Saturday afternoon he was removed to the division hospital, where he died. Lamprey lived in Salisbury, Mass., where he left a widow and four children.

Germany Menaces San Domingo.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 14.—The officials of the Dominican government having seized at Monte Cristi, Santo Domingo, a business house formerly belonging to Jimenes, leader of the abortive revolutionary attempt, but now the property of a German company, the German consul general has asked Berlin to send a warship to that port to protect the company's interests.

Jimenes carefully made over his business to his successor before embarking in the revolutionary enterprise. President Heureaux's government demanded that the owners of the business should pay a fine of $200,000 because of the part Jimenes took in the insurrection. This was refused, and the private seals which had been placed on the doors of the warehouse were broken by Dominican officials, who took possession.

Blames the Reporter.

London, June 14.—The Daily Chronicle publishes an interview with Chauncey Depew with reference to his reported utterances to French newspaper men on the subject of an Anglo-American alliance and the relations between the United States and France. Mr. Depew explained that the French paper had not correctly represented his views, declaring that he did not say there never would be an Anglo-American alliance. What he did say was that a specific alliance was "not necessary or possible because it ought to have constant and cordial co-operation." Mr. Depew said also: "My statements regarding France and America were similarly overcolored."

Paucity of Truth.

Madrid, June 14.—In the chamber of deputies yesterday the minister of the interior, replying to questions on the subject, said that according to the semi-official dispatches during the last fight at Santiago "a Spanish shell burst on the deck of the Massachusetts, dismounting a gun, killing and wounding a number of men and seriously injuring the vessel, while the New York and several other vessels were compelled to withdraw in a badly damaged condition. In addition three of the American ships were sent back to the repairing yard."

Victims of the Attack.

Washington, June 14. — The three marines reported as among those who fell in the first battle on Cuban soil at Guantanamo were comrades. Sergeant Charles Hampton Smith was born at Westminster, Md., 31 years ago. His next of kin is his sister, Cora G. Smith of Smallwood, Md. Sergeant Smith enlisted Aug. 30, 1893, at the barracks here. He had a brave spirit and was quickly promoted from private to the rank of sergeant. His record was an excellent one.

Private William Dunphy was a native of Gloucester, and 22 years old. He enlisted in the marine corps on the 9th of last December, and was one of the recruits at the barracks at Boston. His next of kin is an aunt, Mrs. McDonald, No. 55 Duncan street, Gloucester.

Private James McColgan enlisted at the post at Boston Jan. 5, 1897. His next of kin is an aunt, Fanny O'Loughlin of Stoneham, Mass.

Costly Bombardment.

Kingston, Jam., June 14.—Approximately $200,000 worth of ammunition was expended in the bombardment of Santiago, but apparently it has not checked Spanish activity on the earthworks. The warships lost a quantity of crockery and other easily breakable things from the concussion of the big guns.

Lieutenant Commander Delehanty, with the gunboat Suwanee, armed 3000 Cubans with rifles, ammunition and machetes, a quantity of medicine and several tons of bread and bacon. The Cubans are very active, expressing the greatest confidence and promising to maintain a close blockade of Santiago on the land side. Strict supervision is exercised in the landing of arms and supplies, and nothing is given to an insurgent camp beyond what it can successfully defend against any probable force. The insurgents represent that their numbers are rapidly increasing. Certainly they have evidenced their ability in the neighborhood of Guantanamo, whre they have got possession of the railway and telegraph termini. They say that they watched Monday's bombardment from the hills at the rear of Santiago; that as many as 300 Spaniards were killed and several guns dismounted. Terrible execution was wrought by the 12-inch shells of the Texas. If their statements can be relied upon, the Spanish garrison at Santiago is on half rations and the town itself is even much worse off, the military authorities refusing to sell citizens provisions at any price. The insurgents predict that a famine will cause speedy capitulation.

The San Francisco's Mishap.

Highland Light, Mass., June 14.—The flagship San Francisco, with Commander Howell on board, while attempting to round Cape Cod in a heavy fog, went ashore near High Head life saving station Monday morning, but by the hard work of the crew, who threw over a large quantity of coal and ballast, and the assistance of four tugs from Boston, she came off apparently uninjured.

The cruiser had been out all night and was making her way back to Provincetown. The fog was very thick, and by some means her navigating officer missed the big fog whistle on Highland Light only a few miles away, and, thinking the ship well to the northward, swung her head round to the westward. The ship struck head on, going at a speed of about eight knots. The tide had ebbed about an hour and, after an abortive attempt to back off, Captain Leary gave up hope of floating the big cruiser at that time.

A hurried examination did not disclose any injuries to the ship, and it is probable that she will not have to be drydocked. The San Francisco at once started for Provincetown.

The escape of the valuable warship from utter destruction was most fortunate and was due to favorable weather and untiring exertions of her crew.

Collector Gill's Scheme.

Boston, June 14.—Collector of Internal Revenue Gill of the district of Massachusetts has made public the following statement on the proposed collection of war taxes: "Owing to certain features of the new war revenue law, the stamps for which are not quite ready, I suggest, in order that business be interfered with as little as possible, that such as is necessary to be done by check, note or other instrument, and which cannot be delayed shall be done as though said papers bore the stamp required by law until such stamps are ready. Makers of proprietary articles and dealers therein will take an immediate and actual inventory of all stock on hand, and make a sworn statement to this office, to be adjusted later with whatever additional business is done previous to the receipt of stamps.

"Manufacturers of tobacco, snuff, cigars and cigarets, stamps for which are now ready, must not remove stock from their factory except the same has tax paid at the new rate. Dealers having stock on hand with stamps affixed at old rates subsequent to April 14, 1896, in excess of 1000 pounds of tobacco or 20,000 cigars or cigarets, will make a return to this office within 30 days, which excess of stock will be assessed for the difference between the old and the new rate."

Trouble Between Farmers.

New Haven, Conn., June 14.—Stephen Hill, a farmer, residing in Cheshire, and his wife were locked up last night in default of $2500 bonds each, charged with assault with intent to kill Louis Terrell, a farmhand, aged about 23. Terrell is at the Meriden hospital with his right shoulder and neck full of shot, and his condition is critical.

The shooting took place Monday morning, and was the outcome of a dispute between Hill and Joseph Higgins, a well-to-do farmer, by whom Terrell is employed, over a right of way through Hill's property to property owned by Higgins. Terrell started to go across Hill's land, being ordered to do so by Higgins, when he was shot by Mr. and Mrs. Hill, who were armed with a shotgun and a revolver.

LYNCHING IN KANSAS.

Murderer of a Farmer's Daughter Killed by a Mob.

Taken From the Sheriff and Executed.

Populace Excited by the Granting of Change of Venue.

Great Bend, Kan., June 14.—John Becker, about 50 years of age, paid the penalty for murder in a manner not sanctioned by the law, in a square in this city Monday evening. He had killed the 16-year-old daughter of William Huffmeister, a farmer, who lives on the road to Ellinwood, and as the legal machinery did not move rapidly enough for the community, the farmers improvised some that operated with tragic and grewsome swiftness.

Monday morning Becker was brought here from Hutchinson to be put on his preliminary examination. Early in the day farmers from the neighborhood of the crime began coming into town, and last evening the streets were thronged. When it became known that the murderer had been granted a change of venue to Lyons and that Sheriff Aber would take his prisoner east on a train, a big crowd gathered at the depot.

Sheriff Aber started with Becker in a buggy for a crossing east of the city, intending to flag the train there. When the train pulled in the sheriff's strategy had become apparent to all. The would-be lynchers boarded the train and rode on. When Sheriff Aber at the crossing saw that the train was crowded, he hurriedly drove back to Great Bend and placed his prisoner in jail. At Dartmouth, the lynching party left the train and started back to this city, having hired all the conveyances available there.

A few minutes before 8 o'clock the mob swarmed around the jail. Believing he could outwit the lynchers, the sheriff rushed Becker from the jail to his buggy, which was in the street, but he had no sooner done so than he, his men and the prisoner were surrounded. The sheriff and his deputies made a stubborn defense, and the prisoner also fought desperately, but finally the mob prevailed.

The murderer was borne to the public square. There a rope was drawn around Becker's neck and, after he had been beaten almost to insensibility, the rope was thrown over the limb of a tree and he was drawn up. The sheriff and his men kept close to the lynchers, but they were held back for 15 minutes. When it became apparent that Becker was dead the mob dispersed and the murderer's body was cut down by the sheriff and the coroner.

Though guns were drawn and threats were made, no shots were fired by the sheriff and his men in their struggle against the lynchers. Many of the lynchers must be known to the police officers, but there is no very strong talk of arrests.

Becker is said to come of a prosperous family at Marion, and a lawyer came here from that place to defend him. It is stated that insanity was to have been his defense.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, June 14.—An interesting debate occurred in the senate yesterday on the bill providing for the completion of the Massachusetts hospital for consumptives and tubercular patients at Rutland. The ways and means committee amended the bill making the appropriation contingent on the retirement of the present board of trustees, because, though $142,000 had been allowed them for the construction of buildings, they have expended much more and gone beyond their authority. The debate was not finished.

The committee on ways and means reported a bill for a state tax of $1,500,000. This is $250,000 less than last year. The auditor estimated that the year's expenses would be $9,457,838, and the legislature has appropriated $9,573,384. The estimated income is $8,075,669, and the deficit is $1,497,714.

After a few minutes of debate the house refused to suspend the rules to admit the resolve for the manufacture of haversacks for officers of the Massachusetts volunteer militia.

On motion of Mr. Morse of the cape the house bill to regulate wagering contracts on securities, the "anti-bucket-shop" bill, was referred to the next general court, 13 to 8.

The resolve giving $15,000 to the Woman's Charity club was passed to be engrossed, as was the bill providing for state aid for soldiers and sailors and for rendering aid to their families.

Ryan Defeated West.

New York, June 14.—A large delegation of sporting men came from Buffalo, Albany, Troy, Rochester and Syracuse yesterday to back Tommy Ryan in his bout with Tommy West. Just before the main fight began Ryan's backers reduced their odds from 2 to 1 to 9 to 5. In many cases 8 to 5 was taken by the fanciers of West. Ryan looked exceedingly fit and well, and said he weighed 147 pounds. West was also in splendid shape and weighed 152 pounds. The referee let the bout go as far as humanity would permit, and when at last he sent the men to their corners and awarded the honors to Ryan there was general satisfaction among the spectators.

NO. 32.

AN ORDINANCE

Concerning Telegraph, Telephone and Other Electric Wires.

CITY OF QUINCY.

Be it Ordained by the City Council of Quincy as follows:

SECTION 1. The City Council shall have the exclusive power to license the erection and maintenance of telegraph, telephone and other electric lines of wires, and the construction and maintenance of aerial and underground conduits, cables and lines by telegraph and telephone companies, or other companies or by individuals within the City of Quincy. Whenever application is made for a location for such lines, it shall, before granting the same, first determine the streets through which said lines shall run, and shall then require the company or person so applying to furnish a plan of the streets so designated therefor, upon a scale of not less than 150 nor more than 200 feet to the inch, and the City Council shall then determine and specify on said plan where each post may be located, and shall thereupon issue to the party applying therefor a certificate specifically enumerating the streets where the lines may be run, and the location of each post thereon as exhibited on said plan, the kind of post, the height at which all wires must be placed, and the dimensions and location of the underground conduit, if said lines or any part thereof shall be laid underground, and the location of the manholes and distributing poles.

Said plan and a copy of said certificate shall be filed in the office of the City Clerk, and the construction of the line shall conform thereto in every particular, and any part or man hole placed otherwise than as herein designated shall be forthwith removed. Any license granted hereunder shall be subject to the right of the City, free of charge, to place its fire alarm telegraph or other electric lines upon the posts or through the conduit so licensed to be maintained; and to the right of the City to license the location of lines by any other person or company upon said poles, upon payment to the owner thereof of a reasonable compensation, to be determined by the parties, and they failing to agree, it shall be determined by the Mayor. Whenever a location is granted upon posts already erected, a plan of the streets so traversed need not be required. The City Council when granting a license under this ordinance may at the time of granting the same, in addition to the requirements and conditions set forth herein, impose other and such additional conditions and requirements as it may deem proper.

SECTION 2. Companies or persons so licensed shall lay underground their lines, wires, cables and conduits, and construct, maintain, relocate, remove, repair and alter the same and make necessary manholes and maintain suitable distributing poles, in manner, shape, size and material according to the directions of the City Council, and within such time as may be designated by that body, in any street or streets wherein said company or person maintains, or desires to maintain electric cables or lines of wire to the number of 100 or more, whenever said Council shall deem it proper that said cables or lines of wires should be placed underground, and shall notify such individual or corporation so to place them.

SECTION 3. Any company or person licensed as aforesaid shall gather and place in aerial cables, lines and wires to the number of fifty or more in any street or streets, according to the direction of the City Council, and within such time, in such manner, and at such height, as may be designated by said Council whenever that body shall deem it proper to order such to be done.

SECTION 4. Every line of wire along and across streets, ways, or other public places, shall be placed underground or at a height not less than twenty feet from the ground, except under bridges, upon suitable poles, or from building to building, except that such electrical conductors and fixtures as may be required in the construction, maintenance and operation of electrical railways may be not less than eighteen feet from the ground.

Every such line of wire shall be so constructed, placed and maintained as not to interfere with any other line, nor with the operation of the fire alarm telegraph, and all unused lines of wire shall be forthwith removed. Except for street purposes, no more than one line of posts or one conduit shall be maintained in any street; and no tree upon any street or other public place shall be cut or trimmed to make room for such wires without the consent of the Commissioner of Public Works.

SECTION 5. Every employee, official or agent in the employ of any telegraph, telephone or electric company, who desires access to any premises within this City, upon business of the company, appertaining to the repairing or laying of lines over, through or along said premises, shall be furnished by the company with a certificate of authority to act therefor, and shall not enter upon said premises without first exhibiting such certificate to the owner or occupant thereof, and receiving permission to so enter.

SECTION 6. The posts shall be kept well painted, of a uniform color to the satisfaction of the Commissioner of Public Works; and the name of the company placing the same shall be distinctly printed or imprinted on the cross-bar used and occupied by said company on said posts; and the location of any post, when once erected shall not be changed without the permission of the Commissioner of Public Works.

SECTION 7. The City shall have the exclusive use of the upper cross-bar, and the top of each post free of cost, for the purpose of placing wires thereon; said cross-bar shall be a four-pin cross-bar of not less than five feet in length, and shall be placed at not less than three feet from the cross-bar next to it.

SECTION 8. No street, way or bridge shall be torn up or disturbed for the purpose of laying, repairing, changing or removing lines, wires or conduits, or erecting, altering or removing posts, poles or other fixtures used for carrying electric lines or wires, without a permit first obtained from the City Council, indicating the time, manner and place of disturbance, with the conditions under which such is permitted. But no form of permit shall be necessary to sanction the necessary temporary removal of covers to manholes for the purpose of removing or repairing lines, wires and cables. Whenever any opening or disturbance is made in any street, way or bridge, for the purpose aforesaid, or for any repairs, such street, way or bridge shall be promptly restored by the persons or corporations owning or operating the lines or wires, and making said opening or disturbance, to a good condition, satisfactory to the Commissioner of Public Works, and shall be kept and maintained in such condition by said persons or corporations for two years thereafter; and, if not immediately restored, or kept and maintained, the same may be done by the City at the expense of said persons or corporations without previous notice of the intention so to do.

SECTION 9. No person or company in laying, repairing or removing its wires or conduits shall disturb or in any way interfere with any gas or water pipes, or sewers or pipes connected therewith.

SECTION 10. Whenever the City shall construct, enlarge, relocate, repair or alter the streets, sewers, water-pipes or other public works, in streets, ways and bridges where conduits and wires are laid, which, in the opinion of the City Council, require the removal or changing the location of said conduits and the fixtures appertaining thereto, or the repairing thereof, said removing, changing and repairing shall be done without delay at the expense of the persons or corporations owning or operating the same.

SECTION 11. Whenever underground conduits have once been laid in the streets and ways of the City, they shall not be removed, relocated or changed without permission from the City Council.

SECTION 12. All corporations, companies and individuals licensed to erect poles and fixtures under the provisions of this ordinance shall first, before proceedure, give to the City an agreement in writing satisfactory to the Mayor saving harmless said City against any and all claims for damages, costs, expenses or compensation for, or on account of, or in any way growing out of, the erection, maintenance or use of said poles on said streets, or any act or omission of said corporation, companies or individuals, their agents or servants, or in any manner arising from the rights or privileges granted them by the City.

SECTION 13. No permits shall be granted or if granted shall be valid to disturb the surface of the streets for any of the purposes aforesaid, until the corporation, person or company petitioning therefor has executed an agreement, in a form satisfactory to and to be approved by the Mayor, providing:—

First, that in every underground conduit constructed by any such corporation, person or company sufficient and necessary space shall be reserved free of expense for the use of the fire, police and other signal wires belonging to the City and used exclusively for municipal purposes, and that the fire and police departments by their electrical superintendents and other proper servants shall be allowed access to said conduit at all times, and that said departments shall be allowed facilities and privileges in putting in or taking out wires equal in all respects to those of such corporation, person or company.

Second, that said corporation, company or person will indemnify and save harmless the City against all claims, damages, costs and expenses whatsoever to which the City may be subjected in consequence of the acts or neglect of said corporation, company or persons, their agents or servants, or in any manner arising from the rights and privileges granted them by the City.

SECTION 14. In addition to the aforesaid agreement, said company, corporation and person shall, before a street is disturbed for the laying of wires or conduits by them or either of them, execute a bond, with satisfactory security in a penal sum of not less than ten thousand dollars, and of form satisfactory to, and to be approved by, the Mayor, conditioned to indemnify and save harmless the City against all damages, costs, expenses and losses whatsoever to which it may be subjected in consequence of the acts or neglects of said company, corporation or person or either of their agents, officers or servants, and in any manner arising from, or growing out of the use and transmission of electricity, the privileges permitted by the City, and the construction, maintenance, operation and use of said lines, wires, cables, conduits, posts, poles and all structures, constructions, fixtures and apparatus erected or used by them or either of them, and also to fulfill all their agreements with the City, all the orders conditions and obligations imposed by the City Council, and all obligations and duties required by law, and this ordinance and every other ordinance of said City, and all additions and amendments thereto. A new bond of like import, and with new surety, may at any time be required by the City, which new bond shall be a strengthening bond, unless the surety or former bond is expressly released from further liability by vote of the City Council.

SECTION 15. The Chief Engineer of the Fire Department shall have the supervision of all telegraph, telephone and other electric lines of wires within the City, and shall see that all laws and ordinances in relation thereto are enforced.

SECTION 16. Whoever violates any of the provisions of this ordinance shall forfeit and pay a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for each offence.

Children's Day.

At the First Presbyterian church on Water street, there was the largest Children's day congregation for years, and the exercises were very successful from every point of view The singing was very hearty and the songs bright and beautiful. Flowers were richly banked upon the pulpit platform. Four children were baptized by the pastor, who made a short address on the subject of infant baptism. In the evening the Rev. Mr. Rogers, of East Milton, preached an excellent sermon, to another large audience, in exchange with the pastor.

BICYCLE RUN.

Annual Outing of Married Men of Wollaston.

The second annual "married men's bicycle run" has gone into history. It went last Sunday and so much in evidence was it before it became history, that it is safe to predict that in June, '99, the third annual will surely follow. This married men's run was first introduced last June by Mr. H. C. Seymour, when 33 wheelmen went to North Scituate, and such a pleasant outing was realized on that occasion that it prompted Mr. Seymour to repeat it this year. After a canvass among his friends, he found eighty-two names on the list, sixty-three responded and formed a line four abreast under the pacing guidance of Mr. George C. Stebbins at Wollaston, Sunday morning about 7.30.

Two hours of easy riding found them at the Centennial House, North Scituate, where "mine host," Mr. Hardwick, received them, and gave them the freedom of the hotel.

The remaining nineteen left the Wollaston Yacht club house in four boats early in the morning, arriving after a pleasant sail of two hours. The whole party joined in innocent pastimes during their stay. The Quincy quartette was indispensable; as on the first run a year ago, their singing had lost none of its snap and was a feature of the day. Mr. Tom Raiche, Mr. William Pinckney and Mr. Charles Sargent were at their best, and gave each, several pleasing recitals. Mr. E. Glover, and Mr. H. Corbett sang solos, and Mr. George Turner and Mr. C. W. Page sang that good old duet, "Larboard Watch."

Everything passed off smoothly from start to finish. To mention all the pleasant and comical incidents would take up a whole Ledger, so we simply say that all who participated arrived home safely and feel much refreshed after their outing.

Following is a list of the party and the nature of their various means of transportation:

Children's Day at Atlantic.

Children's day was observed at the Atlantic Memorial church on Sunday by a sermon by the pastor in the morning on duties of parents in bringing up their children, preceded by the rite of baptism administered to several infants and small children.

The closing service was by the children of the Sunday School a 6.30 and was made interesting by songs and recitations appropriate to the day.

A quartette composed of Misses Moxon and Coe and Messrs. Gassett and Thomas also assisted in the evening.

The floral decorations were most elaborate and tastefully arranged by Mr. W. Jay Sanborn, to whom the Memorial church is many times indebted for artistic floral effects at the Sunday services.

Miss Heidenriech of Boston was the morning soloist.

To Miss Florence Thomas and Miss Annie White belong the credit of the success of the children's concert.

Now that it is settled that the Fifth Infantry will be the next to go to the front, the regiment is abundantly rewarded for the patience with which it has awaited its call. It goes without saying that the command will make as favorable an impression as the Massachusetts regiments which have gone before it. Officers who know the Fifth know that there has been no finer body of infantry in the service of the Commonwealth.—Journal.

"Patriotism" was the key note of the entertainment given under the auspices of John Adams Council, R. A., at Odd Fellows' hall, Woliaston, on Monday evening. After the regular business meeting of the Council a large audience listened to chorus singing and instrumental music, together with brief and stirring addresses by Hon. Henry O. Fairbanks on "Our Country"; "Territorial Extension" by Hon. C. H. Porter; and "Gladstone," by Bro. William B. Orcutt.

THE SPANISH FLEET.

Lieut. Bleu Has Seen it at Santiago.

Washington, June 14—The Navy department has posted a bulletin from Admiral Sampson saying that Lieut. Bleu has landed at Santiago and made a detour of 70 miles around the harbor taking observations of the harbor and fortifications, and reports that the Spanish fleet is all in the harbor. The bulletin further states that the four marines killed at the battle of Caimanera were mutilated in a most barbarous manner. Surgeon Gibbs was killed in camp.

Cape Haytien, June 14—No war news today from Santiago.

Signal Corps.

Capt. T. R. Clark of the signal corps, U. S. V., is still awaiting orders to recruit a company of 60 men for that branch of the government service, and with the assistance of Lieut. Sprague of Quincy will doubtless be ready to begin today. He will occupy the rooms of the signal corps, 2d brigade, at the East armory, where men desirous of joining this branch of the service should apply.

Capt. Clark tells the Globe that he has more applications already than he knows what to do with. Only 65 men are required, as Massachusetts' extra quota to the signal corps and about 40 of these men must be expert telegraphers. Capt. Clark says he could furnish twice that number, and all he is waiting for now is a place from which to recruit the men and the official documents necessary. He is very enthusiastic about the men who have applied and expects to finish up his work in a very few days after he is located.

NAVAL LETTER.

Allie Williams of Wollaston Writes Home.

The following letter was received last week from Allie Williams of Wollaston, who is on the U. S. S. "Oneida," by his sister, Miss Arra Williams:

Sunday May, 27, 1898.

We left Portsmouth Navy Yard, Va., Wednesday night May 25 at 7.30 and steamed to Hampton Roads, dropping anchor at 9 P. M. Pulled up anchor at 5.30 next morning and left Chesapeake bay far behind. We have had a splendid trip so far except last night and today,—it is so rough that you cannot see straight. We are about 200 miles off Cape Hatteras. It is now 3 o'clock and dinner is all cleared away.

We picked up twenty flying fish that flew on board during the night, cleaned them and had them for dinner with plum duff and scow soup. Provisions are short. From what I hear we are not going to stop until we get to the Straights of Florida, then only anchor and send a message to Washington and proceed to Key West for business.

I have been watching twenty porpoise playing around our bow.

I will keep a little diary and mail this when we stop. We expect to reach Key West Wednesday afternoon.

I am just back from the fire drill. My job with three others is to see to all the hatches and ventilators, then get a bucket and join the bucket squad.

We have also a gun drill. The order is cast lose and provide. There are three men to a gun. I belong to the after gun on the port side. The captain of the gun gets the belts and revolvers for his two men, and the other man and I run to the magazine where the men pass the ammunition up.

Monday, May 30—Sighted land at 10 A. M. Thought we would go to the bottom last night. At 2 A. M. the dynamo engine broke and we could feel the shock all over the ship. All hands were called, every light was out, and we had hard work to find lanterns. Then the circulating pump broke and delayed us so much, have been running under half speed. We are about five minutes sail from Jupiter light inlet and are going to signal to send a message to Washington. The Captain told me as I came past the pilot house to tell the engineer he could fix the engine up a little as he would stop for two or three hours.

There is nothing but a long beach, with low shrubs visible. The crew are putting up awnings and swinging the boats on the davits that have been lashed to the deck. The Captain is going ashore in the launch. It is hotter here than you will see in Wollaston all summer.

Anchored at 1.30 P. M. Three boats with visitors came off. They gave the Captain a dozen pine apples. I helped the cook peal them and we took two of the largest and hid them, then gave the others out for supper. Tell father I wish he had one as they would melt in his mouth.

Before supper we had rifle practice. A bucket was thrown overboard and the first gang had it right opposite. I was the last man to shoot. It was between five and six hundred yards astern when I fired. Another fellow and I came the nearest. This practice was for the purpose of finding a gunner for one of the large guns. If I can't shoot with any of them I will eat my shoes. I don't know how I stand but out of five shots I made the prettiest target. The other fellow hit the pail once but his other four shots went very wild.

Weighed anchor at 7 P. M. Everything started well, but we had not got a half mile from the light when one of the boilers gave out, then the circulating pump stopped. Anchored and fixed up and started with one boiler. Then the fog horn got tangled in the tiller rope in the after hatch, had to clear that and then I turned in at 10.30.

Tuesday, May 31, turned out at 4 A. M. Found that we had drifted nearly back to where we started from. At 5.30 started at a very slow gait, (this craft is a delapidated mess). We passed a barque high and dry on the beach. We are running along about a mile from shore. If the other boiler gives out we will have to row. With sails set we passed Atlanta city at 10.30 A. M.

Our supplies are short, no bread or flour, only hard tack, with beans and canned meats. Anchored at 11.30. P. M.

Wednesday, June 1, weighed anchor at 6 A. M. Passed a four master with her starboard rail under water and sails all gone. This is a great place for rough weather. It is apt to come up in five minutes and blow "like time."

Baked beans last night for supper and for breakfast. Pea soup for dinner, hard tack, coffee and sausage meat. At 5.15 P. M. had orders to go to quarters. Got the ammunition up and stood by the guns. The mate came along and told me to shoot my gun, as I was the best rifle shot. Then he ranged the others accordingly on their guns. I fired five shots at a spindle, distance fifteen hundred yards, and made a fine target. Whoopee! Whoopee! Just think of it, I am gunner of the after port gun. What I do is to put it in position with one man on each side. I put my shoulder to the rest and the man on the right throws the breach block down and the fellow on the left puts the shell in the gun and I sight and fire it.

Whoopee! Whoopee!

Thursday, June 2, anchored at 3 A. M. Weighed anchor 6 A. M. Steamed through the fleet. Dinner at 7 and 8 bells. Pulled up anchor at 1.30 P. M. and tied up at the wharf for repairs. I expect to get ashore this evening. Allie Williams.

NO STAMPEDE.

Members of Fifth Will Remain Loyal and Await Call.

The Herald reports that the Massachusetts Fifth infantry is going ahead, quietly, with preparations for taking the field. Company commnders are looking about for recruites, so that when orders come there will be little delay in mustering. A gentleman who was at the war department Saturday assured the writer that he was told that, as soon as the press of matter connected with getting the recruiting officers of the different states on duty was over, Massachusetts would be asked for an additional regiment of infantry, and it was expected that the Fifth would receive the call. Offiers and men are ready.

It is said that the news that the regiment was really to go into the service has virtually saved the command as an organization, for most of the men had already announced their intention of enlisting in the regiments now in the field. While they had much rather go to the war as the Fifth regiment, they had about given up the idea and were meditating at stampede into the Sixth, Eighth and Ninth regiments.

School Attendance.

Supt. Lull's report of the school attandance for the month ending June 3, shows an average attendance of 4186 children. This is 543 more than in May 1896 and 368 more than in May last year. The Lincoln had the best percentage of attendance, the John Hancock the fewest tardinesses, the Gridley Bryant the fewest dismissals, and six schools had no truants:

QUARTET OF RASCALS.

Unsuspecting Parents In Clinton Given a Shock.

Their Sons Adopted Profession of Burglars.

Mystery That Puzzled the Police Solved by Arrests.

Clinton, Mass., June 14.—The mystery surrounding the series of burglaries among the business houses was solved last night in a very sensational manner by Chief of Police Murphy and members of the police force. In two weeks 10 stores have been entered and rifled, and suspicion was attached to an organized gang, but no clew could be obtained until yesterday, when Chief Murphy summoned several juveniles to his office, and at the end of two hours he was satisfied that a quartet of youngsters, their ages averaging about 12 years, were the guilty parties. He caused the arrest of Frank Cochran, William Gordon, Alphonzo King and Sidney Buidhammer, all sons of highly respected parents. They were arraigned, and each furnished bail on the charge of breaking and entering.

It is claimed the four boys maintained a clubroom in an old barn, which was also visited by other boys. The police raided the place and found large quantities of the stolen articles. The boys confessed.

Oil Plant on Fire.

Philadelphia, June 14.—The extensive plant of the Philadelphia Oil Refining company at Point Breeze, in the extreme southwestern part of the city, was visited by a fire last night, that, for a time, threatened to prove most disastrous.. By the almost herculean efforts of the company's workmen and nearly the entire fire department of the city, the flames were kept in check and the loss held within $300,000.

The fire broke out in the shipping wharf, facing on the Schuylkill river, wherein were stored cases, packages and barrels of crude and paraffine oils and wax. In an instant, almost, the entire wharf was in flames. Five separate alarms were sounded and 22 companies responded, in addition to the four police and fire boats. Adjoining the wharf were the tanks filled with crude and paraffine oils. On these the workmen and firemen worked with long lines of hose and kept the intense heat from igniting the contents. Meanwhile carloads of sand and earth were thrown upon the outskirts of the burning building and served to check somewhat the flames' advances.

Two barges, made fast in the dock, were burned to the water's edge, and one ship, the County Dumfries, was slightly scorched. Within the buildings were 3000 packages of paraffine, valued at about $38,000, and 200,000 cases of crude oil, valued at $200,000, and 1300 barrels of lubricating oil. The company carried its own insurance. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Charles N. Clark of Lowell, tailor, while in a fit of despondency, shot himself with a revolver and died.

John L. Clark of Pawtucket, R. I., 7 years old, drank a quantity of corrosive sublimate, thinking it soda, and died a half hour later.

Frank Kaynourke, a private of the New York volunteers, was struck by a train of the Washington-Southern railroad and instantly killed.

Sir Adolphe Chapleau, former lieutenant governor of Quebec and secretary of state of the dominion, and one of the great French-Canadian statesmen, died in Montreal.

Edward Rock of Lowell was found guilty of felonious assault upon his brother's wife, and was sentenced to not less than eight or more than 12 years in state prison.

Mrs. L. Shannon Davis of Boston, who was recently chosen state regent of the Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, has declined the honor, as it would keep her away from home.

Count Castellane, who married Anna Gould of New York, has challenged to a duel Henry Turot for an article in a Paris paper commenting upon the act of infanticide committed by a servant in the count's household.

In the French chamber of deputies yesterday the mouthpiece of the socialists and extreme radicals opened an attack on the domestic policy of the government. The debate will decide the fate of the Moline ministry.

The government of Paraguay has appointed a commission to inspect the engines of the Spanish torpedo boat destroyer Temerario in order to verify whether, as claimed by her commander, it is impossible for her to put to sea.

Professor M. S. Downs, a musical director, is dead at his home in Brooklyn. He was born at Haverhill, Mass., 68 years ago. He was formerly tenor in the quartet in Old South church. He afterwards settled in Memphis, where he gave the first musical festival held in the south.

The secretary of the navy has appointed Rear Admiral George E. Belknap (retired), Captain A. V. Reed (retired) and Civil Engineer Parks a board to examine and recommend coaling depots at the different navy yards and naval stations where such depots are not already established.

FIVE TO TWO.

The Quakers Downed Again In Their Second Game In Boston.

Boston, June 14.—With the exception of one inning, when the Phillies were tied up with the Boston champions yesterday, the Sunday school artists from the keystone state were docile victims for Captain Duffy and his yeomen in the first game of the week. Although Bergen reported the weather as warm inland, darkness came on in the seventh inning, accompanied with a cold fog, and the outfielders found difficulty in locating line hits.

L. CROSS.

Donohue, Manager McGunnigle's old find of Lowell, 1893, was the box artist, with a complete stock of round arm twisters and underhand risers, and a slow ball which got away from him too fast sometimes. Consequently, the auburn-haired lad from Waterbury ran into a fusillade of Boston hitting which only missed fire in two innings of the nine. Kloby pitched first-class ball for the home team, his command being wellnigh perfect, and in only the fourth inning was he hit to any extent. Three hits, one a double, in this inning allowed the Phillies to score the tieing run. McFarland hit for a high-soaring home run in the seventh inning.

Donohue, with two clean singles, led at the bat for the visitors. McFarland's catching, and the fielding of Douglass, Lajoie, Cross and Delehanty were a feature of the Phillies' play. Lajoie hit one with a dull thud for two bases, which helped score the initial Philadelphia run. Score:

Mercer for the Baltimores won his game in Washington by a home run in the fourth with two on bases. Kelly and McGann of the Baltimores were put out of the game for kicking. Score: 5 to 1.

The Browns overwhelmingly defeated the Pennsylvanias, and by so doing have placed themselves at the head of the procession which leads the college championship of 1898. Sedgwick's superior work and magnificent pitching, the Browns' hard hitting and fast fielding and Pennsylvanias' errors were the combination which resulted in a shutout.

The Cincinnatis were greatly assisted to victory yesterday by Umpires Swartwood and Woods. The former called two Louisvilles out at the plate who were clearly safe. Score: 6 to 4.

Manager Hanlon has given to Pitcher Arlington Pond his unconditional release. This action is taken by the management solely to reduce expenses. It is understood that Mr. Hanlon is contemplating the release of another twirler.

The third and deciding game for the Intercollegiate championship will be played in New York Saturday afternoon by Yale and Princeton. Both have lost one game on their home grounds.

The franchise, property and all rights of the Providence Baseball club have been purchased by President Draper, who will continue without changes in the personnel of the team or management. The transfer was brought about principally on account of a clash that occurred some time ago in the management.

Thatcher of the Brocktons pitched a fine game yesterday, and his club won hands down from the Tauntons, 7 to 3.

The inability to hit Foley on the part of the New Bedfords, together with the wildness of Sechrist, who was replaced in the fifth inning by Day, tells the story of the game in Newport. Score: 6 to 0.

The Pawtuckets played a magnificent game yesterday, backing up the superb pitching of Todd with faultless play, and scored a dozen of tallies. But three of the Fall Rivers reached first base, and none reached second. This makes the ninth game won by Todd out of 10 played.

Egan pitched a magnificent game for the Providences and held the Rochesters down to three hits; but sharp hustling by the Rochesters, together with a streak of wild throwing, produced four runs in the seventh and eighth innings, and they got the game, 4 to 2.

In the 12th inning yesterday Joyce of the New Yorks put the first ball pitched him under the right field ropes for a home run, winning the game from the Brooklyns, 4 to 3.

Slashed Her Throat.

Chelsea, Mass., June 14.—Robert Glover was arrested last night on a charge of attempting to kill his wife by slashing her throat with a razor. After the assault Glover attempted to end his life by jumping off a bridge. He was rescued and handed over to the police, not much the worse for his plunge. Mrs. Glover will recover.

Leiter Knocked Out.

Chicago, June 14.—The first indication of approaching disolution in the Leiter regime came Monday morning, when it was announced that all his cash and June wheat had been transferred to Philip Armour, and that the September option, of which Leiter was a heavy holder, had also been transferred. These transactions gave rise to conjectures that soon developed into a panic.

L. Z. Leiter when asked by his son for more money refused to be drawn further into the deal, and thus compelled the latter to let go a large line of his holdings in order to satisfy his warehouse creditors and marginal demands. Representatives of the northwestern interests appear to have precipitated the crisis by coming to Chicago Saturday and learning that the father would not advance any more money on his son's account.

Mr. Leiter's friends insist that he has not made an assignment, but it was admitted that the Leiter interests had been "trusteed."

The deal ran 14 months, during which time the price of wheat was down to 64 3-4 in June, 1897, and up to 185 in May, 1898. It involved at one time an interest of more than 35,000,000 bushels of wheat.

In Boston Monday.

Boston, June 14.—A peculiar piece of vandalism was reported to the police yesterday. A collection of paintings is being shown on Washington street, and when the case was removed from one of them Monday it was found that someone had deliberately cut the painting in six places, ruining the picture, which was valued at $2000.

The Caroline Knight, which was towed to the mud flats at South Boston on fire, has broken in two. Nothing but the shell of the vessel remains, and the cargo of lime is entirely destroyed.

The commissioners of the nautical training school have decided to dispatch the Enterprise on a cruise along the coast of Maine, touching at Portsmouth, Portland and Bar Harbor. This ship may possibly go as far as Halifax and the gulf of St. Lawrence. There are nearly 100 cadets on board the Enterprise.

The Boston bureau of commerce and industries, formed to attract wholesale buyers to Boston and New England, and otherwise foster their manufacturing and wholesale business interests, has issued an important appeal to the business interests in New England. The directors of the bureau urge as imperative the necessity of having an agency to represent the whole business community and charged with the duty of looking after those common interests which the individual business man cannot attend to.

Motherhood is a woman's brightest crown.

It is a woman's glory to be strong and capable in a feminine way. Her worst misfortune is to have any physical weakness affecting the delicate, special organism which is involved in motherhood. To insure the complete health and normal capability of this most important structure, is the purpose of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It gives tone and vitality to the entire nervous system; and strength and vigor to the organism of maternity. It makes motherhood possible, safe and comparatively easy and painless.

Its wonder working capacity is exemplified in the trying experience of Mrs. A. Block, No. 221 Jackson St., Trenton, N. J., who writes: "I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription shortly before confinement with my sixth child, as I felt miserable, and it helped me so much that I had an easy time and felt well soon after. Four years ago, on the 17th of January, when the mercury was five below zero my seventh child was born, after I had been waiting on my sick husband for nine weeks. With the help of your medicine I stood it all. For the last year I have been doing nearly all my work including the care of eight children. I think I am doing well, thank God, and hope I will be able to continue. I owe my health to God and your medicine."

One of the greatest helps a mother can have in nursing and rearing her children and carrying them safely through all the little sicknesses and ailments to which children are subject is Dr. Pierce's great thousand-page illustrated book, the "People's Common Sense Medical Adviser." A paper-bound copy will be sent free for 21 one-cent stamps to pay the cost of mailing only, or in heavy, French cloth covers for 31 stamps. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y. This book should be owned by every mother. It is like a family doctor always at hand.

A TOTAL OF SIX.

Two More of Landing Party Slain.

MARINES' PERIL.

Slaughter May Transpire Any Night.

Kingston, June 15.—Fifteen dead Spaniards are out in one little stone house in the brush. But two more American marines have been killed and seven more wounded. That makes six dead and seven wounded on our side, and the fight is still on.

The Spaniards fight like Sioux. They steal up in the night. They skulk in the brush. They never charge or stand except when they think they can cut off or annihilate a small party of American scouts. They give the marines no rest. By day they fire at long range, just often enough and just well enough to keep the devoted band of heroes stirred up, restless, alert.

MAY BE DELAYED.

Possibility of a Postponement of the General Movement.

Washington, June 15.—President McKinley has not given up his hope that Spain will come to terms and ask for peace after the fall of Santiago and San Juan, but if she still holds out, he is likely, as was stated Monday, to send Admiral Sampson or Commodore Schley to attack the Canaries and the coast of Spain before attacking Havana, for it seems probable that General Miles will have his way and that the general invasion of Cuba will be postponed until after the rainy season, in the hope that meanwhile Spain will yield.

General Miles reports, as the result of his observation and the information coming to him, that a suitable army for the invasion of Cuba and an attack on Havana cannot be ready before the middle of August, and it may then be considered wiser to keep it waiting until late in the fall, although this has not been determined, and much depends on the operations against Santiago and San Juan and in the Philippines.

Our government is counting them as certain to be successful, the Spanish government is counting them as yet to be carried out, and it will not admit in advance that Spain will lose; but President McKinley's hope is that when Spain actually has lost Santiago and San Juan and Manila she will be brought to see the futility of further resistance and will sue for peace, for the suggestion of the Spanish government that it is waiting for peace proposals from the United States through a third power was laughed at in cabinet meeting yesterday.

No Doubt Now.

Tampa, June 15.—After weeks of waiting and preparation the first army of invasion to start from the eastern shores of the United States, departed under the command of General Shafter yesterday. The fleet consisted of 35 vessels, four tenders and 14 convoys. These are all now upon the gulf of Mexico, headed to the southward until they pass Key West at least. If their destination be Cuba they will continue their present course until Cape Antonio, at the west of the island, is doubled, when an easterly course will be sailed until they reach Santiago.

Shortly after 9 o'clock the funnels of the transports began to pour forth volumes of smoke. The commanders gave their orders to cut loose, and the vessels backed into the bay and anchored to await the order to sail. All eyes were riveted on the Seguranea, the flagship, and when the final signal came, a mighty cheer arose from the lower row of portholes to her top, and hats were waved with wild delight. The anchor was quickly weighed and the great vessel pointed her prow down the bay. In a few minutes the City of Washington, Rio Grande, Cherokee, Iroquois and Whitney followed. As these boats picked their way through the anchored fleet, men shouted and bands played. Every vessel elicited a wild display of enthusiasm.

Invited to Leave.

Madrid, June 15.—It was officially announced yesterday that Du Bosc, the former charge d'affairs at Washington, and Lieutenant Carranza, the former Spanish naval attache, have been "invited" to leave Canada, owing to the "Canadian authorities having intercepted a letter which Lieutenant Carranza addressed to the minister of marine, giving an account of the condition of the American forts and fortifications."

Bravery Recognized.

Washington, June 15.—Substantial recognition has been given by the navy department to the members of the gallant crew which took the Merrimac into the entrance of Santiago harbor and sunk her across the channel under the very muzzles of the Spanish guns. Secretary Long has signed orders to Admiral Sampson, directing the promotion of all the members of the crew. Lieutenant Hobson's reward will come later through congress.

The orders direct the promotion of the men as follows: Daniel Montague, master-at-arms, to be a boatswain, from $50 a month to $1300 a year; George Charette, gunner's mate, to be a gunner, from $50 a month to $1300 a year; Rudolph Clausen, Osborne Deignan and —— Murphy, coxswains, to be chief boatswain's mates, an increase of $20 a month; George F. Phillips, machinist, to be chief machinist, from $40 a month to $70 a month; Francis Kelly, water tender, to be chief machinist, from $37 a month to $70 a month.

In addition to the promotions steps have already been taken towards the presentation of medals to Constructor Hobson and the members of his crew. What new honors await Hobson, who planned and executed the brilliant coup, have not yet been disclosed.

Admirals to Be Retired.

Washington, June 15.—In addition to Admiral Kirkland, five other admirals will retire during the next few months on account of age. They are Admiral Joseph N. Miller, commanding the Pacific station; Admiral Montgomery Sicard, president of the naval war board; Admiral E. O. Matthews, president of the examining and retiring board; Admiral F. S. Bunce, commanding the New York navy yard, and Admiral C. S. Norton, commandant of the Washington navy yard. With the exception of Admiral Miller, all of these officers are likely to be retained in the present places after their retirement during the continuance of the war because of the non-availability of officers on the active list. Admiral Miller is in command of a fleet, and retired officers are not eligible for such duty unless specially authorized by act of congress.

ADMIRAL BUNCE.

Admiral Miller, the senior officer, has three vessels in his squadron and Rear Admiral Sampson, the junior of them all, has over 70 vessels under his command. The last named officer does not attain the actual rank of a flag officer until he becomes a commodore next month by the retirement of Admiral Kirkland. His rank as captain, which he now bears in the naval register, would not ordinarily entitle him to a higher command than that of a single vessel. In putting him in command of the largest and most powerful fleet that was ever gathered under the United States flag the president found it necessary to give him the nominal rank of acting rear admiral.

Asleep at Their Posts,

Boston, June 15.—A Herald special from Chickamauga park says that five recruits of the Eighth regiment were found asleep at their posts on the same night. These sentinels were: Edwin H. Poor and William F. Greenway of company A, Newburyport; William W. French of company I, Lynn; Melvin P. Paine of company M. Somerville, and Alexander Lanstot of company E, Beverly. The importance of wide-awake posts that night rests in the fact that the regimental paymaster had $15,000 in cash in camp and 35,000 rounds of ammunition were in stock. The five men are to be tried by a general court-martial, ordered by Major General Brooke. According to the articles of war "any sentinel who is found sleeping at his post, or who leaves it before he is regularly relieved, shall suffer death, or such other punishment as a court-martial shall direct."

Views of a Britisher.

London, June 15.—The Standard publishes a dispatch from R. J. Whigham, who has arrived at Kingston from Havana, where he was recently in custody on charge of being a spy until he had satisfied the authorities that he was in Cuba as a correspondent Mr. Whigham says: "The garrison at Havana, including the volunteers, numbers 60,000 men, while recruits are enrolling daily. There is no prospect of starvation for sometime to come, as meat is selling at 15 pence (about 30 cents) a pound, and, while flour is scarce, there is plenty of cornmeal and rye. The supply of coal, however, may give out within a month and leave the city in darkness.

"The defenses of the town have been greatly strengthened since the war began. Two hundred guns have been mounted on the shore batteries, including six 12-inch cannon. In short, Havana is now practically impregnable, providing the Spaniards make a good fight. Two lines of defenses have been completed inland in the last month or two, and it is believed that the capture of the city will require at least 75,000 American troops."

Fall Seems Imminent.

London, June 15.—The Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, forwarding advices he has received from Manila up to June 8, says: On June 5 the insurgents forced the passage of the Zapote river and captured Las Pinas and Paranaki. Since then, up to the time my advices left Manila, the fighting had been continuous, and the Spaniards were being gradually driven in.

The fall of the city seems imminent before the arrival of the American forces. Manila is absolutely incapable of resisting bombardment. Admiral Dewey is surprised at the rebel progress; but the Spaniards suspect that the insurgents are fighting under American guidance. The defenders of the city have suffered severely from the incessant attacks and from want of food and rest, and the hospitals and churches are crowded with the wounded.

Blanco Not Ready to Exchange.

Havana, June 15.—Tuesday morning two American cruisers and one dispatch boat opened fire against the batteries at the entrance to the harbor at Santiago de Cuba, discharging between 50 and 60 shots of different caliber. The batteries of Morro and Socapa castles answered the fire, and the American warships retired. At the Socapa battery three men were slightly wounded.

Tuesday afternoon an American gunboat appeared off Havana harbor with a flag of truce. When she arrived within a short distance of the fort, Lieutenant Colonel Ramos on board the Spanish gunboat Flecha went to meet her. The correspondent understands that the Americans proposed an exchange of the prisoners, or some of them, captured with the Spanish steamer Argonauta for the American prisoners taken at Santiago at the sinking of the Merrimac. General Blanco, it is understood, gave no definite answer to the American proposal, alleging that he had received no instructions from the Madrid government on the subject.

Meritorious Run.

Washington, June 15.—In the general admiration excited by the splendid performance of the Oregon, in running from San Francisco clear around South America to join Sampson before Santiago, the equally meritorious run of the little Marietta over most of the same course has been lost sight of. Like the Oregon, the Marietta is a product of a Pacific coast shipyard, and the high character of the work done in constructing this ship is shown by the captain's statement that the little boat made this 12,000-mile voyage without stopping for repairs. Considering the great disparity in the size of the Oregon and the Marietta, the performance of the latter is certainly quite as remarkable as that of the Oregon, even though the time made was not so good.

News From Havana

Havana, June 15.—A local paper says that the insurgent chief, Damio Caballero, arrived at Santa Clara a few days ago from Manazanillo to join the brigade being organized by the former insurgent chieftain, Masso. It also appears that Caballero was interviewed by a correspondent about the situation of affairs in the eastern part of Cuba, and he is alleged to have asserted that the leading insurgent chiefs met in assembly at Bayamo, province of Santiago, in the middle of May and discussed for 36 hours the question of the acceptance or non-acceptance of American intervention in Cuba. The correspondent asserts that Caballero declared the opinion of the majority of the insurgent leaders to be against American intervention.

Advices from Matanzas say that on Saturday last over 200 insurgents made an attempt to enter Camanayauga, province of Matanzas, and succeeded in burning some houses, but were repulsed with loss. The same force was afterwards encountered on Saturday and Sunday last, and the Spaniards claim they dispersed them with a loss of 12 killed. The insurgents are also reported to have carried away many of their wounded and to have abandoned a quantity of property which they looted at Cumanayaga.

Spanish Retook a Position.

Cape Haytien, June 15.—The United States auxiliary cruiser St. Louis and several dispatch boats—so it is reported here—brought to St. Nicholas yesterday a story that a landing was effected by the Americans late on Monday very near Santiago. According to this account the Americans took possession of a fortified position commanding a portion of the port; but the Spanish rallied and attacked the invading force, finally dislodging it and retaking the position.

This information does not tally with a cablegram received Sunday night by United States Minister Powell, which asserted that 8000 Americans had landed at Santiago bay without encountering serious opposition.

Official dispatches received by the marine hospital service regarding the yellow fever situation indicate effectual vigilance on the part of the authorities at McHenry, Miss. There are no new cases, and the number of foci of fever has been reduced there from eight to six. This means that instead of additional places being found infected, two of the danger points now can be counted out of the situation.

GERMANY'S HOSTILITY

Proof of It In Sending of Warships to Manila.

Belief That Emperor Has a Sinister Purpose.

Movement Viewed With Favor by the Spanish Editors.

Washington, June 15.—Despite the denials of the state department officials regarding the movements of German warships in the direction of Manila, it can be stated positively that the administration fears serious complications in the Philippines. The ships now there are the Kaiser, Kaiserin Augusta, Irene and Kormoran, with a total of 1605 men. It is evident that Germany is resolved effectively to protect her interests in the Philippines, as the German firms in Manila petitioned the government to do, some time ago.

The action of the kaiser in sending practically all his Asiatic fleet—a stronger aggregation than ours—into those waters, is looked upon with grave suspicion. Such a concentration of power, it is not believed, could be for the sole purpose of protecting German interests. The advice in several Berlin newspapers to their government to demand at least a coaling station in the Philippines, it is thought, comes near to voicing the least of the German demands.

The Spanish press has increased its optimism, based on the belief that Germany intends to prevent a bombardment of Manila by making a naval demonstration. The newspapers urge sacrifices with the view of securing Germany's assistance, and political leaders express themselves in favor of offering Germany the following concessions in return for her "taking the initiative in checking America:" Naval stations and coaling depots in Spanish Oceania; Spanish concurrence in the development of Germany's commercial and political relations with Morrocco.

Uproar In Paris.

Paris, June 15.—The premier, Mr. Meline, opened the proceedings in the chamber of deputies yesterday by vehemently repudiating the statement that he was engaged in an anti-democratic policy; but he declared that the accession of socialism to power would spell ruin for France.

Ex-Minister Bourgeois followed, taunting Meline with being unwilling to cut himself free from the rightists, and several extreme leftists continued their severe strictures of the premier's "undemocratic policy."

Mr. Ribot then delivered a warm eulogy of the premier and proposed a vote of confidence in the government; but its terms elicited loud protests from the rightists and general excitement.

Mr. Meline, however, accepted the terms of the motion, whereupon Mr. Cassagnac charged him with throwing over the rightists. The premier retorted that he had never asked for the support of the rightists.

The first part of Ribot's motion, "the chamber, approving the declaration of the government," was adopted by a vote of 295 to 272, and the second part, "is determined to put in force the policy of democratic reform, based on the union of republicans," was adopted by 525 to 5 votes.

Then Mr. Ricard moved to add the words, "and supported by a majority exclusively republican." Mr. Meline refused to accept this addition. Ricard insisted upon the vote, and the addition was carried by 296 to 246 votes, whereupon there was a terrible uproar. The members of the extreme left arose en masse and shouted for the retirement of Meline. Borteaux yelled: "Get out; you are defeated."

Others pointed to the ministerial bench and indulged in a chorus of "boohs." The socialists vociferated, "Resign, resign."

HOLIDAY NOTICE.

Friday of this week being a holiday, the QUINCY PATRIOT will go to press Thursday evening, one day earlier than usual.

The publication of the Daily Ledger on Friday, the Seventeenth of June, will be omitted, but the Ledger of Saturday will be of eight pages as usual, with all the Saturday features and holiday news.

Good Afternoon.

The aldermen and common council of Boston favor "Dewey Square" as the name for the square in front of the South Union station, but one councilman is authority for the statement that the proposed name is "Quincy Plaza." Quincy people will then ride from the Quincy station to the Quincy plaza.

The State tax will be $1,500,000 this year, or $250,000 less than last year. For this reduction of one-seventh all will be thankful.

Very little sympathy is expressed for Leiter, whose wheat deal has collapsed, with a loss estimated from $2,000,000 to $7,000,000. In fact there is rejoicing at the breakdown. One newspaper well says: If the prime mover in this war against mankind is beggared by his greed, the retribution is well merited, but nothing can atone for the awful suffering Leiter and his accomplices have caused.

Miraculous Escape.

John McKay had a narrow escape from a serious accident at the quarry of Woodbury & Leighton at West Quincy Tuesday. He was at work on a travelling derrick hoisting a heavy stone when the jinny car toppled over and fell to the ground, carrying Mr. McKay with it. Both Mr. McKay and the car fell some twenty feet and landed upon a pile of rocks. How Mr. McKay escaped without injury is strange, but he scarcely received a bruise, and the car was not damaged. Those who witnessed the accident call it a miraculous escape.

NOW SECOND CLASS.

Big Jump in Salary of Wollaston Postmaster.

Post office business at Wollaston has increased very rapidly during the past year, in fact only one postmaster in the State will receive a larger increase of salary than Postmaster Burns. His salary will not only be increased from $1600 to $2200, but Wollaston will become a second class office.

The readjustments are based on the officials reports of the receipts of the office for the year ending March 31, and will take effect July 1.

The salary of the Quincy office is not changed. Norfolk county offices generally show prosperity. Out of the 58 in the State to get increases 13 are in Norfolk county, viz: Braintree, Canton, Cohasset, East Walpole, Foxboro, Franklin, Hyde Park, Medfield, Medway, Norwood, Sharon, Walpole and Wollaston.

Only 18 postmasters suffer a decrease of salary, South Braintree being the only one in Norfolk county.

Congratulations to Postmaster Hammond for holdng his own, and Postmaster Burns on his success in building up the Wollaston office. Wollaston as a second class office will receive extra compensation for clerks, fuel and light.

Maloney—Walsh.

Miss Mary Ellen, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Walsh, and Mr. Stephen H. Maloney were united in marriage at St. John's church at 8 o'clock this morning by Rev. Francis A. Friguglietti, in the presence of a large gathering of the friends of the contracting parties. The bride, a pronounced brunette, was gowned in a white muslin, trimmed with white ribbon, and wore a white Leghorn hat, and carried a bouquet of Bride roses. She was accompanied by Miss Margaret T. Walsh, a sister of the bride, who wore white muslin over yellow and a white hat. Mr. James Maloney, a brother of the groom, was best man.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was partaken of by the bridal party at the home of the bride's mother on Quincy avenue, where a reception will be held this evening from 7 to 10 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Maloney leave tonight for a brief trip, returning from which they will reside on Lincoln avenue, Wollaston.

Soul as Well as Body.

Mr. W. F. Hoehn of this city has been appointed an assistant secretary of the International Medical Missionary society for the South Shore district of Massacuhsetts. This society believes that those sent to care for our sick and wounded on the battle fields should be Christian men, able to care for "soul as well as body," even as Christ taught and practiced. Over 3000 men are required for service in hospital corps for the 125 regiments already called out. The society offers to give instruction and training free of charge to a number of men of decided Christian character, and of good health and physique who are willing to volunteer for this service. Mr. Hoehn will give further information at the rooms of the Quincy Y. M. C. A.

Klebs—Forbes.

Without display, Miss Margaret Forbes of Milton and Dr. Arnold C. Klebs of Chicago were married Tuesday afternoon at the residence of the bride father, Mr. J. Malcolm Forbes, by the Rev. Samuel M. Crothers of Cambridge. Dr. and Mrs. Klebs left that night for New York, and will sail today on the steamer Kaiser Wilhelm for London. About two months will be spent abroad and a sojourn in Paris will be part of the wedding trip. Dr. Klebs will attend he medical congress which is to be held in London. On their return to this country the couple will probably make their home in Citronelle, Alabama, where Dr. Klebs is at the head of the staff of physicians of the Hygiene sanitarium.

Fine Concert.

A very fine and exceptionably enjoyable musicale was given Tuesday evening at the Quincy Mansion school by the ensemble and vocal class of the school. The concert was given in the spacious parlors of the mansion, and was listened to with a great deal of pleasure by a large number of guests, many of whom came from out of town. The programme consisted of piano solos and duets, vocal solos, duets and trios, and violin solos, the students to contribute being Miss Weeks of Michigan, a graduate in music; Miss Harris of Bridgewater; Miss Cowan of Boston; Miss Libby of Idaho; Miss Moore of Chemsford; Miss Dillingham, Miss Grant and Miss Hunt. The violin solo was by Prof. William Howard.

The concert was under the direction of J. Prof. Marceau and Mr. J. Carter Alden.

Dr. and Mrs. W. G. Kendall of Atlantic returned on Saturday from their annual fishing trip, this season to the Rangeley Lakes, where Mrs. Kendall had the good fortune of landing the largest salmon caught by any person during her two weeks' stay on the lake.

The Quincy Point station of the Quincy Yacht club will be ready for occupancy on the 17th. The new float will be hauled alongside of the wharf on Thursday. It is a landing float only, 27 feet by 7 feet in size. The building is painted the regulation Quincy Yacht club color,—seal brown with cream trimmings.

Mr. Vining, the owner of the old polishing shop on Howard street, Quincy Neck, claims the building on the inside is being removed by piece meal. The premises have been locked but on different occasions have been entered, and doors, windows, draws to closets, boards, and shingles are disappearing mysteriously.

The Sportsmen's club of Wollaston held its regular monthly meeting at the Duck's Nest on Tuesday evening. Hon. Henry O. Fairbanks acted as chairman and Mr. J. S. Whiting as secretary. There was a large attendance and after the election of half a dozen new members Steward Williams served a tempting lunch.

An excited crowd gathered last night on Temple street in front of the Whicher block to witness a free fight. It was not a discussion of the war with Spain, but two brindle and bull terrier dogs got mad with each other. One man had a strap, another a tin pan, and another a bucket of water. It took four men and a boy to separate the dogs.

"South Shore Trolley Trips," is a very attractive and useful book by Miss Katharine M. Abbott of the Belvidere, Lowell, Mass. Last season she published a book called "Trolley Trips on a Bay State Triangle." Everyone along the South Shore should secure Miss Abbott's latest work and enjoy some of the delightful trips she has mapped out. There is no pleasanter way to take a day's outing than to board a trolley car and ride off into the country. North Shore or South Shore books may be obtained at ten cents each of Miss Prescott at this office.

Flag Raising.

Here's a tip, boys; the Ledger is going to let you into the secret, but of course you must not tell anyone. We have ascertained that 400 or 500 small flags are to be done up in the large flag to be unfurled in City Square on Thursday evening, and these will be scattered broadcast when Master Sears, the son of the Mayor, unfurls the flag. There will be other attractions. A grand stand will be erected near the Y. M. C. A. building, and there will be a concert by the Holbrook band, and speaking by Mayor Sears, Water Commissioner Anderson, Rev. F. A. Friguglietti, Rev. E. N. Hardy and President Albee of the Y. M. C. A. Rev. E. W. Preble of the Universalist church will read an original poem. Extra cars will be run on the street railway routes, and a grand time is planned, thanks to Gabriel A. Pelos, the tonsorial artist, who raised the money necessary.

AT ALL HAZARDS.

Sampson Will Hold Guantanamo Bay.

Washington, June 15—Guantanamo bay and approaches are to be held at all hazards. If necessary Admiral Sampson will land 2000 men from his squandron to reinforce the marines. He has full authority to do so and in official circles it is expected that he will take advantage of the opportunity. The holding of this bay is most important as it affords a harbor of refuge during the cyclone season which is now on.

The Prize Arrives.

Key West, June 15—The British steamer Twickenham, captured off Kingston June 10, arrived here this morning in charge of a prize crew. She had 2000 tons of coal and one passenger, supposed to be a Spanish agent.

Soldiers' Aid.

The work in aid of the soldiers is still going in the vestry of the Wollaston Unitarian church every afternoon from two to five o'clock. As there is a lack of funds at the headquarters in Boston the auxiliary is desirous of raising money with which to purchase materials for sewing. Contributions will be gratefully received by Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, the president; Mrs. Herbert Wiley, and Mrs. W. E. Simmons, the chairman of the directors. Wollaston ladies are responding very generously with their aid, but there is room and work for many more.

Street Railways.

Few people have an idea of the magnitude and rapid growth of electric railway traffic in Eastern Massachusetts and Rhode Island. A few facts from Derrah's Street Railway Guide, just issued will surprise even those who are accustomed to take long rides in the electric cars. The number of miles operated by the street railways of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, is 1,368.25. The number of passengers carried last year was 312,000,000. These facts indicate the need of a work of this kind, and in addition to the complete tables showing routes, rates of fare, distances, etc., the edition this year contains more than 160 pages of reading matter descriptive of all the principal points of interest along lines of the street railways, and is handsomely illustrated with ninety half tone views and places of interest It is published by Robert H. Derrah, Boston and for sale at all the news stands and railway stations. Price 15 cents.

Flowers at Arnold Arboretum.

It is well worth one's while to visit Arnold Arboretum this week, the wealth of floral beauty displayed there being exceedingly great. Each day many new and rare s ecimens of the plant family blossom forth and should be seen at the time they break their green fetters to be thoroughly enjoyed. Roses are showing gorgeous colorings this season, and the visitor may now feast his eyes upon rows and rows of the most exquisite specimens of all shades, from the deepest crimson to the purest white, and of all varieties, from those grown in New England to those whose seeds have come from farthest Asia.

There are grown as far as possible in their natural sequence two thousand varieties of this fragrant flower. There are rock roses and Scotch roses and Alpine roses and Japanese roses in a bewildering profusion. In fact, nearly every kind of rose grown in the temperate zone will be found in bloom this week. The heather is beginning to bloom, too, and the great clumps of snowballs present a scene of wonderful fairness to admirers of the fluffy white flowers. The rhododendrons, which grow in a nook near Hemlock Hill on the road leading to Bussey street, are now a mass of gorgeous color. There are royal blossoms of the most brilliant crimson and purple. And here, too, are flowers tinged with the palest pink and lavender. Just across the brook, a short distance up the path on the right hand side, near the evergreens, is another bed of rhododendrons, which promises to be as beautiful as the one on the road leading to Bussey street.

An addition of seventy-five acres has been made to the Arboretum. The plans concerning it are not yet complete, but it is expected that next year more than ten thousand varieties of trees, plants and shrubs, which are being started in the nursery, will be planted there.—Boston Transcript.

Old Folks Concert.

The choir of the Bethany church gave an old folks concert Tuesday evening at Faxon hall which was quite well attended although the excessive heat doubtless kept many from being present. Those to take part were gowned in costumes of ye olden times which were correctly portrayed, and during the evening Uncle Sam found a few minutes from his pressing duties to visit the hall and mingle among the chorus.

The whole programme which consisted of choruses and solos was well rendered, especially the solo parts. Mr. Gardner's solos were very pleasing and Miss Gow as the fisher girl made a great hit. Miss Baxter gave pleasing solos. One of the number on the programme which was sung by the chorus was the "American Hymn" written by Mr. John J. Loud of Weymouth.

Tonight the choir will give a patriotic concert, at which solos will be rendered by Miss Gow, Miss Burns, Miss Baxter and Mr. Gardner.

Granite Plant Burned.

A dispatch from Barre, Vt., reports that the immense granite manufacturing plant of Mackie, Hussey & Co., probably the largest works of the kind in the country, with one exception, was burned Monday night. The fire started near the boiler and gained such headway that the firemen were powerless to check the flames. In less than an hour the main building was a heap of ruins. A large amount of costly machinery, derricks, and monumental work in process of construction are a total loss. Seventy-five men are thrown out of employemt by the fire, each losing a set of tools valued at $25. The big boiler was badly damaged, and it is thought may not be in a condition to warrant repairs.

The total loss is estimated at $60,000, and the insurance amounts to $28,000. The origin of the fire is not known, although it is thought it was caused by sparks from the boiler house.

Three Games.

The T. R & S. A. A. is scheduled to play two games on the Seventeenth of June and one on Saturday. At Merrymount park at 9.30 A. M. Friday they will have as opponents the Dorchesters, and in the afternoon they will play a return game at Dorchester. Saturday afternoon the Boston Reserves will be here. These games will practically open the season, and if the the base ball public show their hearty appreciation of good ball playing by strong financial support they will see some good ball playing at home this summer. Score cards with players in batting order will hereafter be supplied.

Gymnastics For Women.

Physical culture in the home with reference to the development of health and consequently beauty is thus discussed by a recent writer, who gives simple directions for private gymnastics:

"Systematic exercise can accomplish so much that it is a marvel to one who has enjoyed its benefits that it is not more generally practiced. It is entirely unnecessary to be mistress of a system of physical culture. There are a few exercises which taken regularly and thoroughly will accomplish all that a system would. The tendency is, however, to be unsystematic in taking these exercises, and thus lose their good effect. It is best to take them at night. In bedroom slippers and loose gown, with no bands to bind, no collar to rub, a girl is ready for the exercise that will make her rest as tranquil and sweet as a baby's. Every muscle of the body is free to stretch, to stiffen with effort or to rest itself in complete relaxation.

"Clubs, dumbbells and other gymnastic paraphernalia are unnecessary and really are more harmful than beneficial. Grasping the bell enlarges the knuckles. The friction of the clubs hardens the hands, and it is quite as easy to do without them. They are better unused. After all the preparations for bed are made, even to arranging the rather flat and hard pillow, stand before your glass and begin your exercise.

"There is a real delight in watching the strong, easy movements of a healthful woman, and this ease and strength are within the reach of nearly all women.

"The flat chests, shapeless waists and badly formed hips may at least be partially remedied, and it requires only a little effort and persistence to accomplish it. Too many women lack persistence. Instead of conscientiously taking their exercise every day they skip a day when they are feeling tired or lazy, then two or three days at a time, and eventually they learn to forget it or decide that the game is not worth the candle.

"To develop breadth of chest place the hands on the waist line a little back of the hips, the fingers pointing outward. From this position move the elbows slowly back toward each other, making them come as nearly together as possible. Do this several times, counting four as the elbows approach each other and two to recover position. By counting these movements a harmony is attained which will develop the muscles evenly."

JUSTICE ENTHRONED.

Universal Peace Is to Follow That Achievement.

W. J. Bryan So Declares at Omaha.

Opposed to Land Covetousness In an Attractive Garb.

Omaha, June 15.—Thousands of citizens took part Tuesday in the dedication of Nebraska's building at the exposition. The principal speech on the occasion was delivered by W. J. Bryan, who, aside from brief remarks in interviews, had not spoken before on the war issue.

Mr. Bryan in part said: "War is attended by hardship and suffering; it means a vast expenditure of men and money. We may well pray for the coming of the time when the spears shall be beaten into pruning hooks and the swords into plowshares; but universal peace cannot come until justice is enthroned throughout the world. Until the right has triumphed in every land and love reigns in every heart, governments must, as a last resort, appeal to force. Our nation exhausted diplomacy in its efforts to secure a peaceful solution of the Cuban question, and only took up arms when it was compelled to choose between war and servile acquiescence in cruelties which would have been a disgrace to barbarism.

"History will vindicate the position taken by the United States in the war with Spain. In saying this, I assume that the principles which were invoked in the inauguration of the war will be observed in its prosecution and conclusion. If a contest undertaken for the sake of humanity degenerates into a war of conquest, we shall find it difficult to meet the charge of having added hypocrisy to greed. To inflict upon the enemy all possible harm is legitimate warfare, but shall we contemplate a scheme for the colonization of the orient merely because our fleet won a remarkable victory in the harbor of Manila? Our guns destroyed a Spanish fleet, but can they destroy that self-evident truth, that governments derive their just powers—not from superior force, but from the consent of the governed? Shall we abandon a just resistance to European encroachment upon the western hemisphere in order to mingle in the controversies of Europe and Asia?

"Nebraska will hold up the hands of the government while the battle rages, and when the warclouds roll away her voice will be heard pleading for the maintenance of those ideas which inspired the founders of our government and gave the nation its proud eminence among the nations of the earth. If others turn to thoughts of aggrandizement and yield allegiance to those who clothe land covetousness in the attractive garb of 'national destiny,' the people of Nebraska will, if I mistake not their sentiment, plant themselves upon the disclaimer entered by congress and expect that good faith shall characterize the making of peace, as it did the beginning of war. If some dream of the splendors of a heterogeneous empire encircling the globe, we shall be content to aid in bringing enduring happiness to a homogeneous people, consecrated to the purpose of maintaining 'a government of the people, by the people and for the people.'"

For Attending a Circus.

Fitchburg, Mass., June 15.—The entire school board met last night to receive the report of the high school committee on the recent suspension of 18 boys from the high school for attending a circus when they were supposed to be in school. The committee recommended that the boys should be allowed to receive their diplomas any time after June 30, which is graduation day, after successfully passing an examination and making a suitable expression of regret for their action.

Rev. Abram Conklin, pastor of the Universalist church, appeared before the board on behalf of the boys and their parents, offering their apology, and asked that they be reinstated. He wished the board to be merciful. A petition was also received from the parents of the boys, offering an apology on behalf of their children, and respectfully asked to have them reinstated. James E. McConnell and Charles B. Smith, members of the committee, spoke in support of their report. The vote on accepting the report and adopting the recommendation resulted 11 to 8 in the affirmative.

Dedicated Amid Plaudits.

Omaha, Neb., June 15.—The Nebraska building at the exposition was dedicated yesterday with appropriate ceremony amid the plaudits of thousands of citizens. Governor Holcomb took part in the exercises, together with many of the state's most distinguished residents. The speakers were Constantine J. Smith, W. F. Gurley and W. J. Bryan. Mr. Bryan's oration was notable for his first public declaration on the war issue. He urged that the war was for humanity and not for the annexation of United States territory. In conclusion he said that the manifest destiny of this nation was not to acquire new realms to govern, but to carry out the fundamental principles of democracy to the end that equality among the citizens might be secured.

The Judge Will Decide.

Montreal, June 15.—The capias case of Detective Kellert against Lieutenant Carranza and Mr. Du Bosc came up in court yesterday before Judge Matthieu for argument. Mr. Pellissier, for the two Spaniards, argued that it had not been proven in any way, shape or form that they intended to leave the country, and that the capias accordingly should never have been issued.

Mr. Greenshields, for Mr. Kellert, argued that the admission made in Carranza's letter, that he was running a spy system in Montreal, was sufficient to indicate that he and his friend might be compelled to leave the city suddenly. The judge took the case under advisement.

BOSTONS SHUT OUT.

The Phillies Administered a Liberal Supply of Whitewash.

Boston, June 15.—Willis of the Bostons had the strike-out record of the season yesterday, forcing 11 of Captain Cooley's playmates to fan the air. Twice he struck out the side, once with three men on bases. The other side of the review shows that the young pitcher gave four bases on balls, hit two men, and one man was allowed second base on what McDonald interpreted as a "balk." In conjunction with this part of the box work, which counts for practically more damage than base hits, is the fact that he was hit safely 11 times, although fielding errors on the part of the home team contributed in no small measure to the seven runs scored by the Phillies while Willis was pitching. Kloby was sent in for his batting in the last of the seventh to relieve "Vic," and he was hit for five safe ones in the last two innings he pitched.

Al Orth pitched the finest ball of any right-hander with visiting teams this season, and only one base on balls marred his almost perfect control. He had fine speed and a nice curve ball, which he knew well how to use, and his smile was a mesmerizer for the heavy hitters. Six hits and no runs will never win a game, and that's what lets the pitchers out. McFarland, Cross, Flick, Captain Cooley, Delehanty and Douglass supported their box artist perfectly, and 10 fly balls were captured by the outfield alone. Cooley, Lajoie, Batty and McFarland did the heaviest batting for the Phillies. Score:

"Red" Ehret lasted but five innings for the Louisvilles. Damman was substituted for Hill after the first inning, and the Cincinnatis won, 7 to 3.

The Chicagos won two games from the St. Louis team yesterday. The first was a pitchers' battle and in doubt until the last man was retired. In the second Kilroy held the "browns" down to four hits, while Hughey was pounded hard in the first and fifth. Scores: 3 to 2; 7 to 1.

Hartman's muff of Secard's fly in the seventh inning with two men out lost the New York game to the Brooklyns, 3 to 2.

The Providences shut out the Rochesters 8 to 0. Hickman pitched good ball and had dashing fielding behind him, but the Providence team had a hitting streak in the third inning that could not be checked.

The Springfields outplayed the Buffalos at all points yesterday and won a game played on a wet diamond between showers.

Anderson's home runs won both games for the Washingtons. Three straight victories over the Baltimores on the Washington grounds are unprecedented. Scores: 8 to 7; 4 to 2.

Padden's two bagger in the ninth won the Clevelands the game from Pittsburg. Burkett was put out of the ground for questioning a decision. Score: 3 to 1.

The New Bedfords found McDougal of the Tauntons easy, and, with 16 hits to their credit, had no trouble winning their game, 10 to 3. The association behind baseball in New Bedford threw up the sponge, and the grounds and other property of the club were turned over to the players to do business for themselves.

Lynched a Preacher.

Clarendon, Ark., June 15.—Rev. Moses Ricks, a colored preacher and religious exhorter, was taken from jail and lynched by 300 citizens in the southern portion of Monroe county. The body, perforated with bullets, was left dangling in the air with a placard pinned on the clothing as a warning to other negroes. Ricks was under arrest for outraging a farmer's wife. He confessed his crime. Rick's father was lynched Sunday night for complicity in the crime. Further lynchings are in prospect.

Shot to Death.

New York, June 15.—John Dempsey, 53 years old, was shot to death by his son-in-law, Bartholomew Powers, in Dempsey's flat last night. Owing to domestic troubles Powers' wife left him and refused to return home. Powers accused Dempsey of being responsible for his wife leaving his home, and drew a revolver and shot Dempsey four times. The murderer escaped.

Boston Opinion.

Boston June 15.—"The Spanish are barbaric in their cruelty," says The Post. "They lack the humane impulses which mark modern civilization and modify the harshness of war itself. There is not room for Spain on this side of the world."

"With the war in Cuba actually begun," The Journal remarks, "the American people must learn to accept the occasional death and wounding of soldiers and sailors as inevitable. Another bloodless victory like that of Manila cannot in reason be anticipated."

The Advertiser says that "if, during the present month, the American soldiers in Cuba win such victories as we confidently expect, the contemptuous opinion of American soldiers as announced by the 'experts' of continental Europe will be completely overthrown."

"Whatever the Spaniards may know they do not seem inclined to go and tell it to the marines," is a facetious observation of The Globe.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, June 15.—The senate amendments to the bill for a school teachers' retirement fund were rejected yesterday by the house. These amendments eliminated the clause which provided that new teachers in the Boston schools must become members of the insurance association.

The appropriation for the completion of the state hospital for consumptives came up again yesterday in the senate. The members of the ways and means committee severely criticised the trustees of the hospital, and accused them of negligence and incompetency. The senate refused to adopt the section providing that no appropriation should be made until a new board of trustees had been appointed.

After a debate, the senate by a vote of 14 to 12 reconsidered the vote by which it substituted for the bill reported by the committee on banks and banking a bill prepared by the savings banks' commissioners to separate the business of savings banks from that of national banks, trust companies, etc. The bill of the commissioners was considerably more stringent than the one reported by the committee. The latter bill was ordered to a third reading, and then passed to be engrossed.

New England Metropolis.

Boston, June 15.—The Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., president of the World's Christian Endeavor union, has just returned from a brief journey to Great Britain at the invitation of British endeavorers. He says that the transformation of British feeling in favor of America within the past year is simply wonderful. All seem to recognize that the war for Cuba is just and humanitarian.

Rev. Amatole Police, rector of the church of Notre Dame, is dead. He was a native of France. He was a professor of philosophy and theology in Dunkirk, Ire., for three years, and from 1864 to 1890 he was engaged in missionary work in St. Anne's church, Whitechapel, London. Father Police came to Boston in 1890.

James McLaughlin, 23 years old, was drowned in the Charles river at the Fitchburg railroad draw last night. He was at work and fell from the draw.

To Release Dynamiters.

London, June 15.—The government has notified John Redmond, member of parliament for Waterford, that in the coming revision of the sentences passed upon the Irish dynamiters, implicated in alleged conspiracies of 1883, when there were numerous explosions or attempts at explosions in London, Liverpool, Glasgow, Birmingham and elsewhere, life sentences will be regarded as 20-year terms. This means that H. H. Wilson, Timothy Featherstone, H. Dalton, T. McDermott and Flanagan, all of whom were sentenced in 1883, will be liberated during the present year if their prison records are clean.

Opposed to Annexation.

Washington, June 15.—At a caucus of the Democrats of the house a resolution was adopted declaring the sense of the Democrats of the house to be opposed to Hawaiian annexation as a consummation that would prove injurious to the interests of the United States and contrary to the long-established and generally recognized policy of the government. The action was taken after an hour had been consumed in discussing the advisability of adopting any resolution upon the proposition of annexation.

"BOSTON VEGETABLE VAPOR."

It is claimed that, while it has the required properties of ether, chloroform, nitrous oxide gas, it lacks the disagreeable and dangerous qualities of these drugs. Cuban Liberators Win a Hot Battle.

HUNTED THE ENEMY.

Demolished a Camp and Filled a Well.

TWO ATTACKERS KILLED.

Kingston, June 16.—The United States marines made their first aggressive movement against the Spanish guerillas Tuesday, and completely routed them. The marines were under Captain Elliott, while the co-operating Cubans were under Colonel Laborda. The combined forces razed a Spanish camp about five miles from the American position, destroying the only wall in the vicinity and killing 40 Spaniards. One American marine was slightly wounded. Two Cubans were killed and four wounded.

It is impossible to estimate the number of Spaniards engaged, owing to their guerilla methods of fighting, but it is believed that there were at least 400. The marines behaved splendidly; their marksmanship being splendid even under the severe fire of the enemy.

There was no renewal of the attack on the marines Monday night. They slept in the trenches with their rifles beside them, protected by a heavy picket line of insurgents and marines, under the command of Lieutenants Lenore and Smith. They had strict orders not to fire unless commanded to do so. There were several alarms, but no firing during the night. In consequence, the men awoke much refreshed after four days and nights of continuous work and fighting. It was supposed the enemy had retired to the windmill in the night, on the south coast, the only remaining source of water supply.

At 8 o'clock Tuesday morning the enemy made an unexpected, sharp attack upon the American rear and left flank. When the pickets reported for relief the guerillas crept along behind them and got within 100 yards, when the accidental discharge of a rifle in the trenches led them to believe they were discovered, and they opened fire with a volley which whistled harmlessly overhead. They shot too high as usual, and the marines scrambled from their steaming coffee and hardtack back to the trenches and met the guerillas with a ragged, but well directed rifle fire. In addition, five field pieces, mounted at angles in the trenches, and the machine guns poured a hail of bullets into the chapparel, scattering the main body of the Spaniards in all directions. Shells were dropped into their midst as they ran. A few of the enemy stood their ground desperately on the left flank, and the crack of the Mauser rifles and the pinge of their bullets were heard rather than seen for an hour, as the smokeless powder used by the Spaniards made their location in the dense underbrush almost impossible.

The Cubans were with difficulty forced out of the skirmish line, and some of them refused to be driven even when struck by their officers with the flat of their machetes. They tried to work out their knowledge of the methods of the Spanish guerillas in warfare. Our men are at a great disadvantage with the guerillas, who are past masters of this peculiar plan of campaign, of savage rather than civilized warfare. The men slink through the tropical undergrowth as noiselessly as shadows, some with their naked bodies concealed with palm leaves so that they are neither seen nor heard. Our men are not familiar with these tactics and awkwardly crash through the bush. Captain Elliott says the enemy could not stand a minute in the open, but he adds that they are dangerous antagonists at this sort of work. The marines, however, are seasoning rapidly.

MILES VS. ALGER.

Head of the Army Opposed to the Porto Rico Expedition.

Washington, June 16.—The navy department does not want Admiral Sampson's fighting ships taken away from Santiago until after it has fallen and Admiral Cervera's fleet has been captured or destroyed, but the president, impatient to seize San Juan, wants the Porto Rico expedition to start as soon as the army is ready.

General Miles, who was opposed to sending General Shafter's expedition until it had received further preparation, is expecting to favor delay in sending the Porto Rico expedition, which promises to be larger than the Santiago; but Secretary Alger is proceeding, under the president's personal directions, to pick out the best equipped volunteer regiments in all the camps, and to complete the equipment of those most easily equipped to go with the nucleus of regiments under Major General Coppinger, with a view to starting the expedition by the 1st of July, and is negotiating for additional transports, in order that those at Santiago need not be sent back, but may be kept for use there.

Second Onslaught's Victims.

Washington, June 16.—The marines who fell victims of the second onslaught of the Spanish forces at Caimanera were among the pick of the corps. The official records give the following facts concerning them:

Henry Good, killed; enlisted in Boston Dec. 2, 1889. He was honorably discharged from the Chicago Dec. 2, 1894, and re-enlisted the following day. Good was a native of Ireland, and 38 years old.

George Tauman, killed; enlisted at the navy yard in Norfolk Nov. 17, 1897. He was born in Virginia, and was scarcely 22 years old.

The injured: James Roxbury, private, 22 years of age, comes from Allentown, Pa., where he has a father.

Thomas Wallace, private, enlisted in Portsmouth, N. H. He was born in Ireland, where his father lives. He is 34 years of age.

Joseph Martin, private, enlisted in Boston, and is 29 years of age. He is a native of Sydney, C. B.

James D. Bourke, enlisted in Boston. He was born in Ireland, and is 23 years of age.

Destroys Emplacements.

Kingston, Jam., June 16.—The New Orleans, having been ordered by Rear Admiral Sampson to destroy the new emplacements half a mile east of Morro castle, on which a large number of Spaniards had been working, took up a position Tuesday morning about 800 yards from shore and 2000 yards from the Morro battery. She opened upon the emplacements with her rapid fire guns. Red clouds of sand arose on the hilltop from where the emplacements were building. Following the 15th shot the Morro batteries replied with one shell that fell near the stern of the New York. After 20 minutes gunpractice Admiral Sampson signalled the New Orleans to ceased firing. Then she retired. The Morro batteries sent 10 shells after her, but without damage. Admiral Sampson hoisted the signal, "Firing well done," the first compliment of the kind from the admiral.

The Vesuvius was put to work immediately. Lieutenant Commander Pillsbury gave the word to fire and Lieutenant Quimby opened the airvent. There was a slight hissing, a sort of coughing noise, but no flame, no report, no warning to the Spaniards who were hiding in the darkness. In 30 seconds a dull roar broke the silence of the tropical night. Two-hundred pounds of guncotton had exploded on the hillside below the battery. The ships on the blockade lines, two miles away, shook with the explosion. Before the echoes of the second shot died away the Vesuvius sent a third charge hissing out. It fell right on the brow of the hill, where the battery seemed to lie; into the air flew tons of earth and the smoke covered the land for half a mile.

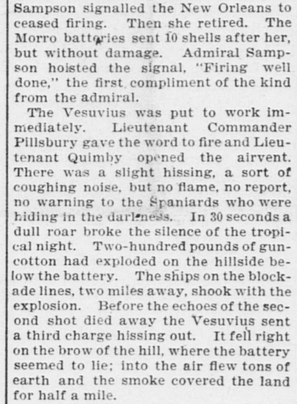
Anxiety In England.

London, June 16.—Germany's attitude at Manila is regarded as the most interesting phase of the war for the moment. The Germans are credited with a desire to find work for their navy; and another success like that at Kiao-Chou would reconcile the nation to the expenditure required to provide more warships. Therefore, despite official repudiations, the matter is regarded with some anxiety. It is certain, however, that Germany would have to count upon the opposition of England and perhaps of Japan.

The Daily Mail says editorially: "We do not quite believe the rumors of proposed seizures by Germany in the Philippines and for one very good reason. England would have to be reckoned with. John Bull will back up Brother Jonathan if any attempt is made to defraud him of his rights."

Went With Shafter.

Washington, June 16.—General Corbin received a telegram from Tampa, stating that the following general officers accompanied General Shafter with the army of invasion to Cuba: Major General Joseph Wheeler, Brigadier Generals



BRIG. GEN. HENRY W. LAWTON.

J. F. Kent, H. S. Hawkins, S. S. Summer J. C. Bates, S. B. M. Young, H. W. Lawton and A R. Chaffee. Major General Breckenridge and Brigadier General William Ludlow went as inspecting officer and engineer officer from army headquarters respectively.

Do Not Favor Peace.

London, June 16.—The Madrid correspondent of The Standard says: The Madrid newspapers declare that the idea that the Spaniards favor peace is wrong. On the contrary they are still resolved to continue the struggle, being convinced that facts are fast proving the Americans powerless to conquer the garrisons in Cuba and Porto Rico, while they are also menaced with international complications at Manila.

Gone to Manila.

San Francisco, June 16.—The second fleet of transports weighed anchor about 1 o'clock yesterday, and is now on the way to Manila with 3540 men.

Capture of the Twickenham.

Key West, June 16.—While the Twickenham, the British steamer captured by the St. Louis while undertaking to deliver 3200 tons of coal to the Spaniards, was on the way here, a Spaniard was discovered in the hold. He gave his name as James Fernires and alleged that he was an officer on the Spanish hospital ship, the captain of which had dispatched him on an errand to the Pacific. There was so little of definiteness in his statements that it is believed that he is an important emissary of the Spanish.

The Twickenham sailed April 21 from Newcastle-on-Tyne for St. Thomas, filled to her capacity of 3200 tons of coal. At St. Thomas the cargo appeared to have passed, according to papers, into the charge of a person named Clark, to whom the Twickenham had been chartered by the British Steamship company. She left St. Thomas May 15 and sailed for Fort de France, Martinique, but Captain Goodrich of the St. Louis could find no papers to indicate to whom the ship and the cargo were consigned. June 5 the United States consul at St. Pierre, Mart., wired to Washington that the Twickenham's coal was consigned to the Spanish consul in that island, but that the local government refused permission to that official to land it on the same day.

Want to Go Home.

Washington, June 16.—The attorney general has referred to the navy department an appeal by Captain Lazen and the 12 members of the crew of the Argonaut to be allowed to go to Cuba. The Argonaut was captured by the Nashville April 29 off Cienfuegos and was condemned as a fair prize. Her officers and crew were released upon giving their parole not to take up arms against the United States during the present war. They represent that their families live in Cuba and ask permission to join them, promising to observe their parole. The navy department has been obliged to refuse this request, contenting itself with giving the men their liberty.

An Honest Crony.

Boston, June 16.—A man named Kelley appeared at police headquarters yesterday looking for advice as to the proper method of disposing of 17 bank books, representing between $20,000 and $25,000. The books belonged to Patrick Fay, who died at the Carney hospital last Saturday. Fay was one of the old hotel waiters of Boston. In the course of his long life—he was about 80 years old when he died, and until about 72 years old had been actively employed—he had amassed the fortune which his friend was carrying. He was a bachelor, had no relatives and was a lonely man save for the friend to whom he confided the care of his books. This crony proved to be entirely honest, and he desired to turn the books over to the person qualified to receive them. By the advice of Kelley, Fay made a will giving all the property to charity. Kelley wished to ascertain who would carry out the provisions of the will. Acting upon the advice received, the man delivered the books to Judge Fallon of South Boston, who will act as the executor.

Insurance Company Must Pay.

Boston, June 16.—A verdict of $36,279 for the plaintiff was returned in the United States circuit court in the case of Susan E. Hadley vs the Provident Savings Life Assurance society of New York. The action was brought to recover $25,000 upon insurance policies issued by the defendant in January, 1897, upon the life of Frank H. Hadley, former treasurer of the Bennett and Columbia mills of New Bedford, who died in March of that year, and payable to the plaintiff, who is his widow. The defendant alleged misrepresentation on the part of Hadley in his application, which had been signed in New York, with respect to his use of intoxicating liquors and his engagement in that line of business. The plaintiff, while denying the facts, claimed that the insurance was a Massachusetts contract, and that the law of this state should govern the case. The court ruled that the case was to be governed by the laws of this state, and gave the jury instructions along the line of such law. The jury was out several hours before agreeing upon the verdict.

Must Make Returns.

Washington, June 16.—Chairman Dingley of the ways and means committee has introduced a bill supplemental to acts relating to the internal revenue law. It directs that every person or concern liable to any internal revenue tax, or having articles taxable, but unpaid, and every executor or other fiduciary to file with the collector of the district such inventories or returns. The commissioner of internal revenue may also require statements under oath where exemption is claimed on the ground of any limitation.

Emphatic Declaration For Hawaiian Annexation.

Only Three Republicans With the Opposition.

Eighteen Democrats Disregarded the Caucus Conclusion.

Washington, June 16.—By a vote of 209 to 91 the house of representatives has adopted the Newlands resolutions providing for the annexation of Hawaii. The debate, which had continued without interruption since Saturday, was one of the most notable of this congress, the proposed annexation being considered of great commercial and strategic importance by its advocates, and being looked upon by its opponents as involving a radical departure from the long-established policy of this country, and likely to be followed by the inauguration of a pronounced policy of colonization, the abandonment of the Monroe doctrine and participation in international wrangles. More than 50 members participated in the discussion.

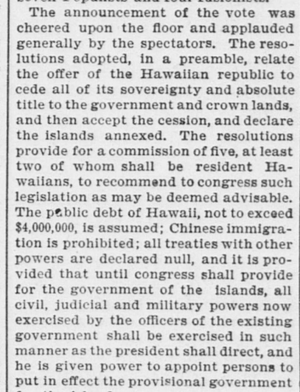
From a party standpoint the result was awaited with the keenest interest. The vote in support of the resolutions was made up of 179 Republicans, 18 Democrats, eight Populists and four fusionists. The vote against annexation comprised 77 Democrats, three Republicans, seven Populists and four fusionists.

The announcement of the vote was cheered upon the floor and applauded generally by the spectators. The resolutions adopted, in a preamble, relate the offer of the Hawaiian republic to cede all of its sovereignty and absolute title to the government and crown lands, and then accept the cession, and declare the islands annexed. The resolutions provide for a commission of five, at least two of whom shall be resident Hawaiians, to recommend to congress such legislation as may be deemed advisable. The public debt of Hawaii, not to exceed $4,000,000, is assumed; Chinese immigration is prohibited; all treaties with other powers are declared null, and it is provided that until congress shall provide for the government of the islands, all civil, judicial and military powers now exercised by the officers of the existing government shall be exercised in such manner as the president shall direct, and he is given power to appoint persons to put in effect the provisional government for the islands.

The program of the friends of the resolutions in the senate is to have them referred to the committee on foreign relations as soon as received. A meeting of that committee will be held Friday morning, and it is expected that a report will be promptly authorized so that the resolutions can be reported back to the senate on the same day of the committee's meeting. It is the committee's purpose to ask for immediate consideration, but it is understood that the opposition will seek to have the beginning of the debate deferred until Monday of next week. The supporters are not disposed to make this concession, and it is possible that the first clash may come on this point.

At Wednesday's session of the senate, consideration of the international bank matter was resumed. An amendment was agreed to against conferring exclusive privileges upon the incorporation of the proposed institution.

Mr. Caffery of Louisiana discussed the measure from the standpoint of an international lawyer, and could find no objection to it. He maintained that congress had ample authority to incorporate such an institution as that proposed.



SENATOR DONELSON CAFFERY.

Mr. Pettus withdrew the amendment he offered concerning the interest to be charged by the proposed bank, and offered in its stead the provision of the national banking law relating to interest. Mr. Foraker, on behalf of the committee, accepted the amendment modified so that the bank might charge the usual interest charged in the state or states, county or counties, where the bank may do business. Mr. Bacon antagonized the bill even as amended.

Reached an Agreement.

Washington, June 16.—The conferees of the two houses have reached an agreement on the bankruptcy bill. The measure as agreed upon is a compromise between the respective positions of the senate and the house. All the house provisions in regard to the administration of the law and judicial procedure under it were retained. The principal changes made were in the provisions relating to involuntary bankruptcy, the grounds on which a discharge in bankruptcy may be denied and to the matter of punishment for offenses under the proposed law.

Flag Party.

In response to invitations, the little friends of Dorothy and Edwina Sweetland gathered at their home, 263 Broadway, Somerville, on Tuesday afternoon June fourteenth, from four to six o'clock, in honor of Dorothy's second birthday anniversary. Little ones were present from Quincy, Everett, Stoneham and Somerville, and brought many pretty gifts. Ice cream and cake were served. It was a genuine flag party, the red, white and blue being conspicuous everywhere. Each child received a small American flag as a souvenir.

CLASS DAY.

Exercises at the Quincy Mansion School.

Another event in commencement week at the Quincy Mansion school was the Class Day exercises of Wednesday afternoon, when pupils and friends assembled in the parlors and were highly entertained by the seniors. They number nine this year, and appeared in the becoming Oxford caps and gowns.

Miss Alice M. Weeks of Allegany, Mich., the charming and popular president of the class, opened the exercises with an address. Miss Amy Warren Adams of Melrose had the "Grinds" brimful of hits. The "Class History" by Miss Sara Louise Cowan of Boston was eventful and required many pages. Miss Edith Lynde Haskell of Newton Centre told the "Class Statistics," and divulged many secrets. The "Poem" was by Miss

DR. WILLARD,
The Principal.

Helen Springer of Las Vegas, Mexico, and was an able production. The "Class Prophecy" by Miss Anna Wisby Hadley of Lowell was also in rhyme and was exceedingly clever. The "Oration to the Juniors was by Miss Violet Gertrude Twining of Fredericton, N. B. and gave advice learned by experience. The gifts bestowed by Miss Isabel Danforth of New York city occasioned the most merriment, especially among the pupils who saw the points. Dr. Willard, the principal, received a little hoe to hoe his row and a little hammer as a memento of an auction. A young lady often late received a watch, and another a clock; one who often neglects to put on rubbers received a dozen secondhand ones, etc.

An adjournment was then made to the beautiful gounds, when a class tree was planted. A purple beech had been selected. Miss Phebe A. Frost of Saxton's River, Vt., was to have made the address at the tree but was excused, and Dr. Willard spoke interestingly. Then the seniors shoveled in the dirt. This closed the exercises.

Among the decorations of the parlors was a large Spanish flag which attracted attention, as it was the first flag captured in the present war with Spain. The story of the achievment of the Nashville is fresh in mind, how she captured the auxiliary cruiser Argunauta. Lieut. A. C. Dillingham was in temporary command of the Nashville and he sent the flag to his brother in Denver, and he in turn loaned it to his sister at the school, It was originally 10 feet long, but one foot was cut off by the sailors and divided among them as trophies. It has three stripes, two red on the outside and a yellow in the middle. On the yellow stripe are the letters "C" and "M," and between the letters is a crown resting on a globe, in which there is a lion on one side and a castle on the other.

The Quincy Mansion is admirably adapted for a boarding school, and the pupils have the privileges of the first floor with its two large connecting parlors, the library, and dining room which easily seats fifty. An annex has been built for school purposes with class rooms, music rooms, art room, gymnasium, principal's office, etc. great improvements have been made in the grounds since Dr. Willard opened the school.

This afternoon the graduating exercises were held and this evening the principal gives a reception.

Q. H. S. Debate.

At the regular meeting Wednesday of the Quincy High School Debating Society, the open debate of last week was concluded. Mr. Lewis, '98, spoke. Mr. Thayer, '98, brought in a report as critic. The Board of Decision decided that the affirmative side had won the debate on the subject: "Resolved, That too much importance is attached to Wealth in the United States."

The entertainment followed:

Essay, "The City of Rome," Mr. Thayer, '98. An able essay.

Recitation, "Gladstone," Miss Brown, '98.

Duet for the violin and piano, Messrs. Marnock and Pendis, '98.

Essay, "The Battle of Santiago," written by Mr. Marnock, '98; read by Mr. R. McDonnell, '98.

Recitation, Miss McDonnell, '98.

The entertainment was excellent throughout. The instrumental duet by Messrs. Marnock and Pendis was greatly enjoyed.

The new debate, "Resolved, That American Manners Compare favorably with those of others nations," was then begun.

Affirmative:—Miss Souter and Miss Thayer.

Negative:—Mr. Northcott.

Mr. Northcott's remarks were effective and witty.

Patriotic Concert.

There was a larger attendance at the old folks sing at Faxon hall Wednesday evening, when a patriotic concert was given. Ye singers did not inspire the audience much until part second and then encores were demanded for each number. The programme.

Hunt—Hodges.

It was a very quiet home wedding on Wednesday when Miss Mabel S. Hodges and Dr. Alvin A. Hunt were united in marriage by Rev. Ellery C. Butler of the Unitarian church. The bride is the only daughter of Hon. and Mrs. William A. Hodges, and the groom is established in Hartford, Conn., as a dentist. The ceremony took place at 5 P. M. and was attended only by the families and very intimate friends of the contracting couple. Dr. and Mrs. Hunt left immediately by carriage for Boston, outwitting those who had planned to give them a send off at the Quincy station, and will enjoy a trip through Maine. They will be at home after August 1 at Hartford, Conn., their future residence.

The Little Items About the City Yesterday and Today.

Dackers as guardian of Lizzie Mary and John Gordon, minors.

Ladies' Day.

The Norfolk Association Congregational clergymen observed Ladies' day at the bi-monthly meeting held on Tuesday at the North Weymouth church. The morning was devoted to literary exercises. Rev. Gridley Bryants Won.

The Willards and the Gridley Bryants met Wednesday in the school league and it was a hotly contested game throughout. The Willards scored five runs the first inning and three the second, and from that time the Gridley Bryants played fine ball, shutting them out for six innings. A Disgrace.

Editors of Quincy Daily Ledge,

On one side of Hancock street in the vicinity of Merry Mount Park there is a path which I suppose may be, by a stretch of the imagination, termed a sidewalk. For riding a bicycle on the sidewalk there seems to be a penalty. I understand that on account of people riding their bicycles on this path special policemen have been stationed along it to stop them and to arrest them. Under ordinary circumstances perhaps there would be no excuse for aynone riding their bicycles on this path but considering the miserable condition which Hancock street is in it seems to me that there is more excuse for a clycler using this path than there is for his being arrested for doing so. Hancock street is full of ruts, cobble stones, etc., and would be a disgrace to any country town let alone a city, and it would seem that it would not take a great deal of money to put this street in a fairly good condition. There is a section of about 100 feet of the street on one side right opposite the Park which has been repaired, and it is a thing hard to explain why this section should have been repaired, and the balance left in a bad condition.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, June 16.—The committee on agriculture reported a bill to abolish the cattle commission and to provide for one cattle commissioner and a deputy commissioner. The bill prohibits the use of tuberculin in testing cattle for tuberculosis, and also prohibits cities and towns from forbidding the sale of milk from cows not tested.

The ways and means committee reported ought to pass on the bill to fix the salaries of the harbor and land commissioners at $3500 for the chairman, and $3000 for the other two members.

The house concurred with the senate amendments to the bill to provide for state pay for soldiers and sailors in the volunteer service of the United States and for aid to their families.

Less Pay and More Hours.

Brookfield, Mass., June 16.—E & A. H. Batchelder, Boot and shoe manufacturers of North Brookfield, have cut their help down 10 percent in the factory and in the Boston office. The cut affects 1000 men, but the company is going to reduce the number to 800 and increase the hours of labor from eight to 10. The factory reopened last Monday, after an idleness of five weeks. Many of the employes ceased work yesterday, and many others have expressed their intention of leaving. Mr. Batchelder called a meeting, and in explanation of the action taken by the firm, said that it could not, under the old scale of wages and working hours, compete with other manufacturers.

Death of a Stranger.

Newburyport, June 16.—George Barry, a stranger in this city and who claimed New York as his home, and that he was without relatives, died in the city hospital from injuries supposed to have been received by falling from a train. Monday night he was found near the railroad tracks, with a bruise on the back of his head. He told the police that he had not been assaulted, but complained that he was sick. Since his death the case has engaged the attention of the authorities, who admit that there is something mysterious about the affair. The medical examiner admits that death was caused by a fall or a blow on the head.

Maine Woman Cut.

Rockland, Me., June 16.—C. C. Ringberg, a sailor, got into a dispute with Ida Kennedy and stabbed her three times, inflicting quite serious wounds. Nicholas Saunders, who went to Mrs. Kennedy's assistance, was stabbed in the back, but not seriously. Ringberg gave himself up to the police.

The ostrich is believed to see objects behind him as well as those in front. Persons standing directly behind an ostrich can see the pupils of his eyes, and of course are thus easily seen by him.

Preparation For Burial Stopped by the Medical Examiner.

Lynn, June 16.—Julia C. Brown, a widow, 71 years old, was found murdered in her bed at her home, 80 Ashland street, Wednesday. In many respects the crime committed was of an exceedingly revolting character, and the most cruel ever committed in the city.

The woman's two sons are locked up at the police station on suspicion, awaiting a thorough investigation of the case. City Marshal Burckes and the inspectors feel that they may certainly throw some light on the murder of the woman. Thus far the efforts of the police to obtain some evidence looking toward the arrest stroying the only well in the vicinity and naught, but a rigid investigation is being made, and it is the belief of the officers that the person responsible for the death of the aged and respected woman will soon be captured.

Home Circle's Council.

Boston, June 16.—At the 19th annual meeting of the supreme council, Home Circle, the reports showed that there are three grand councils, Massachusetts, New York and Pennsylvania; 138 subordinate councils, and 6782 members. Sixty-nine death losses were paid in 1897, amounting to $150,045, the average amount being $2175.

A new law adopted provides that if a member commits suicide before he has been five years in the order, no benefit shall be paid, except it shall be established by affirmative evidence that the member was insane. The officers for 1898-99 were elected as follows: Supreme leader, William E. Wood, Utica; vice leader, Rodney P. Woodman, Sharon; instructor, J. Varnum Abbott, Walnut Hill; secretary, Julius M. Swan, Boston; treasurer, John Haskell Butler, Boston.

Changes Not Satisfactory.

Boston, June 16.—At an adjourned meeting of the board of overseers of Harvard college it was resolved that the proposed changes in the requirements for admission are not entirely satisfactory, and that the proposed plan be recommitted to the faculty of arts and sciences for further consideration and report, to the end that the preparation in algebra and history now required of candidates for admission may not be reduced.

Under the will of George Bemis of Newton a bequest of $50,000 will go to the university at the death of the testator's sister, who is given a life interest in the property. This sum is directed by the will to be used for "the establishment and maintenance of a professor of public and international law in the Deane law school of the university."

Wednesday In the Hub.

Boston, June 16.—Auction sales of mill stocks yesterday included shares of the following: Naumkeag, up 2 3-8, at 49; Bates, up 3 1-2, at 102 1-2; Massachusetts, off 1 3-4, at 76 3-4; Merrimack, off 10, at 890; Great Falls, up 4 1-2, at 140 1-2, and Lowell, off 2, at 87.

A mass meeting was held in Faneuil hall yesterday to enter an earnest protest against the so-called policy of imperialism into which, it seemed to be the sentiment of the meeting, this country is being carried. The attendance was large, and many prominent men occupied seats on the platform. It was resolved that our first duty is to cure the evils in our own country.

Wounded a Count.

London, June 16.—While the first secretary of the German embassy here, Count Von Arco-Valley, was emerging from the embassy last evening, John Todd fired two shots from a revolver at him. One of the bullets entered the secretary's back, but the wound is not believed to be fatal. His assailant was arrested after firing at and missing a policeman. The motive which prompted the man to attempt the life of the count is not known.

Killed and Burned.

Montgomery, Ala., June 16.—Near Wetumka the house of William Gurden was burned, and with it Gurden, his wife and William Curliea. Gurden had the reputation of keeping a hoard of gold, and there is little doubt that the three persons were murdered by robbers and the house fired.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

William Hustis fell into a Lowell canal and was drowned.

Over 1000 laborers in the Haverstraw, N. Y., brick yards are on strike for higher wages or less work.

The committee canvassing the outlook for passing the general banking and currency bill in the house announces that about 140 members have signed the canvass, and that all the members in New England save the Massachusetts and Maine delegations are solid for it.

McDougall's brick block in Fort William, Ont., was burned yesterday morning. Yard Master Holland of the Canadian Pacific railroad, with his wife and children, occupied the fourth floor. A baby was killed, and the other members of the family were seriously injured.

At the 17th meeting of the association of Massachusetts pharmacists, these officers were elected: President, James J. Curran of Holyoke; vice presidents, Edwin R. Fiske of Greenfield, George P. Cochran of Hudson and Fred H. Hubbard of Newton; secretary, James F. Guerin of Worcester; treasurer, Thomas B. Nichols of Salem.

It is the intention of Secretary Long to distribute the crew of the Merrimac among the ships of Admiral Sampson's fleet instead of having them return to this country for appointment. Every member of the crew of that vessel volunteered to accompany Constructor Hobson on his perilous expedition, and the secretary, in recognition of their gallantry, has ordered that they be retained with the fleet.

DEFEATED QUAKERS.

Bostons Won With Two of Their Best Players Disabled.

Boston, June 16.—The Phillies worked in three pitchers yesterday before they got through playing. Dunkle lasted the first inning. Then Platt took Dunkle's place, retiring in favor of George Wheeler, the Methuen boy, who pitched the rest of the game.

DELEHANTY, THE GREAT BATSMAN.

The champions made 17 hits in all. Two of these were in the first off Dunkle, the balance off Wheeler. Lewis pitched great ball in every inning but the last, when the Phillies got three of their eight singles, and four of their half dozen runs, aided by an error and a base on balls. Delehanty, who has not sustained his reputation as a hitter this trip east, made a run on easy terms in the fourth. After Douglass had been retired, "Del" drew a base on balls and went to second on Lajoie's hard drive to center. The two big fellows started a double steal. Lajoie was cut off, but, while he was running back and forth, Delehanty dashed for the plate and got there on Tenney's low throw. Score:

Earned runs—Bostons, 5; Philadelphias, 2. Two-base hits—Tenney, Bergen, Yeager. Stolen bases—Tenney, 2; Delehanty, Lajoie. Double plays—Lajoie and Cross; Cross and Douglass. First base on balls—By Lewis, 4; by Wheeler, 1. Struck out—By Lewis, 3. Passed balls—Bergen, 1; McFarland, 1. Wild pitches—Lewis, 1; Wheeler, 1. Time—1:41. Attendance—1900. Umpires—O'Day and McDonald.

Sechrist of the New Bedfords was very wild, and, by taking advantage of it and running bases cleverly, the Brocktons won easily, although outbatted three to one. Sharrett stole home with Snyder under the bat in the first. Score: 5 to 4.

The Pittsburgs made it three straight in Cleveland by bunching five hits in the seventh inning. Score: 4 to 3.

Springfield won in the third inning when three hits, an error and daring base running scored three runs against the Buffalos. It was a pitchers' battle, in which the honors belonged to Korwan of the winners.

The Newports won from the Pawtuckets with a garrison finish which came as easy as could be. With one man out Kelley lined out a double and Hill, who had previously made three hits, was given one to his liking, and dropped it over the right-field fence. Score: 8 to 7.

Harper pitched a masterly game for the Rochesters and defeated the Providences. Cooney's errors were costly, but would have amounted to little had the grays been able to do safe hitting. A bad decision by O'Neil in the third inning, declaring Canavan out at the plate when the catcher never had the ball in his hands, changed the run of the game. Score: 5 to 2.

The Baltimores and Washingtons played a postponed game yesterday and the Baltimores won handily, 8 to 1. The game was called after the Washingtons had finished their half of the eighth inning to allow them to take a train for Boston.

The Louisvilles could not touch Breitenstein, and were never in the game with the Cincinnatis. Josh Clarke, outfielder, and Catcher Wilson of the Louisvilles were given notice of their release. Score: 5 to 1.

Rusie pitched a fairly good game in Brooklyn. The New Yorks lost chiefly through their inability to bat. Score: 5 to 1.

Griffiths' steady pitching and perfect support by the Chicagos allowed but one of the St. Louis to reach third yesterday. Score: 4 to 0.

The Tauntons were defeated by the Fall Rivers in a game all in favor of the latter up to the ninth inning, when by a series of errors they nearly turned victory into defeat. McMackin, Taunton's new pitcher, was hit hard after the first three innings. Score: 4 to 3.

The wheel of fortune took a turn yesterday, and the Browns went down before the Harvards in a one-sided game, 14 to 3. The visitors outbatted and outfielded the home team. Sedgwick split his finger and was of little avail. Hayes was invincible. The result makes the Brown-Harvard series a tie.

Dartmouth Man Hurt.

Hanover, N. H., June 16.—Charles N. Currier of Dartmouth, whose home is in Amesbury, Mass., was struck by a bounding fragment which fell from the chimney of the gas plant which the workmen purposely overthrew, and sustained a broken jaw, lost many teeth and was severely injured over the left eye. Doctors fear he will lose the sight of the eye.

PRAYERS AND FIGHTING.

Mr. Dooley on the Value of Both In a War.

"Well," said Mr. Dooley, "I dinnaw jus' what to think iv it. Me own idee is that war is not a matther iv prayers so much as a matther iv punchin, and th' on'y place a prayer book stops a bullet is in th' story books. 'Tis like what Father Kelly said. Three weeks ago las' Sundah he met Hogan, an Hogan, wantin to be smart, ast him if he'd offered up prayers f'r th' success iv th' cause. 'Faith, I did not,' says th' good man. 'I was in too much iv a hurry to get away.' 'What was th' matther?' ast Hogan. 'I had me uniform to brush up an me soord to polish,' says Father Kelly. 'I am goin with th' rig'mint tomorrah,' he says, 'an,' he says, 'if ye hear iv me waitin to pray,' he says, 'anny time they'se a call f'r me,' he says, 'to be in a fight,' he says, 'ye may conclude,' he says, 'that I've lost me mind an won't be back to me parish,' he says.

"'Hogan,' he says, 'I'll go into th' battle with a prayer book in wan hand an a soord in th' other,' he says, 'an if th' worruk calls f'r two hands, 'tis not th' soord I'll dhrop,' he says. 'Don't ye believe in prayer?' says Hogan. 'I do,' says th' good man, 'but,' he says, 'a healthy person ought,' he says, 'to be ashamed,' he says, 'to ask f'r help in a fight,' he says."—Mr. Dooley in Chicago Journal.

"What Shall a Man Give?"

The solemn question comes home to almost every man at some period in his career. "What will you give in exchange for your life?" It is like that other solemn question about the soul. Just as an honest man feels that nothing of earthly value can be weighed against his soul so a man who has one friend to love him knows that life is too precious to be bartered away for ambition, or money, or pride.

But men are slow to believe that overwork sometimes kills; a man hates to admit that his health ever needs any particular care. He feels miserable and "out of sorts" but tries to "bluff it off" until he gets flat on his back, unable to do a stroke of work. He becomes obliged to spend no end of money for doctors and even at that can hardly save his life.

How much more sensible, and in the end how much cheaper at the first signs of physical weakness to write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y., and obtain, free of charge, the advice of a skilled and educated physician who has a wider reputation for the successful treatment of chronic diseases than any other physician in this country.

In a letter to Dr. Pierce, Mr. J. W. Brittin, of Clinton, Dewitt Co., Ills., (P. O. Box 475), writes. "For over a year I was troubled with liver complaint. Had no appetite, could keep nothing on my stomach, and had severe pains in my stomach and bowels. I doctored with home doctors but did not obtain relief until a friend advised me to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I began taking it at once and after taking four bottles I think myself cured, as I can eat anything I want and my food never hurts me."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. At all medicine stores.

A DAY DREAM.

A little thought went rippling
Into the unknown depths,
A little child was its fountain head.
A little wave to the shore was sped;
And the little pebbles in dried up places,
Like children bereft of life's good graces,
Look out with a smile on their clean washed faces.

Concert.

The concert to be given Monday evening, June twenty-seventh, under the auspices of the Quincy Home Science Association should be well patronized by Quincy people for two reasons. First, because it will be of great merit and thus afford all lovers of good music, great pleasure and second because the proceeds are to be devoted to the work of carrying on the free, summer kindergartens work, whose good in the community cannot be over estimated. Quincy people should congratulate themselves that they are enabled to listen to such artists in the musical world without having to go to Boston.

Let us show our appreciation and at the same time avail ourselves of this unusual opportunity by filling Woodward hall. It is earnestly hoped that every member of the Association will be present at this concert.

Musical Features.

The following musical programme will be given as the Atlantic Memorial church next Sabbath morning:

WANT PEACE.

A Section of Spain Issues a Manifesto.

Madrid, June 18. The Spanish papers publish today a manifesto from the inhabitants of Catalonia urging peace between the United States and Spain. There is much comment here over a long conference of the minister of war with the British embassador.

NOTE,—Catalonia is an old province of Spain, bounded by France, the Mediterranean, Valencia and Aragon. Its area is 12,514 square miles. It is divided into provinces of which Barcelona is the capital.

FRENCH CRISIS.

Paris, June 18. M. Ribot has informed the President that he is unable to form a cabinet.

The Fifth Going.

Boston, June 18.—A Washington dispatch says that Adj Gen. Corbin has apportioned the second call in New England as follows: Connecticut, one regiment infantry; Maine, three heavy batteries; Massachusetts, one regiment infantry; Rhode Island, two batteries light artillery; New Hampshire and Vermont, having under the first call furnished in excess of their quota, will not be called upon to furnish any new organization under the second call.

Transports Wanted,

Washington, June 18.—It is said that the government is having difficulty in securing transports for the Porto Rico expedition. Word has been sent to coastwise transportation companies but the responses are not satisfactory and it may be necessary to use the transports sent to Santiago.

Troops Afloat.

Gibraltar, June 18.—There are 4,000 troops on transports with Admiral Camaras fleet. Their destination is not known.

Cable Cut.

Port au Prince, June 18.—There is no war news this morning the wires to Santiago having been cut.

Ninth Expectant.

Boston, June 18—The Journal regards it as significant that the Ninth Mass. may be ordered to the front at any moment because major Michael J. O'Connor of the Ninth Massachusetts Volunteers, who has been in Boston for the past few days, mustering in men to bring the regiment up to its full quota, has been ordered back to his command. He will join his comrades Monday.

Swedish Picnic.

The Swedish Lutheran society and Sunday School held their annual outing Friday at Merry Mount park.

The affair was largely attended and proved very enjoyable. Among the games and sports were: 100 yard dash, won by Theo. Hermanson, 10 1-2 sec.; throwing 15 lb. hammer, Andrew Anderson, 89 ft., 11 in.; putting 16 lb. shot, Theo. Hermanson, 36 ft., 8 in.; ladies 50 yd. dash, Augusta Peterson, 7 1-2 seconds; boys' 100 yd. race, D. Donovan, 11 1-2 sec.; three-legged race Nelson & Carter.

—The Milton Academy athletic association had sports on the Seventeenth for seniors, intermediate class and juniors.

It is no wonder that the sales of the great dailies are falling off. People are tired of reading so much stuff that is not so.

WINTER.

Merry, though the moon shines pale
And the wind tossed branches wail.
Purest crystals float and fall.
There they sparkle,
Here they darkle,
On the pine and lonely wall.

Merry, though the stream is still
'Neath the cold and trackless hill.
There the realms of Hesper glow.
Twilight lingers.
Shining fingers
Gild the sleeping fields of snow.

—Genesee Richardson in Woman's Home Companion.

THE ABBE'S DOG.

Abbe Sauteu was the cure of a sleepy little village at the extreme end of Provence—the Provence of the olden time, when doubts had not yet crept in to corrupt the simple faith of the peasants. The old priest lived happily among his parishioners, kindly souls all of them, and so obedient to the commandments of God and our holy mother church that their lives were a real benediction for their spiritual father. The good man had no need to touch them up every now and then with a rousing sermon, nor did he ask the aid of others more eloquent than himself to convert his flock. They were born, lived and died in the fold, and their pastor discharged his simple priestly duties and led in anticipation the life of the blessed.

The abbe adored nature, and every day you could have seen him strolling among the fields, reading his breviary, while from time to time he glanced at the gambols of Oremus, his little dog. They were as inseparable as St. Roch and his famous bowwow. Oremus enjoyed these strolls as much as his master, but in a different fashion. The priest's pleasure was purely contemplative, that of the doggie active.

Oremus firmly believed that God gave four legs to little dogs so that they could be twice as alert as their masters, who, poor creatures, had but two. So he raced over the fields, sometimes behind, sometimes ahead of the cure, jumping, making a corkscrew of his tail, snapping at the birds and giving himself up to all the pranks befitting the well bred dog of a priest.

Superfluous to add that Oremus understood absolutely all that his master said to him and that he could do everything but speak. As for tricks, our Oremus could have given points to the whole canine world. He danced on his hind legs and shook hands like a Christian, and his great feat was to refuse the most delicious chop, the juiciest morsel, if offered with the left hand.

You may well believe that this victory over the canine flesh was not gained without effort. The abbe and his dog had given much time and patience to the perfecting of this triumph, and evenings after the cure had dined alone the little dog was put through his paces, always ending the performance with the famous "chop act." Then the abbe, with tears in his eyes, would ask himself if the good God could have the heart to refuse a scrap of paradise to such a creature. Let us hasten to add that the worthy priest would have died before giving voice to such a sentiment—he, a son of the church.

But nothing is perfect in this world, and one day the sacred calm of Abiho was turned into confusion. Listen, and you will learn how. A young conscript, who had been absent seven years and who was supposed by the villagers to have been killed in the war, reappeared one fine morning and immediately took up his old life of farming. So far so good. But what a scandal arose, my friends, when it was known that Le Faiard absented himself from mass on Sunday, swore like a pirate at every word, and, more than all, ate meat on Friday!

Abbe Sauteu almost died of mortification. Night and day he racked his brain to find some means of bringing the apostate back to the faith of his childhood. As if by accident M. le Cure often strolled past the field where Le Faiard was working. Almost always he stopped to gossip with his black sheep, and very often the conversation turned on the all absorbing question. Le Faiard, for his part, was only too ready to argue the point. He was a pigheaded fellow, who liked to hear himself talk, and frequently it happened that our good abbe—who was by no means a well of learning—found himself floored by the arguments which his opponent had picked up in his military life and which he reeled off with a parrotlike volubility.

One day when Le Faiard had reduced his adversary to silence, he asked, as a finishing stroke:

"Anyway, father, do you take me for a saint?"

"Alas, far from it, my son."

"The devil fly away with me, then, if you don't demand more of me than a saint or even an apostle is capable of."

"Heaven forbid!" ejaculated the priest, falling innocently into the snare.

"Well, then, father," said Le Faiard, with a sly grin, "did St. Thomas believe on the faith of others? Didn't he require a miracle, and, trone-de-Dieu, what a miracle! Who can blame me for following St. Thomas' example—only I ask less than his saintship. Show me the least little miracle, I don't care how small, and I'll go to confession with all my heart."

Then seeing that the priest was dumfounded, he added: "Morbleu, father, won't you show me one? That ought not to feaze a friend of God's."

Then he walked away, in high glee, at the effect produced by his words.

"Work a miracle," said the priest to himself. "Impossible! And yet if God would help me"—

In truth God did help him, and one day in mid-Lent Father Sauteu left the house, escorted by his dog. All the way to Le Faiard's field he chuckled softly to himself.

"A miracle, indeed. You must have a miracle, must you, you rogue? Oremus, little villain, leave those birds alone. You have other things to do. A miracle! Yes, my fine fellow, you are going to have your miracle, and I'm going to have your soul!"

It was Friday. Le Faiard has just killed his pig, and would probably have a sausage for dinner.

The priest soon reached his destination.

"Good day, Le Faiard," said he, in a fatherly tone.

"Good day, father," replied the disciple of Voltaire.

With that they fell into a chat, interrupted from time to time by the yelps of Oremus, and punctured, so to speak, by the handfuls of seed that the young farmer scattered right and left as he walked along.

Dinner hour. The two men seated themselves on a little hillock, and Le Faiard pulled a sausage from his pocket, a superb sausage, red as a tomato, and with an odor to have made a saint's mouth water.

"Holy Virgin, Le Faiard, what a sin! On a Friday, in Lent too. Don't eat it, my son."

"Not eat it! That's good. The idea! I would eat it on Good Friday if I had it. Besides, haven't I seen with my own eyes bishops and archbishops, too, for that matter, in India, who always ate meat whether it was good or bad Friday."

"Your joking is ill timed. God is good, but he will not always have patience with you. Some day he will open your eyes by a miracle, but who can say if then the gate of mercy may not be closed for you."

"Father, miracles are always in season, but unfortunately the time for them has gone by. As for me, death of my life, I wouldn't ask better than to see what you threaten me with. Meanwhile the sausage claims my attention—and"— And the rascal took a great mouthful of his dinner.

Oremus had not lifted his eyes from the sausage since its appearance on the scene. Every time Le Faiard took a bite the poor bowwow licked his chops and wagged his tail, which distinctly said in dog language:

"Oh, what an elegant sausage! How I should like some!"

"Watch my dog, you mocker," said the abbe. "See how he is devouring the sausage with his eyes. Well, when I say, 'It is Friday, Oremus,' he will not touch the piece that I am going to offer him. And he is only a dog."

Le Faiard was convulsed with laughter.

"Oh, father, that's too much! All the same, though, I would like to see your miracle—it would take me to mass—yes, and vespers too."

Taking a delicious morsel of the sausage, the abbe called, "Oremus!"

Oremus came like a streak.

"It is Friday, Oremus," went on the abbe, "but just see what I have for you," and he offered the tempting bit, which he held, be it understood, in his left hand.

Imagine, if you can, the astonishment of Le Faiard when he saw Oremus halt suddenly in front of his master, head lowered, tail between his legs and with the air of an actor who had forgotten his lines.

"Good doggie, Oremus, eat it!"

Sure of his success, the priest put the sausage under the dog's nose. Not a movement! Oremus' eyes were good. He saw that the sausage staid in the left hand, and after a few minutes he turned tail and retreated to the shade of a bush close by, where he sadly flung himself down and tried to forget his disappointment in a little nap.

During this scene Le Faiard had been petrified. With open mouth he watched the priest and his dog as a criminal watches his judge. When Oremus finally beat a retreat, Le Faiard roused himself and ejected the mouthful already half masticated.

"Father," he cried, "I have seen enough and too much. I am the most miserable sinner on earth, and it has taken a dog to convince me of it."

The following Sunday Le Faiard went to mass and vespers, and ever since that memorable day it is he who lights the candles and rings the bells in Abiho, where the holy peace of God reigns now as formerly.—"L'Echo de la Semaine."

"See a Pin and Pick It Up."

It may be before long that our pins will have to be dipped in carbolic acid before being put on our bureaus. For pins have been proved to be a prolific source of danger in spreading contagious diseases. All kinds of germs, it is said, can be collected under the heads, and nurses who indulge the feminine habit of holding pins in their mouths lay themselves open to serious attack. The doctors who have warned the public say that many of the so called new pins are not new at all, but have been picked up in the streets and laid side by side with the others. The idea is not an altogether pleasant one, and is, moreover, one likely to increase the uneasiness of the overfastidious.

There are some women now who are so afraid of germs that they wash all their gold and silver pieces before handling them and who never allow a bank bill to go into their purses until it has been wrapped in some kind of disinfecting paper. They even require the shopgirls who hand them their change to wrap in paper first. What is to be done, if all this is so, with the popular superstitions about picking up all the pins that one sees and never passing a penny in the street?—Harper's Bazar.

[Copyright, 1898, by George Palliser, 32 Park place, New York.]

There are several important things to be observed while this war with Spain is waged. Some say that hostilities will not be prolonged for more than two or three months, but none of us can say how long it will last. We do not know what other European powers may become interested in this Cuban affair. They are all holding off. They do not know the power of modern guns and projectiles. They are not sure about the efficiency of the present styles of battleships and gunboats. The destructiveness of torpedoes that we have heard so much about has to be proved. America has led the world up to the present standard of arms, and it behooves her to establish them as essential factors in modern warfare. It will probably remain for American ingenuity to again revolutionize certain things pertaining to war and its deadly effects and how to inflict them upon the enemy.

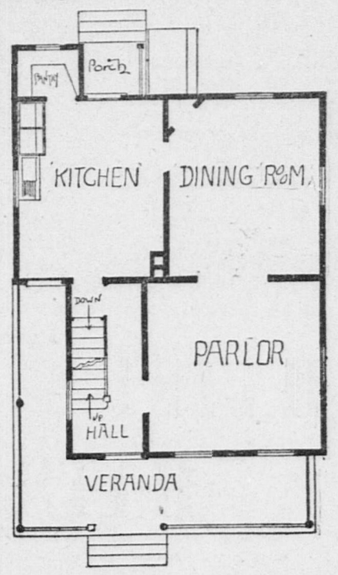
In architecture, as in many other things, we have accomplished wonders. Something which 20 years ago would have seemed utterly ridiculous, but which now seems quite ordinary, are the high buildings called skyscrapers, in our large American cities, which are being duplicated on a minor scale in Europe. What is responsible for these lightninglike changes? Why, our cosmopolitan population. It had a great variety of ideas, some of which are exceedingly startling, showing great originality of mind. Others are a revivification of arts practiced many hundred years ago. In Europe the various cities seem to have a given style of architecture, and it appears to be quite a novelty, out of the ordinary, if one should get away from any of these well beaten paths.



FIRST FLOOR PLAN.

The cottages of America are the most amusing and picturesque of the many styles of architecture now in vogue. Lumber of all kinds being so cheap and accessible has undoubtedly made these odd characters of the building group such an interesting study.

There are homes at all prices, for the millionaire and the mechanic, all made of frame, such as the one we here represent, which is a handsome cottage. The first floor contains three large working and living rooms, with a large veranda. The second floor has four bed chambers and a spare room. A finished room is found in the attic. The cellar is cemented, and the exterior is neat in design. All possible room is utilized. This design is one of the average American homes of the mechanic, is comfortable and something any man might be proud to call "home."

Stained Floors.

Floors that are stained and oiled are easily kept clean. The material costs very little, and any one can apply it. For an oak stain take raw sienna, add a little umber to it and mix with half a pint of linseed oil and one quart of turpentine. A tablespoonful of Japan drier put into the turpentine will make it dry quickly. A cheap dark brown stain, which is better for old floors than a lighter color, is made by mixing one-fourth of a pound of permanganate of potash in one quart of water. Apply with an old paintbrush and give the floor two coats if one does not make it dark enough. After the floor is stained give it a coat of boiled linseed oil. If the oiling is repeated every spring or fall, your floor will always look well.—Exchange.

Care of China.

A point to give the new waitress is that china plates, cups or saucers should not be piled one upon another while they are hot. They must be cool before they are packed. Otherwise the glaze cracks easily.—Exchange.

COLLIER TWICKENHAM

Evidence That Its Cargo Was Intended For the Spanish.

The Officers and Crew Clashed With the Captain.

Refused to Work the Vessel to the Santiago Harbor.

Key West, June 18.—William Thompson, the steward of the British collier, Twickenham, which was captured off Kingston, Ja., June 10, by the St. Louis, said to a representative of the Associated Press yesterday: "The steamer and I believe the cargo are owned by Watts, Watts & Co., of London. We sailed from Newcastle-on-Tyne with a full cargo of coal at half an hour past midnight on April 22, the day after war had been declared. None of the crew knew that war had been declared, and I don't know whether the captain did. Our destination was St. Thomas for orders. We reached St. Thomas on May 16 and received orders to proceed to Martinique and report to the Spanish consul there. 'Take orders from the Spanish consul,' the cable orders read.

"At Martinique the Spanish consul paid our bills. We took aboard Chief Officer James Fornie, of the alleged Spanish hospital ship, Alicanto. He was to be supercargo and take charge of the coal when we reached our destination. The consul cleared ship for Dominica, Hayti, the owners refusing to let her clear for Santiago. Fornie came aboard after dark, just before we sailed. I saw Fornie's chart of our sailing course after passing Cape Maysi, which had Santiago as our destination. Fornie was formerly an officer in the Spanish navy.

"When we were well on our way the captain notified the officers and engineers that they would go to Santiago. They held a consultation and refused to take the steamer to any but a neutral port. The engineers decided they would disable the engines if the navigator steered for Santiago. The captain was very angry and said he would get a new crew, but the officers and crew could not be bulldozed, and the captain headed for Kingston.

"The Alicante is a 3000-ton steamer, chartered from Henderson of Glasgow. She is fitted out as a hospital boat and is painted white, but as the same time she is a collier and Spanish warship. She carries 300 men. I, myself, saw her coal the Spanish torpedo boat destroyer, Terror, at Fort de France, in Port Royal bay, 12 miles below St. Pierre, Martinique. An American on shore told me to watch the Spanish ships that night, and I kept a sharp lookout and saw the hospital ship coaling the torpedo boat destroyers. The Alicante can make 14 knots. Her engineers are English and the engineers of Cervera's fleet are Englishmen, who are serving unwillingly against the United States, but stick to their posts because they were enlisted."

An officer of the St. Louis, in speaking of the capture, said: "We had been laying for the Twickenham two days on orders from Washington. We kept 10 miles off the coast. When we sighted the Britisher we got in front of him and fired a blank shot, following it at once with a solid shot. The ship hove to promptly and the captain came off to us in a small boat, protesting vigorously against what he called an indignity to a law-abiding British mariner. He said the cargo was consigned to himself, but afterwards contradicted this statement by saying he did not know the consignees. We put a prize crew aboard and brought the Twickenham to Key West."

Granting American Registry.

Washington, June 18.—Senator Hale has introduced a bill authorizing the granting of American registry to prize vessels captured in war and which may be forfeited or ordered sold by the prize court and purchased by citizens of the United States.

Senator Carter has a bill to increase the force of the ordnance department of the army. It provides for a chief with the rank of brigadier general, four colonels, eight lieutenant colonels, 16 majors, 20 captains and 17 first lieutenants. The bill also provides for the assignment of these officers to different army corps during the war.

The house committee on naval affairs has agreed to report favorably to the house a bill authorizing the president to appoint five more cadets at large this year to the naval academy at Annapolis. The object of the bill is to provide for suitable recognition of distinguished services in the navy, especially for John Vincent Gridley, a son of Captain Gridley, the late commander of the Olympia, who died recently from injuries understood to have been sustained during his service in the battle at Manila. The other four appointments so placed in the disposal of the president will be reserved for similar cases.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

In the Berane district of Albania 700 houses belonging to Servian christians have been burned. The Turks are committing horrible atrocities, and two Servian women have been barbarously murdered.

The second section of a freight train of the New England railroad was wrecked yesterday afternoon at Waterbury, 10 cars being demolished. No one was injured. The cause of the accident is unknown. The loss will be about $2500.

Fire last evening visited a factory in Lawrence occupied by the American Mason Safety Tread company, Lampson Store Equipment company and Dillon Machine company, and caused a loss of $5000. The blaze started in a box of shavings.

Salvors have received $500 for their services in bringing the abandoned and waterlogged schooner Stephen Morris to Vineyard Haven from off Nantucket. The vessel is badly strained, and will not be repaired. Her sails and running rigging have been sent to Bangor. The fate of the captain and crew is still unknown.

MERCER'S PITCHING.

Defeat of the Bostons Yesterday Due Largely to Their Hitting.

Boston, June 18.—Not until the last two innings yesterday was the old-time interest, as manifested by whole-souled and sturdy rooting, awakened in the second game between Boston and Washington at the south end grounds. Winfield Scott Schley Mercer, J. Earl Wagner's $10,000 beauty, by strategic pitching, was the chief barrier in the progress of the champions towards victory, and his magnificent work was cheered repeatedly. The boy from East Liverpool, O., had a repertory of sinuous slows and tortuous benders, with now and then a touch of speed which he used with the air of a sure winner, and it was evident after the Senators scored their first two runs in the opening inning that Boston was up against a tough proposition.

PITCHER MERCER.

Willis pitched a winning game ordinarily, but the fortunes of the day were strictly against his team when it came to pushing enough runners across the plate to win out. Willis held the Senators to four less hits than Boston got, but Farrell's two bases on balls counted for two runs, and three hits in succession in the eighth scored the run which held Boston for a while. The St. Louis team won from the Louisvilles by hitting the ball at opportune times, 8 to 3.

The leaders and Chicagos struggled through 14 innings in Chicago, the Cincinnatis finally winning in the most exciting game of the year, 2 to 1.

The Brooklyns and Baltimores played poorly. The former won through ability to hit the ball when the ex-champions made errors, 8 to 6.

Donahue of the Philadelphias lasted three innings in New York and Dunkle, who was substituted, was an easy mark. The Phillies were able to bunch their hits off Meekin in only one inning. Score: 16 to 4.

The Springfields had no difficulty in straightening out the curves of Pitcher Hickman of the Rochesters. In the eighth inning, eight hits and a base on balls scored eight runs. Score: 15 to 4.

The Providences did timely hitting and practically won the game from the Buffalos in the second inning. Egan pitched in splendid form, and with perfect fielding support shut out the New York team, 9 to 0.

In the ninth yesterday the Pawtuckets had the Brocktons beaten. The score was 4 to 2 in their favor and two were out. Clancy sent an easy fly to Weisbecker, who made a miserable muff, and two men scored. Two more were then secured by the Brocktons on doubles.

Hand Engine Contests.

Lynn, Mass., June 18.—At the muster under the auspices of the Lynn Veteran Firemen's association 3000 people witnessed with interest the efforts of the firemen. Sixteen tubs appeared. The wind blew directly against the stream during the play of the first eight tubs; then veered around so as to blow directly with the stream. The last tub to play, Warren of East Pepperell, took the first prize of $250. The other prizes were $150, $100 and $50, respectively, and the four winners were among the last five tubs to play. The leading contestants made these records:

Warren, East Pepperell, first, 208 feet 8 inches, $250.

M. A. Pickett, Marblehead, second, 200 feet 11 inches, $150.

Torrent, Peabody, third, 200 feet 5½ inches, $100.

Eagle, Lynn, fourth, 199 feet 1¼ inches, $50.

How to Affix Stamps.

Washington, June 18.—When war revenue stamps are purchased in quantities of $100 or more in value at one time, a discount of 1 percent will be allowed. Wherever practicable, but one stamp should be placed upon an instrument or article; where any one stamp will not denote the tax, as few stamps as possible should be affixed. Proprietary stamps must be affixed conspicuously on the outside of the article or package, and, where practicable, so that the opening of the article or package will destroy the stamp. All such stamps must be plainly cancelled when affixed by writing, or imprinting with a hand stamp, the initials of the party or firm who paid the tax and the year when affixed.

TALK WITH GEN. MILES

Causes of the Confusion and Delay In Tampa.

The Track and Mail Facilities Wholly Inadequate.

Splendid Acts of Heroism on the Part of Officers.

Washington, June 18.—General Miles' attention was directed yesterday to the reports coming from Tampa of great confusion and delay in preparing the expedition and getting it off for Cuba. "'Yes," said he, "there were causes contributing to this delay. In the first place the postoffice service at these points of army concentration is very deficient. They have the same facilities and no more as the local towns have when normal conditions exist; but when 20,000 to 50,000 men are added to the population of the small towns, and all of the men are sending and receiving letters from their friends and relatives at home, besides the large amount of official business carried on, the local facilities are entirely inadequate. It has been one of the troubles at Tampa, Chickamauga and other places, and as a result the official communication to and from the war department on which depends the regularity of movement of many kind of stores has been seriously delayed. Then, in gathering the munitions of war for an army, it was necessary to have the service of a great number of trains loaded with stores, crowding the meager railroad lines far beyond their usual capacity. However, all this is getting straightened out now, and already most of it has been overcome.

"The troops at Tampa are in very good health. The sick list is less than 1 percent, which is an exceptionally good record. The spirit of the men also is of the best, and this was shown in a most marked manner when the transports started for Cuba last Tuesday. They were all anxious to go, and there were wild scenes of enthusiasm and cheering as the men marched aboard and the ships got under way. Whenever a band played the national air every head was uncovered.

"There have been many very splendid acts of heroism, even in the brief time the troops have been employed," continued General Miles. "Lieutenant Rowan, now lieutenant colonel, and Lieutenant Wilcox, now captain, in making their journey in eastern Cuba and Porto Rico, gave splendid illustrations of the courage, fortitude and resources of the American soldiers. Three expeditions which carried arms to the Cubans have developed the finest kind of courage. Captain Connell and Lieutenant Crawford, who participated in these expeditions, were with the Cubans during a sharp engagement with the enemy. Captain Dorst's several expeditions have been of great service to the government, his last one in particular bringing important results. He started from Key West, but instead of going direct to Cuba he went north and east of Nassau, then turned south and landed on the Cuban coast at Banos. It has been held by the Cubans and is a good harbor with about 21 feet of water. Protected by a small gunboat, Captain Dorst landed a steamer's load of supplies for the Cuban army, including 7500 rifles, over 1,000,000 cartridges and a great quantity of stores. A thousand Cubans came to him while there.

"The special importance of this trip, however, was in opening up direct communication between General Garcia and myself. Two of Garcia's staff officers had returned from Cuba with Rowan and came to Washington to see me. One of these I sent to Banos with the supply of arms with instructions to General Garcia, saying I wanted him to move all his forces to Santiago. He had by that time been fully equipped by Captain Dorst. The message to General Garcia was sent June 2; it reached him June 6, and I got his reply by cable from St. Nicholas on June 9. He had about 8000 armed Cubans before he received the munitions of war by Captain Dorst. The supplies sent him will enable Garcia to equip over 15,000 Cubans."

Friday In Congress.

Washington, June 18.—The bill to incorporate the International American bank in accordance with the recommendation of the pan-American congress passed the senate by a vote of 26 to 23. The design of the measure is to furnish such facilities as will promote trade between the United States and the countries of Central and South America. The bill provides that the bank shall have a capital stock of $5,000,000, and that the capital stock may be increased to $25,000,000. The institution is to be under the supervision of the comptroller of the currancy.

The Hawaiian resolution was reported favorably. Its opponents charge that there was a breach of faith in urging the measure at this session, and they intend that the supporters of the movement shall maintain a quorum at each sitting during the progress of the debate.

McDuffie's Victory.

Boston, June 18.—World bicycle records once again went by the board from the 9th to the 13th mile yesterday, when Edward McDuffee easily defeated Major Taylor of Brooklyn in a paced 30-mile race. From the start to about the 15th mile it was a hot event, but after that time Taylor did not show up as well against the great work of McDuffee. Nevertheless the gamey colored lad broke nearly all his own records for many of the short distances.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

ALMANAC, SUNDAY, JUNE 19.
Sun rises—4:07; sets, 7:24.
Moon sets—8:02 p. m.
High tide—11:45 a. m.; 11:45 p. m.

Excepting that there is a chance of scattered thunder storms the fair weather now seems most probable Sunday, though with partly cloudy skies. It promises to be slightly warmer than today, with light, variable winds.

DOYLE'S SENATORS.

Washingtons Made a Gallant and Almost Successful Struggle.

Boston, June 17.—Manager John Doyle of the Washingtons was too indisposed to play in yesterday's game, or to keep a watchful eye on his associates. He was not missed, for the visitors gave the Bostons one of the hardest battles of the season. The senators played a fast fielding game and were aggressive at all times.

JOHN J. DOYLE.

The fielding on both sides was clean, and, outside of battery errors, only Reitz's misplay is charged. In Boston's complement of 10 singles there were several lucky ones, being on attempts to hit out hard and resulting in infield shots which were beaten out at first base by runners. The fielding and batting of Lowe were full of his wonted fire, and he has the honor of scoring Boston's winning run. He hit for three safe ones, leading both teams at the bat, and accepted everything in his territory. Captain Duffy scored Boston's first run, and his fielding was perfect. The first base play of Fred Tenney was luminous, while Jack Stivetts played short for the second time in good shape, taking everything in sight. Score:

The Cincinnatis developed a bad case of rattles and were defeated by the Chicagos, who played perfect ball. Score: 9 to 1.

The Brooklyns in the seventh inning secured four runs and the lead. The orioles tied the score in the eighth and won in the ninth, 6 to 5.

Seymour, of the New Yorks, in all but the eighth and ninth innings, pitched a better game yesterday than the Phillies looked for, and his club won, 11 to 5. Piatt was wild. Rumors of a shake-up in the New York team are rife, and it is said that Baltimore and Boston players are likely to figure in a deal with the New York management.

A wild throw of Massey of the Springfields to the plate in the fifth lost the game to the Rochesters. It cost four runs before the side could be retired. Hemming was hit hard and had poor support.

The Buffalos won from the Providences, 7 to 2, in a game that had a very sensational finish. With bases filled and two out in the last half of the ninth and the bisons one run behind, Householder sent the ball over the left fence and won the game.

The Brocktons snatched a victory out of the Newports' grasp in a dazzling manner. With the score 3 to 2 against them and two out in the ninth, Cochnaur put the first ball pitched by Foley over the left field fence for the tieing run. In the eleventh Magoon walked and stole second. Nadeau then clinched the game with a corking drive over the fence in left center.

Todd went into the box for the Pawtuckets yesterday for the third time since last Saturday and held the Fall Rivers down to two hits in six innings, the game being called to allow the visitors to catch a train for home. Todd won the game with his hitting, driving in a run in the second and clearing the bases with a homer in the sixth, all of the bases being occupied, and two men out. Score: 6 to 3.

The New Bedfords were easy victims for the Tauntons. Mains, the new pitcher for the Tauntons, was hard for the visitors to find, his delivery being swift and sure. Wiley made an error in the second inning and was removed from the field, Day taking his place. Sechrist pitched six innings for the New Bedfords and was re-placed by Vickery, who was batted hard. Score: 14 to 7.

The work of Pitcher Todd of the Pawtucket club is something remarkable up to date, and at least two National league clubs are considering purchasing him. He has pitched 12 games this season, winning 11 of them, nine in succession. His only losing game was in New Bedford, May 14. In the last seven games 29 hits have been made off him, an average of four hits to a game.

Heavy Verdict In a Damage Suit.

Boston, June 17.—A verdict of $14,000 for the plaintiff was returned yesterday in the case of Richard McDonnell vs. John E. Lynch. The action was brought to recover $30,000 for personal injuries, and this was its second trial. The plaintiff's injuries were sustained Nov. 16, 1896, while he was employed by the defendant in the erection of a standpipe at Lawrence.

Open Holiday Race.

A south-east breeze greeted the holiday regatta of the Massachusetts Yacht club Friday, and the racing men made a gala day of it in Broad sound. Nearly forty racing craft were in line when the course numbers were run up and it made a pretty sight. Several Quincy boats were entered and made a good showing. The interets was perhaps centered in the 21-footers.

The Privateer was a winner from t he start in this class and finished a good lead. The Omeme, W. P. Barkers 21-footer, started several minute s behind her class but picked up one boat after another, was third to Arab at Winthrop and beat her on the reach home.

The Adams boys Chinook was first away in her class but was beaten by the Jilt. In the 25-footers the Beatrice was fourth in crossing at the start and held her relative position throughout.

The order at the finish was as follows:

Class B, 20 footers,—Ashumet, Elfreda, Emma C., and Heroine.

Class D, 25 footers,—Little Peter, Eleanor, Thordis, Beatrice, Redskin, Nettie, and Tanrtum.

Class L, 21 foot open,—Elsa, Tacoma, and Typhoon.

Class S, 21 foot cabin,—Privateer, Omeme, Arab III, Harriet, Princeps.

Class K, knockabouts,—Jilt, Chinook, Hazard.

Class T, 18 footers,—Duchess, Alpine, Vamoose, Circe, and Woodbine.

Class X, 15 footers,—Vitesse, Katydid, Ray, Glide and Gnome.

—The Union engine of Braintree went to the Lynn muster the seventeenth, but only played 167 feet 11 3-4 inches. The Warren of East Pepperell took first money with 208 feet, 8 inches.

A GOOD STOP.

Fire Had Good Headway When Discovered, and Threatened a Conflagration.

The alarm from Box 26 at 9.15 Thursday night followed a few minutes later by a seond alarm from the same box called out the entire department with the exception of Hose 5 at Houghs Neck. It was the most stubborn fire that Chief Packard has had to contend with since he assumed command of the department and the prompt and efficient work of the department again saved the old Court Room building owned by Henry H. Faxon from being destroyed.

The Holbrook band had just finished the last selection of its open air concert which followed the flag raising when some one called the attention of an officer to a sheet of flame that was ascending from the rear of the building. At the same time the janitor of the Y. M. C. A. rooms in closing up the rear of the building discovered fire.

Without waiting to investigate, the officer rushed to Box 26 on the Stone church and gave the alarm. Chief Packard as soon as he arrived ordered a second alarm sounded which is practically a general alarm. When the department arrived the entire rear of the building seemed one mass of flames which brightly illuminated the sky.

The fire must have been burning some time before it was discovered for the flames had worked their way from the first floor through the partition to the attic.

The fire was perhaps the hottest in the rear of the building and here is where the most of the fighting was done.

Four streams were laid from the hydrant at the corner of Granite street and the steamer which was located at the corner of Temple street added another while four more were run from the recently placed four-way hydrant near the entrance to the Hancock cemetery. Some of these were taken into the basement others up the front entrance to the Y. M. C. A. room up a ladder to the roof and four to the rear of the building There was an unusual high pressure on the water service and it was difficult to hold the pipes and many of the spectators took an unexpected bath. The thousands of gallons of water which was poured into the building had its effect and gradually the firemen were seen to be gaining on the flames At 11 o'clock it was fully under control although it was nearly midnight before the recall was sounded.

At the time of the fire there were hundreds of people in City Square and willing hands asisted the fire department and quickly transferred the property of the Y. M. C. A. to the street including a piano which was carried into Rogers Bros. store.

F. Purpira who occupied part of the basement as a fruit store removed his stock in safety only to have the larger part of it stolen by the crowd later. Nothing was removed by the other tenants.

During the fire Joseph Harris of the Central Station was in the hotest of the fire in the basement and while there received a severe blow from a pipe he was holding. This with the smoke knocked him out. He was quickly carried to City Hall where restoratives were applied and he was a little later taken to his home.

The building as stated above was owned by Henry H. Faxon. Pelos the barber and F. Purpira occupied the basement the street floor was occupied by S. K. Ames as a butter store and by G. B. Bates as a tin ware and stove store, while the second and third floors were occupied by the Y. M. C.A.

G. B. Bates loss was the heaviest as it included valuable patterns while his goods were. thoroughly wet down and rusted. His loss will possibly amount to $1000 upon which he has $4000 insurance.

S. K. Ames damage was by smoke and water and what his damage will be is not known.

Purpira the fruit man says he had $150 of fruit which owing to the petty thieving he will loose.

Pelos the barber was only damaged by smoke but his loss is practically nothing.

The Y. M. C. A. lost their bath room and some furniture stored in the attic estimated at $500 upon which there is an insurance of $1500.

The building was burned on the back and on the roof and the loss is estimated at $600 upon which there is an insurance of $5000.

The adjourning building also owned by Mr. Faxon and occupied by Miss Hubbard took fire several times and was damaged perhaps to the amount of $50.

The fire which started in a shed adjourning the rear of the building may have been caused by fireworks used early in the evening, as several rockets were known to have fallen in that locality, but probably in some other mysterious manner.

The police were early on the scene and Chief Litchfield roped off the streets and kept the crowd back.

Mayor Sears was early upon the scene and rendered valuable assistance and got a ducking besides.

Hose 2 and 4 arrived in City Square at about the same time six miutes after the alarm and Chemical 2 arrived in eleven minutes after the second alarm sounded.

Edward Gibbs of East Milton received as serious injury to his left knee. He attempted to run for an East Milton car and in doing so tripped over a rope and fell. He was taken away in an ambulance. Gibbs had previously been representing himself as a newspaper correspondent.

Commissioner Knowlton in order to aid the firemen kept the electric lights burning until 2 o'clock Friday morning.

INSIDE THE ROPES.

The new four-way hydrant in front of the Hancock cemetery was used for the first time at Thursday night's fire and it proved its usefulness. Foreman Gleason of the Water Department who was early on the scene proffered his services as hydrant man which were accepted and he took charge of this hydrant.

A well known insurance man who was a spectator of the fire and inspected the premises the following morning says no fire could have been handled better than this was.

The hydrant pressure registered 100 pounds to the square inch during the fire which gave a terrible force to the streams.

Chief Engineer Packard and four men remained on duty all night at the fire with a line of hose laid and ladders handy.

WEYMOUTH.

Little Items of Interest About Town.

Rev. F. A. Baker has established a boy's brigade in connection with his work at the Methodist church.

The membership of the Sunday School belonging to the Union church has increased from 136 to 152 during the past year. Some faithful teachers and an enterprising superintendent are increasing this number.

Ten years ago Quincy and Weymouth had about the same population, 10,570. But enterprise, taxes, or some other cause has enabled one to outstrip the other.

Rev. F. A. Baker of the East Braintree Methodist church will exchange with Rev. H. S. Snyder of the Union Congregational churchon Sunday.

Adams Academy.

The exercises in declamation for the Adams Gold Medal, with the annual award of prizes, will be held on Monday, 27th instant, at 11 A. M. in the Stone Temple. These exercises are entirely open to the public, and all friends of the school are cordially welcome.

The examination for admission to Adams Academy will be held at the school house on Hancock street on Friday the 1st of July, beginning at nine o'clock. Candidates for admission must pass an examination in reading, writing, and spelling English, in arithmetic (through interest), in modern geography, and in the history of the United States. For the latter the history of England is accepted as an equivalent.

Dr. Wm. Everett expects to sail for Europe on Thnrsday 30 instant, in the Canada from Boston, being called abroad by the illness of his brother, Hon. H. Sydney Everett. The examination for admission to Adams Academy, and all other matters relating to the school, will be in charge during his absence, of Mr. John O. Hall, Jr. 1 Merrymount road, to whom all inquiries should be addressed.

Dr. Everett expects to return early in the autumn. The second admission examination occurs 9 September, and the school will reopen 12 September.

A CARD.

The Chief Engineer of the Fire Department is pleased to acknowledge the valuable services so willingly given at the stubborn fire at the Quincy Young Men's Christian Association building on Thursday night. It was a fire which taxed the full strength of the department, and the help given in laying the lines and directing the streams was appreciated. He would return thanks not only to citizens of the town, but to some from Braintree and other adjoining towns. Prompt and efficient work prevented a conflagration and greatly reduced the loss.

Chief Engineer, Q. F. D.

FLAG RAISING.

Thousands in City Square at Exercises Thursday Evening.

With the boom of cannon, brilliant fireworks, patriotic music, and cheers another beautiful flag was flung to the breeze in City Square Thursday night. It was a most enthusiastic and successful affair throughout the early evening but unfortunately closed with a disastrous fire. An account of the fire will be found elsewhere in this issue. The flag which is a large one was suspended between the Savings bank building and a pole in front of the Y. M. C. A. building and was paid for by popular subscription much credit for its success being due to Secretary Hoehn of the Y. M. C. A. and G. A. Pelos.

Two stands gaily decorated with flag bunting were erected in front of the Y. M. C. A. building one of which was used by the speakers and the other by the Holbrook band. It was planned to have the raising at 7 o'clock but this was delayed somewhat by the band which was late in arriving. The exercises were brief owing to several of the speakers being unable to be present.

Secretary Hoehn presided and in opening the festivities said he was glad to see so many present to show their patriotism.

Rev. E. N. Hardy was then introduced who said it was fitting that the good old town of Quincy should unfurl a flag and do honor to our country and to the ashes of two of her noted sons.

We know no sectarianism for we are one glorious Christian country. We are all free one great and grand people whose flag stands for something. People the world over look to this flag standing as it does for a government by the people of the people and for the people. We are proud of it because it gives as freedom and freed four million slaves. We pray God it may give freedom and independence to Cuba.

Mayor Sears spoke briefly as follows:

He said that every generation since the institution of our government had had at least one opportunity of learning and teaching patriotism, and referred to the past wars as illustrating the sentiments of patriotism treasured by the people. After mentioning some of the striking deeds of heroism during the present war he said that although war might be held, it had some noble features. He closed by asserting that wherever the flag might be found, either at war or in times of peace, it always stood for the undying sentiments uttered by Webster "Liberty and Union—now and forever—one and inseparable."

Secretary Hoehn then read an original poem by Rev. E. W. Preble which was followed by brief remarks by George H. Brown and G. A. Pelos.

The halyard connected with the flag was then placed in the hands of Master Winslow Sears, the five-year-old son of Mayor Sears, and the flag was gracefully unfurled and floated to the breeze. In the folds of the flag there were five hundred small flags and for a few minutes there was a scramble among the boys for them.

The speeches were full of pariotism and were punctuated with the boom of cannon and cheers which prevented there being heard a great distance.

After the flag was unfurled Master Sears was presented with a handsome bouquet by Mr. Pelos and there was a display of fireworks in which rockets, roman candles and red fire were used in abundance.

The Holbrook band then gave a concert which was listened to by a large crowd but hardly had it finished before it was discovered that the Y. M. C. A. building was on fire.

Should Make a Protest.

Editors of Daily Ledger:

The residents of certain sections of this city should make a strong protest against the service accorded them by the officials of the Quincy & Boston Street Railway on holidays. Not only does the company wholly disregard its published timetable without previous notice, but it completely ignores the rights and privileges of our citizens in its efforts to please and accommodate out-of-town people who patronize Nantasket and other like places. This fact was painfully evident on Friday, and caused inconvenience and annoyance to a large number of people who were not aware of the company's system (?) of running cars.

Persons at Wollaston desiring to take a car for Quincy or other places to the south were unable to do so as all cars on that line were run in the direction of Neponset, while parties at Norfolk Downs and Wollaston Park, wishing to take a car for Boston were obliged to walk up to the Heights or first go to Quincy, as the cars on that line were all run in one direction. Our citizens have a right to expect better service than this, and should insist upon having it. A PATRON.

THE DAILY EVENTS.

The Little Items About the City Yesterday and Today.

At the request of many friends a memorial service for the late Sigourney Butler will be held in Christ church, Sunday morning, June 19. The rector will make an address.

There was a great kick at Wollaston on the 17th because the Quincy & Boston run but few cars in the afternoon from Neponset to Quincy via the Wollaston loop.

There was a large attendance at the flag raising at Brewer's corner, Thursday night. Music was furnished by the West Quincy band and ice cream and cake were served.

A bath house at Rufe's Hummock, Wollaston beach, was destroyed by fire on Wednesday afternoon. It was the property of the National Sailors' Home and was valued at about $200.

Mr. Robert E. Jones, the well known Wollaston bicyclist, went over to the Charles River Park yesterday afternoon and captured the one-mile handicap for amateurs. The prize was a diamond stud valued at $25.

A six year old son of Edwin A. Allard of Newbury avenue wandered away to the Wollastoon Golf links Friday afternoon, and when he attempted to go home he got lost. A search was instituted and he was found about 9 o'oclock on the end of the Yacht club float at Norfolk Downs, with his feet hanging in the water How he got there he did not know, having become separated from his companions.

The Tubular Rivet & Stud A. A. nine played two games on the Seventeenth, and unfortunately lost both. At Merrymount Park in the morning the score was 12 to 6 in favor of the Dorchesters. At Dorchester Lower Mills in the afternoon they succeeded in skunking their rivals up to the seventh innings, when the Dorcesters made 15 runs and won the game 15 to 3. The Dorchesters made more hits and fewer errors in each game.

CLARA LOU WINS.

Sea Gull Gets a Leg for the Second Prize.

The first Burgess prize cup race for the season of '98 given by the Wollaston Yacht club was sailed off the club house Wollaston beach the Seventeenth. When the gun was given at 9.45 for the second class to start it was almost a dead calm. The Clara Lou crossed thirty seconds after the gun, owing to Capt Coombs' fine manouvering. The Medora followed about two minutes later, but the Commodore who was a little to the windward seemed to run into a bald spot and remained there nearly fifteen minutes.

In the meantime the third class got away, the Commodore being the last to cross the line. This ill luck which befell the Burgess probably lost her the race, for she made an actual gain of four minutes and thirty-three seconds.

In the third class the Sea Gull surprised the knowing ones by winning over such boats as the Thelma, Muriel and Gwendoline, who did not get a place. The little Splash made a plucky race and finished second, but not having a club member on board she lost to the Muriel.

The wind was very light until the last part of the race when it steadied down to a moderate easterly breeze. The race was sailed under the '97 rules and the result gives the Clara Lou one leg for the first prize and the Sea Gull a leg for the second prize. Appended is the official score:

NO. 32.

AN ORDINANCE

Concerning Telegraph, Telephone and Other Electric Wires.

CITY OF QUINCY.

Be it Ordained by the City Council of Quincy as follows:

SECTION 1. The City Council shall have the exclusive power to license the erection and maintenance of telegraph, telephone and other electric lines of wires, and the construction and maintenance of aerial and underground conduits, cables and lines by telegraph and telephone companies, or o her companies or by individuals within the City of Quincy. Whenever application is made for a location for such lines, it shall, before granting the same, first determine the streets through which said lines shall run, and shall then require the company or person so applying to furnish a plan of the streets so designated therefor, upon a scale of not less than 150 nor more than 200 feet to the inch, and the City Council shall then determine and specify on said plan where each post may be located, and shall thereupon issue to the party applying therefor a certificate specifically enumerating the streets where the lines may be run, and the location of each post thereon as exhibited on said plan, the kind of post, the height at which all wires must be placed, and the dimensions and location of the underground conduit, if said lines or any part thereof shall be laid underground, and the location of the manholes and distributing poles.

Said plan and a copy of said certificate shall be filed in the office of the City Clerk, and the construction of the line shall conform thereto in every particular, and any part or man hole placed otherwise than as herein designated shall be forthwith removed. Any license granted hereunder shall be subject to the right of the City, free of charge, to place its fire alarm telegraph or other electric lines upon the posts or through the conduit so licensed to be maintained; and to the right of the City to license the location of lines by any other person or company upon said poles, upon payment to the owner thereof of a reasonable compensation, to be determined by the parties, and they failing to agree, it shall be determined by the Mayor. Whenever a location is granted upon posts already erected, a plan of the streets so traversed need not be required. The City Council when granting a license under this ordinance may at the time of granting the same, in addition to the requirements and conditions set forth herein, impose other and such additional conditions and requirements as it may deem proper.

SECTION 2. Companies or persons so licensed shall lay underground their lines, wires, cables and conduits, and construct, maintain, relocate, remove, repair and alter the same and make necessary manholes and maintain suitable distributing poles, in manner, shape, size and material according to the directions of the City Council, and within such time as may be designated by that body, in any street or streets wherein said company or person maintains, or desires to maintain electric cables or lines of wire to the number of 100 or more, whenever said Council shall deem it proper that said cables or lines of wires should be placed underground, and shall notify such individual or corporation so to place them.

SECTION 3. Any company or person licensed as aforesaid shall gather and place in aerial cables, lines and wires to the number of fifty or more in any street or streets, according to the direction of the City Council, and within such time, in such manner, and at such height, as may be designated by said Council whenever that body shall deem it proper to order such to be done.

SECTION 4. Every line of wire along and across streets, ways, or other public places, shall be placed underground or at a height not less than twenty feet from the ground, except under bridges, upon suitable poles, or from building to building, except that such electrical conductors and fixtures as may be required in the construction, maintenance and operation of electrical railways may be not less than eighteen feet from the ground.

Every such line of wire shall be so constructed, placed and maintained as not to interfere with any other line, nor with the operation of the fire alarm telegraph, and all unused lines of wire shall be forthwith removed. Except for street purposes, no more than one line of posts or one conduit shall be maintained in any street; and no tree upon any street or other public place shall be cut or trimmed to make room for such wires without the con-ent of the Commissioner of Public Works.

SECTION 5. Every employee, official or agent in the employ of any telegraph, telephone or electric company, who desires access to any premises within this City, upon business of the company, appertaining to the repairing or laying of lines over, through or along said premises, shall be furnished by the company with a certificate of authority to act therefor, and shall not enter upon said premises without first exhibiting such certificate to the owner or occupant thereof, and receiving permission to so enter.

SECTION 6. The posts shall be kept well painted, of a uniform color to the satisfaction of the Commissioner of Public Works; and the name of the company placing the same shall be distinctly printed or imprinted on the cross-bar used and occupied by said company on said posts; and the location of any post, when once erected shall not be changed without the permission of the Commissioner of Public Works.

SECTION 7. The City shall have the exclusive use of the upper cross-bar, and the top of each post free of cost, for the purpose of placing wires thereon; said cross-bar shall be a four-pin cross-bar of not less than five feet in length, and shall be placed at not less than three feet from the cross bar next to it.

SECTION 8. No street, way or bridge shall be torn up or disturbed for the purpose of laying, repairing, changing or removing lines, wires or conduits, or erecting, altering or removing posts, poles or other fixtures used for carrying electric lines or wires, without a permit first obtained from the City Council, indicating the time, manner and place of disturbance, with the conditions under which such is permitted. But no form of permit shall be necessary to sanction the necessary temporary removal of covers to manholes for the purpose of removing or repairing lines, wires and cables. Whenever any opening or disturbance is made in any street, way or bridge, for the purpose aforesaid, or for any repairs, such street, way or bridge shall be promptly restored by the persons or corporations owning or operating the lines or wires, and making said opening or disturbance, to a good condition, satisfactory to the Commissioner of Public Works, and shall be kept and maintained in such condition by said persons or corporations for two years thereafter; and, if not immediately restored, or kept and maintained, the same may be done by the City at the expense of said persons or corporations without previous notice of the intention so to do.

SECTION 9. No person or company in laying, repairing or removing its wires or conduits shall disturb or in any way interfere with any gas or water pipes, or sewers or pipes connected therewith.

SECTION 10. Whenever the City shall construct, enlarge, relocate, repair or alter the streets, sewers, water-pipes or other public works, in streets, ways and bridges where conduits and wires are laid, which, in the opinion of the City Council, require the removal or changing the location of said conduits and the fixtures appertaining thereto, or the repairing thereof, said removing, changing and repairing shall be done without delay at the expense of the persons or corporations owning or operating the same.

SECTION 11. Whenever underground conduits have once been laid in the streets and ways of the City, they shall not be removed, relocated or changed without permission from the City Council.

SECTION 12. All corporations, companies and individuals licensed to erect poles and fixtures under the provisions of this ordinance shall first, before proceedure, give to the City an agreement in writing satisfactory to the Mayor saving harmless said City against any and all claims for damages, costs, expenses or compensation for, or on account of, or in any way growing out of, the erection, maintenance or use of said poles on said streets, or any act or omission of said corporation, companies or individuals, their agents or servants, or in any manner arising from the rights or privileges granted them by the City.

SECTION 13. No permits shall be granted or if granted shall be valid to disturb the surface of the streets for any of the purposes aforesaid, until the corporation, person or company petitioning therefor has executed an agreement, in a form satisfactory to and to be approved by the Mayor, providing:—

First, that in every underground conduit constructed by any such corporation, person or company sufficient and necessary space shall be reserved free of expense for the use of the fire, police and other signal wires belonging to the City and used exclusively for municipal purposes, and that the fire and police departments by their elecrical superintendents and other proper servants shall be allowed access to said conduit at all times, and that said departments shall be allowed facilities and privileges in putting in or taking out wires equal in all respects to those of such corporation, person or company.

Second, that said corporation, company or person will indemnify and save harmless the City against all claims, damages, costs and expenses whatsoever to which the City may be subjected in consequence of the acts or neglect of said company, corporation or person or either of their agents, officers or servants, and in any manner arising from the rights and privileges granted them by the City.

SECTION 14. In addition to the aforesaid agreement, said company, corporation and person shall, before a street is disturbed for the laying of wires or conduits by them or either of them, execute a bond, with satisfactory security in a penal sum of not less than ten thousand dollars, and of form satisfactory to, and to be approved by, the Mayor, conditioned to indemnify and save harmless the City against all damages, costs, expenses and losses whatsoever to which it may be subjected in consequence of the acts or neglects of said company, corporation or person or either of their agents, officers or servants, and in any manner arising from, or growing out of the use and transmission of electricity, the privileges permitted by the City, and the construction, maintenance, operation and use of said lines, wires, cables, conduits, posts, poles and all structures, constructions, fixtures and apparatus erected or used by them or either of them, and also to fulfill all their agreements with the City, all the orders conditions and obligations imposed by the City Council, and all obligations and duties required by law, and this ordinance and every other ordinance of said City, and all additions and amendments thereto. A new bond of like import, and with new surety, may at any time be required by the City, which new bond shall be a strengthening bond, unless the surety or former bond is expressly released from further liability by vote of the City Council.

SECTION 15. The Chief Engineer of the Fire Department shall have the supervision of all telegraph, telephone and other electric lines of wires within the City, and shall see that all laws and ordinances in relation thereto are enforced.

SECTION 16. Whoever violates any of the provisions of this ordinance shall forfeit and pay a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for each offence.

Members of General Augusti's Family Held as Hostages.

London, June 18.—The Hong Kong correspondent of The Daily Mail says: "The archbishop of Manila, Mgr. Nozaleda, announces that he has had a communication from God, who has promised him that the 'Yankee pigs' will be driven out of the island and that 'Spain will be triumphant in the end.'

"There is an idea in Manila that the Germans have something up their sleeve. On this point my correspondent writes me as follows: 'The Germans are disposed to be meddlesome here. Germans and Spaniards are very chummy, entertaining one another at dinner parties and walking arm in arm everywhere. There is no question about how the British feel. They are watching the Germans closely.'"

Special dispatches from Hong Kong, confirming the dispatches of the Associated Press from Manila, add the rumor that Captain General Augusti's wife and family are held as hostages at Cavite. From the same source comes the report that Tondo, capital of the province of Tondo, on the Pasig river, nearly opposite Manila, has been the scene of a great fire presumably from the igniting of petroleum works there.

It appears that when the German cruiser Kaiserin Augusta entered Manila bay she took the unusual course of saluting the Spanish flag. This caused much comment.

Another rumor is that Captain General Augusti has resigned because of a disagreement with the archbishop of Manila.

Word From Augusti.

Madrid, June 18.—The following dispatch from Manila, signed by Captain General Augusti and dated June 13, is published officially: "The grave situation set forth in my dispatch of June 8 continues. The troops are fighting on the line of blockhouses which stops the enemy's advance. The enemy has been strengthened by desertions of the native troops, which diminish our means of resistance and may compel me to take refuge within the walled city. Communication with the provinces is still cut, and I do not know whether the detachments there will be able to hold out against a lack of resources. I hope to receive assistance from the peninsula before our means of defense are exhausted."

One of the Spanish ministers says: "Aguinaldo, after breaking faith with the Spaniards, induced the uprising in aid of the Americans by swearing the latter only came to liberate the Philippine islands and would support a native republic; but when the natives see through the trickery and Spanish warships with reinforcements appear, there will be a reaction in favor of Spain, because the natives, although fickle, are still influenced by the friars, who are only hated by the members of the secret societies and not by the mass of the natives. If Manila is obliged to capitulate the seat of government will be transferred to the Visayas islands, General Augusti capitulating as commander of Manila and not as governor general of the Philippine islands." The minister also denied that the Spanish government had any intention of ceding territory to Germany in exchange for her undefined assistance.

RELIEVING HAVANA.

Evidence of the Ineffectiveness of the Present Blockade.

Washington, June 18.—Apprehension is felt by officials that, as a result of the weakening of the blockading squadron, success may attend the operations of the blockade runners. It is known in official circles that Havana has been receiving food stuffs, and it is regarded as quite probable that these supplies were brought by blockade runners, who have used neighboring West Indian islands as a base of operations, just as Nassau was used during the civil war.

It is not meant that the blockade is ineffective. On the contrary, the officials assert that the United States, in accordance with the principles of international law, has been patrolling the district declared in the president's proclamation as in a state of blockade with a force "rendering access to the prohibited places manifestly difficult and dangerous." To be effective, officials declare that a blockade need not be perfect.

It is not enough to make it effective, they say, that on some particularly stormy night a blockade runner slid through the blockading squadron. Nor is it enough that, through some exceptional and rare negligence of the officers of one of the blockading vessels, a blockade runner was allowed to pass when perfect vigilance could have arrested him. To be ineffective, they say that blockade runners must get through because of great laxity or inefficiency and they assert that this is not the case with the blockade now maintained.

It developed yesterday that 18 men-of-war had been withdrawn from the blockading squadron to form the convoying squadron under the command of Captain H. C. Taylor, commanding the battleship Indiana. Before the withdrawal of these ships the blockading squadron had been reduced by the departure of Rear Admiral Sampson, with the New Yor, Oregon, Mayflower, Porter and several other vessels. The consequence is that a small force has been distributed over a considerable stretch of territory, and while the vigilance of the officers of the ships has been redoubled, it is appreciated in official circles that their task is much more difficult than it was when the districts to which they were assigned for patrol duty were of less area.

THE NEW CRUISER, NEWARK.

It is the purpose of the department to strengthen the blockade as promptly as possible. The cruiser Newark has received orders to proceed to Key West as the flagship of the blockading squadron, and as soon as the troopships have reached Santiago de Cuba the convoys will be returned to the former stations.

At last something is to be done to relieve the starving people of Cuba. It will not be long before the ships of peace will turn their prows towards Cuba with long delayed supplies.

Owing to the difficulty in procuring transports naval vessels will probably carry the supplies, as there are a large number of ships which can be utilized in this way. A base of supplies will be seized on the northern coast of Cuba, probably in the eastern part of Pinar del Rio, along the coast of the Habana province or on the Matanzas coast. In the early discussions of this subject the naval force was expected to prepare a landing place, and it was understood that the most acceptable locality was in the vicinity of the town of Matanzas, where troops could be easily landed and where the Spanish fortifications were not so formidable as to subject the American ships or troops to much danger.

The navy department officials were not greatly disturbed by the authentic advices received of the departure of the Spanish fleet from Cadiz. The statement that the enemy was proceeding eastward with the evident intention of going to Manila was regarded with suspicion, mainly because such a trip involved a journey of 10,000 miles and would bring the vessels of the enemy before Admiral Dewey with all the deficiencies and weaknesses of a long journey.

The other report that the vessels had divided, a part going eastward and the other part proceeding westward, was rejected as equally improbable. It was considered as more likely that these vessels had as their immediate destination the Canary islands, whence they could proceed to Porto Rico. The naval war board gave the subject a good deal of consideration yesterday.

Powell Made an Ensign.

Washington, June 18.—The secretary of the navy has decided on the method of recognizing the services of Naval Cadet Joseph W. Powell, who held a steam launch under the bluffs at the entrance to Santiago harbor under the continuous fire of the Spanish batteries on both shores while searching for the crew of the Merrimac. The papers already have been made out advancing Powell one year to the rank of ensign and three numbers in that list. Powell's promotion will be immediately put in the hands of the president, who will forward it to congress simultaneously with that of Naval Constructor Hobson, the hero of the Merrimac. Powell is from Oswego, N. Y.

May Go to Fernandina.

Washington, June 18.—The belief is very strong at Camp Alger that several regiments are to be moved very soon, probably to Fernandina. It is said that the following regiments will be transferred: Sixth Illinois, Sixth Massachusetts, Eighth Ohio, Third and Sixty-fifth New York, First Rhode Island, Ninth Massachusetts and Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth Michigan. All these regiments are well equipped and have been ordered to secure a full supply of rations.

The Massachusetts regiments celebrated the battle of Bunker Hill with athletic games, followed by a dinner and fireworks. Representative Fitzgerald of Massachusetts interested himself in the celebration and provided 2000 pounds of chicken and other viands in proportion.

Wants to Abdicate.

Madrid, June 18.—News concerning the abdication of the queen regent of Spain, which was given in Paris without details, was very half-heartedly denied in the Madrid press yesterday. The queen regent, much depressed by the sad situation of the country and the Spanish people's lack of sympathy for her, made up her mind a fortnight ago to renounce her rights and title as regent in favor of Isabella, sister of King Alfonso XII. This princess, who is Spanish in heart and mind, is much beloved throughout the kingdom. The queen regent thought that by yielding the regency to her she would disarm the adversaries of the existing regime and rally all the sympathies around the little king.

A ministerial council was held, after which all the members visited the queen regent to beg her to give up the scheme for the present. They told her that under the present circumstances abdication would seem like flight, and would be very badly construed by the country. Premier Sagasta was so persuasive that he obtained the following reply from the queen regent: "I admit you are right, sir, but I do not altogether give up my plan; I only postpone it."

Over Half For Recruiting.

Washington, June 18.—Of the 75,000 men required under the president's second call 43,000 will be needed to recruit the volunteer regiments up to the maximum strength. To obtain these recruits details from each regiment are now in the states from which they come. The remaining 32,000 men will be organized into companies, battalions and regiments as the exigencies of the call require, each state meeting the requirements of the second as it met those of the first call. Under the second call the various states and territories will furnish as organizations 22 regiments of infantry, six regiments and three companies of infantry in unattached organizations, 14 light batteries and three heavy batteries.

New organizations will be apportioned among the New England states as follows: Connecticut, one regiment infantry; Maine, three heavy batteries; Massachusetts, one regiment infantry; Rhode Island, two batteries light artillery; New Hampshire and Vermont, having under the first call furnished in excess of their quota, will not be called upon to furnish any new organizations under the second call.

Ready to Fall.

London, June 18.—A Madrid correspondent says: "An official dispatch from Manila asserts that the insurgents have closed around the town and are now attacking the walled part, where the defenders are still holding out. The insurgents have cut the water supply, but the city has remaining wells available. Fighting is going on all along the sea front; but the Americans are taking no part in the attack."

BUSINESS SITUATION.

Activity In Nearly All Lines of Manufacturing Except Textiles.

New York, June 18.—Unprecedented foreign trade totals, involving heavily increased shipments of breadstuffs, provisions, raw cotton and manufactured products; flattering crop prospects, pointing to very large yields of wheat and most other cereals, as well as cotton; profitable railway operations, as reflected in relatively heavier gains in net than in gross receipts; activity in nearly all lines of manufacturing except some textile branches; prices for most staples showing heavy advances over the preceding year; bank clearings exceeding all previous records at this date; a volume of new demand limited in the east and south to mid-summer dullness, but in the west and northwest comparing favorably with records of previous years, and a low rate of business mortality, are all features of the general business situation at the present time, as described by Bradstreet. The collapse of Leiter's deal in wheat has been followed by a quieter feeling in cereal markets, but export demand has improved and more is doing by flour millers.

Cotton goods, if anything, are slightly improved, but raw wool is still under restricted demand, because manufacturers find new business slow. The price situation for the week reflects steadiness, the only important decreases being in southern pigiron, wheat and flour, while hides are higher at the west, a number of metals have been advanced, and oats, corn, lard and cotton note fractional advances. Print cloths, Bessemer pigiron and most productions of steel are firm, as are also wool, pork, coffee and sugar.

Gross railway earnings of 85 systems aggregate $58,940,410 for April, with net of $16,630,000, a gain of more than 19 percent in net on an increase in gross of slightly in excess of 13 per cent.

The failures for the week number only 207; 14 smaller than one week ago, 19 fewer than in the corresponding week of 1897; 58 smaller than in this week in 1896; 24 smaller than in 1895, and only 12 larger than in this week of 1894, when restriction of credits and dull business was most marked.

With only 11 months of the fiscal year elapsed, the export trade of this country is $85,000,000 in excess of all previous records for complete years, and the outlook is that the excess for the whole year will reach in the neighborhood of $185,000,000; while our exports seem likely to exceed our imports by $600,000,000. Our gold imports have already equalled the "record" imports of 1881, and will undoubtedly surpass even that great total, probably exceeding $100,000,000. While our wheat exports this year have been mainly responsible for the large excess in trade over recently preceding years, it is unlikely that wheat and flour exports as a whole will equal either in value or in quantity the shipments of 1892, and will not exceed in value those of 1880. Because of heavier demands for corn, oats and the other low priced cereals, breadstuffs exports, as a whole, will considerably exceed $300,000,000 in value, thus surpassing 1892's great total, and exports of all agricultural products will prove to be the heaviest ever known.

Bank clearings in the United States show a slight decrease from last week, but are still from $100,000,000 to $200,000,000 larger than the totals in corresponding weeks in any previous year, aggregating for the week just ended $1,270,000, 4 percent smaller than last week, but 20 per cent larger than last year.

Struck by an Engine.

Salem, Mass., June 18.—David G. Degruchy, of the firm of Johnson & Degruchy, was almost instantly killed at Humphrey's pond, Lynnfield, by a train. He went to the summer resort with a bicycle party, and after the arrival started out for a short trip. While crossing the tracks he was struck by the train. It is claimed there was no flagman at the crossing. He was about 27 years of age.

Talking it Over.

When a party of middle aged women get together alone, a common theme of conversation is their physical ailments. It would be better if these discussions of the ailments peculiar to women took place twenty years earlier in life. If a little of the prudery of modern society were banished, so that young women talked these subjects over among themselves, there would be less suffering among women in middle life.

Good health is the best endowment that a human being can have. Good general health among women is largely dependent upon good local health in a womanly way. Through ignorance and neglect it has become such an ordinary, common-place thing for women to suffer from weakness and disease of the delicate and important feminine organism, that many women have come to look upon these troubles as an unavoidable inheritance. This is a mistake. All troubles of this nature may be cured in the privacy of the home, without undergoing the obnoxious "examinations" and "local treatment" insisted upon by the average physician. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription gives health, elastic strength and vitality to the sensitive organs concerned. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration and frees from pain. It tones the nerves and builds up the nerve centers. It makes a woman healthy and strong, and thus prepares her for healthy wifehood, capable motherhood and a safe transition at the change of life.

"I want to testify to the great benefit derived from using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Mrs. H. Mason, of Strykersville, Wyoming Co., N. Y. "I commenced using it about three months before confinement. With my former confinement I suffered greatly, while this one was comparatively easy, owing to the use of the 'Favorite Prescription.'"

"CORKING THE BOTTLE"—HOBSON BLOWING UP THE "MERRIMAC," SANTIAGO, JUNE 3D.
FROM HARPER'S WEEKLY. AFTER A DRAWING BY T. DE THULSTRUP.
Reproduced from Harper's Weekly. By Permission. Copyright, 1898, by Harper & Brothers.

Hobson's memorable feat in Santiago Harbor has been heralded the world over as an act of cool and desperate bravery to be always distinguished in the chronicles of galantry. It was an admirable triumph of thoughtful calculation, reckless audacity, and complete success, and adds another name to the illustrious list of American naval heroes.

The details of the plan and of its execution are now well known. To navigate the Merrimac over the enemy's mines and under the furious fire of the Spanish batteries, to anchor her at the exact point in the narrow channel where her hulk would be an effective obstruction, and to sink her by an internal explosion—these were the perilous problems which presented themselves to the young officer. Their solution seemed impossible without certain death, but hundreds of eager volunteers from all the ships of the fleet stood ready to make the fearful trial. The glorious achievement of the chosen few is now history.

We reproduce today from the pages of Harper's Weekly a picture by Thulstrup of the sinking of the collier After mooring the Merrimac in midchannel, Hobson and his men shoved off on a raft, dragging after them the contact wires connected with the torpedoes inside the ship. The Spaniards on the shore, thinking an attempt was under way to force an entrance into the harbor, turned every gun of their powerful shore batteries upon the Americans, and the resulting storm of shot and shell was so terrific that Hobson abandoned all idea of paddling his raft back to our fleet, but made for the Spanish flag-ship instead, and gave himself up. His escape from death was nothing short of miraculous, and, although his exploit effectually crippled all further offensive operations of the Spanish fleet, he was greeted with cheers by the Spanish sailors and personally congratulated by Admiral Cervera on his splendid bravery.

The combination of a deliberate, resourceful mind and dashing, bull-dog courage is a hard one to beat, and the whole world today unites in applauding Hobson's exhibition of what American brains can do when backed by true American grit.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning June 19. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—True friendship.—Prov. xviii, 24; Mark v, 15-19; John xv, 12-15.

Nothing is more desirable in this life than true friends, those who will comfort us in the hour of trouble, assist us in the hour of need, stand by us in the hour of trial, look charitably upon our weaknesses and frailties and appreciate that which is best and truest in us.

Some characteristics of true friendship are suggested by the topical references.

1. True friendship is born of true friendliness. "A man that hath friends must show himself friendly" (Prov. xviii, 24). Love begets love, kindness begets kindness and friendship begets friendship. It is impossible to have friends and not be friendly. If we feel lonely sometimes and the need of fellowship and association with others and have it not and wonder why others have such a host of friends, let us examine our own lives and see if we have not been unfriendly ourselves.

2. True friendship manifests itself in the hour of need. "A friend in need is a friend indeed." "There is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother," says the wise man. We apply these words to Christ. Solomon did not. He had learned from experience perhaps, or from observation, that men had sometimes found friends who were more constant and more faithful than brothers. This is a common human experience. In the darkest hours of life, in the hours of greatest need, friends not bound to us by the ties of blood are often more faithful to us than those who are. The supreme test of friendship is the hour of need, and it has not been infrequent that friendship has often stood the test of need better than relationship. In the hour of need we should be true and constant to both brother and friend. Our sympathy and our aid should be at the call of all who have either claim upon us. The greatest need of our friends is their spiritual need. If we have received healing for our sins in Christ and our friends have not, we should tell them of the Christ who is able to heal all men. Christ said to the man out of whom He had cast a devil, "Go home to thy friends, and tell them how great things the Lord hath done for thee and hath had compassion on thee." So we should tell our friends what Christ has done for us, that they may be led to desire His friendship.

3. The truest friendship is divine friendship—the friendship of Christ. He is indeed the "friend that sticketh closer than a brother." He has stood His own test of ideal friendship that a man lay down his life for his friends. Christ as a friend has power to help us in time of need. He understands us as no one else does or can, and is therefore able to help us as no one else. He never will disappoint us. He is always near and ready to help us. His friendship is intelligent, disinterested and constant. Can we do without it? To have it we must be His friends, and to be His friends we must obey Him. "Ye are My friends if ye do whatsoever I command you." Will you do it?

Bible Readings.—Deut. xiii, 6-8; I Sam. xviii, 1; II Sam. i, 25-27; II Chron. xx, 7; Prov. vi, 1-3; xvii, 17; xxii, 24; xxv, 19; xxvii, 6, 9, 17; Mic. vii, 5; Zech. xiii, 6; Luke xii, 4; Jas. ii, 23; iv, 1-4; I John ii, 15-17.

A Cure For Negligence.

When tempted to stay away from the house of God, just ask yourself the question, "Suppose all the members did as I feel like doing—what then?" An empty church, of course. When tempted to cut down your church dues, just ask, "Suppose all members began cutting—what then?" An empty treasury, of course. When tempted to complain because others do not run the church according to your notion, just ask, "Suppose others kept aloof and grumbled as I do—what then?" A tumble down church, of course, ready to pass into the hands of the receiver. If there are no such churches, it is because not enough members yield to such temptations.—Lutheran.

The Things That Make For Peace.

The Bible has a great deal to say in commendation of peace, but at the same time strongly condemns those who cry peace, peace, when there is no peace, and declares with vehement emphasis that there is no peace to the wicked. It discriminates between a true and a false peace, approving the one and condemning the other. We sometimes hear men say "Let us have peace" while they do the things that render real peace impossible. True peace must have its foundation in righteousness.—Presbyterian Messenger.

The Mystery of Mysteries.

We live in a world of mysteries. We cannot understand the simplest forces of nature. We speculate and theorize and set forth our beliefs, and, after all, they are but beliefs. Of a surety we know but little or next to nothing. When we ascend into the realm of spirit, the mysteries grow and deepen. Into whatever field we carry our investigations we are constantly reminded that even what we do see "we see as through a glass darkly," and cannot fully understand.—Christian Work.

His Love.

As love comes from heaven so it must feed on heavenly bread. It cannot exist in the wilderness unless it be fed by manna from on high. Love must feed on love. The very soul and life of our love to God is His love to us.—Episcopal Recorder.

A Debatable Point.

Agnostics and so called liberals are, in our experience, a thousand times more intolerant than the conservatives of any religious faith.—Jewish Voice.

The World Is Blind.

Put out a fool's eyes, and he will say that the world is blind.—Christian Instructor.

International Misunderstanding.

Tourist (to stranger)—Hoot, mon! Stranger—Vot you dink I vos—a owl?—New York World.

FRUIT-FLOWERS

AQUATIC PLANTS.

A List of Desirable and Inexpensive Varieties For Tub Culture.

"Amateurs are not infrequently confronted with a perplexing problem regarding a selection of the most suitable and desirable plants for different purposes. As the flower garden is not complete without some aquatic plants and as it is becoming a universal desire to grow a few, if only in tubs, for an experiment, what to grow is more and more a difficult task to determine. If no other place can be accorded them, then try some in tubs. All are not adapted to this mode of culture, and some of the best must necessarily be excluded from some lists as being high priced," says American Gardening in preface to the following list of varieties for a general collection, the selection being suitable for growing in tubs, giving a varied and interesting collection, and having the advantage of being procurable at low figures:

Nymphæa odorata rosea, pink, two plants for each tub; N. zanzibarensis rosea, pink, one plant for tub; N. chromatella, yellow, one plant for tub; N. sulphurea, yellow, two plants for tub; N. candidissima, white, one plant for tub; N. odorata minor, white, three plants for tub; N. zanzibarensis azurea, blue, one plant for tub.

Papyrus ansiquorum, center plants, two; Limnocharis humboldti (water poppy), six; eight plants to tub.

Acorus japonicus variegatus, center plants, two; Myriophyllum proserpinacoides (parrot's feather), six; eight plants to tub.

Limnocharis plumieri, center plant, one; Limnanthemum indicum (water snowflake), six; seven plants to tub.

Leading Strawberries.

New varieties superior to the old are constantly being introduced and growers everywhere are on the lookout to secure the most profitable varieties. What we want is a berry which combines the good points of all, with none of their defects. We have made the greatest advance the last three years that has been made for a quarter of a century. There are today three varieties that rank first—namely, the Clyde, Glen Mary and Sample. A rather singular coincidence is that these berries originated one in the west, another in the east and one in the middle states.

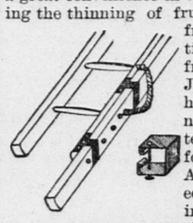
Clyde.—This is the best early variety ever offered the American people.

Glen Mary.—This is a larger berry, ripens later and on account of its size is equally as profitable.

Sample.—This is the latest variety in existence. Two-thirds of its crop ripens after July 1. It is equal to the Clyde in productiveness and the berries are as large as the Glen Mary, says a correspondent of Farm, Field and Fireside.

An Orchard Convenience.

A ladder that can be used on a side hill or any uneven ground will be found a great convenience in the orchard during the thinning of fruit as well as at fruit picking time. The cut from The Farm Journal shows how to make a new one or to alter the old one for such work. All that is needed is a pair of iron clamps like that shown on the right side of the cut, to hold the sliding foot or extension, and a bolt fastened to a rope or chain, to go through the holes bored at proper distances apart through the extension and permanent ladder rail. The clamps are bolted to the rail.



A LADDER FOR UNEVEN GROUND.

Support For Berry Bushes.

Blackberries do not really need support when it is possible to let them have all the space they need, but in a restricted area such as a garden we have to tie them up to keep them neat and within reasonable bounds. This is done after all the old fruiting canes are pruned out. And for raspberries an American Gardening correspondent concludes that wires at two and four feet from the ground strained on neat square posts are the best means of support and the best way to lay out the canes. When stakes are used to each stool or put in between each two it often gives good satisfaction, but it is an eternal task keeping the stakes renewed, and they usually break down when the crop is in full bearing.

Diseases of the Pear.

The pear is often attacked by leaf blight, for which one or two applications of bordeaux mixture in July and August will prove effectual. For the pear blight the injured portions should be cut off several inches below where the disease appears. The pruning knife and saw should be dipped in some disinfecting solution, such as corrosive sublimate, before it is used on other trees. This is also a good plan when pruning near trees at any time.

Flower and Fruit Notes.

For currant and gooseberry worms powdered hellebore dusted on the leaves is still the accepted and effective remedy.

The Smooth Cayenne is a favorite among growers of fine varieties of pineapple in Florida.

If you are growing fruit in a small way, cultivate and study to please your home market.

The dense clusters of the Crimson Rambler rose are very attractive, but its absence of perfume is to be regretted.

A few drops of carbolic acid in a basin of water make a death bath for rose bugs, which should be picked or shaken from the bushes every morning.

Give the Children a Drink

called Grain-O. It is a delicious, appeuzing nourishing food drink to take the place of coffee Sold by all grocers and liked by all who have used it because when properly prepared it tastelike the finest coffee, but is free from all its injurious properties. Grain-O aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. It is not a stimulent but a health builder, and children, as well as adults, can drink it with great benefit. Costs about one-fourth as much as coffee. 15 and 25c

Rev. William W. Dornan has the sympathy of the parish and friends, his wife dying yesterday, after a long illness, of consumption. Mrs. Dorman was a patient sufferer and was cheerfull and helpful to the end. So many Quincy ministers have recently lost dear ones there must be a stronger feeling of brotherly love among them than ever before.

Mrs. Charles N. Ditson and Mrs. William H. Ditson went to Fall River last Tuesday to be present at the marriage of Mr. William H. Ditson's youngest sister to Mr. W. O. Kingman of Taunton. Miss Jubb was married in her father's old church by Dr. Little of Dorchester, assisted by Rev. E. F. Knight, the present minister of the church.

There was a hot and amusing bicylce race at 6 A. M. on the Seventeenth of June between E. J. Sandberg and A. Anderson. Both men are just learning to ride and the falls were frequent. The course was from Buckly street to City Square and return. Anderson was a winner by several hundred feet. The time made was something remarkable, an hour and twenty minutes being consumed.

Keith's Theatre.

Tragedian Robert Downing will make his vaudeville debut in Boston at Keith,s popular continuous performance and amusement resort the week of June 20, supported by the best members of his own company, and surrounded by the same stage accessories that he uses in the combination houses in the regular dramatic season. Prof. Lovenberg's orchestra is to continue the delightful concerts that have been such a popular feature of Mr. Keith's show the past three weeks, with an entire change of programme, the numbers being all of popular music, and the biograph will present the customary new pictures. In connection with the latter, it is just as well to note that it has never been more popular than at the present time, and has probably never had more interesting pictures. The view of a steamer crossing the English Channel, and that of the railway jaunt in the vicinity of Conway, Wales, are worth going a long distance to see. Keith's has never presented a more beautiful nor inviting appearance since it was opened than at the present time, and on a hot day it is probably the coolest place in Boston to go and get rested in, and at the same time be pleasantly entertained.

OUR WEEKLY FASHION PLATE.

FRENCH GOWN OF DOTTED LINEN FROM HARPER'S BAZAR

A dainty gown of poka-dotted ecru linen with spots in white silk has a very deep straight flounce which is set on the sheath top of the skirt with a double row of undulated white silk cord. The cord passes up one side of the front, where the skirt is open, having for ornament, pearl buttons encrusted with cut steel. This manner of arranging the skirt is a new point, many of the later imported models being made to open at the side or directly in front. Some tailor skirts are closed with a double line of bone buttons and button holes in front, imitating a redingote, as there are buttons on the jacket apparently a continuation of those on the skirt. Gowns of silk and thin fabrics are often studded with buttons of the most elaborate description.

The back of the skirt is closely shirred at the waist line, and there is no lining. The entire width at the hem is four yards.

The low-cut corsage, arranged in three pleats each side of the front, is trimmed about the shoulders with a deep collar, which continues in fichue fashion across the bodice, edged with a broad linen lace, and is caught together with a cravat bow of white hem-stitched silk lawn. The tucked lawn chemisette is adjustable, enabling one to give variety to the toilette by the use of other colors.

The back of the waist is without seam, and the sleeves, small at the top, are slightly full at the cuff, which is straight and finished with a tiny ruffle. Such a waist may be unlined, and the entire model is pretty for gingham, batiste, or cambric. The proper cut of the gown can be obtained only from the cut paper pattens published by Harpers Bazar, where it appears.

Quantity of material for gown—10 yards of linen, 2 yards of lace, 1 yard of lawn.

MORRO TO GO

Santiago's Fort Not to Be Spared.

HOBSON NOT THERE.

Spaniards Forced to Eat Their Horses.

Port Antonio, June 20.—Admiral Sampson feels himself free to attack Morro castle. The admiral is credibly informed that the gallant Hobson and his crew are no longer confined there, two being in a hospital and the others in the city; so he is going to wipe Morro off the face of the earth with the dynamite guns of the Vesuvius and the batteries of his warships.

From this nest in the mountains Colonel Cebreco is watching Santiago, its bay and Admiral Cervera's ships. Every day a little boat goes to Admiral Sampson with detailed information. Every two days faithful pacificos risk their lives to enter the trebly guarded city for details of its starvation.

Friday the Spaniards ate horses within the fortifications. Sunday the extreme Spanish cavalry outposts on a cleared patch on the mountain side, in plain view from here, cooked their pack animals. The condition of noncombatants is beyond description. Already 4000 women and children are existing on roots and the fruits of the mountains, but those in the town are starving. The dead carts are inadequate to carry the victims away.

Cuban scouts reported Friday that a number of Spanish soldiers were massed at a point of land lying between the fleet and the town. The Marblehead and the Suwanee steamed in and took a position within easy range of them, and the St. Paul and the Dolphin opened from their anchorages. Firing began at 9 o'clock, and continued for an hour, during which the strip of raised land was mowed almost level with the sea. This was the beginning of the day's work. It was carried on by the Oregon, which came in from the blockading fleet. When she had finished coaling she went close inshore and sent four 13-inch and six 8-inch shells in search of the Spanish gunboat which is hiding up the bay. One 13-inch shell struck a building in the town, and threw debris 100 feet in the air. It was a cascade of stone and mortar. Soon afterward Cuban scouts reported that hundreds of Spanish troops in Guantanamo, aroused to vengeance by reason of this shot, were massing for an attack on Fort McCalla. A company of 50 bluejackets and one field piece was immediately sent from the colliers and the Panther to reinforce the marines. The expected attack did not take place.

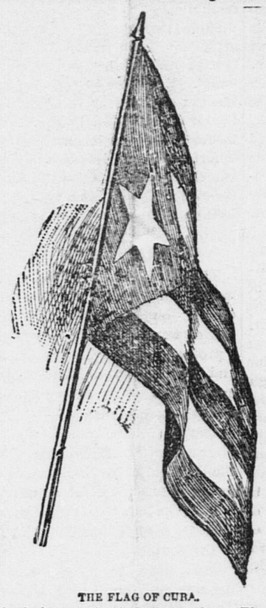
An incident of the Santiago attack ment was the act of a Spanish officer, who bravely ran along the parapet under a heavy fire, encouraging his men to stand by their guns. Shot and shell rained about him, and after one terrific explosion he was seen no more and the parapet had disappeared. He could not have escaped death.

From the foretop of the Brooklyn, 2900 yards distant, the men in the grounds could be noticed, but a minute later dust and flying debris would take their places, and when the smoke cleared away only a spot of red earth could be seen—guns and gunners had been swept away. It was the most deadly and destructive bombardment of the war thus far. Scarcely a shot from the big guns of the squadron went astray. The aim of the gunners was superb, and not only were the coast forts annihilated, but the batteries on Cayo Smith, up the harbor, were destroyed. Had all the ships used smokeless powder, as did the New Orleans, there would remain no signs of guns or fortifications to indicate that there had ever been any defenses there.

There were no casualties in the fleet, although the ships held a fixed position, as if inviting the Spaniards to fire upon them. The half-stripped ships' gunners never worked with more enthusiasm. The words of Rear Admiral Sampson were: "First silence the batteries on the shore, and then continue firing until the fortifications are reduced." This order was strictly obeyed. It was the first time that such instructions had been given, and the men responded with a will. In 38 minutes the order was given to cease firing, and the message went to each ship from the admiral: "Well done." The officers and men then turned in for breakfast.

Every detail of the engagement had been executed to the letter, the opening of fire by the New York to the last shot from the Iowa. The Spaniards were evidently surprised while strengthening their fortifications. The first shot of the New York landed full and fair on the top of the hills to the east, where the gunners were at work erecting new pieces. The earth seemed to rise in a cloud, and when the 12-inch shells of the Iowa and 13-inch beauties of the Oregon landed squarely and fairly, a great cheer went up from the ships. The western squadron got into line and began firing before the eastern one did, and the effect of the shots could be plainly seen. The Spanish gunners at the batteries could be noted, and a quick fire was returned, but only for a brief time did they withstand the terrible assault of the fleet.

Thursday Major General Perez of the Cuban army, commanding the insurgent forces in the province of Santiago, paid an official visit to the fleet, and for the first time during the war a Cuban flag was seen at the masthead of an American warship and saluted. As General Perez boarded the Marblehead a salute of honor was fired, and he was received by a guard of honor. After landing from the Marblehead General Perez made a short address to the troops, extolling the action of the United States in taking up the Cuban cause. According to the report of General Perez the condition of the Spaniards at Guantanamo and in the neighborhood is very bad. They are eating horses and mules, and other food is very scarce. He does not believe they will be able to withstand a vigorous attack by one-half their number. There are 3500 Cubans in the province, most of them holding the roads to prevent the Spaniards getting supplies into Guantanamo. In his opinion the American forces can easily take Guantanamo and from that point operate against Santiago with every prospect of success.



THE FLAG OF CUBA.

Several attempts to find landing places for the United States troops, within a distance of two miles west of Santiago, have demonstrated, along with previous inquiries to the eastward, that the shore for 15 miles is lined with Spaniards. While this will not prevent a landing close to Santiago, it may mean delay, as the surrounding country must be thoroughly shelled and cleared before the troops can land in safety. When Rear Admiral Sampson received advices that upwards of 30 transports would be here Saturday he sent word that they should stand to the south 10 miles and lie there until a landing place had been secured.

The launches of the New York and the Massachusetts reconnoitered the shore between Cabanas, two miles off the entrance to Santiago harbor, and Guayaganaco, two miles further west, both of which points lie east of the range of mountains surrounding Santiago bay. They pushed their noses into a hornet's nest. The brush was fairly alive with Spanish troops, infantry and cavalry; and the fire opened upon the launches was so fierce that their retreat had to be covered by the Vixen and the Texas. When the Texas asked permission of Commodore Schley to take a hand, the commodore seized the megaphone and shouted to Captain Philip: "Yes, go in and give 'em ——, Jack." The Texas landed several four-inch shells on the battery at Cabanas, completely demolishing it. Lieutenant Sharpe of the Vixen and Lieutenant Harlow in command of the launches were both complimented by Admiral Sampson for gallantry.

When the Troops Land.

Washington, June 20.—With the troops disembarked on Cuban soil, there will be no delay in the prosecution of the business which has called them to Santiago. Secretary Long said last night that the present would be the most important work of the war up to this time, and it is evident from this remark that he anticipates the attack on Santiago is to follow the landing of the troops.

In army circles it is said that at least two and possibly three days will be necessary to get the troops and all munitions ashore. The wharf at Buiquiri will be useful in permitting the transports to get alongside of it and discharge their men and the guns and artillery caissons which they have in their holds. The point of landing determined upon is connected by road with Santiago, which will make easier the task of the engineers in preparing the way over which the troops are to march in their offensive operations against the Spaniards.

Porto Rico Expedition.

Washington, June 20.—The occupation of Porto Rico is likely to be deferred until after the capture of Santiago and its defenses, and the capture or destruction of Cervera's squadron. This is chiefly due to the lack of transports. It is estimated that at least 30, and possibly as many as 45, steamships will be required to convey troops and supplies for an expedition of 20,000 men.

Another embarrassment is the lack of convoys. Naval officials insist that it would be injudicious to withdraw any of the naval force now off Santiago, and they assert with equal positiveness that it would be unwise to withdraw any of the force on blockading duty, as it has been already materially diminished to furnish convoys for the Santiago expedition. The movements of the Cadiz fleet, while not very menacing at present or likely to be in the future, require a reserve naval force which shall be at the disposal of the navy department.

Another argument for the postponement of the Porto Rico invasion is the insufficiency of regular troops in this country. There are about 3000 regulars at Tampa, a force which cannot be materially increased by transfers from artillery posts. It is deemed essential to success in Porto Rico that the troops forming the expedition shall consist of a strong force of regulars. This will be possible only by transferring to the Porto Rico expedition some of the regulars now under General Shafter. The reports show that at least 10,000 of the Santiago expedition are regulars, and when the present expedition shall have been reinforced and the operations ended it will be possible to transfer to Porto Rico probably one-half of the regulars under General Shafter.

To Be Examined.

Washington, June 20.—Among the 195 young men who have been selected for appointment as second lieutenants in the regular army, to fill vacancies provided they pass the examination, are the following:

Connecticut—Ward Cheney, captain First Connecticut volunteers; Robert Hall Campbell Kelton, graduate sergeant D. C. high school.

Maine—William Thomas Brastow, graduate university of Maine; Alfred Andrews Starbird, sergeant company D, First Maine volunteers; Joseph Warren Glidden; Henry McPherson Merriam, student Stanford university of California.

Massachusetts—James W. Longstreet, private First corps, Boston cadets; Henry F. Dalton, lieutenant Second corps, Massachusetts cadets; Edward Bumpus; G. D. Leavene, honor graduate of the Massachusetts agricultural college.

New Hampshire—David S. Mulliken; Leslie B. Hayes, honor graduate, college of agriculture and mechanical arts.

Rhode Island—William C. Clark, jr., captain cadets, Rhode Island college of agriculture and mechanical arts; Stanley Howard; Herbert E. B. Case, honor graduate of Rhode Island college of agriculture.

To Keep Us Guessing.

London, June 20.—The Gibraltar correspondent of The Daily Telegraph says: "Admiral Camara's squadron arrived at Cartagena Saturday evening, with Captain Annon, minister of marine, who inspected the Lepanto. The destination of the fleet is not known, but it is believed that Admiral Camara will keep in touch with home ports and that the squadron will be used to deceive the Americans."

ADMIRAL CAMARA.

Desp'ses All Threats.

Madrid, June 20.—The statement that President McKinley has sent to Admiral Cervera and General Pando messages saying he would hold them personally responsible for the lives of Lieutenant Hobson and his men has produced a disagreeable impression in military circles, as showing that the president distrusts the military honor of the Spaniards, who, on their part, despise all threats. Such messages, it is declared, render the future exchange of the prisoners most unlikely.

Private telegrams from Cuba say that during the last attack by the American ships upon Santiago a Spanish shell struck upon the deck of one of the attacking ships, sweeping off all the men there. Another shell, according to the same report, struck the funnel of a cruiser, doing much damage.

The Havana government is displaying great energy. Fourteen university professors, who fled through fear of the results of the war, have been dismissed. The blockading vessels, the telegrams say, continue inactive.

DESPERADO DROPPED.

Quick Work and Good Shooting by Policemen.

Saved Their Lives by Firing In Selfdefense.

Revolver Drawn by Member of a Party of Stiletto Wielders.

Hyde Park, Mass., June 20.—Not since the finding of the body of Basigalupo, the crazy Italian murderer of Bernard Ambrosoli, a Boston hotelkeeper, here two years ago, has this town been thrown into such a state of excitement as was occasioned Sunday night when it became known that a citizen had been attacked and badly stabbed by Italians in the very heart of the residential district, and that one of his assailants had been killed by an officer in self-defense.

Two of the Italians were taken into custody by officers sometime after the stabbing, while five others escaped, only to be overtaken at the Mattapan line, where one of their number, recognizing the uniforms of the officers, attempted to draw a revolver, but was shot dead in his tracks, no less than four bullets being afterwards found in his body. The other four got away.

The victim of the stabbing affair, Stephen Farrell, a blacksmith, 37 years old, lies at the Emergency hospital in Boston with four deep wounds in his neck and chest, inflicted, the police believe, with stilettos. Farrell has every chance for recovery, should blood poison be avoided. The dead Italian went by the name of Giovanni Piccolo.

From the wounded man's statement it would seem that the affair was caused by a party of seven Italians jostling him off the curbing. He picked out the one who had seemed the most aggressive and struck him with his fist. Instantly the men gathered about him, all producing weapons, and the next thing he knew he was bleeding freely and the Italians were making off after separating into parties as they ran. Farrell had seen all of his assailants before, and knew them to be residents of the town, consequently when Chief of Police McKay was notified of the case, he was able to get a good description of the fellows.

Officers Brown, Cullen and Grant were sent at once over the road to Mattapan. They had not gone far when they saw five Italians, and before they could hide one of the Italians, who proved to be Piccolo, recognized the uniforms of the officers and attempted to pull a revolver. The weapon was half out of his pocket when the revolvers of the police spoke, and the man fell dead.

Boston and Vicinity.

Boston, June 20.—Governor Wolcott received orders yesterday from Secretary Alger to prepare for service in the United States army at once one regiment of infantry, in addition to recruits needed to fill to the maximum the regiments already in the field. Captain E. M. Weaver, U. S. A., has received orders to act as mustering officer of the regiment to be designated by Governor Wolcott.

Herbert Loud of Everett was arrested Sunday on a warrant charging him with obtaining $2500 under false pretenses from the Columbian Trust company of East Boston.

By the capsizing of the yacht Louise, Zenas F. Babbitt, aged 42, and Edwin W. Frost, aged 36, were drowned between Peddock's and Nut islands yesterday morning. William B. Rolfe, E. M. Holman and James A. Buckman were saved by a lobsterman, though Holman is in a dangerous condition.

A dispute between Stephen Farrell and a number of Italians, which occurred near the New England depot in Hyde Park, resulted in Farrell receiving four knife wounds, while one of his supposed assailants, Giovannio Pietro Piccoli, who died, turned on a pursuing officer named Brown with a revolver, but was shot dead before he could discharge his own weapon. It is not known just what led up to the affair, as Farrell was too weak from loss of blood to give a coherent account of his argument with the man.

The fire department of Brookline, Mass., was called out yesterday morning to fight a stubborn blaze in a barn owned by William J. Griggs. The building and considerable hay, vehicles, harnesses, four horses, one of which was a pacer valued at $1000, four terriers and a magnificent St. Bernard dog were burned, bringing the total loss up to nearly $7000.

William Fannon, 37 years old, of Westboro, Mass., went in bathing at Revere beach Sunday shortly after eating a hearty meal, and immediately became unconscious, falling in two feet of water. He was dead before his body was taken ashore.

Observed the Sabbath.

Chickamauga National Park, June 20.—Sunday was a day of rest among the soldiers. All drills were omitted and the Sabbath was generally observed. The soldiers were forbidden to congregate at points of amusement, and practically all remained in camp with the exception of a considerable number who held permission to spend the day on Lookout mountain. The efforts of General Boynton and the Georgia authorities to restore order at Lytle and rid the outskirts of gambling houses has been productive of good results. This was especially noticeable at Lytle, when all saloons and gambling houses were hermetically sealed, and no soldiers were allowed there during the entire day.

Good Afternoon.

Quincy is a place where in many cases, when a man gets his name placed upon the eligible police list, and is appointed a special, then he throws up his situation and pining a badge upon his coat goes strutting about the streets in out of way places seeking to find some one to arrest, that he may show himself in court in uniform and obtain a small fee. In justice to the specials, however it should be said that the specials who do this are very few in number.

Cases have been known in Quincy where men outside the limits of the centre, where men have been arrested for drunkenness, by these same specials, who if left alone would have gone home peacefully. During the summer months these brave men haunt such places as Merrymount Park where the streets are not only in bad condition but there is nothing but a path for a sidewalk and "snake in" some bicycle rider who happens to go upon this apology for a sidewalk.

If it is the desire of the department to enforce the bicycle law let it put its men upon the street in uniform and make a business of it and not let the men go out where there is seldom anyone seen walking on the so called sidewalks.

Arrested for Forgery.

Officer Ferguson went to Boston Sunday morning and arrested Hector Robertson at the Castle Square hotel upon a warrant charging him with uttering a forged check for $13.50 upon the Franklin National bank. Robertson was a sewing machine agent and boarded with Sydney F. Willard at Wollaston. Robertson left his boarding place about June 2 and presented a check to Mrs. Willard for the above amount and with his wife skipped to Montreal. Mr. Willard cashed the check which later came back to him protested, as there were no funds. Sunday morning a district messenger boy came to Mr. Willard's from Boston with a letter for his servant girl. The letter proved to be from Robertson who wrote the girl a sweet letter and wanted her to come to Boston and meet him at the Castle Square hotel where he was registered under the name of Jones. The girl gave the letter to Mrs. Willard, and Mr. Willard immediately came to Quincy and swore out a warrant which Officer Ferguson took to Boston. About the time Robertson was expecting the girl, Officer Ferguson put in an appearance and placed him under arrest.

"Inasmuch as it has been called to our attention that the representation of the Savin Hill Yacht club in the races for the challenge cup was to be a yacht exceeding 21 feet water line length, the secretary is instructed to notify you that they are open only to sailing yachts measuring 21 feet or less according to article one of the deed of trust."

THIS WEEK SURE.

Co. K Recruiting and Will Go to Framingham.

Now that the orders of the War Department call for one regiment from Massachusetts under the second call, there is no longer any doubt about the Fifth regiment going to the front. Col. Whitney of the Fifth regiment and Capt. Weaver have been designated to muster the regiment and it is expected that the members of the twelve companies will volunteer. The companies are located as follows: Co. A at Charlestown, Co. B at Cambridge, Co. C at Newton, Co. D at Plymouth, Co. E at Medford, Co. F at Waltham, Co. G at Woburn, Co. H at Charlestown, Co. I at Attleboro, Co. K at Braintree, Co. L at Malden and Co. M of Hudson.

Before the end of the week the Fifth will probably be in camp at South Framingham, not over two days will be necessary to equip it. Men will be examined physically at the armories before going to camp.

The Journal says, "There is a good deal of anxiety among the Majors, Ballard, Morrison and Clement, to known which of them is to be left behind. The orders of Adjt. Gen. Corbin call for two Majors and the third one will be left at home, unless some arrangement can be made with the War Department to keep him. If one man is dropped it would naturally be the Junior Major, unless there were some especial reason why he should remain.

"It is possible that a commission may issue to a son of Gen. Miles of the United States army in this regiment, Gen. Miles, some time ago, requested of Gov. Wolcott that his son might be given a commission in a Massachusetts regiment, and this may be the only opportunity to do so, unless a further call for troops should be made.

"It was said last night among some of the officers that there was a likelihood that Maj. Henry P. Ballard of Malden might be the officer of that rank who would not go to the front. It is undertood that his circumstaces are such that he may find it impossible to get off with the regiment, although it is known that he is desirous of seeing service at the front. Maj. Ballard has seen much service with the regiment, having served as Adjutant previous to his election to his present office. If Maj. Ballard is the man to be left behind then Maj. Morrison of Braintree and Maj. Clement of Waltham will probably be the two officers of that rank who go with the regiment, that is, of course, if they can pass the surgeon. There is a possibility that one of these will be unable to pass the strict physical examination to which he will be subjected, and that leaves another vacancy.

"There was announced last night an appointment which will give general satisfaction to the members of many companies of the Fifth. It is that of Dr. F. E. Bateman of Charlestown, who will be Assistant Surgeon of the regiment. Dr. Bateman is well known in the militia. He was formerly connected with the Charlestown Cadets, Company A, Fifth, and held the office of Sergeant when he resigned. Dr. Bateman will at once take the necessary examination for the office, and will be in a position to commence his duties within a day or two.

"There are several other appointments and changes to be made which will make the old regiment hardly recognizable when it leaves for camp. Col. Whitney will, of course, be the commander of the Fifth, but there is hardly another office which is not in doubt about who shall occupy it. Certain it is that there will be some officers who will get promotions. The appointment of Gen. Miles's son to a position will fill one vacancy, but there will be several others to fill after Col. Whitney and the Surgeons have finished their work. Still every officer lives in hopes until something definite occurs to cause him to feel downhearted."

A meeting of the officers of the regiment will be held in Boston at 2 o'clock this afternoon when final instructions will be given. The next step will be to recruit the companies up to the required standard of 106 men. This will not take long as all of the companies have nearly enough men on the waiting list to furnish the required number.

As fast as each company has its required number they will be examined by the regimental surgeon and when this is completed they will be ordered to Framingham where they will be equipped and mustered into the United States Army.

There is great demand for Massachusetts men and as the Fifth carries the tri-color of the state for marksmanship there will be an unusual hustle for this regiment among the generals. General Bancroft, formerly colonel of the Fifth is on the staff of General Lee, and knowing full well the kind of metal the Fifth is composed of will no doubt make an unusual effort to have it assigned to his corps, and there is not much question but what he will succeeed. In this case July 1, will see Co. K and the Fifth at one of the southern camps and possibly before Havana.

A SAD SEQUEL.

West Roxbury Families Visit Houghs Neck—Two Drowned.

A sailboat containing five men was capsized by a squall Sunday afternoon between Houghs Neck and Peddocks Island, and two of the men Jonas F. Babbett and Edward W. Frost were drowned.

Babbett and Frost, E. M. Holman and William B. Rolf, all of West Roxbury, together with their families and James A. Buckman of Avon came to Houghs Neck Sunday morning for a day's outing at the Loyal Club cottage.

About noon time the five men started out in a sail boat to catch some fish for dinner, leaving the women and children at home to get dinner ready. They had been fishing some time and were on their way home when a squall struck them and the boat was capsized, throwing all five into the water. Babbett and Frost were unable to help themselves and soon sank. The other three men, after being in the water nearly twenty minutes, were rescued by two fishermen. They were all but exhausted and could not have held out much longer. As it was, one of the men was so far gone that he could not be removed to his home that night. The men were brought ashore at Houghs Neck and the grief of the wives of the drowned men was heart rendering.

Babbett was 42 years of age and lived at Maple street, West Roxbury, and carried on a fish market on Centre street. Frost was 36 years of age and lived at the corner of Lagrange and Center streets, West Roxbury, and was in the grocery business. Each of the unfortunate men leaves a widow and one child. Of the others in the party, Holman lives on Kenney street, and Rolf on Temple street, West Roxbury.

Ten Christened.

The usual annual children's service was held in the Wollaston Unitarian church on Sunday morning. The church was beautifully decorated with a profusion of roses, and other flowers, and in spite of the threatening clouds and early morning showers, there was a very large attendance.

Towards the close of the service, after a brief but interesting address to the little ones, the Rev. Jas. E. Bagley in his usual beautiful manner, christened ten children, who with their parents, completely filled the chancel of the church.

The music was exceptionally fine, the singing being led by Mrs. Dudley Talbot of Milton, who also sang two exquisite solos.

The following are the names of the children christened, and their parents.

Walter Maynard, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Hatch.

Louise Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Seymour.

Edith Randolph, daughter of Dr. and Mrs (Kingman) Fortin.

Percy Wellington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. B. Ela.

Charlotte Denham and Thomas Tilston, children of Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Barstow.

Helen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Moulton.

Evelyn Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Parker.

James Edwin and Sydney Wadsworth, children of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Claflin.

Off for Phillipines.

Capt. Charles N. Hunt has a son among the volunteers bound for the Phillipines. Howard D. Hunt, who for the past eight years has been in the West, enlisted as a private in Co. H, First Colorado Volunteers, and was to sail June 15 on the China. He writes under date of June 13 from San Francisco. I have been in camp some time and am making it all right. Am feeling fine. Camp life doesn't go against me like some as I have seen so much of it on the plains. I passed a No. 1 examination, which was very hard to do as it was very severe.

Trap Shooting.

The following scores, out of a possible ten, were made at the shoot of the Wollaston Trap club on the Seventeenth:

Marsden, 8, 5, 8, 9.
Bryne, 4, 4, 5, 3, 8.
Elcock, 8, 8, 5.
Noble, 6, 6, 8, 7.
Kelley, 7, 7, 8, 7, 6.
Paolucci, 5, 9, 7, 8.
Bates, 5, 5, 3.
Mayo, 7, 6.

Next shoot on July 4 at 9 A. M. It is hoped every member of the club will be present.

A Victory.

The T. R. & S. A. A. won a great victory Saturday afternoon at Merry Mount park, when they took the Boston Reserves into camp to the tune of 9 to 6. Quinn was in fine form and pitched a great game. He was well supported. The home team made 9 safe hits to 5 for the visitors, and made fewer errors.

The score by innings was:

Told a Whopper.

Even the judge at the District Court could not suppress a smile at the story told by one of the prisoners at the bar this morning.

Walter R. Mann of Wollaston was before the court for the larceny of a lady's bicycle from a Milton dealer. When asked what he had to say about the case, Mann said he hired the wheel for his lady friend, whom he referred to as Agnes. Last Wednesday Agnes and her father started for a ride to Nantasket. When at Hingham, Agnes ran in front of a train and was thrown 200 feet. Her right leg was cut off at the knee, her side was pressed in, three ribs over the heart were broken, and her heart was damaged. From the terrible injuries she later died at the hospital and her body was taken to Halifax. Here a smile stole over the judge's face, as he asked him if there was anyone else who knew of this terrible accident, other than himself, to which Mann replied no. It was a good story, but one hard to believe, and the court sent him to the House of Correction for four months.

Wedding at City Hall.

The usual monotony of routine business at City Hall was somewhat varied this morning by a wedding, in which City Clerk Cleaves was the officiating officer and the young lady clerks acted as maids of honor, bridesmaids, etc. The contracting parties were a sturdy son and a comely daughter of Italy, who answered to the names of Stefano Peretti and Vina Shaw. The bride was attired in a travelling dress of blue, trimmed with lace, and wore a hat profusely decorated with flowers. The ceremony was held in the Mayor's office which was fragrant with the perfume of roses which the young ladies of City Hall kindly contributed. The words that made them one were quickly said, and Vina Shaw became Vina Peretti. Owing to his natural embarrassment the City Clerk neglected to kiss the now blushing bride and the happy groom had to content himself with kissing his bride although he looked with longing eyes at the beauty assembled about him. As the words "I now pronounce you man and wife," resounded through the room, the City Messenger sounded the joyous news on the electric bells throughout the building.

Council Business.

Whether or not tonight's meeting of the City Council will be a long session depends somewhat on the Committee on Finance, to whom was recommitted the orders for rebuilding North street, and the acceptance of Payne street, East Elm avenue and Putnam street as public ways, for it is probable that they will report on them. The Committee on Licenses will report upon petitions for a number of minor licenses, and the Ordinances Committee will report upon the order of $5000 for a city stable, and on relocating the lines of High and Franklin streets. Public hearings will be held on the widening of Hancock street at the corner of Granite street and the widening of Hancock street between the Music hall building and School street. In the calendar is the order relocating the lines of Washington and Canal streets at their intersection.

FOR THE SOLDIERS.

Good Work of Christian Commission to be Repeated.

The attendance at the Christian Commission meeting at the First church, Sunday afternoon, was not as large as was anticipated, yet there were about 150 present including Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., and Francis L. Souther camp S. of V. in a body. Hon. A. S. Roe, the senator from Worcester, was the principal speaker, and the Mayor, three of the local clergymen and the Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. showed their interest in the movement by taking part in the exercises.

James F. Harlow presided at the organ and Rev. E. N. Hardy of Bethany church read the opening hymn. Rev. W. R. Breed of Christ church read the Scriptures, Rev. Mr. Hardy led in prayer, and Rev. E. W. Preble of the Universalist church announced the second hymn.

Mayor Sears in introducing the speaker, said that he had noticed that when the Legislature wanted historical facts it called upon the senator from Worcester, and he believed on this occasion Hon. A. S. Roe would give us considerable information of Christian Commission service in the Civil war.

Senator Roe addressed the audience as comrades and friends, being an old soldier. At the outset he referred to the historic edifice in which the meeting was held, and the Presidents Adams. The doctrines of John Adams and John Quincy Adams were still advanced, though they are at rest. The speaker reviewed in brief the work of the Christian Commission in the Civil War. How the Commission erected its tent almost as soon as a camp was established, and how it met many of the wants of the soldiers, and cared for their moral and spiritual welfare. Many evil influences surrounded the soldiers on the field. Some looked upon the commission lightly, but not so in the time of danger. It was surprising at these critical times how generally the testament was read. During the Civil War $6,291,000 was raised for the Christian Commission.

Mr. Roe read from the "Annals of the United States Christian Commission." Many of the circumstances were the same now as 37 years ago. When the actual need really presented itself people would doubtless be ready to give. It would not be necessary then to hold meetings. There was much, however, to be done now. It is a situation not a theory. Let us all do our part for the boys.

Secretary Hoehn of the Quincy committee said no further words were necessary. If those present were not prepared to give they could forward their subscription to Miss Hubbard, the treasurer. The collection netted $16.35.

Prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Breed, and the meeting closed with a hymn.

Children's Day.

Children's day was observed at the Wollaston Baptist church on Sunday. The regular service was held in the morning while in the afternoon the Bible school assisted by the church quartette gave a most pleasing concert. The infant class did especially well, not a single error being made in song or pieces. The church was prettily decorated with wild flowers and flags, and the smallest children each wore a flag.

Books and Magazines.

Little Folks is taking its place near the top among the magazines for children, and the June number is particularly bright and interesting. It is richly illustrated and the stories are such as please the youngest readers, Charles Stuart Pratt and Ella Farnum Pratt are the editors and S. E. Cassino, of 221 Columbus avenue, Boston, the publishers.

Stories of love and war are features of the Cosmopolitan for June. There are illustrated articles on "Havana just before the war," "Some previous expeditions to tropical countries," "Transformation of citizens into soldier," Lovers' day in camp." Charles E. Triplers illustrated paper on the newest of modern sciences—Liquid Aid—will be read with interest

A book entitled "Some of New York's 400" has recently been issued by the American Humane Education Society, and bids fair to become as popular as the widely read tale of "Black Beauty." The heroine is Laura Burton, the daughter of a widow who is a millionaire, and one of the "400." Laura evinces an interest in the suffering of animals, and does much good work in relieving them to the disgust of her mother and her sister Helen. A pleasing romance runs through the book, and in the concluding chapter it has a most happy ending. The story teaches many lessons of kindness to animals, depicts the inhuman treatment which is practiced by the unthinking as well as by those who are cruel by nature, while it shows that the "400" are not all the selfish people many deem them to be. The book is well written, and cannot fail to accomplish its high purpose. Send ten cents to Geo. T. Angell, 19 Milk street, Boston, for a copy.

The rate at which the Zulus can run upon an emergency is astonishing. Some will cover so much as 50 miles in six hours; eight miles an hour is an ordinary pace.

YACHTING SEASON.

Committee of Quincy Club Busy on Handicaps.

The first of the scrub races given by the Quincy Yacht club will take place Saturday afternoon at three o'clock. It will be sailed over the regular third class course, or triangle of seven nautical miles. Only four and aft sails will be allowed, spinnakers and ballon jibs are barred. The committee are at work figuring out the handicaps for the boats. It is an unsatisfactory job and sure not to please everybody. A fifteen foot boat has been taken as a unit. Then each boat will have approximately one minute for each foot of length (deck measure) over fifteen feet, added to her actual time. This rull is elastic and in some cases, where it apparently works an injustice, will be modified. In other cases, where a boat carries an extra large spread of canvas, the committee reserves the right to add extra time. A yacht club buyee will be awarded to the winner of each race. These buyees have been made up and are at the club house awaiting claimants.

Afloat and at Anchor.

The sloop Hattie started out Saturday afternoon in the gale under a double reefed maisnsail and jib, for Boston with a party of young ladies aboard. She ran before the gale to the Quincy Yacht club's anchorage where she was reefed down close, the jib furled and the forestaysail was set. Under this rig she was driven right through to Boston and return under a cloud of spray and foam. Notwithstanding the wetness of the trip, the screeching of the wind through the rigging and the hubbly water, the party had a jolly good time, considering it way ahead of the regulation sail which is ordinarily delt out to "landlubbers."

Mr. J. A. Fenno of the Quincy Yacht club, was out Saturday afternoon in his new yawl "Brant." She behaved well in the heavy blow. Under her jigger and jib she made good time. During the height of the gale she lay under the lee of Sheep island, as did also Mr. S. B. Wiley, Jr.'s new boat Mr. Wiley has a trim looking craft and one that ought to show good speed when she has been tuned up.

The Quincy Yacht club will set its Raccoon island buoy this week. The buoy marks the outer end of the ledge which juts out from the easterly end of of that island. It is painted cream, with a broad band of brown around the center, and is marked "Danger—Q. Y. C." Boats should pass it on the outside.

Capt. Ira Whittemore was out in the Tantrum with a close reefed mainsail, on Saturday afternoon holding a dress rehearsal as a preparatory for the Quincy Yacht club's scrub races.

Capt. Peterson of Nut island had the boom of his boat carried away while coming in from the outside, during Saturday's gale.

C. F. Adams, 2d, entered the Chinock in the race-about class of the Corinthian club at Marblehead Saturday and took third place. The Susanne was first, and Sintram second.

The Dorchester club will have an open race Saturday.

What shall the Quincy cup defender be named?

Horse Gave Him Away.

About 11 o'clock Saturday night Officer Ferguson found a team minus a driver on Franklin street. In the team was a large quantity of liquor, some of which was consigned to a party recently convicted of violating the liquor law in Quincy. The officer took charge of the team, and later Daniel Cronin came to the police station looking for his team which he had lost. He runs an express and was delivering goods at South Quincy, but while left alone the horse wandered away to where he was found by Officer Ferguson. Cronin was informed that his team was all right and he was arrested and locked up for illegal transportation.

ANXIOUS FOR THE END.

Peace Favored by a Strong Element of the Spanish.

Compromise of National Dignity Not Desired.

The Outcome of the Crisis Very Likely to Be Carlism.

Madrid, June 20.—In the course of a conversation yesterday a politican said he did not believe that Germany would do anything in the Philippines on behalf of Spain; nor had he any faith in help from the European powers. "If Admiral Camara is successful in the Philippines," he said, "it will be of assistance to Spain in adjusting peace, but no power or combination of powers is likely to oppose America's policy. Should the liberals retire, the next government will take the earliest opportunity to negotiate for peace."

The leaders of both political parties and all people of the higher ranks in Spain who are not identified with politics are anxious to put an end to the war at the earliest possible moment on any terms not compromising the national self-respect. It is proposed to accomplish this by forming a so-called national cabinet, composed of a fusion of the different parties. Silvela is the chief figure in this movement and has the support of several of the members of the Sagasta cabinet, and also of Moret, Campos and Gamazo. Such a plan, at first glance, seems easily feasible, and one wonders why it is not promptly acted upon. The reason is that it would almost certainly precipitate a revolutionary movement, which would only too probably succeed. In fact, the danger is so great that the Conservative and Liberal leaders combined are unable as yet to muster up courage to face it. Its success depends mainly upon whether the army can be relied upon to obey orders, for it is fully recognized that a certain amount of force would be absolutely necessary for the execution of such a policy.

The nation would instantly divide into war and peace parties. Weyler, Robledo, the Carlist, and the anarchist and socialist elements, in masses, would at first be included in the heterogeneous war party. The army would be the balance of power, but the army, in such an emergency, could not be relied upon by the other side. There would be very soon after the crash came a different marshalling of forces. It would be anarchy, socialism, and revolutionary republicanism arrayed against revolutionary Carlism. Then the Carlists would probably receive the support of nearly all the conservative and semi-conservative religious elements in Spain, and, of course, the present dynasty would be swept away.

Throughout southern Spain, including Linares, Granada and Seville, the poverty and misery existing are scarcely less extreme than in Cuba. Linares is a big mining center and is ripe for a revolt on anarchic lines. Opinion in Madrid is divided as to whether revolt will first break out in Linares or Barcelona. If revolution takes an anarchic form at the outset, which would probably be the case if the national peace cabinet plan is not attempted, there is no doubt that the Carlists would seize the opportunity to offer themselves as the sole bulwark against infidelity and general disintegration of all social order. The question already arises whether the Carlists will not soon seek to create this opportunity if it does not arise spontaneously. The opinion is held by many Spaniards who have no sympathy with the Carlists that events are rapidly shaping themselves so that the outcome of the inevitable crisis will be Carlism.

It is not true that there is any open talk of peace, either in the press or among the people of Madrid. Every effort is made to create the impression that the United States bitterly repents having rashly undertaken the war. All the authorities and public men in the country know as well as the rest of the world that Spain is conducting a hopeless and farcical war. They are anxious to sue for peace, but the price of peace at this moment would be a bloody civil strife, which, at the best, would bring to the throne an upstart pretender and a hungry horde of adventurers eager to plunder the already impoverished state. It is no mystery, therefore, why Spain still keeps fighting or pretending to fight.

Does Not Mean Surrender.

London, June 20.—The Madrid correspondent of The Standard says: "Lieutenant General Correa, minister of war, thinks Captain General Augusti would only have resigned if he had intended to organize resistance elsewhere, perhaps at Iloilo. The government wishes it clearly understood that the fall of Manila does not in the least signify the surrender of Spanish rule in the rest of the islands, or in other archipelagoes, where shortly vigorous measures will be taken to vindicate the rights of Spain against American invasion, with the assistance of native contingents who are still loyal."

The Money Order Tax.

Washington, June 20.—The postoffice department is interested in the method of collecting the tax on money orders. The war revenue act provides that money orders shall be taxed 2 cents, and the postoffice department desires to collect the tax itself. It is believed that by charging an additional 2 cents for each money order and turning this 2 cents into the treasury the tax can be collected without additional expense and with no inconvenience. If, however, the treasury department insists that each money order be stamped with a revenue stamp, it will entail a considerable cost in collecting the tax both on the treasury department and the postoffice department. Every purchaser of a money order will be inconvenienced and every money order clerk will be put to unnecessary trouble. In addition, the stamps themselves will cost a good deal. It is estimated that the government will collect between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000 from this tax.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

The news that the United States senate had given its approval to the project for an international bank involving Peru and other South American countries has been received with enthusiasm in Lima.

Nearly all the buildings on the Mitchell farm just outside Bridgewater, Mass., consisting of a house, barn and small sheds, were completely destroyed Sunday evening. One horse and a number of cows were burned. The family was away.

The Habersham rice mills, a block of the oldest buildings in Savannah, one of them having been built in 1828, were destroyed by fire Sunday. The fire was started by lightning. The buildings were among the most historic in Savannah.

Dexter Allen, 8 years old, disappeared in Pawtucket Saturday afternoon, and thinking that he might have been drowned in the river, the police dragged for and found his body Sunday afternoon. It is supposed that he fell while at play.

The 2-masted schooner Grecian Bend, laden with 360 tons of plaster for parties in Boston, sprang aleak and filled with water so rapidly that to prevent her from sinking she was run on the beach at Old Orchard, Me. She lies in an easy position in the sand, and will probably be saved.

Manila at Their Mercy.

London, June 20.—The Hong Kong correspondent of The Times says: "The rebels hold Manila at their mercy, but Admiral Dewey is anxious that the American troops should have the honor of receiving the Spanish capitulation. The steamer Yuen-Sing reports passing the United States troopship City of Peking on the morning of the 15th near Manila."

The success of the rebel forces is wonderful. General Aguinaldo has more than surpassed the expectations of those who favored his return to the Philippines. He has captured 3000 Spanish troops, including 900 regulars. Among the latter are 11 officers of and above the rank of lieutenant colonel, including two brigadier generals, and he has taken 79 officers below the rank of lieutenant colonel. In addition his forces have captured five prominent priests, heads of important parishes in provinces recently overrun by the insurgents. These men the insurgents hate even more than they hate the Spaniards; and the rebels chuckle with joy when they point them out in their prisons. General Aguinaldo has captured a deal of money, which he has sent aboard the American warships for safety. The much-vaunted Philippine militia, which it was a serious mistake on the part of the Spaniards to arm, are now all fighting in the rebel ranks.

THE NATIONAL GAME.

Four Pitchers Needed In a Fall River-New Bedford Game.

Fall River, June 20.—For those who like to see heavy hitting Sunday's game at Mount Hope park between the Fall Rivers and the New Bedfords was a treat. Both teams hit about evenly, and what might have been a brilliant and exciting contest was marred by the unsteadiness of the Fall River pitchers. Walker lasted but little over two innings. Flanagan lasted until the fifth, when Riley was substituted. The latter was as wild as a March hare, and, after giving five bases on balls in the sixth inning, he was retired, John Smith going into the box and Cronin to right field. Smith pitched two innings and no runs were scored. The New Bedfords won, 17 to 8.

The National league clubs have the following percentages: Cincinnati, .667; Boston, .647; Cleveland, .620; Baltimore, .583; Chicago, .558; Pittsburg, .529; New York, .520; Philadelphia, .425; Brooklyn, .417; Washington, .373; St. Louis, .373; Louisville, .296.

A fine struggle is on in the Eastern league; it is anybody's race as far as the first clubs are concerned. Buffalo has been having a run of hard luck, and Springfield has been a heavy loser in every way.

In the New England league, the splendidly equipped Brockton club has been fairly going at a break-neck pace. Pawtucket, Fall River and New Bedford are having a fine struggle among themselves.

The Louisvilles and the St. Louises broke even Sunday in two of the hardest fought games of the season. Neither of the games was over until the last man was out.

Anderson has made eight doubles, six triples and six home runs since he joined the Washingtons. Funny how a change of scene sometimes affects a player!

Hanlon has refused Corbett's latest offer, and the chances are that Corbett will have to enjoy a vacation.

The Cincinnatis took about $3000 out of Boston.

Lajoie leads the league in doubles.

Duffy has batted safely in 12 consecutive games.

Walter Brodie is back at the old stand—Baltimore.

Baltimore did not lose its 10th game last year until June 19.

The expenses of a National league team are put at $300 per day.

William Lauder, the captain and crack third baseman of the Brown university ball team, who has received an offer to join the Bostons, is a Connecticut boy, his home being at South Norwalk.

The authorities of Collinwood village, O., stopped the Cleveland-Pittsburg game at Beach park Sunday afternoon, but not until the home team had won a victory. In the eighth inning, with the bases full, Gardner hit the batter, and forced in the winning run for the Clevelands. At the end of the inning the marshal of Collinwood appeared on the grounds with warrants sworn out by Rev. George H. Barry, a village clergyman, and placed the Cleveland players under arrest. They were taken before a magistrate, who released them on $50 bail each for a hearing next Saturday afternoon.

The college season will virtually come to an end this week. Interest will be centered in the annual game in Cambridge between Harvard and Yale, next Thursday. The showing made by Harvard against the Pennsylvania team has revive the hope that the Harvard boys will give a good account of themselves and beat their old rivals.

Stallings has been released as manager of the Philadelphias.

The winners in the National league Saturday were the Bostons, Philadelphias, Pittsburgs, Chicagos, Baltimores, Brooklyns and St. Louises. In the New England league: Fall Rivers, Newports and Pawtuckets.

The Cincinnatis could do nothing with Griffith of the Chicagos, while Breitenstein was rather easy. The crowd was a record breaker—22,400.

The New Bedfords defeated the Fall Rivers Sunday, 17 to 8, after four pitchers had been tried.

The Newports took two games from the Pawtuckets at Crescent park Sunday. In the first inning Coughlin and Buelow collided in going for a foul, and both were knocked out, Coughlin sustaining a cut on the jaw that required six stitches. This caused a change in the makeup which was largely responsible for Pawtucket's defeat in the second game.

The Providences defeated the Buffalos at Rocky Point Sunday in a free batting contest. The bisons outbatted the grays, but the latter bunched their hits with men on bases. The visitors bunched their errors in the eighth inning.

Drowned In a Diving Bell.

Milwaukee, June 20.—Word was received here of the drowning of George Campbell and Peter Olson at Thunder bay while engaged at work in a diving bell recovering the cargo of the sunken steamer Pewabic, which was lost about a year ago. Campbell was the founder of the famous diving bell, and a son of Gardiner Campbell, founder of the centennial bell. When the bell was raised it was found that both men had been drowned as they were working by water which burst through one of the glass windows.

Work For Builders.

Park City, Utah, June 20.—Fire has destroyed the business section of this city. The property loss is estimated at nearly $1,000,000. Many people are homeless. The fire originated in the American hotel, and, fanned by a southerly wind, swept the entire length of Main street, destroying the city hall, opera house, postoffice, A. O. U. W. building, two bank buildings, the telephone exchange, several saloons, and every drug store, grocery store, butcher shop and hotel on the street. A number of private houses were also destroyed.

Derailed the Engine.

Roanoke, Va., June 20.—A passenger train was wrecked two miles west of Shawsville. Three persons were killed and several injured. Engineer Horner was buried beneath his engine and Fireman Sadler was so badly scalded that he died two hours later. The train was running down grade at the usual rate, and just at the entrance of a cut the flange of the outside rail broke, derailing the engine. The mail coach jumped over the embankment and was overturned, being completely demolished.

A BULLET FOR BLANCO

Was Shot In the Leg by a Havana Volunteer.

Had Sanctioned Execution of Assailant's Brother.

Soldier's Comrades Saved Him From Instant Death.

Consented That He Should Be Lodged In Morro Castle.

Washington, June 21.—Advices have been received here of an attempt in Havana to assassinate Captain General Blanco, that was made by Mariano Salva, a young member of the volunteer army. The volunteers paraded the streets, crying: "Live Weyler, Down with Blanco." The people, especially the autonomists, are quitting the city as rapidly as possible, and General Blanco, wounded as he is, holds daily conferences with the commanders of the volunteers, who apparently are powerless to bring about order.

The attempted killing of the Spanish captain general took place as he was leaving the palace to accompany some of the officers of his staff on an inspection of the earthworks on the outskirts of the city. Salva sent a bullet into the calf of General Blanco's left leg.

The volunteer is a member of the guard on duty around the palace. His younger brother, also a volunteer, was arrested recently on a charge of conspiring with the enemies of Spain against the established government. The younger Salva was tried by a court-martial and condemned to death. His brother made every effort to save him, and appeals were made to General Blanco for clemency, but without avail, and the boy was executed. There was dissension among the volunteers at that time, but no open outbreaks.

Mariano Salva quietly continued his duties at the palace and made no reference to his brother's death. Several times it was learned afterward he was seen inside the building where he did not belong; but, being in uniform, it was supposed that he was on some mission, and nothing was said to him. In his heart, however, he harbored the idea of revenge, and he was seeking every opportunity to consummate it. His own post was usually in a part of the palace little frequented by General Blanco, and his opportunities for meeting the captain general were few.

Then came a day when he succeeded in obtaining permission from his commanding officer to exchange with a brother soldier and he gained the coveted post in front of the palace. Salva waited until General Blanco came out in the afternoon and took up his stand on the outer steps of the palace, a short distance from a platoon of volunteers, also on guard, and waited. As Blanco stepped out the young soldier moved forward a pace and raised his rifle as if to salute. Instead of doing so, he quickly brought the breech of the weapon to his shoulder and fired. His aim was effective, and General Blanco, with an exclamation of pain, sank to the pavement.

While the confusion prevailed Salva stood calmly aside from the group of his comrades, almost where he had been when the shot was fired. He made no effort to shoot again, nor to escape. His comrades held aloof from him for a moment; but when some of the officers who had come from the palace with General Blanco rushed at him with drawn swords and with an evident determination to take summary vengeance, the volunteers quickly surrounded him and warded off the strokes of the swords. Salva made no effort to avoid the sword thrusts. "I have avenged the death of my brother," he said, "and that is all that I had to live for." As soon as Blanco had been removed Salva was put in Morro castle, where he is awaiting death. Blanco's wound is not dangerous.

There has been a perceptible sense of relief in the departments since Sunday. The situation of the marines has been graver than the officials cared to acknowledge. The arrival of reinforcements has changed the entire aspect of affairs, and until the invading army reaches the heights around the city of Santiago the fighting will be desultory, scarcely important enough to command the attention of the officials or the notice of the correspondents. No engagement of great importance may be expected for several days. Officials of the war department are frank in making this acknowledgment. They thoroughly understand the difficulties under which the invading force will operate, and their statement must be taken as conclusive. Several days must elapse before the troops and ordnance can be landed and mounted.

There was a wholesale christening at the navy department yesterday when Secretary Long supplied names for 35 craft. All these were provided for in the last naval appropriation bill, and while contracts for their construction have not been let the advertisements have been issued, except in the case of the monitors, and all the boats will be under way before cold weather. First in the list of the big battleships is the Maine, for congress has provided that that name shall be continued in the naval list. The other two big battleships will be called the Missouri and the Ohio. The first of the torpedo boats bears the name of young Bagley, who was killed on the Winslow under the guns of Cardenas, the first American officer to lose his life in the war. Four states have the privilege of giving their names to monitors, Arkansas, Connecticut, Florida and Wyoming. The names given to the 16 torpedo boat destroyers are those of America's famous naval heroes: Bainbridge, Barry, Dale, Chauncey, Decatur, Hopkins, Hull, Lawrence, MacDonough, Paul Jones, Perry, Preble, Stewart, Truxton, Whipple and Worden. The names applied to the torpedo boats are those of lesser fame, but still of glorious memory. Besides Bagley's they are: Barney, Biddle, Blakely, Delong, Nicholson, O'Brien, Shubrick, Stockton, Thornton, Tingey, Wilkes. There is now only one vessel, either building or authorized, left without a name, a gunboat officially known as No. 16.

Word went around the war department yesterday afternoon that the Cadiz fleet had made another spectacular appearance, this time returning to the home port. The source of information is not disclosed, so that it is impossible to tell how much credence to attach to the report. The navy department was promptly informed of the receipt of the message.

Rumors of troop movements continue to emanate from camp Alger. This time it is stated on what appears to be better authority than usual, that one brigade composed of the three most perfectly equipped regiments, the First Rhode Island, and Sixth and Ninth Massachusetts, is to be sent from this camp to Santiago. The Sixth Illinois, Eighth Ohio, Third and Sixty-fifth New York and Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth Michigan are said to be slated for Porto Rico, and the quartermaster-in-chief of the corps is supposed to be arranging for the transportation of these troops, who will, it is reported, be sent by sea directly from Newport News on the two liners, the Yale and the Harvard.

Troops Much Neglected.

Portland, June 21.—Veteran members of Portland military companies met last evening and organized for the purpose of furnishing the Portland companies at Chickamauga with many things which they need, but with which the government neglects to supply them. A surprise occurred at the very commencement of the meeting, for it has generally been supposed that the Maine troops were well cared for at Chickamauga; but a dozen men present had letters from the boys, and they were all to the effect that the troops were being greatly neglected, and some even went so far as to say that they were almost starving. These letters were not all from the privates, but some of the officers had written to friends saying that the feed was poor and insufficient in quantity, and only last week there came near being a riot in the camp as a result of it.

Suggested a Ransom.

Kingston, Jam., June 21.—F. W. Ramsden, the British consul at Santiago, who is acting for the United States in the negotiations with the Spaniards for the exchange of Hobson and his comrades, has suggested to the officials at Washington that a ransom might be paid to secure the prompt release of the American prisoners. That idea was undoubtedly expressed in the cable dispatches which passed through the colonial authorities here, but in what form it was shaped is not clear.

Will Have to Take Havana.

New York, June 21.—The Evening World contains the following dispatch from Key West: "General Blanco has refused to exchange Lieutenant Hobson and the men of the Merrimac's crew. On Saturday last a warship was sent under a flag of truce and tried to arrange for an exchange of prisoners. General Blanco sent out a launch to meet the United States officer, and his messenger stated that the governor general would not agree to any exchange.

"'The men are my prisoners and I will keep them,' said he. 'You will first have to capture Havana before getting them.' The effort to obtain Hobson's freedom has therefore, for the present, been abandoned."

Another dispatch says that Blanco's answer was that the exchange must be arranged through the British embassy at Madrid. He could take no steps unless specially authorized by the Spanish ministry.

TO REMEMBER HOBSON

Sampson Told to Show No Quarter to the Spanish.

Blanco's Decision Arouses Indignation.

Declared His Purpose of Keeping the Men In Prison.

Washington, June 21.—"Captain General Blanco states that Spanish government refuses to exchange prisoners." This was the official information received at the navy department from Commodore Watson, commanding the blockading fleet off Havana, regarding the attempt to secure an exchange of Lieutenant Hobson and his seven companions.

"Show the Spaniards no quarter," was the reply of Secretary Long to Admiral Sampson.

CAPTAIN JOHN C. WATSON.

The refusal of the Spaniards to exchange Hobson has created intense indignation everywhere, and the vengeance that will be dealt out by the American forces will be prompt and intense. There is no information in the navy department that Hobson and his men have been transferred from Morro castle to the city of Santiago. In view of the decision of General Blanco, Secretary Long says he hopes the transfer has been made, as Morro castle will be immediately destroyed. It has been a menace to the landing of the troops. It is believed here that the Spanish will place Hobson and his men in Santiago, in the hope of saving that city from bombardment. Nothing could better illustrate the Spanish character than the dastardly way they have acted regarding Hobson. With fair words they offered an exchange, and now they will not keep their promise.

"Remember Hobson," will be as deadly a cry for the Spaniards to hear as "Remember the Maine."

The war department has received information indicating that its officials had been able to secure an end of one of the cables running out from Cuba and which, when properly connected, will give Admiral Sampson direct communication with the department at Washington.

The interstate commerce commission will be asked to suggest some means of bringing the war between the American roads and the Canadian Pacific to a conclusion. The executive committee of the Western Passenger association has decided upon taking this course. The project of putting in a $5 rate from ocean to ocean has been temporarily abandoned

Good Afternoon.

Probably Ledger readers will find in today's paper all the Council business they will care to read, and reporters of the Ledger feel that they have written enough for one day on one subject, as the manuscript of the report was over fifty pages. Some comments will appear on the subjects debated in tomorrow's issue.

PATRIOTIC NOTES.

A Budget of Locals which is Full of Inspiration.

A good rain early this morning.

Mrs. Isaac M. Holt went to Norwell Monday for a few days.

The turnout on Washington street near Chubbuck street is being made longer.

Over 500 people visited the Quincy Yacht club house at Houghs Neck on the 17th.

West Quincy stores now close Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings at 6 o'clock.

Paul and Henry Newcomb of Stoughton have leased the Dole cottage at the corner of South street and Chubbuck street.

The street railway has commenced work laying another track on Hancock street between Squantum street and the Neponset bridge.

The asphalt blocks for the new walks at the Thomas Crane public library have arrived and will be a great improvement.

Tickets for the concert at Woodward Institute hall on Monday evening, June 27, can be procured of Mrs. W. W. Adams, Mrs. Theo. King, Mrs. C. Theodore Hardwick and at the door.

John S. Odom, a corporal of Co. K, 5th Regiment, left today for Chickamauga in charge of a squad of recruits for Co. M of the 8th Regiment, having joined that company. He says he got tired waiting for the 5th.

Chief of Police Litchfield and Officer Bradley spent Monday on the Boston police boat looking for the bodies of the two men drowned off Houghs Neck, Sunday, but were unsuccessful in finding them. Today divers will be sent down to try and find them.

The joint Committees on Finance and Water supply will meet tonight to consider the order granting the city of Boston permission to lay a twelve inch main from Neponset to Moon island. Work was begun on this extension, but was stopped at the request of Mayor Sears.

The alarm from Box 43 at 6.40 Monday evening was for a fire in the hen house of Michael Batts on the corner of Copeland and Common streets, which was damaged to the amount of $1. The cause is unknown but is supposed to have been caused by trying to burn out hen lice.

Was a $2,000 Fire.

The losses of last Thursday night's fire to the Y. M. C. A. building have all been adjusted, except that of G. B. Bates, where it is necessary to take an inventory of his stock which will take some time. Mr. Faxon was allowed $1000 on the building, the Y. M. C. A. $400 and S. K. Ames $100. Work repairing the building has been commenced and the roof is being patched up with a few new boards and shingles. The total loss may not exceed $2,000.

MIDNIGHT SESSION.

Street Improvement Reports Cause Lengthy Debates in City Council.

All the members of the City Council were present at the meeting of Monday evening, and nearly all took part in the debates. Street improvements were under consideration, and it was a question of finance whether the city could afford to make the appropriations.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Sewer Commissioners relative to clerical assistance for their office. To Committee on Finance.

The Mayor also forwarded a communication from the Sewer Commissioners stating that parts of the sewer would be ready for house connection by Sept. 21 and that from 12 to 14 miles of sewer will be completed before Nov. 31 and that the Council should adopt some contract for house connections. To joint committee on Sewers and Ordinances.

The Mayor forwarded a communication relative to the opening of Quincy streets by the Boston Water Board to lay an additional pipe to Moon Island. To joint committee on Water Supply and Streets.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the City Treasurer relative to the sale of land of Wood, Harmon & Co. for unpaid taxes of 1893 and 1894. To Committee on Finance.

A communication was received from the School Committee requesting that a room on the third floor of the John Hancock school be finished. To Committee on Public Buildings.

An invitation was received by the City Council to attend the annual exercises of the Adams Academy Monday June 27, at the First church.

PETITIONS.

A number of petitions for minor licenses were received. Those for the sale of fireworks and of C. H. Johnson for an auctioneer's license were laid on the table and the others were referred to the Committee on Licenses.

Petitions for State aid was received from Sarah D. Cole, Hannah Kimball, Charles C. Haskings, James Markee and Elizabeth O'Reilley. Those of Sarah D. Cole and Hannah Kimball were laid on the table and the others were referred.

The Electric Light and Power Company petitioned for the location of one pole on Clive street, and two poles on Prospect avenue. To Committee on Streets.

HANCOCK STREET HEARING.

At 8 o'clock a second hearing was given on the widening of Hancock street, between School street and Music hall block.

Henry H. Faxon favored and regarded it important that street should be widened. Did not think land taken on a deep lot was worth anything. Would be satisfied if no damages were awarded to him, but wanted to be used the same as other abutters. Did not think the market value of the land was $1 per square foot, or 50 cents, and hesitated to say it was 25 cents.

Many questions were asked by Councilman, but it would be impossible to report them even in substance.

The hearing closed and the order was recommitted.

There was also a second hearing on the Briesler corner.

Henry H. Faxon favored the widening. He had stated at the first hearing that he thought 75 cents per foot would be a fair price for the land taken. Now thought it too high. He did not think it feasible to erect a building on the present line. Favored more of a widening on Granite street, and offered to give the land if city would move back buildings.

George H. Brown, representing two of the owners of the Briesler corner, appeared in opposition. The value of this lot depended on its frontage. It now had 164 feet, but by the widening would have 15 less. He contended the heirs should not give the land. That the widening would be no benefit to the estate. That the land was worth $3 per foot. Some near by was sold nearly two years ago for $2. He understood the Saivngs Bank paid $2.87 per foot. Knew of $4.25 being offered per foot for land in City Square. The value of the Briesler corner was $31,000, and at $194 per front foot the value of the land it is proposed to take is $3,888. Had been offered $2.42 1-2 per foot for portion of it; $31,000 for all. Lot contained 12,787 feet, and it should be born in mind that it was triangular in shape. Considered $2.50 per foot a fair price. Other real estate men thought it low. When asked who, he said Mr. Whitman, Mr. Morton and others. One of the heirs he represented proposed to contest the award unless it was at a fair price. Estate had once given the town a slice at the corner. Owners preferred to have lot left as it was.

Henry H. Faxon asked Mr. Brown what the land was taxed for, and was told $1.15 per foot last year, and $1.60 to $1.70 this year. Would not object if it was taxed $2.50. Had no doubt widening would benefit Mr. Faxon.

The hearing closed at 9 o'cock and the order was recommitted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEES.

The committee on State Aid recommended that Ira Blanchard be granted $6, James A. Johnson $6, Harriet Joy $4, and Mrs. James A. Johnson $2 per month State Aid, and that Thomas Smith be granted 10 per month for Soldiers' relief. Adopted.

The Committee on Licenses reported an order granting a number of minor licenses, which was adopted.

The Committee on Ordinances reported as correctly engrossed the orders appropriating $5,000 for a new city stable and on the order relocating the lines of High and Franklin streets and they were passed to be ordained.

PUTNAM STREET.

The Committee on Finance reported ought not to pass on order laying out Putnam street as a public way.

Councilman Packard offered a minority report signed by Councilmen Packard, McGrath, Little and Prout (four of the seven members) that the order ought to pass, and appropriating $200.

Councilman Little explained why he had changed his mind from the first meeting, which was because he had received additional information.

Councilman Packard said all the taxpayers on the street would be benefitted and the city would get the money back in taxes in two years.

Councilman Sidelinger said that out of the six members of the Finance Committee present, five on a financial basis thought they could wait, as it was better to fix the main streets first.

Principal Assessor Perkins in response to a question by Councilman Packard said property would be more valuable if the street was accepted but the $200 could not be got back in a year.

Councilman Swithin thought it would be unwise to do other than accept the street, as it would increase value of property.

Councilman McGrath thought that the amount was so small and the matter so necessary, that the Council would still be standing for economy in voting it.

Councilman Parker thought the amount small and the property would be more valuable.

Councilman Jameson moved to lay on the table. Lost.

Councilman Merrick did not understand how five out of six voted ought not to pass. He should like to know if the Finance Committee took action before informing itself about matters. It is true these are only small matters but they count up. There was one question but what streets should be accepted but there were other matters.

Councilman Willard said the Committee on Streets were unanimous in its report. They made a personal examination of these streets. They have done much to promote the interest of the city and desire to see the city advanced. It looked queer that four men could come together and undo what seven men had done. These orders are taking streets that are in fairly good condition and on general principles the Street Committee ought not to set aside.

Councilman Freeman said there are other streets that need money more than these small outside streets. It had been a policy not to accept streets until they were in condition. The holes on this street should be filled by the abutters.

Councilman Poland —If the street was accepted property could be assesed more. It was holding back the city not to accept these streets.

Councilman Sidelinger asked Councilman Little some questions in regard to what additional information he had, to which the latter replied that which the Commissioner gave him.

The Council refused to accept the report of the Committee on Finance, and the order after being amended by striking out the clause relative to raising the money took its second reading.

EAST ELM AVENUE.

The Committee on Finance reported ought not to pass on order accepting East Elm avenue as a public way.

Councilman Packard offered a minority report appropriating $500 for the acceptance of the street.

Councilman Parker hoped report would not be accepted.

Councilman Sidelinger asked if he considered the street in proper condition to accept.

Councilman Parker thought it was in as good condition as we could ever hope to have it, as the property had changed hands.

Councilman Swithin thought the street in as good condition as half the streets. If we can improve the street for a small amount it would be a good thing.

Councilman Willard said there was one house on the street where there were fifty people. When the property was purchased one of the inducements was that the street would soon be accepted. When it rains it is impossible to drain it off. There was an old marsh in the rear of the house and to have a marsh at the back and an undrained street in front, and to pay $400 in taxes, was not right. It was a delightful drive to the water. There are many visitors here from other states and they naturally look about. It was not in the condition it should be for the amount of taxes paid. It was time the street was accepted and people who live there should get some encouragement.

Councilman Badger thought this a case where the street should be fixed as soon as possible.

Councilman Jameson and Packard spoke in favor of the order.

The report of the Committee was not accepted and after being amended by striking out the words relating to the raising of the money the order was advanced a stage.

NORTH STREET.

The Committee on Finance reported ought not to pass the order for widening North street.

Counciman Packard offered a minority report appropriating $1,000 for widening out the street.

Councilman Little said this was the order that made him change his mind. The street is in a dangerous condition, and if not put in shape the city will be liable to a suit. He was not decided as to the amount.

Councilman Jameson said he had made a personal inspection of the street and it did not seem necessary to expend $1,000. The narrow part was dangerous, but he understood it could be made safe for $250.

Councilman Newcomb said every person in Ward Two wanted the street fixed, and $1,000 expended on it. It was not asking too much and it was small business to cut it down. People of the ward were indignant at action of one of their representatives.

Councilman Sidelinger said he was elected at large. The last gentleman was wild when he said everybody wanted $1,000 expended. His action was from a financial point. We have got to stop spending money somewhere. He was in favor of fixing the street but did not favor $1,000 when it could be put in condition for $250.

Councilman Merrick would like to know upon what plan the finances were run. You went for the Finance committee because they did not cut the budget, and now you undo their work. Some considerations should be given their judgement.

Councilman Willard — The Street Committee should not be called rash for they had reported ought not to pass upon several orders. He also would like to know what plan the city was run on as to finance and streets.

Councilman Badger thought we should have better streets. They were very essential.

Councilman Swithin said the Committee on Streets had made careful examination of the street and it would be money thrown away to build a fence.

Councilman McGrath thought the Council should sustain the Finance Committee on this matter when $250 would make the street safe.

Councilman Prout was impressed with the air of economy of the Finance Committtee but did not agree with them on this street.

Councilman Hultman said street was laid out at 40 feet wide but now has only a travelled way of twelve feet. Two teams can not pass each other and if we can only expend enough money for a fence we had better build it across the street and close it up.

The Council refused to accept the report of the committee and after being amended by striking out the clause relative to raising money, it took its second reading.

An attempt to suspend the rules that further reports might be skipped was made about 10.30, but was defeated.

PAYNE STREET.

The Finance Committee made an adverse report, and there was no minority report.

Councilman Clark opposed the report and favored acceptance of street.

Councilman Packard would have offered a minority report but he could not find two men to agree on the amount necessary to expend.

The report was rejected, and after amendment the order took its second reading.

CRESCENT STREET.

The Committee on Finance reported favorable on the order appropriating $3,500 for regrading Crescent street and the building of sidewalks.

Councilman Little said abutters demanded that their land should not be used for drainage.

Read twice and referred to Committee on Ordinances.

HANCOCK STREET.

The Committee on Finance reported a reduction in the amount asked for the paving of Hancock street and building sidewalks, from $13,000 to $11,000, having provided for gravel sidewalks instead of concrete.

Councilman Swithin favored the larger amount and concrete. The net

Little Items of Interest About Town.

Dr. Virgin has removed to the old Hobart house No. 31 Washington street.

"Exams" are in order at the North High this week.

The graduating exercises of the North High will be held at the Baptist church, Thursday evening, June 23.

There is to be a grand patriotic demonstration at Lincoln square this evening.

George H. Bicknell is driving a new horse, which if appearances are to be relied upon ought to make some of the speeders around here, hurry.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dickeiman of Boston visited relatives in town recently.

Sunday evening at the Baptist church, Rev. F. B. Cressy delivered a very able address entitled "Our Schools and Our Country." By invitation the members of the graduating classes of the North and South High, of the Braintree High and of Thayer Academy were present; as were also the faculty of the respective schools together wi h the school board of Weymouth. A fine musical programme was furnished by the church choir, and appropriate selections by a chorus of pupils from the North High. Mr. Percy F. Baker also rendered a solo in a very pleasing manner. The exercises were enjoyed by a very large audience.

Miss Susie Pease, who has been dangerously ill, is reported as slowly recovering.

Y. M. C. A. Thanks.

At a special meeting of the Board of Directors of the Quincy Young Men's Christian Association held last evening a report of the recent fire at their building and a statement of the damage sustained was made by the General Secretary, William F. Hoehn, who also states that the loss had been satisfactorily adjusted with the insurance company.

A special committee consisting of Mr. H. T. Whitman, Mr. George H. Brown and Mr. N. G. Nickerson was appointed to act in the matter concerning the renovation of the rooms and to see that they are made in readiness at an early date.

It was also resolved that the thanks of the Association are due the Fire Department of Quincy for the efficient way in which they handled the fire; to the Police Department for protection afforded; to Messrs. Rogers Bros., C. F. Derby, and to all others who in any way assisted in saving and preserving the property of the Association.

AT SANTIAGO

Gen. Shafter and Expedition Arrive.

Spain's Cadiz Squadron Has Returned Home.

Washington, June 21.—The arrival of General Shafter with his troops at Santiago is officially confirmed. They arrived yesterday. The news was conveyed by Col. Allen of the signal corps to General Greeley. Also that direct cable communication had been established with Guantanamo by French cable.

Cadiz Squadron Back.

Washington, June 21—Advices from Marseilles report that the Spanish squadron has returned to Cadiz; also that the Victoria was injured and was towed into port.

Blockade News.

Key West, June 21—A vessel which arrived here this morning from Havana, reports all quiet along the line of the blockade. An occasional shot is fired at our scouts from Morro, but do no damage.

Peace Negotiations.

London, June 21.—The Paris correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette says the opening of peace negotiations by the powers between the United States and Spain will be commenced in a few days.

Spanish Cabinet.

Madrid, June 21—It is said that the entire Spanish cabinet will retire this week at the close of the cortes.

Next Week.

Dates for examinations in the Fifth regiment have been arranged and that for Co. K will be the last, on Wednesday of next week. Companies will go to camp at South Framingham as soon as examined and the regiment now expects to be mustered in next week.

Twins Born.

A friend of Mrs. Emmet M. Fisk (Adah Train of Helena, Montana, formerly of Billings street, Atlantic,) has received a "Helena Herald" with the following announcement:

Fisk—In Helena, at Kenwood, June 13, 1898, to Mr. and Mrs. Emmet M. Fisk, twins, son and daughter."

This will be interesting to the many friends of Mrs. Fisk in Atlantic, by whom she was beloved and who knew her so well as a young lady before she moved to the west to make it her permanent home.

MIDNIGHT SESSION.

cost to the city would be about the same.

Councilman Sidelinger defended the report.

Councilman Packard favored concrete.

Commissioner Knowlton said binding gravel would cost nearly as much as concrete, but did not understand that binding gravel was contemplated.

Councilman Parker favored concrete.

President Pinkham was desirous of speaking on the question but Councilman Packard, Sidelinger and Little successively declined to take the President's chair..

Councilman Badger favored concrete, particularly in the vicinity of the High school. He wanted to see good sidewalks in the city.

Councilman Jameson favored concrete.

Councilman Freeman was called to the chair and President Pinkham spoke a word of caution. He said the order included two subjects permanent sidewalks and permanent streets. In addition to this there was an order before the Council appropriating $25,000 for sidewalks, and $3,000 had been appropriated in the budget, while the appropriation of 1897 had not been expended. Yet this attempt to slide in $4,000 more. Concrete sidewalks were not necessary on portions of Hancock street proposed.

Councilman Little thought it best to get gravel sidewalks first with edgestone.

Councilman Poland opposed mud sidewalks. Edgestones did not always ensure a good sidewalk. Such an estate as the Taylor property should not however be assessed for a concrete sidewalk 1,000 feet long. He moved to substitute gravel between Elm avenue and Linden street.

Councilman Pinkham thought this a good example that we were getting sidewalks faster than needed.

Councilman Packard and Swithin favored concrete where much travelled.

Councilman Parker would not force concrete sidewalks on people who did not want them. To give abutters a chance to be heard he moved to lay on table.

Voted to lay on table.

ENGINE HOUSES.

The Committee on Finance favored the $975 order for the improvement of engine houses and after amendment it took its second reading.

PUBLIC LANDING.

The joint committee on Finance and Public Grounds reported ought not to pass on the order for a public landing at the Quincy Point bridge. Accepted.

OTHER IMPROVEMENTS

An amendment was reported to the $500 order for catch basins on Garfield street which were accepted and the order took its second reading.

Upon favorable report the order for $500 for a retaining wall on Furnace brook took its second reading; also the order of $475 for catch basin on Sagamore and Prospect streets.

BOSTON WATER PIPES.

Councilman Parker had the Mayors' communication relative to laying Boston water pipes through Quincy taken from the table and then offered an order allowing a twelve-inch main through Hancock, Atlantic and Squantum streets from Neponset to Moon island, under certain restriction. One was that hydrants should be located 1000 feet apart, and another that gates should be put in connecting with the Quincy pipes.

Several applications for licenses to sell fireworks were taken from the table and granted.

Councilman Parker offered an amendment to the rules of order providing that after Aug. 13 all petitions for acceptance of streets, etc., shall be referred to the next Council. Referred to Committee on Rules.

Councilman Poland offered an amendment to the ordinance concerning Fire Department providing that the driver of Hose 1 shall be a member of the company and that the number be increased one. To Committee on Fire Department and Ordinances.

Lieutenant Bumpus.

The Journal gives the following sketch of he Quincy young man whom President McKinley has appointed a second lieutenant in the regular army:

Edward Avery Bumpus of Quincy is one of the Harvard men that took up arms with great avidity when the first call for volunteers came, and at the first opportunity laid aside his studies and enlisted in Battery A, First Heavy Artillery, which was the first division of the Massachusetts militia to turn out for duty in the present war.

He was born at Weymouth, Mass., June 24, 1875. From the public schools of that town he entered Thayer Academy, where he prepared for Harvard. When he enlisted in the First Heavy Artillery he was a student in the Architectural School of the Scientific Department of the university.

Though never taking part in the public meets he was regarded by his fellow-students as a good all-around athlete. He is big of stature, well built and has all the characteristics that go to make up a good soldier.

He is the son of Judge E. C. Bumpus of Quincy, who, in the War of the Rebellion was First Lieutenant of the Forty-fourth Massachusetts Regiment. A grandfather and an uncle of the recently appointed Second Lieutenant were also soldiers in the Civil War, both serving as Captains in Massachusetts regiments, the latter receiving his death wounds during Sherman's march to the sea.

At present Mr. Bumpus is with the division of the First Heavy Artillery stationed at Nahant.

Oakes Turned Down.

Now it is reported on good authority that Lieut. Col. Oakes of the Fifth regiment, will not be appointed by Col. Whitney to that position when that regiment goes to the front, but that Capt. Erastus M. Weaver of the First Artillery, U. S. A., will be appointed.

This comes as a surprise to the members of Co. C of this city as Maj. Oakes as he is better known has been at all the social gatherings at Braintree, and has been popular with the members. The board of aldermen of Boston have protested against the action and in a resolve say:

"For 23 years William H. Oakes has been a member of the regiment, and solely by his own efforts and ability he has risen from the rank of private to that which he now occupies.

"His ability as a tactician is unquestioned; his influence for good in the regiment has been incalculable, and to us it seems that in the hour when Massachusetts is sending her best and bravest to the front, he should not be thrust aside for reasons which cannot be justified by any rules of military procedure hitherto followed in this Commonwealth.

"To thus ignore him, in our opinion, would be an injustice to a good officer; injustice to the rank and file who know, honor and esteem him, and injustice to the municipality of which he is a citizen and in which a large part of his military service has been performed."

Memorial Church.

Rev. Mr. Whitaker of the Atlantic Memorial church preached Sunday morning on "Fashions in Theology" from the text John 51:39-40. He contrasted modern interpretations of the Scriptures with former acceptations of its truths and dwelt especially on the spirit which uplifts and brings the seeker into the realm of Christ which can never be divorced from its pages.

There was a most delightful song service embracing two quartettes, two trios and two solos, conducted by Miss Harriet S. Whittier of Boston, assisted by four of her pupils, Misses Whittier, Ferguson, Buffington and Chapin.

Daisies formed the special feature of floral decoration with massive foliage as a background, the whole producing a fine effect.

The pastor's theme at the evening service was "The Art of Listening," which he characterized as one of the finest of the fine arts. Its importance to the speaker as well as the listener was estimated, and an appeal was made for its cultivation.

The regular evening choir Misses Susie and Annie Hall and Messrs. Gassett and Thomas sang a choice anthem.

Flag Raising.

Mrs. Kate A. Hayden, had a flag raising, Monday evening at her home on River street. Ex-Mayor Porter, Captain of the Sons of Veterans, President of the Relief Corps, and others to the number of 30 or more were present. As the Star Spangled Banner was being sung by the invited guests on the lawn, the flag was unfurled by little Grace Hayden of Newton. After which speeches were in order from the ex-Mayor and Capt. Hart. When invited into the house the guests listened to singing and instrumental music. After which cake and ice cream were served, and a general good time enjoyed.

Letter from Key West.

Another letter has been received from Allie Williams of Wollaston, who is on the U. S. S. Oneida.

Key West, June 6, 1898.

"Great weather in this part of the country, hotter than I ever before saw it.

Fruit is very plenty. I wish that I could send you some. It is as cheap as it is plenty.

I have a good chance to get on the bridge as signal boy. I am studying hard and if I get up there it means more money, I suppose, but then I shall have to give up the gun that I am gunner of.

Men from the Navy Yard are repairing the machinery. The boiler was repaired but when the steam was turned on another leak was found. They may have to put in a new boiler, and if they do it means quite a long stay here. They want to get us off as soon as possible. As we have been assigned to the blockade squadron which is before Havana. It is a "good thing" if we make any captures.

The harbor is full of prizes and war ships. It is a great town, but I could see all that there is to see in an hour. Negroes are as thick as flies. There are about 700 marines here. It seems to be hard work for them to get good food and money. They sell all of their kit that they can spare, one man sold his blanket and goes half with another man and he splits his in two.

I went ashore the first night. Regular southern sights, but if you don't have any money you can't go much.

There is a hard looking crowd on shore. I believe every negro carries a gun. There have been a numbered murdered here. The town is under martial law and consequently I had to get in at 10 o'clock.

We are anchored about 100 yards from a wharf. The captain has just come aboard in the gig. He has been up the harbor after fish. He got some from a Spanish fisherman.

The British steamer Restormel from Cardiff with coal, for the Spaniards, a prize, lays bout 20 feet astern. She is a big vessel. The coal is being discharged. ALLIE WILLIAMS.

John V. Scollard Dead.

John V. Scollard, a prominent citizen of Braintree, was found dead in his room at Hotel Savoy, Boston, this morning. The cause of his death is not given although it is hinted that it was suicide. Mr. Scollard was born in Braintree in 1860, and has always taken an active interest in public affairs. He was elected a member of the water commissioners of Braintree in 1888. He was again elected a commissioner under the act of 1896. He served upon the committee having charge of the settlement of the famous water suits, and also on the committee which constructed the electric lighting plant. He also served upon the board of selectmen, and was at the time of his death collector for the water commissioners. In politics he has always acted with the Democratic party, and has served on the State Committee. He was an active member of the Young Men's Democratic Club of Massachusetts.

—The summer meeting of Norfolk Conference of Unitarian churches will be held with Eliot church, South Natick, Thursday. There will be an address by Rev. Charles H. A BULLET FOR BLANCO

Port Morant Monday morning, reports that he sighted transports convoyed by United States warships 50 miles south of Crooked island passage Sunday morning. He was due north of Cape Maysi. Captain Hopkins reports also that he was chased by the Helena. The transports, he says, were headed southeast, and, in his judgment, for Porto Rico. He argues that if they were bound around Cape Maysi for Santiago, they were far off their course.

It is believed here that Captain Hopkins is mistaken and that the transports were simply keeping clear of sight from land.

Advices From Manila.

London, June 21.—The Daily Mail's correspondent at Manila says: "Captain General Augusti telegraphs that he has gone into the walled city and will be unable to communicate further with the government."

General Aguinaldo desires that the islands become an American colony. He declares that if he cannot be connected with the United States he will insist upon a republic being formed. If any other country wishes to secure the control of the Philippines, that country will have to fight for it. The insurgents have 10,500 rifles and field pieces.

General Nonet, going southward with 3000 mixed troops from Belacan, 30 miles north of Manila, found the railway line blocked and was taken in ambush by the insurgents. Fierce fighting ensued and was carried on for three days, during which Nonet was killed. The native troops joined the insurgents, and the Spaniards who were left, about 500, surrendered.

A battalion of native militia, supposed to be particularly loyal, began shooting its officers and killed five when the insurgents attacked Marabon. The Spanish succeeded in disarming and imprisoning a portion of them, but they escaped when the insurgents captured Marabon.

Poison In His Food.

London, June 21.—A Hong Kong correspondent says: "According to the report of the United States transport Zafiro, which has just arrived here from Manila, a dastradly attempt was made last week to poison General Auguinaldo. He was taken suddenly and violently ill after partaking of a meal, and the symptoms were such as clearly indicated that poison had been mixed with his food. He was ill for two days."

Interview With Garcia.

Kingston, June 21.—General Garcia and his personal staff were picked up at General Rabi's camp, 18 miles west of Santiago, and brought to the New York by the Vixen. There the grizzled and wounded patriots had a long consultation with Admiral Sampson regarding the operations for the investment of Santiago and the co-operation of the American and Cuban forces. General Garcia is very enthusiastic. He says the Spaniards are starving and cannot hold out long, and that the war in the island will end in a few months.

No Liquor In Camp.

Washington, June 21.—At Camp Alger yesterday the First brigade, first division, and Second brigade, second division, marched down to the river to bathe. Each regiment marched in fighting order with its baggage train under heavy guard, and the New York cavalry have been ordered to intercept and capture the wagons, if possible. They returned to camp today.

An order has been issued prohibiting the introduction of alcoholic drinks in camp. Two deaths were reported yesterday, one from a Michigan and the other from a Missouri regiment.

Yellow Fever In McHenry.

Washington June 21.—Two new cases of yellow fever have broken out at McHenry, Miss., the quarantined town, and were reported to Surgeon General Wyman. The official dispatches located the new cases in the same houses where the first seven cases occurred. Camp Fontainbleau, just outside the little town, has been prepared in anticipation of further developments.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, June 21.—The senate yesterday rejected a proposition of Mayor Quincy of Boston that he may be authorized to appoint temporary heads of departments. The legislators object to alleged centralization of power. The motive of the bill lies in the fact that Colonel Bogan of the Ninth regiment, superintendent of buildings, has gone to the front, and Mayor Quincy has no power to appoint a temporary superintendent.

John A. Demmo was sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory yesterday. He had filled the roles of clergyman, bank cashier, and salesman in a drygoods store. He was convicted of embezzlement. Circumstances forced him to abandon the profession of a preacher and to seek mercantile employment.

The ways and means committee of the senate reported ought to pass on the bill to abolish the cattle commission, and to substitute a commissioner, with an amendment that the $25,000 appropriation be reduced to $10,000.

Among the bills enacted were the Torrens land transfer and the codification of the election laws.

Mr. Hayes of Lowell offered a bill to abolish the board of trustees of the Rutland hospital for consumptives, and it was referred to the committee on rules.

Mr. Stone of Springfield opposed the senate bill to reduce the liability of innholders for losses sustained by guests, and the bill was killed almost unanimously.

The house reconsidered the rejection of the bill increasing the salaries of the harbor commissioners, and passed it to a third reading.

The judiciary committee of the senate reported against the house bill to prohibit the use of trading stamps.

Fire In Springfield.

Springfield, June 21.—A threatening fire broke out in the union block at 1:45 o'clock this morning. When the department arrived smoke was pouring in dense volumes out of the windows of the third and fourth stories, which are occupied by lodge rooms of a score or more secret orders. The upper stories are gutted and the stores on the first and second floors suffered a heavy smoke and water loss.

CALLAHAN'S PITCHING.

Bostons Lost Their First Game In the City of Wind.

Chicago, June 21.—Following up the good work of the past two weeks, the Chicagos played sensational ball Monday and won by a nose from the beaneaters. Duffy and his men made a hair-raising finish, and narrowly missed pulling out a victory.

Two factors are responsible for the defeat of the Bostons, the brilliant twirling of Callahan for five innings, and the sensational fielding of Lange, Dahlen and Connors. The home team had their eye on the ball, too, and touched Nichols up lively in two innings. For five innings Callahan pitched good ball, and not a man got safely to the initial bag. But 15 men stepped up to the plate. Score:

The Louisvilles defeated the Washingtons in a dull and uninteresting game yesterday, 8 to 1.

The Brooklyns fell on Young of the Clevelands for four hits, two of which were two baggers, in the sixth inning yesterday. Cleveland's errors were also costly. Score: 7 to 4.

The Cincinnatis played their worst at home. Damman was pounded all over the lot, and his support was ragged. Maul of the Baltimores was almost invincible. Score: 17 to 2.

The Pittsburgs played fast yesterday, and the New Yorks were not in it at any stage. Score: 9 to 2.

The Providences batted Horton of the Buffalos freely and ran bases in daring and effective style. Five hits and a sacrifice, with two errors in throwing to the plate, figured in making five runs, all in a bunch in the fourth inning. Score: 9 to 3.

The Tauntons were victors in New Bedford, 3 to 2. The losing team was just about half a team, but four men playing their regular positions and all three pitchers being used to make up a full nine. Inability to hit Mains was the principal reason for the defeat.

The Brocktons defeated the Newports in an interesting game, 7 to 2. One of the features was the assistance offered the winners by Umpire Hunt, who seemed to go out of his way in unnecessarily favoring the Brocktons after the game had been won.

The Fall Rivers won from the Pawtuckets in the first inning, when a double, a hit by pitched ball and a home run scored three runs. Buelow had to retire from the game in the seventh owing to a bad split hand received from a foul tip. Bernard has been suspended from the Fall River team. Score: 5 to 2.

Esper of the St. Louis team was batted all over the field yesterday. The Phillies secured 21 hits off his delivery. Score: 14 to 2.

Immediately after the game with the Tauntons yesterday the New Bedford players decided to finish the season then and there. Since June 13, when the Olympic Athletic club threw the players on their own resources, they have been trying to carry things along themselves. They have tried the scheme just a week, and as a result divided about $100 yesterday afternoon, each man receiving about $10.

The Egotistical William.

Berlin, June 21.—The official organ says that Emperor William, in a speech which he delivered to the imperial guards in Potsdam on Thursday, spoke of the army as being his most important inheritance, and said: "When I ascended the throne with a weighty load of anxiety everywhere was I regarded askance, and everywhere I encountered false judgment. My army alone believed in me and, supported by you and trusting in the God of our forefathers, I assumed my heavy office, knowing well that the army was the chief support of my country and the chief pillar of my throne." His majesty concluded with hoping the "loyalty of the army will become ever more pronounced, and that its main supports, namely, bravery, honor and unconditional and unswervingly blind obedience, may ever remain unshaken."

To Bind by Caucus.

Washington, June 21.—The Democratic caucus called to consider the question of making caucus action in the future absolutely binding upon caucus participants remained in session until midnight. Final action was postponed until next Monday night, when, if a quorum be present, a vote will be taken upon the resolutions offered by Mr. Bailey and amended by Mr. McRae of Arkansas. Mr. Bailey's resolutions provide that caucus action should be binding upon all questions not involving constitutional contentions, or questions treated in the national platforms. After considerable debate he accepted an amendment offered by Mr. McRae excepting questions involved in state and district platforms, and pledges made personally by members.

NEW ENGLAND CROPS.

How Last Week's Weather Affected Them as Officially Reported.

Boston, June 21.—The weather conditions last week as reported by Director Smith of the district bureau were favorable to farmers. While showers fell in parts of all sections on from one to three days, they were light, or generally fell at hours when there was no work. The only complaint of damage is from Sullivan county, N. H. Sunshine was abundant in most instances. In northern parts of the district the nights were too cool for rapid growth. In Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut the week was almost ideal for agricultural pursuits; but the temperature conditions were not so favorable, and for that reason crops have not advanced as rapidly as might be desired. Light frosts occurred on the 15th and 16th in the lowlands of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

Considering the district as a whole the crop conditions are satisfactory, and, perhaps, better than the average. The grass crop is generally in advance, from a week to 10 days, but otherwise the season is somewhat backward. The prospects are, without exception, considered promising, and at present presage satisfactory returns.

In most sections the growth of grass is luxuriant, and the sunshine has greatly improved the color and quality. The product is considered excellent in all respects. Haying is in progress in sections of the southern half of the district, and will soon begin in the northern sections. Numerous correspondents predict the largest crop yet produced. Clover, owing to heavy growth and unusual height, is reported to be lodging badly in numerous fields.

Corn, while not making a rapid growth, is much improved. It is generally backward, though all are hopeful of an average crop. In Vermont and New Hampshire cool weather has made it yellow. It needs rain in the former state. Other cereals are reported in a satisfactory condition.

Caterpillars continue their injurious attacks on apple trees in Kennebec and Waldo counties, Me.; Cheshire county, N. H.; Orleans, Addison, Chittenden and Grand Isle counties Vt. In some sections of Chittenden and Grand Isle counties the forests look as if swept by fire. Trees will be killed unless the pest soon desists. For the remaining parts of the district the fruit crop continues most promising.

The sunshine and showers have been especially favorable to garden truck, and all vegetables in this class have made rapid growth. It is reported plentiful, and in many instances abundant. Early potatoes are in bloom as far north as Vermont and New Hampshire. A large acreage of field potatoes is reported in Maine. Early peas are about ready for market in Massachusetts, and seeded onions are promising fairly well in Connecticut. Bugs and beetles are plentiful, but have done little damage as yet.

A man has to have pluck to make a success of any calling. A man must have the backbone to take knock-down blows and get up again and again and fight on.

Pluck and stamina are largely a question of good health. It only takes one knock-down blow to finish a man with a headache. It only takes a small setback to disconcert a nervous and shaky man. A bilious, headachy man goes into bankruptcy at the first embarrassment. A nervous man who does not sleep at night and gets up shaky in the morning gives up the battle of business at the first discouragement. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the best of all health-makers and health-keepers. It makes pure, rich blood. It forces out all impurities and disease germs. It does not make any difference what the disease may be called, so long as it has its inception in improper or insufficient nourishment—this great medicine will cure it. It may be called dyspepsia, kidney disease, "liver complaint," skin or blood disease, or nervous prostration—all these have the same starting point. The "Golden Medical Discovery" reaches that point. It will cure these diseases absolutely. None of them can retain their hold on the system when the arteries are filled with rich, pure blood.

"I am 54 years old," writes Mr. F. G. Bledsoe, of Leesville, Henry Co., Mo. "For 25 years I suffered from torpid liver, constipation and indigestion which severely affected my nerves. Having to make my living by hard work, I would keep on until I would have to give up. Sometimes my friends would pick me up and carry me to bed. What little sleep I could get was tortured with horrible dreams. I took six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It relieved the pain in my back and between my shoulders, braced up my nerves, and to-day I am a well man."

OUR ARMADA.

Misery of the Marines Relieved at Last.

ARRIVAL OF SHAFTER.

Will Be Some Days Before the Debarkation.

Kingston, June 22.—General Shafter with 16,000 men is off Santiago, getting there Monday afternoon. Admiral Sampson's blockading fleet and the strong convoy that escorted the troopships extend in a vast semicircle between the transports and the green coast, crowned with grim Spanish castles, behind the battlements of which the gunners are waiting for the shock of the battle that must make the Americans masters of eastern Cuba.

Admiral Sampson was advised of the approach of the troopships by the Rodgers and Ericsson, and he promptly sent Captain Chadwick of the flagship New York to receive General Shafter. Captain Chadwick went in the Gloucester, and acquainted General Shafter with the location of the several points at which the troops might be landed. By direction of the admiral, Chadwick advised that the transports remain out of sight of land until the point at which the troops are to debark had been selected. General Shafter accepted this suggestion, and the troop fleet remained 20 miles out to sea.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA FROM THE HILLS.

We do not know just where the landing will be, but wherever it is there the Spanish columns will meet it and try to drive our soldiers back into the sea. With the magnificent fleet to cover the landing of our troops the Spaniards must fail. Then will come the advance on Santiago from the land side, the conquest of ridge after ridge, until the stars and stripes float from the hilltops that command doomed Santiago.

General Shafter and his staff left the other vessels and steamed to the flagship of the American fleet in order to visit Rear Admiral Sampson. The general went on board the flagship and the Seguranca proceeded to Acerraderos, a little over 17 miles west of Santiago, near which General Garcia is encamped with 3000 Cuban soldiers. General Shafter and his staff and Rear Admiral Sampson were conveyed to Garcia's headquarters about a mile inland, where they spent several hours in consultation. General Garcia gave the Americans assurances that they need have no fear of contracting diseases on the southeastern coast of Cuba, as the climate there is not unhealthy, only extremely hot, at this season of the year. The Cuban general declared that his own troops, ill fed and clothed as they were, were in good health, and therefore the Americans need not fear fevers or other ailments.

General Shafter examined the condition of the Cuban soldiers during his visit and was impressed with their hardy and soldierly appearance, though he recognized the fact that they need clothes and provisions, both of which were given them during the day. The interview closed with the understanding on the part of both generals that small bodies of troops are to be landed at once at several points along the coast, where they will be safe from serious attack by the Spaniards and will be able to keep the enemy in doubt, for the present, as to their ultimate intentions.

Before nightfall all the other transports and the convoying warships had drifted nearer to the shore, and the Spanish soldiers, watching from the bluffs on both sides of the entrance of Santiago harbor, must have been impressed by the great array of vessels standing off shore. There were nearly 60 of them, including the troopships and the men-of-war, comprising Rear Admiral Sampson's fleet and the squadron of Commodore Schley. The 8000 Spanish soldiers and perhaps 2000 sailors guarding the city and harbor of Santiago doubtless concluded that there was but a small chance of overcoming the force of American warships and some 20,000 American soldiers and sailors which will be hurled against them before the present week is over.

The soldiers, most of whom beheld the shores of Cuba for the first time in their lives, watched the steep mountain sides through the gathering darkness with many thoughts of home passing through their minds, realizing the fact that in a few days they would be fighting for their country's honor in the deep canyons which were then darkly visible in the gloom of the passing day, and wondering how many of them would return to the homes they had left to do service in the nation's cause, and how many would find a grave in that strange and distant land they had come to conquer. The newspaper dispatch boats, which had been steaming back and forth among the transports since the arrival of the latter, were held at every stage of their passage with the request to take latters to the nearest mailing point, giving accounts of the voyage and announcing the safe arrival of the army off the enemy's coast. For some it might be the last word for mother, wife or sweetheart at home from him who had answered the call of his country and left family and fireside with light heart, buoyant spirits and all the enthusiasm of youth to combat a foe foreign to him in race, tongue and natural instincts. According to the regulations at the outbreak of the war, not a light was visible on any of the ships and the cordon of men-of-war lying under the Spanish guns near Morro castle kept their vigil with more than usual care during the dark hours of the night to guard against the approach of a destroying torpedo boat which might attempt to run out of the harbor and, with a well-directed shot, sink a troopship in the depths of the sea and send the souls of those aboard her into the realms of eternity.

FEVER AND CYCLONES.

Freedom of Marines and Vessels From Disease and Storm.

Washington, June 22.—The fact that the sailors on board Admiral Sampson's ships and marines on shore have thus far escaped even the slightest touch of yellow fever encourages the authorities here to believe that perhaps the dangers from that source have been greatly overestimated. Up to the present time the American forces have not only been extremely fortunate in escaping Spanish bullets, but also in experiencing freedom from the cyclones which are common in the Caribbean sea and the gulf of Mexico at this period of the year. It is realized, however, that this good fortune cannot be expected to continue, and steps are being taken to establish signal stations on the coast of South America to give warning of the approach of tornadoes and hurricanes.

The secretary of war has been for some days considering the problem of disposing of the large number of prisoners who are expected to be captured at Santiago and Porto Rico. Yesterday he conferred with several of the well-known southern officers, among them ex-Senator and now Major General Butler, as to the best policy to be pursued. It has been practically decided that the prisoners will be placed on board the transports now at Santiago and brought to the United States. In this event the military prison will be established at Fort McPherson near Atlanta. The advantages possessed by this site are numerous, but the most important is the freedom from possible spread of the yellow fever. The transfer of the prisoners to this country will be necessary because of the difficulty of feeding so many thousand men on Cuban soil, and also because the war department does not wish to maintain a large army at

SENATOR BUTLER.

Santiago, a detail which would be necessary should the prisoners be kept at that point.

The government has determined to send heavy reinforcements to General Shafter at Santiago. The first expedition will leave Newport News Thursday morning, carrying Brigadier General Duffield's separate brigade of the Second army corps, made up of the Ninth Massachusetts, the Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth Michigan and the Third Vir-

FELL TO THEIR DEATH.

Overwhelming Disaster During a Launching In England.

Men, Women and Children Dropped Into Eternity.

Staging Upon Which They Stood Wrecked by a Wave.

London, June 22.—The bodies of five men, 18 women and 11 children have been recovered in Blackwell, which was the scene Tuesday of a frightful disaster that followed the launching of the British first-class battleship Albion by the Duchess of York. How many more are missing can only be conjectured. It is thought that the number of dead will exceed 50.

A staging had been erected for workmen near the stern of the Japanese cruiser in course of construction in the Blackwall yards. It was a light structure, about 50 feet long, and notices had been posted warning the public that it was dangerous. Despite the efforts of the police, some 200 people invaded the staging, which commanded a good view of the launching ceremony. Two great waves completely demolished it when the warship slid into the water, and on receding carried most of its occupants into deep water.

The water was alive with struggling people and floating debris. It was a scene of terrible confusion. The shrieks of the unfortunate people mingled with the cheers after the successful launching. Fortunately there was plenty of help near in the shape of police boats and other craft. The shipbuilders with drags and the firemen who were employed in an ornamental capacity at the ceremony were all prompt in affording succor. A number of nurses had come to witness the launching. Some of these and many others were revived by artificial respiration. Some were injured by colliding with the debris.

There was an ample supply of restoratives soon available and everything possible was done for the rescued, many of whom were in a state of complete collapse. Heartrending scenes were witnessed as the identification of the dead slowly proceeded.

To Plant the Flag.

Columbus, O., June 22.—H. M. Dougherty called the Republican state convention to order yesterday afternoon. A letter from Senator Hanna was read. It aroused much enthusiasm. On being introduced as temporary chairman, General Grosvenor reviewed the pledges of the party at the St. Louis convention and what had been done since the inauguration of President McKinley. He said: "It will be the policy of this administration to plant the flag of the United States at Hawaii, to occupy it and fortify it, and make it a part of the territory of the United States; and when the war is over we will then settle the question of what sort of a government we will have there. I doubt very much whether you and I will live to see the day when, by order of a Republican administration, the starry banner of your country's glory shall be pulled down from any flagstaff where conquest of arms has placed it."

Proposals for wood and coal wanted.
Board in private family wanted.
Meat cutter wanted.
House to let in Braintree.

Good Afternoon.

The old three-corner buiding at the junction of Washington and Coddington streets is being shingled. We are sorry to see the new shingles put on, although they are much needed. The building is an eye-sore to the centre of the city; and located as it is, makes the corner a quite dangerous one. Pity it could not have been torn down, or moved to a less conspicuous place. The city needs the land and could get along without the building; the street also needs widening. When will the city wake up to these needed improvements.

It is suggested that the people of Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth, interest themselves in the creation of a fund for the benefit of the company members. The kindness of the town of Braintree and the city of Quincy in providing blankets and other things some time ago is acknowledged and appreciated by the soldier boys who now realize that many articles will have to be provided in a few days. Under clothing and other necessities will have to be purchased immediately, and as the pay of those going to the front is small, and will not be forthcoming for some time yet a grand chance is offered to remember in a substantial way those who are called upon to make the greatest sacrifice. The company members look wistfully at the fund now being collected in this city for the Christian Commission and the wish is often expressed that the money might be used in the manner outlined here.

Y. M. C. A. Rooms Closed.

At an important meeting of the special committee of the Y. M. C. A. this morning to take action concerning the rooms, etc., it was decided that the rooms shall be closed for the period of at least one month, or until the improvements have been completed. The members will take due notice. However, the athletic field will be open and lights secured for evening work in a few days. A tent will be provided as a dressing room. The tennis court is in good condition and is being freely used. All business of the Association will be carried on as formerly, and when the general secretary may not be found at the rooms, inquiry may be made at his residence, Avon way, Presidents hill, or at the office of George H. Brown & Co.

Alumni Oration Prize.

The pupils of Adams Academy were present at their school house Tuesday afternoon to hear the speaking of the Alumni Oration prize of $10 in gold. Several graduates were present. Two very interesting addresses were delivered. One by Gilbert Ray Kent on "Nelson," the other by Avery Lowell Bennett on "Alcibiades." Both from Wollaston. The former was awarded the prize, and will repeat his oration at the prize declamation on Monday. The Committee were Messrs. F. H. Curtiss of 1887, Charles Sampson of 1890 and A. W. Hall of 1892. They declared themselves greatly impressed with the merit of both speakers.

Ward Six Work.

Among the work now in progress at Atlantic is the building of the street railway tracks, putting in a culvert on Hancock street near the Catholic church, building a retaining wall on Atlantic street, replanking Neponset bridge, building a stone bridge and grading of Billings street; the Boston Water Works gang laying pipe on Hancock street, and cleaning out the culverts and drains.

BRILLIANT WEDDING.

Quincy Young Man Takes a Chicago Bride.

[Special to the Daily Ledger.]

Chicago, June 21, 1898.

A brilliant wedding of wide interest was that of Miss Kate Shumway Anderson of Chicago and Mr. Dexter Emerson Wadsworth of Quincy, Mass., solemnized this evening at the New England Congregational church. Long before eight o'clock the large edifice was crowded to its utmost capacity, the organist, Mr. Shoebeck, playing softly during the time of seating the guests.

The bridal party entered to the stirring strains of Lohengrin. The six ushers, Mr. Rollin, Dr. Salisbury, Mr. Joseph Raycroft, Mr. Clarence Wooster, Dr. Ernest Freund, Dr. Shambaugh and Mr. Blatchford were followed by the maid of honor, Miss Annie M. Wadsworth, sister of the groom, and the bridmaids, Miss Elizabeth Wallace, Miss A. Boyesen of Chicago, Miss Antoinette Cary of Cleveland and Miss Carolyn Leech of Louisville. The bride was met at the chancel rail by the groom and his best man Mr. George Wendall of Quincy Mass., and was given away by her brother, Mr. Henry S. Anderson of Cleveland, Ohio. The ceremony was made more impressive because performed by the father of the bride, Rev. Edward Anderson, the Episcopal form of service being used. During the ceremony the beautiful evening Star Song from Taunhauser was played, the party leaving the church to the Mendelssohn march.

The church with its long middle aisle and dark wood work lent itself admirably to the decoration of great banks of palms and white daisies in the chancel, while the pews reserved for the family and friends were designated by large bunches of the same flowers.

The maid of honor wore a gown of white muslin over white silk, and carried a bunch of daises. The bridemaids were attired in gowns of white organdie with pink bows and carried shower bouquets of pink sweet peas. The gowns all had demi trains and as the bride's attendants were all tall and slight young women they presented a very graceful appearance.

The bride's gown, quite out of the ordinary and a beautiful creation was of liberty silk over satin, en train, with conventional high neck and long sleeves. The tulle veil was pinned with a pearl crescent and pearl and diamond star. The groom's present an emerald and diamond brooch, was conspicuous in contrast. The bride's shower bouquet was of white sweet peas.

Seldom has so brilliant a company assembled in the church as on this occasion. The groom is a prominent young man of Quincy, Mass., and president of the Granite City club of that city; the bride has been for four years a very highly esteemed member of both the social and professional circles of the University of Chicago.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Anderson of Cleveland, Capt. and Mrs. Wadsworth of Milton, President and Mrs. Harper of the University of Chicago, Miss Marion Talbot, Dean of Women of the University of Chicago, Dean and Mrs. H. P. Judson, Prof. and Mrs. W. G. Hale, Profs. Harper, Iddings, Capps, Tarbell, Miller, and Judge and Mrs. D. A. Shorey.

At eight-thirty a large reception was given Mr. and Mrs. Wadsworth by Gen. and Mrs. Leake, cousins of the bride. Their hospitable home at 218 Cass street never presented a more attractive appearance, lavishly decorated with palms and daisies, the same idea being carried out as in the church decorations. A room on the second floor was devoted to the many beautiful presents.

A pleasing incident at the reception was the announcement of the engagement of Miss Grace W. Pettengill and Capt. Henry L. Kincaide, both of Quincy, Mass., and popular young people. Capt. Kincaide will go to the front next week with Co. K of the Fifth Massachusetts Volunteers.

At midnight Mr. and Mrs. Wadsworth left for the East, where after August first, they will be at home in Quincy, Mass.

WOODWARD '98.

Graduation Exercises Last Night—Able Address.

The Woodward Institute hall was cowded Tuesday evening at the graduation exercises of the class of '98. Ferns were conspicuous in the decorations and the picture of Dr. Woodward, the founder was entwined with ivy. Over the platform was the motto, "Yet to Be." All the young ladies of the school were in white, that being the class color this year.

The pastors of the city, who constitute the board of directors were well represented, there being on the platform besides Miss Small, Mayor Sears and the speakers, Revs. Breed, Friguglietti, Preble, Wilder, Cuffe, Parker, Norton, Peach and Hardy; also Rev. A. F. Roche of Hingham, a former member of the board, who takes a deep interest in the school.

Three choruses under the direction of Mr. J. D. Buckingham opened the programme: "The Young Greek's Prayer," arr. from Beethoven; "Gypsy Song," arr. from Schubert and "Daybreak," arr. from W. T. Deaul. These were excellently rendered, particularly the last mentioned which was without piano accompaniment.

The graduates were then conducted to the platform by two of the undergraduates. The class this year numbered five, Miss Mary Gurney Dolliver, Miss Maud Wright Macfarlane, Miss Louise Reinhalter, Miss Georgiana Shea, Miss Mary Abigail Sullivan.

Miss Small, the principal introduced in her usual gracious manner the speaker of the evening, Rev. A. B. Kendig, D. D., whose subject was "Myself." It was a very able and uplifting address punctured frequently with concrete and witty illustrations which made it exceedingly interesting as well as valuable. He instantly gained favor with the audience in introducing the subject. He propounded in turn the questions: Who am I? and What am I? and answered them satisfactorily, arriving at the conclusion that I am "myself." I am a resolvable puzzle and it is my duty to make a good account of myself. He enlarged on the fact that the body was the tool with which I work, and the necessity of pure and a clean body to inspire success in life, dwelling on the fact that more reverence should be paid to the stomach. Other divisions of the subject were: I am a thinking animal, and I am a spiritual animal. Body, mind, and soul must be considered together, for if I lose my soul I lose myself.

The following class song written by Miss Dolliver, one of the graduates, was then sung by the school:

Our life puts forth in hope today,
New tendrils fair;
New root it takes in centres new,
New fruit to bear.
Old barriers, limits, thrust aside
Fresh fields before us stretching wide;
The past no more shall be our guide,—
No more our care.

But when our new life is fuller grown,
With work and song;
When we who 've made its truth our own,
To life belong,
Sweet gratitude our theme shall be,
Our thoughts, our thanks will turn to thee,
The parent stem that formed, till we
To live were strong.

Rev. Walter Russell Breed, the vice chairman of the directors, in presenting the diplomas, thought it was not necessary to say anything more after the able address of Dr. Kendig. Education is the cultivation of an ideal, and he was pleased to note that the ideal of the Woodward was high. It was not all intellectual, but mind, body and soul together make an ideal actuality. The diplomas were presented individually.

The school then marched out concluding the exercises.

The work of the school in drawing and painting was exhibited in one of the upper rooms and included oil paintings, charcoal sketches, pencil drawings, etc., all very creditable.

One Body Recovered.

The body of Zenas Babbett, one of the two men drowned off Houghs Neck on Sunday, has been recovered. Monday Chief Litchfield and Officer Bradley found the yacht and had nearly succeeded in hauling it ashore when the Boston police boat put in an appearance. The police boat later sent down a diver and the body was found in the bottom of the boat. The body of Frost has not been recovered as yet.

The relatives of John V. Scollard of Braintree deny the report that he committed suicide, and regret that such a story should have gone forth.

The chains around First church afford a good swing seat, and every day men can be seen swinging in the shade of the grand old trees.

Parties wishing a retired home would do well to investigate the estate advertised to let in Braintree, 10 minutes to two lines of electrics and steam road.

Washington street should have two more lights, for there are two sections of this street which are dark as pitch; one at Pond street and one between North and Chubbuck streets.

The alarm from Box 63 at 9 o'clock Tuesday was for a slight fire on the railroad bridge on Altantic street, evidently caused by sparks from a passing locomotive. The fire did not amount to anything and the recall sounded before the Central station apparatus arrived.

In order to avoid confusion all yachts which sail in the Quincy Yacht club's handicap races must be numbered. The numbers will be furnished by the secretary gratis. They shall be placed on each side of the mainsail near the peak. Yachts not displaying numbers may not be recognized by the judges nor have their time taken.

Officer Timothy J. McCarthy, one of the new specials was on duty Tuesday night at Atlantic, and made a record for himself by making four arrests at different times during the evening. Two were for drunkenness, one for disturbing the peace, and one for assault on an officer. The assault consisting of his being hit on the head with a stone thrown by the arrested man.

CHANGES IN FIFTH.

Lieut. Col. Oakes Not the Only One Out.

Boston, June 22—Changes in the Fifth Regiment are general. It is probable that Morrison of Braintree and Clement of Waltham will be the majors.

Maj. Ballard cannot go to the front, for business and domestic reasons. Adjt. A. E. Locke could not go because he was under business engagements which keep him at home. Capt. Mason of Company B has resigned. Col. Whitney said yesterday that when he made his appointments to the Fifth, he would make all the appointments in one batch.

Oakes Indignant.

Boston, June 22—There is talk among the friends of Lieut. Col. Oakes of holding an indignation meeting because he has been thrown down in the Fifth regiment. But there are military men who admire the courage of Col. Whitney, and say that Lieut. Col. Oakes is not qualified for the position.

Nothing to Report.

Washington, June 22—No word was received during the night from Admiral Sampson or General Shafter. As the cable is working this is taken to mean that there is nothing to report.

Flag Raising.

Arrangements are being made for a grand flag raising to be held at St. Mary's hall, West Quincy, Friday evening, under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the society. There will be music by a band and patriotic speeches by Mayor Sears, Christopher Fay and others. Ice cream and tonics will be served in the lower hall. The flag will be thrown to the breeze from the top of the tower.

☞In the list of this weeks' amusements you will want to keep in mind the baby reception, strawberry supper and entertainment, Thursday at the Universalist church. Baby reception will be held at 3 P. M. Pretty souvenirs will be given. Strawberry supper at 6.30, best of Dewey strawberries and cream from the very top of the milk. Good entertainment in the evening at 8 o'clock. Admission 10 cents; supper 15 cents.

TODAY'S COURT.

David Allard and Edward Gleason were fined $5 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

John Curtin was fined $5 for disturbing the peace at Quincy.

William Bowen was arraigned for assault on officer Timothy McCarthy. He was fined $15.

A Lewiston dry goods man received a letter the other day from a boy who wanted a job. "My folks is dead and I've got to hustle," wrote the youth. He got the job.

HAS HER SHARE.

Quincy Has More Industries Than Larger Cities.

The latest census publication by the State is part 1, volume 5, of the census of 1895, issued today. The first summary shows the number of private firms and corporations by towns, classified by manufacturing and mechanical industries. In Quincy there are 214 firms and 14 corporations, a total of 228 against 53 in Braintree, 75 in Brookline, 47 in Canton, 78 in Dedham, 39 in Foxboro, 58 in Franklin, 111 in Hyde Park, 74 in Needham, 35 in Norwood, 41 in Randolph, 66 in Stoughton, 140 in Weymouth and a smaller number in other Norfolk County towns. The total number of establishments in the county is 1352, giving Quincy one-sixth, so that it will be seen that the city has a large number of industries and they appeared to be diversified:

Artisans' tools,	7	—	7
Awnings, sails, tents, etc.,	1	—	1
Boots and shoes,	8	1	9
Building,	38	—	38
Carriages and wagons,	4	—	4
Clocks, watches and jewelry,	3	—	3
Clothing,	10	—	10
Cordage and twine,	1	—	1
Drugs and medicines,	7	—	7
Electroplating,	1	—	1
Food preparations,	10	—	10
Furniture,	2	—	2
Gas and residual products,	—	1	1
Hosiery and knit goods,	1	—	1
Leather,	1	—	1
Machines and machinery,	3	—	3
Metals and metallic goods,	12	3	15
Photographs and photographic materials,	1	—	1
Polishes and dressing,	1	—	1
Printing, publishing and bookbinding,	3	—	3
Saddlery and harness,	1	—	1
Shipbuilding,	3	—	3
Stone,	94	9	103
Tallow, candles, soap and grease,	1	—	1
Wooden goods,	1	—	1
	214	14	228

Another summary will be valuable as it shows Quincy stands high among other cities in the number of industries. None of the cities incorporated since Quincy in 1888 have more industries, while this city has more than some of the older cities and ranks well with many larger in population. It seems to clearly answer some who charge that Quincy has few industries:

HARVARD CORNELL YALE.

Will This Be the Order in the Big Race?

New London, Conn., June 22—The weather conditions for the boat race at 2 o'clock today are good. The wind is blowing six miles an hour from the north, the water is quiet and the sky clear.

Race Delayed.

New London, 2 P. M.,—The conditions have suddenly changed. It is raining hard and thunder and lightning accompany the shower, causing white caps on the river.

The Cornell crew is the only one at the starting point. The observation train is ready to start.

The Scudding Sail.

The yacht Clara Lou, Robert Corthell in charge, came up from Nantasket Sunday morning and reported a wet trip. E. A. Merrill, E. F. Brown and A. J. Vaughan who were in the party coroborated Mr. Corthell's statement, and their appearance when they landed at the Wollaston Yacht club float was sufficient evidence that they had not been lying out in the sun.

The yacht Burgess belonging to Commodore Frank Burgess of the Wollaston Yacht club took French leave from her moorings Sunday about noon and drifted near to Long Island, where she was picked up by Mr. W. D. Given who was out sailing. Mr. Given dropped the anchor giving her the full scope of her cable and reported at the club house. Later, the Commodore and Mr. C. W. Page rowed out to the Burgess and sailed her into her moorings. No damage.

The sloop yacht Wild Duck, Capt. Hamilton Flood, of the Squantum Yacht club sailed to Marblehead on the Seventeenth. Capt. Flood had for guests Mrs. Bennett, Mrs. Cherrington, Mr. William Dickerson, Mr. John Osborne, Mr. Guy Chadborn, Mr. Frank Freeman and Mr. Clarence Sargent. Capt. Flood reports a pleasant trip with just a little excitement coming home Monday morning. He left Marblehead at 3.15 A. M. the wind blowing great guns from the north, and sailed along under a three reefed mainsail and arrived safely at her anchorage at five minutes past six.

The schooner yacht Enigma of the Wollaston Yacht club with Capt. Nelson, Al. Dickey and A. T. Barstow went to Marblehead on the Seventeenth, enjoying a view of the races given off Nahant by the Massachusetts Yacht club, also part of the race at Marblehead given by the Burgess yacht club of that town. A very pleasant visit was made in and about the old historic place.

Mr. Nelson returned by rail Saturday owing to business duties. Mr. J. S. Baker joined the party Saturday and returned to Wollaston on the schooner Monday morning. They left Marblehead about 3.15 A. M. with a strong north wind, but were enabled to carry her foresail, mainsail and staysail, and made port about 6.15 A. M.

The Idlewild of Savin Hill left Marblehead about the same time—they keeping in close company. The Idlewild was pretty well reefed but notwithstanding that she took a heavy puff when near Deer Island which carried away her mast clean from the deck. Then it was that Mr. Barstow who had charge of the Enigma quickly went to the assistance of the dismasted sloop. There was found to be nine or ten persons aboard two being ladies. One of the gentlemen and the ladies boarded the schooner and were safely landed at the Wollaston Yacht club from where they soon departed for their homes by rail. The other members of the party on the disabled boat remained on board at anchor and waited assistance from a tug which soon towed them into port.

Seattle to Tyonick.

We sailed on the steamer Noyo, Capt. Hansen in charge, at 6.15 P. M. Wednesday, May 18th, 1898. Our party composed of seven persons. We coaled up at Weillington, Van Couvers Island, in Departure bay where we remained 14 hours. At this place and Nanaimo, a small city three miles away, are several coal mines. At the former place is found the best coal on the west coast. There is to be built at this place, three miles of new docks, each pile will be coppered and cost $45 each, 3,800 piles are to be driven. Coal is sold for $4 a ton at the wharf. Some 18 vessels touch here each year. This is a fine bay; large timber abounds; very rocky and mountainous in the distance. When we sailed we passed several fine mountains, on the islands and mainlands. At places small streams leaped down the mountain sides. Saw porpoises and plenty of wild fowl on the coast of British Columbia.

We arrived in Wrangle at 5.15 P. M. May 22. This place is built on the side of a small mountain at the head waters of the bay, six miles from the mouth of Stickeen river. Here several new houses have been erected this spring. The Canadian Pacific has built a wharf 300 feet long with a large ware house. This place is on stilts so to speak, many houses and sidewalks are several feet above the ground on piling. Here is a large salmon cannery, several Indian families live here, and on the graves of the dead chiefs they erect a Totem-pole, a log with several different images, carved on the side of them, very curious.

On May 23d at 4 P. M. we saw dozens of porpoises leaping in the water, whose sporting caused much merriment among the passengers. We passed Douglas island, where The Tredwell mines are, several stamp mills and quite a town.

At 5.20 P. M., May 23, arrived at Juneau city. This is quite a busy and substantial town: large stores and about 3,000 people. At the head of the bay, at the sides are high mountains, some 3,000 feet high.

On May 24, at 6 A. M. we arrived at Skagway. This is a place of some importance. There are four wharves, miners depart here over the white trail for Dawson. We went four miles to Dyea at the head of the bay or sound. It is a smaller town, than Skagway, at the foot of Chilcoot pass the nearest point to the lakes which empty into the Yokon river which flows from the Klondike gold fields. These cities are surrounded by high mountains 4,000 feet high covered by snow.

This harbor is very shallow, no wharf is complete. They are two miles from the town. The gamblers in these cities are too numerous to mention. The Canadian mounted police will not allow them to cross the line from Alaska.

At 11.15 A. M. Wednesday, May 25th, we came into the edge of Glacier bay, which had large and small floats of ice coming down from the Great Muir glacier, which is the largest in the world. Could see it some 50 miles away at the head of that bay. No ship can come within half a mile of this glacier, for they would be destroyed.

Passing on we saw whales, porpoises, ducks and numerous other birds in Pass sound, going out into the Pacific ocean. At 1.30 P. M. could see Gekie glacier, on Lapivose mountain which is 10,000 feet high.

Now 5 P. M. we can see the grandest sight we ever beheld; high mountain peaks, craggy, in all forms all covered with snow large glaciers coming down the passes into the ocean.

May 26, 6.30 A. M., we arrived at Yacitat, a very small place where Indians principally live. They fish for salmon and hunt. At 10.20 A. M. we can see Malispena glacier, which is 40 miles long.

At 1 P. M. we are passing Mount Logan, and Mount St. Alias, two of the loftiest peaks in North America. Logan is 19,500 feet high, St. Alias 18,024 feet high. At times could get a glimpse of the tops which were cloudy. Another large glacier. Saw several whales. This afternoon and night quite stormy. Entered Prince William sound and arrived at Valdies at 7 P. M. May 27. Here a lieutenant and several soldiers are in tents. They are doing some survey work. Here is a bay hemmed in between high mountains which are 8,000 feet high, all covered with snow. Glaciers here are 40 feet deep. The snow where the tents are pitched is four or five feet in depth. Looks here deceive a person. Miles look as though they were only one. Here, is where some weeks ago a Dr. Tanner, was hung. He shot two men dead and wounded two others. Several men have slipped into crevises of the Valdies glacier, or snow slides have smothered them. Saturday, May 28, 6 A. M., left Valdies passing down the sound and out into the ocean again at 4 P. M. Going out some 50 miles, could then see mountains and glaciers all the way.

Sunday, May 29th, at 6 A. M., we turned into Cook's inlet. At 9.45 A. M. we anchored in a small bay, out from Saldoqia, where they took on fresh water from the shore in the small boats. We can see two high mountain peaks, to the west, which are some 12,000 feet high. Weather here is milder. We arrived at Tyonick, Alaska, at 11 P. M.; time 12 days and 5 hours. HUGH R. JONES.

OUR ARMADA.

ginia regiments, in all about 4000 men. Expeditions will follow rapidly by way of Tampa, for while Fernandina and Miami are considered to have many good points for concentrating troops, yet army officials are satisfied that Tampa can be retained with advantage as the main point of embarkation. The next forces to go will include those of Brigader General Garretson of the Second brigade of the first division, second army corps, embracing the Sixth Illinois, the Sixth Massachusetts and Eighth and Ninth Ohio regiments.

The reports from Santiago that about 41,000 Spanish troops are in and about the city do not agree with the reliable estimates in the possession of the war department. According to the latter's figures there are not to exceed 14,000 Spanish troops at Santiago, while 100 miles away to the northwest, at Holguin, the Spanish corps commander, General Pando, has 10,000 men. The war department is satisfied that the Cuban forces under Garcia can keep Pando from reinforcing Santiago. Should this not be accomplished, the Spanish forces at Santiago would be augmented to about 25,000 men. They are well armed, well disciplined, seasoned to the climate, know the fighting grounds of that locality, and are probably as good an all-around fighting force as the Spaniards can bring to bear. There is no purpose on the part of the authorities here to leave General Shafter with an inadequate force to meet these seasoned Spanish soldiers.

Would Prevent Confusion.

Chickamauga National Park, June 22.—Recruits continue to come in by the hundred. It is stated that General Brookes, General Wade and others have recommended to the war department that no troops be removed from Chickamauga until the date of the departure of an invading expedition is fixed. Transports, they think, can be loaded with supplies and ammunition in advance. Then, with just time enough to make the journey, the troops can be moved directly from the camp to the ports and marched at once, fully equipped, on shipboard. The generals suggest that this is a better way than to move the troops to the gulf, camp again and hold them until the expedition is ready to start. They believe a higher degree of efficiency can be maintained by their plan and that much of the confusion and delay encountered in the departure from Tampa can be avoided. It is probable that the plan will be accepted.

General Linares Telegraphs.

London, June 22.—The Havana correspondent of The Times says: "General Linares, in command in the province of Santiago, telegraphs that 60 vessels, supposed to be carrying the American expeditionary force, have arrived off Santiago.

GENERAL LINARES.

"General Blanco is sending six battalions to protect the coast of the province. Great enthusiasm prevails in Havana. Order is maintained, and no yellow fever is reported."

Boston Opinion.

Boston, June 22.—"The Cubans," says The Journal, "are past masters in the difficult art of bush warfare, as brave as men can be, and fairly running over with delight at the coming of the long-looked-for 'Americanos' and the prospect of an early end of their years of toil and sacrifice."

The Advertiser says that "the arrival of General Shafter's army off Santiago at noon yesterday may fairly be considered to have marked the termination of a very successful and satisfactory voyage."

The Globe vouches for the statement that "it is not true that the horses in the Cuban expedition, when the troopers comb out their tails, turn their heads around and whinny, 'Remember the maine!' "

DEFEATED AGAIN.

Bostons Go Down a Second Time Before the Chicagos.

Chicago, June 22.—Klobedanz was unable to puzzle the Chicagos with his curves yesterday, and another defeat was chalked up against the beaneaters. was chalked up against the beaneaters. He was clearly outpitched by Thornton, and largely contributed to the downfall of the champions by giving eight bases on balls, four of which resulted in tallies.

Although the Bostons batted harder than the local team, the large number of passes, combined with four damaging errors, was too great a handicap to overcome. Long's hand bothered him considerably, and he made three errors out of nine offered chances. Both teams hit the ball hard. The champions touched up Thornton for 13 hits for a total of 19 bases, while the orphans found "Kloby" for 11 safe singles.

The eastern pitcher led in the batting with a home run, which netted three runs, and a single. Chicago clinched the victory by opportune hitting in the second and fifth innings. Score:

With two amateurs playing and the only Todd in the box the Pawtuckets won from the Brocktons yesterday, 4 to 3. It was a pitchers' battle throughout and Todd had the better of it. An error by Stouch and a passed ball by Duff gave the Brocktons two of their runs.

Hard bunch hitting, backed by errorless fielding, against scattered hits and many errors, won the Pittsburg game for the New Yorks, 10 to 3.

The Philadelphias won easily in St. Louis in the ninth inning. Taylor pitched effectively until that inning. Score: 9 to 6.

The fielding on both sides in the Cleveland-Brooklyn game was bad, but the Clevelands gave a little the worst exhibition, and lost, 17 to 5.

Tuesday Mercer proved the easiest mark the Louisvilles have struck this season. The senators ran bases like dummies. Score: 14 to 3.

Pitcher Yerkes of the Rochesters lost the game yesterday by slovenly handling of ground balls, and inability to bat. The Providences were quick on the bases, and Hodson was effective at critical periods.

Daring base running by McGraw and a well placed hit by Keeler won the Cincinnati game for the orioles in the 10th inning yesterday. Score: 4 to 2.

The Fall Rivers had an easy time with the Newports yesterday, winning by 7 to 2. The feature was Newport's inability to play the game.

Mr. White on Annexation.

Washington, June 22.—Interest in the discussion of Hawaiian annexation, which is proceeding in the senate, already has begun to lag. Early in the present session the senate debated the question behind closed doors for six weeks. During that time a majority of the speakers were accorded close attention. It is evident from the proceedings yesterday that the senators will not become enthusiastic over arguments which are not now new to them. Mr. White (Dem., Cal.), the leader of the opposition, spoke for three hours and a half. His argument was skilful and was presented with oratorical ability, but it failed to command the attention from senators it really deserved.

After passing several bills of minor importance the house in committee of the whole considered, without disposing of it, a bill to refer to the court of claims claims of persons for property taken or destroyed by the Confederate invasions into the southern counties of Pennsylvania. The bill brought on a long debate, in which it was vigorously advocated and opposed.

Massachusetts Legislature.

Boston, June 22.—In the Massachusetts senate yesterday Senator Gallivin made another attack upon the Boston aldermanic bill. By a vote of 24 to 7 the bills was passed to be enacted. Then the senator urged his motion that the senate reconsired its rejection of the bill permitting the appointment of temporary heads of departments in Boston. By a vote of 10 to 21 reconsideration was refused.

The street railway bill was passed by the house to engrossment after a long debate and plentifully amended.

Mr. Hayes of Lowell had taken up his order for an investigation of the trustees of the Rutland hospital for consumptives. On the adoption of the order there were 57 yeas to 66 nays on a rising vote. On a rollcall there were 80 yeas to 104 nays.

The resolve appropriating $50,000 for a hospital ship came down from the senate. The house passed the resolve through all stages, without opposition or further debate.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

Fair, clear and pleasant weather, with light winds, seems certain through Thursday, and may continue longer. While it may be warmer by Thursday, the temperature will probably continue pleasant, rising but little if any above 80 degrees at the highest.

May Go to Chicago.

Providence, June 22.—President Andrews of Brown university expects that President Harper of the university of Chicago will arrive in this city about the latter part of the week to see him perhaps in regard to educational matters in Chicago. President Andrews suggested that the visit might be for the purpose of conferring on proposed changes in the Chicago schools, as Harper is a member of the board now actively considering this, and President Andrews is an advisory member of the same board.

When asked if the visit was not for the purpose of offering him the position of superintendent of the public schools of Chicago, President Andrews declared he was unable to state. He said, however, that he had not recently received the offer of the position, having last been communicated with directly on the subject some six months ago. He had not yet authorized his name in connection with the office, which is an elective one, and added that his name had been mentioned among others.

New London Alive.

New London, June 22.—This whaling town last night witnessed a visitation of the old days when the metropolis of the American Thames was the scene of the greatest intercollegiate boating contests of the country. During the late afternoon and in fact throughout the night incoming trains from all directions brought hundreds of prospective spectators of the great triangular boat race between Yale, Harvard and Cornell. A picturesqueness, entrancingly beautiful, was lent the scene by the innumerable lanterns bobbing up and down from the many gaily decorated yachts anchored in the harbor. To the old-timers, however, it was noticeable that the craft which sought anchorage in the harbor, for the purpose of being on hand for the big event, in no wise approached in number the magnitude of the spectacle afforded in former years.

Contents of a Trunk.

Buffalo, June 22.—Yesterday a trunk containing a man's dismembered body was found floating in the Blackwell canal. The man's head had been cut off, both legs had been severed at the knees, and the arms and legs were terribly mangled, but were attached to the body by the tendons and muscles. In his breast were a number of stab wounds, one of them extending through the right lung. The body has been identified as that of Philip Forestano.

The Shore Reached Very Easily.

Cubans Have a Brush With the Spaniards.

Washington, June 23.—The hour of conflict is narrowly approaching. American troops have landed in force on Cuban soil, and under a tropical sky and amid a forest of palms is soon to be fought the first really grea tbattle of the war.

Not only official Washington, but the entire country will wait breathlessly on the messages that must come before long over the cable that connects the capital with the Cuban shore.

No doubt is felt as to the outcome, but it is realized that even the least resistance by the Spanish must result in casualties on the American side. The Spanish shot and shell will go wildly astray, if they do not find lodgment in the ranks of 15,000 men. At the same time the experiences of the past week indicate that the casualties will not be numerous. If a handful of marines can keep at bay and finally disperse an army of several hundred Spaniards on the shore of Guantanamo bay with less men killed than can be counted on the fingers of one hand, General Shafter's army ought to do fearful execution upon the enemy and escape with little loss. There is, indeed, no reason to fear otherwise. Despite all the alarming talk of a Spanish host at Santiago, the actual developments are likely to prove the presence of only a few thousand ill-fed and badly armed soldiers.

A detachment of the Second Massachusetts volunteers was among the first to be landed. While the troops were passing ashore, Admiral Sampson's fleet bombarded the forts both east and west of Santiago harbor. A force of 1000 Cubans seemed to spring out of the ground at just the proper moment and attack the Spaniards near Daiquiri. The Spaniards had prepared to meet a disembarkation to the west of Santiago and also to the eastward, but at Daiquiri, the place chosen, there was only a Spanish blockhouse on a high cliff to the right of the landing pier, with a small fort and earthworks in the rear.

Proceedings were begun by the American fleet, which, strung out along the coast, hurled shells at nearly every fortress. The fortifications at Aguadores, Cabanas, Siborney and Juraguay, as well as the blockhouse and fort near Daiquiri, were all bombarded. Small wonder is it that the Spaniards did not know where the Americans were really putting their men ashore, considering that the line of bombardment was fully 20 miles long.

The official information from General Shafter, for which the secretary of war had been waiting so anxiously, reached the war department yesterday afternoon. It stated that the army was successfully disembarking, and that Santiago was to be attacked at the sides and in the rear.

Shortly after Secretary Alger received his dispatch Secretary Long received a more extended cablegram from Admiral Sampson. It, too, was dated at Playa Del Este. The text translated from the navy department cipher is as follows:

"Landing of the army is progressing favorably at Daiquiri. There is very little if any resistance. The New Orleans, Detroit, Castine, Wasp and Suwanee shelled the vicinity before the landing. We made a demonstration at Cabanas to engage the attention of the enemy. The Texas engaged the west battery for some hours. She had one man killed. Ten submarine mines have been recovered from the channel of Guantanamo. Communication by telegraph has been established at Guantanamo. (Sig.) Sampson."

In both army and navy circles the information contained in the dispatches of General Shafter and Admiral Sampson was received with intense satisfaction. The landing of so large a body of troops as General Shafter's is a task of immense proportions. A prominent official of the war department said that the complete debarkation of the troops, animals, field guns and supplies within a week after their arrival off the Cuban coast would be a task well accomplished. It is probable that only a partial landing of the troops was effected, and that the landing will be continued from day to day until completed. It is not unlikely too that the troops will be landed at several places along the coast, of course within a short distance of the headquarters which General Shafter will establish.

Admiral Sampson's dispatch indicated that he was carrying out his instructions thoroughly to clear a way for the landing of troops. The demonstration which he made with the Texas before Cabanas, which is just east of Guantanamo, may easily have led the Spaniards to suppose that a general landing was to be attempted in that immediate vicinity. It was evident from the text of Sampson's dispatch that a considerable landing had already been effected near Guantanamo, as he noted that communication by telegraph had been reestablished at that point, and that the channel had been cleared of submarine mines. In the opinion of naval officers the landing at Guantanamo was of marines rather than of land forces.

The reinforcement of General Shafter actually began yesterday in the departure of a regiment and a battalion of the troops at Camp Alger for Santiago. They go to Newport News and then by steamer to Santiago. If expectations are realized, these troops are likely to occupy less time in the passage than did the first contingent which left Tampa, notwithstanding the distance is twice as long. Formal orders were issued placing General Henry in charge of the new division of troops composed of Duffield's and Garretson's brigades. Probably some of the troops now at Tampa will be attached also, in which case they will be dispatched in separate transports.

The Thirty-third Michigan and one battalion of the Thirty-fourth Michigan were selected to go first, comprising 1350 men and 53 officers. It is expected that the Harvard will be the ship first ordered. The remaining regiments and battalions of General Duffield's command will leave on Saturday next, taking the Yale. The entire expedition will then proceed under command of General Duffield, whose brigade consists of the Ninth Massachusetts, the Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth Michigan and the Third Virginia regiments. General Duffield had a conference with Secretary Alger on Tuesday night, during which the details of this move were gone over. The general has the fullest confidence of the secretary, being a Detroit man and bearing a personal relation to Secretary Alger. General Duffield is regarded as one of the best equipped officers of the volunteer service. He had a long and distinguished service during the civil war, going out with the Ninth Michigan infantry, of which he became adjutant. Later he went on the staff of General George H. Thomas, in command of the army of the Cumberland, and was with that hero through the notable engagements in which he participated. General Duffield's expedition is expected to report to General Shafter in about four days from the time the ships leave Newport News. It will augment the forces under General Shafter to about 20,000 men. Besides these, the present plan of sending reinforcements contemplates that General Garretson's brigade of 4000 men will go as soon as transports can be secured, which is expected to be at an early day by the purchase outright of the needed vessels.

It is not forgotten by the department officials that the landing of troops is only a beginning of the work. Indeed, considerable apprehension is felt as to the next moves, for the task ahead of the American army is difficult indeed. Daiquiri is connected with Santiago by two roads. Inquiry is made whether these roads are passable for ox teams. In the rainy season, which is now on, they are practically impassable by any means, and if the army is to reach Santiago, it will be obliged to spend much time in making a road which will be suitable not only for the passage of men but of the heavy artillery.

Immediately in the neighborhood of Santiago and in close conjunction with the American troops are between 3000 and 4000 insurgents fully armed and equipped. Within a radius of 50 miles are nearly 10,000 more, some of whom are keeping watch on Pando, and others of whom are engaged in preventing the return to Santiago of the main body of Spanish troops, which have gone down

Story as to a Foreign Occupation of Manila.

Consent of Spanish Alleged to Be Given.

German Admiral Said to Be In Command of the Landers.

London, June 23.—The Daily News publishes a statement, alleged to come from a correspondent having access to good information, that the occupation of Manila by parts of the crews of foreign warships is an accomplished fact. The communication proceeds to say: "Over a month ago Admiral Dewey prepared to bombard Manila. At this juncture, however, a new factor was added to the situation. The German consul, acting on precise instructions, strongly opposed a bombardment. These instructions were clear and categorical, and emanated directly from Emperor William's cabinet. It was then that Admiral Dewey asked for reinforcements and supplied Aguinaldo with arms. While Germany gathered a naval force, the intention at Berlin was, if not to take possession of Manila, at least to co-operate in the landing, Admiral Dewey's force not being sufficient to protect German interests.

"Captain General Augusti had, on his part, informed his government of the situation, and several interviews took place at Madrid with the German ambassador, the result being that it was decided that Captain General Augusti should appeal to the foreign warships at Manila, excluding the American, to protect the lives and property of the inhabitants against the insurgents.

"It was an indirect way of capitulating, while sparing Spanish amour propre. There is no doubt Admiral Von Diedrichs has taken command of the forces landed, although he has not taken possession in behalf of Germany; but will he, when the American reinforcements arrive, be willing to allow his forces to

Good Afternoon.

Another suggestion is that Quincy give Co. K a grand send off when its goes to Camp Dewey at South Farmingham probably on Tuesday or Wednesday next. They have already marched through Braintree, and the town fairly outdid itself, and Quincy would like a similar opportunity.

The action of the City Council in accepting as public ways such streets as Putnam and Payne and East Elm avenue, seems the right course to pursue, and it is to be regretted that Cottage avenue and such streets in the heart of the city were not included. As to the widening out of North street there seems no demand for a special appropriation; whatever is urgent should be done out of the general highway appropriation. Probably the need is greater for the widening of Coddington street at its junction with Washington, than is the widening of a portion of Payne street, but neither should be long delayed.

If these small improvements are incorportated in one loan as now intended there will be no burden on the taxpayers. We would go further and include in one improvement loan all the special appropriations contemplated this year. Many one-year loans of $200 and $500 would swell considerably the maturing debt of 1899, while one-tenth of $10,000 is but $1000, and this amount would not be felt. Taxpayers in 1899 will pay for some improvemnts which should have been spread over 1900 and 1901, so it is right that they should have the benefits of other improvements and ask 1900 and 1901 to pay for them.

GRAND WEDDING.

Burgin-Rodgers Nuptials at First Church a Society Event.

The First Unitarian church was Wednesday evening, again the scene of a large and brilliant wedding. Long before eight o'clock the whole house was filled with friends of Miss Minnie Morton Rodgers and Mr. Clarence Burgin all gathered to see them united.

The ushers were Hon. Charles Francis Adams, 2d, Mr. Moreton T. Swallow, Mr. Fred B. Rice, Mr. George B. Dewson, Mr. Henry M. Faxon and Mr. George E. Pfaffmann.

While the guests were being seated Mr. James F. Harlow presided at the organ playing continuously. At eight o'clock the notes of the wedding march sounded and the doors on each side of the altar opened from the chapel and the ushers and bridemaids came down the centre aisle to meet the bridal party, while Rev. Ellery Channing Butler, the groom and his best man, Hon. Russell A. Sears, proceeded to the altar.

The bridal procession moved up the main aisle, the ushers first, the bridemaids, the maid of honor, the little flower girl and last of all the bride and her father Mr. Henry C. Rodgers. The ceremony was the full Episcopal service and was most solemn and impressive, as read by Mr. Butler.

Miss Mollie L. Rodgers, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and wore a gown of white Swiss muslin over pink silk. Little Miss Edna Burgin of Springfield, niece of the groom, was a most lovable flower girl, and looked very sweet in white and pink, and carrying a large basket of roses. The bridemaids were Miss Florence Rodgers of Buffalo, cousin of the bride; Miss Lyle Parker of Louisville, Kentucky; Miss Carrie Lord of Wollaston, and Miss Florence Emery of Quincy. Their gowns were of white Swiss muslin with pink sashes and ruffles and they carried pink roses. The bride's gown was a white mousselaine de soie over white silk, tried with white satin bebe ribbon, cut en train, and she wore long tulle veil.

Pink predominated in the church decorations as well as for the bridal party. The altar was banked with green, filled in with peonies and daises, while all the pews on the main aisle had knots of pink and white peonies.

After the wedding a reception was held in the church chapel which was also beautifully decorated, peonies, roses and daisies being prominent. Mr. and Mrs. Burgin received in the parlor and were assisted by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Rodgers; the groom's mother, Mrs. Thomas Burgin; his brother, Mr. Edwin Burgin, of Springfield; and the flower girl, maid of honor and bridemaids. Mrs. Rodgers wore a beautiful gown of black over white silk. Mrs. Burgin was in black silk. Although a stranger to many Mrs. Burgin's kind motherly face attracted many and all were delighted to meet her.

Dill of Cambridge catered. An orchestra of three pieces, under the direction of Mr. Walter E. Loud, played entrancing music throughout the reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Burgin were very generously remembered with choice wedding gifts, but they were not exhibited.

Miss Grace W. Pettengill and Mr. Henry L. Kincaide, whose engagement was announced the previous evening at the Wadsworth-Anderson wedding in Chicago, were showered with best wishes and congratulations.

Mr. and Mrs. Burgin after a short trip will reside at 2 Bigelow street.

Grover—Cleaves.

Wednesday evening was the scene of a very pretty wedding at the home of Mrs. V. S. Cleaves of Hancock street when her daughter was united in marriage to Mr. Dexter W. Grover of Roxbury. The room was prettily decorated with large bunches of roses.

A few minutes after eight o'clock Rev. E. W. Preble of the Universalist church spoke the very impressive words which made them one. Miss Cora Dyer of Quincy acted as maid of honor and Mr. Alfred Grover, a brother of the groom, as best man. The bride wore a very pretty gown of blue and white India silk, trimmed with fluted white satin ribbon, white satin and lace.

Mr. and Mrs. Grover started for their new home 77 Forbes street, Jamaica Plain, about nine o'clock amid a shower of rice.

AT ST. CHRYSOSTOM.

Beautiful Decorations at the MacTear—Penfield Wedding.

The wedding of Miss Georgie Penfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Penfield, and Mr. James MacTear of Wollaston was solemnized Wednesday evening at the St. Chrysostom's church, Hancock street, Wollaston. The church was filled with friends and relatives to witness the ceremony. The Rev. C. P. Mills pastor of the church performed the nuptial rites.

The entire church was decorated, noticably the chancel which received special attention in the way of palms, ferns and hydrangeas and other decorative plants by Mr. William MacTear, brother of the groom.

At 8 o'clock the strains of Lohengrens wedding march announced the entrance of the bridal couple the bride being led by her father, followed by the maid of honor, Miss Nellie Penfield, sister of the bride, who carried bride roses and dressed in white organdie over pink. The bride was handsomely gowned in white French mulle trimmed with lace and ribbons with a veil of tulle fastened by an engagement ring consisting of an opal surrounded by small diamonds. She carried a bouquet of bride roses. She was attended by Miss Annie MacTear, sister of the groom, and Miss Sadie Thomas, who were prettily dressed in white carrying carnation pinks. The ceremony closed with the singing of "Rejoice in pure in heart" Messiter by the St. Chrysostom male choir under the direction of Mr. E. L. Snyder of Brockton.

A reception and supper followed the ceremony at the home of the bride on Hancock street. The happy couple received a large number of handsome presents from their friends and relatives.

The newly wedded couple after receiving congratulations left for "Secretville," N. H., where they will enjoy a honeymoon of two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. MacTear will be at home after August 1 at their new residence in Wollaston Park.

O'Neil—Lawther.

A very pretty wedding took place Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. Daniel C. McNeil of Quincy Point when Miss Minnie Lawther and Mr. Frank O. McNeil were united in marriage. The Rev. Robert Wesley Peach officiating. They were attended by a bridesmaid Miss Loella Brown of Chelsea, niece of Mrs. Francis Souther of Cottage avenue, and a best man, Mr. Isaac McNeil, brother of the groom.

The bride was becomingly gowned in a dainty creation of white India silk the gift which her father sent from India, where he is employed by the British government. With the gown came an exquisite pair of white satin slippers embroidered by the natives.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. McNeil drove to their future home on Quincy street, where they received their friends during the evening.

Interesting in connection with the wedding, Mr. Lawther, unable to be present, is giving a party to his friends in India at as nearly the same time of the ceremony as possible in honor of his daughter's marriage.

Body Found.

The dead body of a male child was found in the public dump on Valley street, Wednesday afternoon. The body, which was evidently that of a stillborn child, was wrapped in some old clothing and had not been placed where it was found a great while. The police and Medical Examiner Gilbert were notified and the body was placed in the receiving tomb at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

Body Washed Ashore.

Between three and four o'clock Wednesday the body of an unknown man was washed ashore at Squantum. A man was lost from the Virginia about a week ago and it is thought to have been him, but may have been one of the men lost from the boat capsized off Houghs Neck Sunday. The police boat took the body to Boston.

Atlantic people complain that some old experienced riders use the sidewalks with their wheels continually, much to the disgust of the pedestrians. Why don't the police make an example of someone and put a stop to this nuisance.

New London, Conn., June 23, 11 A. M.—The weather is fair for the races. There is a good light breeze from the northwest that may make the water a little rough at noon.

Harvard Last.

New London, June 23, 1.30 P. M.—The 'varsity boat race started shortly after 12.30. Cornell finished first, Yale second and Harvard third. Cornell led by about two boat lengths, and Harvard was four or five boat lengths behind Yale.

On the Paris Board.

Quincy is honored by Governor Wolcott by the selection of a gentleman from this city as a member of the Board of Paris Exposition Managers, the following names having been sent to the Council on Wednesday: George von L. Meyer of Hamilton; Charles E. Adams of Lowell; Clemence H. Crafts, of Boston; Charles S. Hamlin of Brookline; Frances M. Lincoln of Worcester; Charles L. Lovering of Taunton; William B. Rice of Quincy; William Whiting of Holyoke.

Mr. Rice is one of the park commissioners of Quincy, and the founder of the Quincy City Hospital, and largely interested in affairs of the city. In 1893 he was a member of the Govenror's Council, and in 1894 was appointed by Governor Greenhalge as the Metropolitan District Commission. He is a leading shoe manufacturer and has been very prominent in boards of trades and the Associated Board of Trade of Boston, often representing the latter at Washington. He is eminently qualified from a business standpoint to serve on the new commission, particularly as he is always looking abroad for the extension of the business interests of the United States.

Funeral of Mr. Scollard.

The funeral of Mr. John V. Scollard of East Braintree took place in the church of the Sacred Heart in Weymouth at 9.30 this morning. Requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. J. B. Holland, assisted by the Sacred Heart choir and Miss Mary F. White of Quincy.

Among the large number present were noticed Hon. George Fred Williams, Hon. W. S. McNary of Boston, Ansel O. Clark, J. P. Hayward, W. W. Mayhew, Hon. J. F. Stevens, Dr. T. H. Dearing, T. A. Watson, John Cavanagh and F. O. Wellington, of Braintree.

In the first daily newspaper, started in London in 1703, the editor announced that he would not bother his readers with edditorial notes, because readers were all wise enough to make their own reflections.

THE DAILY EVENTS.

The Little Items About the City Yesterday and Today

The Hobart wrapper factory has closed.

The days are gliding swiftly by and now are growing shorter.

John Benson is in the city, having recently returned from across the pond. He went over with blooded stock for some wealthy gentleman.

George W. Jones has become an expert on the wheel. Most anywhere you can see George riding and he often climbs Weymouth hill. Anywhere within a radius of twelve or fifteen miles of Quincy is a short trip for Mr. Jones.

Albert Keating might be called an expert horseman, and surely the daring way and the antics the mustang cuts up is surprising. Mr. Keating delights in riding horseback and not long since drove his horse into a barber shop and wanted him shaved.

A meeting of the City Council will be held tonight. The principal business for which the meeting is held is in relation to granting the city of Boston permission to lay a water main on Hancock, Atlantic, and Squantum streets upon which the joint committee of Streets and Water will report. Other business may come before the meeting.

Last Sunday evening the pastor of the Park and Downs Congregational church began a series of three patriotic talks. The subject of the first was "Materialism a Weakness." For the Sunday evening June 26 the subject will be "The City its Danger and Destiny." For the Sunday evening July 3d the subject will be "A New Patriotism."

Jones of Wollaston and Coe of Atlantic will each run 10 miles in the great relay bicycle race from Boston to Lowell and return Saturday afternoon. This race has attracted much interest in athletic circles as it is a 50-mile run for bicyclists against 25 miles for runners, and good men will represent each. The start will be from Copley square at 2 P. M.

THE HANDICAPS.

A Grand Scrub Race of Q. Y. C. Boats Saturday.

The handicaps for the scrub races of the Quincy Yacht club are as follows, the time noted being in minutes and to be added to the actual time: Alice 3 minutes, Arbutus 14, Don 5, Dorothy 3, Elsie 3, Evelyn 13, Gismonda 15, Helen 7, Hustler 9, Kitty 0, Princeps 13, Primrose 5, Supero 0, Stella Manning 6, Moondyne 10, Tantrum 0, Thisbe 7, Scylla 3, Sunbeam 5, Vexer 13, Jeannette 5, Mildred 12, Brynheld 10, Claytonia 18, Viento 0, Mudjeekewis 11.

These yachts have been handicaped because their owners have intimated to the committee on handicap races that they will probably sail in these races. These races are open to all yachts of the club that have not sailed in more than one Association race this season. It is not necessary for a yacht to make a special entry. All that is necessary is that the owner get a number from Secretary Whiting before crossing the line. The committee will then estimate the handicap for the yacht.

The first race will be sailed next Saturday afternoon. Preparatory gun at 3.15 and the starting gun at 3.20 o'clock.

Q. H. S. Debate.

The last meeting for this year of the Q. H. S. Debating Society was held Wednesday, President Marnock took the chair, and called for Secretary Swift's report.

The debate of last week on the subject, "Resolved, That American manners compare favorably with those of any other nation," was concluded by the following speakers of '99:

Affirmative: — Miss Vogler, Miss Whittemore, Miss Wiley, Miss Wieson.

Negative:—Mr. Pitts, Mr. Sargent, Mr. Swift, Mr. Thomas, Mr. Wade.

In the open debate Mr. Field and Mr. Lewis, of '98, spoke.

The debate was won by the negative, as the arguments advanced by the boys seemed stronger than those offered by the girls.

Miss Priest, as critic brought in an interesting report.

There was time for only two numbers of the entertainment:

1. Duet for the piano-forte, by Miss Williams, '98, and Miss Winship. This selection was received with hearty applause.

2. Essay, "Ruskins' Idea of Woman," by Miss Julia J. Ford, '98.

ALL LANDED

Massachusetts Soldiers Now on Cuban Soil.

New York, June 23—A special from Cuba says the entire army of General Shafter was landed by 10 o'clock this morning.

NOTE—In this expedition is the Second Regiment of Massachusetts Volunteers commanded by Col. E. P. Clark, which includes companies from Worcester, Springfield, Holyoke, Adams, Orange, Gardner, Northampton and Greenfield.

Ninth off Saturday.

Washington, June 23—The 9th Mass. regiment will leave Camp Alger on Saturday for Newport News where it will board the Yale for Santiago to reinforce Gen. Shafter. This expedition includes the 33d and 34 Michigan, the 3d Virginia and 9th Massachussetts, and it will require about four days to make the trip from Newport News.

NOTE—At least four Quincy men are included in the 9th Mass: Patrick Quill, Edward Bowlen, James P. Clark and Edward S. Ago.

Only the Best.

There can be no doubt, says the Journal, that Col. that Col. Whitney will do his duty to his country and to his State by selecting only such officers to be recommended to the Governor for commissions in the Fifth Regiment as he believes are best qualified to command and care for their men in active serivce. He will select his officers on his own judgment of their qualifications, and not in consequence of their personal solicitations or those of their friends.

In regard to the matter of the Lieutenant Colonel there seems to be an attempt on the part of certain outsiders to make trouble in the command if possible. It is understood that Col. Whitney and Lieut. Col. Oakes have had a full and complete understanding about the matter for some time. The only misunderstanding exists in the minds of people outside of the regiment itself, who seem to think that they or some one, not the Colonel, should decide who the officers of this regiment are to be.

So far as can be learned there will be no trouble whatever in filling every company of the regiment to the required numerical strength, and there is no doubt that every company will go, to the front, notwithstanding any intimations to the contrary. The Fifth Regiment is known to be as loyal and patriotic as any of the Massachusetts regiments which have already enlisted, and every company in it will go, just as every company in all our other regiments has gone.

There are a great many outside companies whose services have been already tendered to Col. Whitney, which are most anxious to be accepted; but the preference, of course, will be given to the present companies, which are undoubtedly better qualified by their experience to do effective service for the country than any new company could be.

Deacon Bros. Recover.

A case of interest to granite dealers has been on trial for the last two days in the Superior court at Dedham before Judge Sherman. It was an action by Deacon Bros. of this city to recover $500 for a monument furnished to Nathan Dorr of Brookline. The contract called for a monument the same in material, design, and proportion as the "Richards" monument, and was to be examined and accepted by Nathan Dorr. E. B. Gibbs, attorney for the defendant, claimed that the monument must be made to the satisfaction of the defendant and accepted by him to entitle the plaintiffs to recover.

W. W. Jenness, attorney for the plaintiffs, contended that if the monument was the same in material, design and proportion as the Richards monument, it was the duty of the defendant to accept it. The jury found that the defendant as a reasonable man ought to have accepted and paid for the monument, and rendered a verdict for the plaintiffs for $517.67.

EMBARRASSING LAW.

Inability to Furnish Proper Amount of Stamps.

No Provision In Enactment For the Difficulty.

Misdemeanor Not to Use the Tongue In Licking.

Washington, June 23.—Every possible effort is being made by the secretary of the treasury to put into operation on July 1 the adhesive stamp tax section of the war revenue act. It is not thought possible, however, to have stamps on sale in all parts of the country on that date, and in consequence it is expected that for several days at least business embarrassments will be many and in some instances serious. The law declares it shall be deemed a misdemeanor not to affix a stamp to any bank check, note, draft, etc., punishable by a fine not exceeding $200. The law further declares that such instruments, document or paper, shall not be competent evidence in any court, in fact void.

The force at the bureau of engraving and printing is working every hour of the 24 to get out the stamps, and efforts will be made to reduce to a minimum embarrassment arising out of the new law. About 750,000 stamps were shipped to the Pacific coast yesterday, and other shipments will follow in rapid succession. The stamps will be sent to collectors of internal revenue, and by them distributed to the deputies. National banks in each town will receive telegraphic requests to handle the stamps for the benefit of the public until other arrangements can be made for their distribution.

The low rate of discount, 1 percent, allowed to persons purchasing stamps in quantities of $100, it is believed, will operate to make it difficult to secure a sufficient number of local agencies to supply the public needs; but special appeals will be made and the hope is expressed that there will be found in every community a sufficient number of public-spirited citizens to undertake to handle the stamps without proper compensation.

The attorney general takes a less serious view than some of the other officials of the action of the senate finance committee in declining to recommend the extension to July 15. Any failure to affix stamps to commercial and other paper subject to tax, it is said, could be remedied by a compliance with the law at any time, and even should the matter be brought into court, it is doubted if the courts would impose the penalty where there was not shown an intention to defraud the government of its revenues. If the stamp required was not procurable at the time the instrument was drawn, the government and not the individual, it is said, would be responsible. It is also stated that unstamped papers would be perfectly good as between individuals, and not until the matter was brought into court could any question be raised as to its validity. The postmaster general has been questioned on the subject, and he has advised the treasury department that he can furnish such number of stamps as may be required for a temporary expedient. The plan has not yet been fully matured; but Secretary Gage is inclined to the opinion that this course will be necessary. The stamps in denomination less than 1 cent will be printed at the bureau of engraving, and furnished as rapidly as possible.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Mr. Simpson Accuses a Representative From Ohio of Wilful Perversion.

Washington, June 23.—In the house Wednesday Mr. Simpson (Pop., Kan.) created something of a diversion by rising to a question of personal privilege. He proceeded to read from a report of Representative Grosvenor's speech before the Ohio Republican convention in which the Ohio member was reported as saying, after referring to the opposition to the Republicans in the house having voted in the interest of the reconcentrados for the $50,000,000 appropriation, that "nine out of every 10 of those gentlemen" had voted "no" upon every subsequent appropriation bill for the "suffering soldiers" of the union.

Mr. Dalzell (Rep., Pa.) made the point that it was not a matter to warrant the Kansas member in rising to personal privilege, and the speaker, upholding the point, remarked with some humor that proceedings in the house were not infrequently the subject for outside comment, and should members insist upon rising in each instance to a question of personal privilege the house would have its time so occupied that "it would be unable to give that calm and elaborate consideration to legislation that is its wont."

Then while the speaker hammered hard to bring Mr. Simpson to his seat the Kansas member persisted and declared that "the assertion as regards the vote of members on this side is false. Every man on this side has voted for every appropriation bill, and no man would have cast the reflection upon a large portion of this house contained in the speech of the gentleman from Ohio was he not dead to all sense of honor and truthfulness when he had in his possession the facts with which the gentleman must have been familiar."

The resolutions providing for the annexation of Hawaii were laid before the senate, Mr. White of California resuming his speech in opposition to the resolutions. He presented additional arguments and citations of authorities to establish his position that annexation of foreign territory must be by treaty and could not be by legislative act.

In the beginning his discussion of the Hawaiian resolutions, Mr. Pettigrew, who relieved the California member, presumed the homestead provision had been stricken from the Indian bill for reasons of economy; yet $10,000,000 in duties were to be remitted on Hawaiian sugar and other Hawaiian products, all of which was in favor of Asiatic labor. "I had hoped," he said, "that the question of adopting a policy of annexation, of a policy of imperialism, might be set aside until the present war is over. Instead of that, however, we are being propelled to an issue by an interest which has crowded around this capitol for years, that of the sugar trust. We are to be forced to action." Mr. Pettigrew maintained that the territory of the United States was already large enough, and he believed it his duty to resist the acquisition of any territory inhabited by a people inferior to ours, or so located as to require a navy to defend it.

SENSATIONAL FINISH.

Fourteen Innings Necessary to Decide the Boston-Chicago Game.

Chicago, June 23.—The Bostons yesterday won one of the most exciting and stubbornly contested games ever played here. It was Lewis against Woods, after Willis had retired, and Lewis came out on top. Lewis contributed in a large measure to the victory with his batting. Woods was hit twice as hard as Lewis, but at least a dozen of the drives were lined into outfielders' hands. Merets, Ryan and Lange played sensational games in the outfield, and spoiled several hits that looked good for doubles and triples.

With the Chicagos leading by two runs, Stahl, in the seventh, drew a base on balls. Lewis lined out a hot single, and Hamilton followed with a two-bagger, which tied the score. Although the Chicagos hit safely in all the intervening innings, the tie had not been broken when the Bostons went to bat in the fourteenth inning. After Lowe had been retired by Dahlen and Everett, Bergen made his second single of the game. Lewis was greeted with cheers when he stepped up to the plate. His response was a timely single to right, which landed Bergen on third. Hamilton sent a high fly to Lange, and Bergen ran in with the winning run. Score:

J. B. Birmingham of Hartford has sold the Hartford franchise to a stock company formed by William Traffley, manager of the team. Barnie, until recently manager of the Brooklyn club, made an effort to buy the franchise from Birmingham, but they could not agree on the price. Barnie is now managing the Springfield club.

A wild throw by Jennings of the Baltimores in the seventh inning bounded into the grandstand and allowed Hill to make the winning run for the Cincinnatis. Score: 3 to 2.

The Quakers won yesterday by hitting at opportune times. The St. Louis team played a listless fielding game, and their errors were costly. Score: 8 to 2.

The Brooklyns could not touch Wilson, and the Clevelands gave him good support. The game was snappy on both sides. Score: 5 to 2.

Householder's miserable work at first and errors by Wise were responsible for the loss of yesterday's game by the Buffalos to the Springfields. Reilly's work at short for the winners was wonderfully clever. Score: 10 to 4.

Yesterday's game was a pitching contest in Taunton, and had McMackin received competent support, the Pawtuckets would not have seen third base. As it was, they made one run in the last half of the ninth inning. Three of their seven hits were bunched inside the diamond.

Gettig of the New Yorks lasted half an inning and was replaved by Seymour after the Pittsburgs had won. Joyce was put out of the game for questioning decisions. Score: 10 to 5.

Not a member of the Washingtons passed second base in Louisville, and only two reached that bag. The Louisvilles fielded finely and did great base running. Score: 5 to 0.

Tom Flannagan of the Fall Rivers shut the Brocktons out without a hit yesterday in the shortest game of the season. They got but two men to first and nobody to second. A wild pitch gave the Fall Rivers one in the first, and a series of hits added four more in the sixth. Outside of these innings McKenna pitched great ball, but 30 men facing him during the game. Magoon of the Brocktons has joined the Brooklyns. His place at third will be filled by George Moore. Score: 5 to 0.

Bases on balls, daring base running and stupid plays by the Rochesters gave the Providences four runs in the second inning, and the game. Score: 6 to 1.

A Private Suggestion.

Washington, June 23.—The anti-annexationists in the senate privately suggested to the advocates of the Hawaiian resolution that the most practical method of disposing of the question was an agreement upon a time next session to vote, but, while the proposition has not been formally declined, the leading supporters of the resolution say they will not consider it seriously. They say they are having no difficulty in maintaining a quorum, and they expect to be able to keep their men here to the end. The opponents urge that by the opening of the next session the war probably will be concluded and the entire policy of the acquisition of this territory can be passed upon. They say that if the proposition is not accepted the speech-making will go on indefinitely.

TROOPS LAND.

toward the coast to meet the invading forces. The American and Cuban forces combined will be over 20,000, and now that Garcia's men have been supplied with rifles and ammunition, these ought to be able to do effective work. Army officers say that the insurgents will be of great assistance. Alone and comparatively unarmed they may not have been able to accomplish much, but with American rifles in their hands, serving as wings to Shafter's center, they will fight bravely and desperately.

It has been supposed that it would be impossible for the Spanish admiral to effect his escape from Santiago harbor, but a letter received from Assistant Engineer R. K. Crank, formerly of the Massachusetts and more recently of the Merrimac, after describing with interesting detail the exploit of Lieutenant Hobson, contains the following paragraph: "The Merrimac is lying with her bow to seaward just above Estella point, with her stern swung around until she lies almost parallel to the direction of the channel. From the fact that she is completely submerged except her masts and smokestack, it would seem that she is sunk some little distance from the right bank. However, she is not lying across the channel. So far as blocking the channel, the attempt cannot be said to have been successful. It is probable that the anchor on the starboard quarter carried away the stoppers on the chain, and the chain must have cut through the rail as far as the midships section of the ship, thus permitting the stern to swing entirely around until the ship lay up and down the channel."

The third military expedition for the Philippines will leave San Francisco Monday on six transports, namely, the Ohio, Indiana, City of Para, Morgan City, Valencia and Newport. General Merritt, commanding the new department of the Pacific and prospective governor general of the Philippines, probably will accompany the expedition on the Indiana. Major General Otis, the next in command, will accompany the fourth expedition to the Philippines.

Fears of a Massacre.

London, June 23.—Reports from Manila, says a special dispatch from Shanghai, indicate the existence of fears that the wife of Captain General Augusti and her children have been massacred by the rebels in Bulacan. It is thought, according to the same advices, that this is the reason of the unwillingness of Aguinaldo, the insurgent leader, to allow the British consul to start to rescue them.

Queen Regent and Her Relatives.

London, June 23.—The Berlin correspondent of The Standard says: "The queen regent has privately caused those sovereigns who are her relatives to be directly sounded, and those whom she regards as friends to be indirectly sounded, as to whether they are willing to mediate; but the stage of diplomatic negotiations has not yet been reached, and it is very doubtful whether it will be reached for some time to come.

"The semi-official Post hears from Antwerp that persons commissioned by the Washington government to enlist seamen on neutral soil are said to have enlisted more than 1000 German sailors for the American navy and the auxiliary cruisers. This would explain the difficulty German captains have experienced of late in manning their ships."

"You Owe It to Her."

If you are the mother of a young girl who is approaching the time when girlhood merges into womanhood do not hesitate to speak freely and frankly with her about the things which most closely concern her future happiness. If she is subject to any weakness of the delicate, special organism of womanhood, make it your business to see that this is properly corrected, and that she starts upon womanhood's career with full womanly strength and capacity. She will bless you for it all her life.

There is no need of "examinations" and "local applications." Sound professional advice may be obtained free of charge, by writing to Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y., whose thirty years' occupancy of this position has made him recognized among the most eminent of living specialists in the treatment of woman's diseases.

Every case submitted to him by mail receives careful consideration. Efficient and inexpensive home-treatment is prescribed whereby delicate, feminine complaints may be promptly alleviated and cured. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the only proprietary medicine in the world designed for this special purpose by a regular physician—an educated, experienced expert.

Miss Cora L. Russel, of Leemont, Accomac Co., Va., in a letter to Dr. Pierce, says: "From April, 1895, until the following October, I suffered severely from painful menstruation. For about twelve hours before the appearance of the menses I would feel giddy, have a severe headache, pain in my back, in fact I felt as if every bone in my body was breaking. Nothing did me any good. I wrote to Dr. Pierce and he recommended his 'Favorite Prescription,' and after using three bottles of it I am glad to say I am cured."

DRIVEN FROM HILLS.

Two Bodies of Spaniards Forced to Retire.

HARRASSED BY CUBANS.

One of Shafter's Plans That Miscarried.

"IT IS CRITICAL," CERVERA DECLARES.

Enemy Claim to Have Beaten the Americans In First Fight.

Port Antonio, Jam., June 24.—Desultory fighting went on in the mountains on all sides of Santiago Thursday. While General Shafter continued landing his troops at the Sigua Iron company's docks a number of transports proceeded westward 12 miles, and troops were landed to co-operate directly with the Cuban forces marching upon the doomed city. In that direction from the hills back of Santiago 900 Cubans have been reported to be harrassing the enemy. Two bodies of Spaniards have been driven from the hills back upon Santiago. This was done only after a desperate fight, in which 25 Spaniards are said to have been killed and twice that number wounded. The Spaniards have plenty of ammunition, but they show the effects of the terrible strain they must have been under since the appearance of the American troops.

Two hundred Cubans attacked the Spanish outposts west of Santiago. General Shafter's plan called for a force of 2000 Cubans, and had that number responded, and had they obeyed, General Shafter's hope of drawing the Spaniards in force westward, while he disembarked eastward, would surely have been successful, but the Spaniards moved in neither direction, but stayed entrenched at Santiago. The rifle fire of a handful of Cubans, and the presence of two transports and one schooner were not enough to convince them that the Americans intended to make a landing.

The Cubans say that the non-arrival of promised food prevented them from concentrating 2000 men. However, they contend that they have driven 400 Spaniards from Coletta, the most important outpost. Had the full design carried, General Shafter would have been in control of the nearest hill to Santiago, allowing Sampson to drag torpedoes and capture or destroy the Spanish ships, and incidentally have Santiago city and the troops at his mercy.

"Critical," Says Cervera.

Madrid, June 24.—Cable dispatches received here from Admiral Cervera say the crews of the Spanish warships at Santiago have joined the land forces in order to take part in the defense of the city. He adds that the situation is critical, but a later dispatch affirmed that the Spaniards "have victoriously repulsed the enemy."

A dispatch from the governor of Santiago says: "The attack on Siboney (Sabana?) and Baiquiri continued until nightfall. The enemy was repulsed except on the left, at Baiquiri, where the Spaniards were obliged to retire in consequence of a flanking movement upon the part of the enemy, who landed several kilometers east of Baiquiri. The Spanish forces retired in good order into the mountains. Siboney and Berraco were destroyed by the American shells."

During the afternoon a semi-official note was issued "in order to avoid a misunderstanding," pointing out that "merely the Spanish left retired and took up a position in the mountains, owing to the Americans landing nine kilometers east of Baiquiri, where there were no Spanish troops, and endeavoring to outflank the Spaniards." The note then points out that "this part of the country is very unhealthy, and that yellow fever is rampant."

WITHOUT A CASUALTY.

Men Debark From the Transports—Madrid Report Laughed At.

Washington, June 24.—General Shafter reported to the war department yesterday the landing of his men without a single casualty, nobody being hurt except an unfortunate Cuban who was some distance up on the hills, and whose arm was shattered by the explosion of a shell. The army officials are very agreeably surprised that General Shafter has not reported the appearance of any Spanish force.

The landing of the troops in so prompt and satisfactory a manner has given the president and secretary of war the greatest pleasure. The president read with great care all the dispatches, official and otherwise, and spoke in highest terms of the manner in which General Shafter had managed his large and cumbersome army. When he was shown the cablegram from Madrid claiming that the American forces had been repulsed with great loss after a bloody conflict he merely smiled. He did not place the least reliance upon the statements, and laughingly said he would wait until General Shafter had been heard from before he shed any tears.

Weakness of the Blockade.

Kingston, Jam., June 24.—With the complete investment of Santiago by land and by sea, the admiral has decided to strengthen the blockade of the large ports on the southern coast, westward of Santiago. For three weeks the coast west to Cape San Antonio has been practically unprotected, with the result that it is known that quite a number of ships have run the blockade and that an immense quantity of provisions has been smuggled into Havana. Most of the blockade runners have landed their cargoes under the lee of the Isle of Pines, and thence the provisions have been aken in small boats to Batabano, whence the railroad runs to Havana. These cargoes were undoubtedly smuggled into the Spanish lines and will aid Captain General Blanco greatly in withstanding the siege. The admiral has decided that blockade running must cease, and four ships are patrolling the coast from Cape Cruz to the Isle of Pines.

Shelled Every Village.

Playa Del Este, June 24.—Before the landing the fleet in front of Morro castle opened out and the ships, steaming along between Santiago and Baiquiri to prevent reinforcements by the railroad to the latter point, shelled every village on the coast. The Bancroft, Wilmington and Vixen discovered a regiment of Spanish soldiers defiling down the railroad to Juragua, and their shells sent them scampering up the hill like jackrabbits. The warships, before the landing, shelled Baiquiri town and the surrounding hills for half an hour. What remained of the smoldering village was wrecked.

Spectacular Event.

Kingston, June 24.—The most spectacular event of the war was the work of the Texas off Cabanas, whither she went to make a feint of landing troops. The transports which were to have accompanied the Texas were far out of position. Suddenly a puff of smoke shot out from the western battery, showing that the enemy were devoting attention to the Texas. The battleship replied promptly, and for an hour the duel between the Texas and the forts continued. The marksmanship of the Texas was marvellous. Though over two miles away and in an awkward position, she dropped shell after shell right on the ridge of the hill, where the enemy's guns lay. The crew of the flagship greeted each of these with loud cheers. Puffs of white smoke shot through the yellow canyon. These were shots from the enemy. They stuck to their guns well, but their aim was wild, the shots falling some a mile ahead and some a mile astern of the Texas. Finally the enemy's shots became few and far between. They had probably been driven from their guns. The other battleships lay in a semi-circle, watching the wonderful work of the Texas and not wishing to distract the enemy's attention from the successful feint.

To Ascertain Opinion.

London, June 24.—The Madrid correspondent of The Morning Post says: "The government, it is reported, has authorized its agents throughout the country to ascertain the opinion of the people as to the desirability of terminating the war. Sagasta will announce the result after the cortes is prorogued."

Men Are All Contented.

Chickamauga National Park, June 24.—There are now at the park nearly 47,000 men, and these are being added to daily by from 500 to 700 recruits. Everything is moving smoothly at the park. The men are all contented and are working with a good will. TLe quartermaster's department has been thoroughly systematized, so that there is no longer the slightest difficulty for the men to get plenty of good and wholesome food. The regiments are nearly all equipped with new uniforms, and are being armed as rapidly as the guns can be turned out of the arsenal. Other needed equipments are being added daily.

For the first time in the history of the army of the United States an ambulance corps is being organized as an adjunct to its efficiency. The object of this organization is to facilitate the proper handling of the sick and wounded on the field. The corps will have attached to it skilled physicians, surgeons and stewards, which, with a full supply of attendants, will number 150. They have 25 ambulances, 28 horses and 76 mules, together with wagons and harnesses for moving their equipage.

The chaplains of nearly all of the regiments have begun a very vigorous crusade against the "canteens" or saloons. The fight promises to be waged with unrelenting vigor, and if the chaplains can obtain the co-operation of the officials the "canteens" will soon be a thing of the past.

ANOTHER VICTORY.

Bostons Succeeded In Winning After a Mighty Effort.

Chicago, June 24.—Twenty-three men got into the game yesterday. Willis was taken out in the fifth, and Stivetts batted for him. Then Nichols went in the box. Griffith also abdicated in the seventh in favor of Isbel. Thornton batted for Griffith in the seventh, and Chance went into the game in the ninth on Dahlen's retirement by reason of a bad finger. Willis was wild in the fourth and fifth and gave bases on balls which were responsible for a run in each inning. Then Nichols went in and it was all over with the orphans. The champions landed on Griffith in the fourth inning with a vengeance and kept it up the rest of the game. Score:

The senators batted hard and timely and won in Louisville, 8 to 3. Weyhing kept the "colonels' " hits scattered.

The Clevelands played in old form yesterday, and Stein of the Brooklyns was batted freely. His wildness contributed to his club's defeat, 4 to 2.

The Pittsburgs won an exciting 10-inning game, 8 to 7. Warner of the New Yorks was put out of the game in the seventh for kicking.

The Newports had an easy time disposing of the Pawtuckets, the score resulting 9 to 3.

The Quakers went to pieces in the fourth inning yesterday and gave the game to the St. Louis team, 7 to 4.

The Buffalo-Springfield game was close and exciting. After the first inning both pitchers did excellent work. Reilly and Gleason did some star fielding for the Springfields, who lost, 6 to 4.

Hope of English Friends.

London, June 24.—The British society of Friends has adopted an address to "all lovers of peace in the United States." The address, referring to the war between the United States and Spain, expresses the hope that America's grand experiment of a "nation without great armies and navies" will not be abandoned, and that the ties of friendship and good will between Great Britain and America may grow and strengthen, some means being found to submit disputes to arbitration.

Motive Was Revenge.

Easton, Pa., June 24.—George Herbert Stevens, until about a year ago adjunct professor of moral philosophy at Lafayette college, is under arrest here on the charge of malicious mischief. The police accused Stevens of various acts of vandalism about the college; he confessed and stated that last fall he set on fire and burned Pardee hall, the pride of Lafayette, and had planned to burn other buildings. His motive was revenge. Stevens about a year ago was dismissed from the college for refusing to obey President Warfield's instructions.

Horrible Crime Confessed.

Buffalo, June 24.—Mrs. Baroni, wife of Antonio Baroni, confessed that it was her husband who murdered Philip Forestano on Monday last and afterwards sawed the victim's head and legs off, placed the remains in a trunk and tried to sink them in the canal. Baroni and his wife have been under arrest since Monday, charged with the murder. Mrs. Baroni declares her innocence of any participation in the crime, but has given the police the names of two who she says helped dispose of the body.

Woodward Reception.

The reception given annually by the graduating class of Woodward Institute for girls has become a social feature that is looked forward to each year by all friends of the school. On Thursday evening Woodward hall was ablaze with light and looked festive with its floral decorations and the handsome toilettes worn by the students and guests.

In front of a bank of ferns, Miss Small, principal of the school, and the sweet girl graduates received. There were only five graduates this year: Mary Gurney Dolliver, Maud Wright Macfarlane, Louise Reinhalter, Georgiana Shea, and Mary Abigail Sullivan. They wore white gowns the school color with jacqueminot roses and ribbons, the class color, while Miss Small wore a handsome blue gown with roses in her hair, adding color to the receiving group.

The undergraduates acted as ushers and introduced the guests. They were kept busy until half past nine when informal dancing was enjoyed until eleven o'clock, although one of the ministers on the board protested.

Richardson's orchestra of Boston played during the reception and for the dancing. Sparrow of Wollaston served frappe which was very refreshing especially to the dancers.

All the members of the Junior class assisted at the reception either as ushers or in serving. This will be the first class which will take the full Woodward course, and it will be large in number. The young ladies are: Ruth Bassett, Carolyn Bates, Florence Carr, Helen Claflin, Fannie Damon, Lucretia Duffield, Mary Dunn, Grace Eaton, Mary Elcock, Eva Feltis, Marie Fegan, Catherine Garrity, Mary Graham, Mary Jones, Pauline Jones, Willietta King, Elizabeth O'Neil, Alice Packard, Mary Pendergast, Eva Phillips, Jane Reed, Ethel Rinn, Annie Shirley, Gertrude Thomas and Minnie Wight.

THE CITY COUNCIL.

Attempt to Advance Hancock Street Order Not Successful.

An adjourned meeting of the City Council was held Thursday evening, principally that the order relative to granting the City of Boston permission to lay a water main through Quincy to Moon Island might be advanced.

Councilmen Badger, Cain, McGrath, Merrick, Sidelinger and Willard were absent.

PETITIONS.

A number of petitions for minor licenses were received, among which were petitions to sell fireworks from L. M. Pratt and Frank Lancisi. All were referred to the Committee on Finance except those mentioned which were laid on the table and later in the evening granted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE.

The Committee on Streets reported amending the order for $1000 for widening North street, so as to read that the street shall be widened in the travelled way. The amendment was accepted and after taking its second reading was referred to the Committee on Ordinances.

BOSTON WATER PIPE

The joint Committee on Streets and Water Supply reported a substitute order granting the city of Boston permission to lay a twelve inch water main on Hancock, Atlantic and Squantum streets, providing that the City of Quincy shall be secured against any damage arising from opening the streets; that it shall replace the streets in good condition; that work shall be completed within six months; that for one year all repairs made necessary to that part of the street opened which were caused by said opening be paid for by the city of Boston; that hydrants be placed every one thousand feet along the line; and that a gate be put in connecting the main with that of the city of Quincy.

The substitute order was accepted and under suspenson of the rules was passed to be ordained, and sent to the Mayor.

OVER THE FOURTH

Upon motion of Councilman Freeman, rule one was suspended and it was voted when the Council adjourn it be to July 11.

TAX LEVY.

Councilman Freeman offered an order that $205,000, together with $2 for each poll be raised and assessed upon the estates in Quincy for city expenses for the current year. To Committee on Finance.

Upon motion of Councilman Little the Council referred back to petitions and he presented one from Charlotte Haverley for a common victualler's license.

He moved that reference to a committee be withdrawn but as there was some objection he withdrew his motion.

CALENDAR.

The order defining the lines of Washington and Canal streets at their junction took its second reading and was referred to the Committee on Ordinances.

HANCOCK STREET ORDER.

Councilman Parker moved that the Hancock street order be taken from the table.

Councilman Poland objected, as a majority of the Finance Committee were not present and it would not be acting in justice to them.

Councilman Swithin hoped the motion would prevail and the order advanced a stage.

Councilman Jameson objected. This should not be rushed through, as it was an important matter.

Councilman Freeman objected. He should not vote for the order at this meeting and it could not pass.

Councilman Parker said if we had only adjourned for a week it would be different, but when we adjourn to the middle of July it would make a long delay.

Councilman Poland moved to adjourn.

Motion lost. He then said he knew of one party who would remonstrate against a concrete sidewalk and will object as far as the law will allow. He did not think it good judgment to put in concrete sidewalks where they would be but little used. We should consider whether this is the best place to put in these sidewalks.

Motion to take from the table lost by vote of 8 to 8.

DANCING AT ISSUE.

Point Abruptly Raised at Woodward Reception.

That there is some Puritanism left in Quincy was markedly manifest Thursday evening at the reception of the class of 1898 at the Woodward Institute, but the objection raised seems to have been the views of a single man and he a Presbyterian minister, who with the other pastors of the city, constitutes the board of directors of the school under the will of the founder. Some of the other pastors may be opposed to dancing, but it is to be hoped that they will remember that this is not a religious school, and that the majority will not seek to make the institute unpopular. Dancing is allowed at commencement at the colleges at Thayer academy, the Quincy High and other schools, and there seems no reason why it should not be at the Woodward.

When the opening waltz was getting under way the Rev. Mr. Peach ascended the platform, and clapping his hands for silence, said that he had looked hurriedly about the hall for the principal and directors, but had seen only one of the latter, and had therefore taken upon himself, as one of the directors of the school, to protest against dancing at any of its functions. Dr. Woodward in his will had laid the ungrateful task of directing the government of the school upon the clergy of the city, evangelical as well as other; and when it could not but be well known that dancing was offensive to many of them, he considered it an affront to the body to introduce dancing without the sanction of the majority of the ministers formally given. In protesting against dancing tonight he also gave notice that he should bring the matter before the board at its next meeting.

Immediately the Rev. Messrs. Hardy and Preble, Miss Small and others gathered about Mr. Peach, and there was a brief consultation, during which Ex-Councilman Sprague, a Sunday school teacher, and Miss Nickerson, a daughter of a Sunday school superintendent, danced.

Mr. Peach addressed the company again, saying that he had acted upon the supposition that the dancing was a spontaneous outbreak he now regretted to learn that it had been provided for as a part of the evening's entertainment; he therefore offered his apology to the young people whose dance he had interrupted, as they were clearly within their privilege, but he renewed his protest against dancing being permitted in the school, and should bring up the question as to any one's right to authorize it at the next meeting of the Board.

Mr. Peach then withdrew from the hall, and the evening's proceedings went on without further incident. In another column there is a letter of explanation from him.

It was the intention of the Ledger to publish opinions of some of the prominent gentlemen present on the course pursued by Rev. Mr. Peach, and interviews were sought and obtained. Some of these were very severe and outspoken in condemnation, while no one upheld him, but in view of the fact that the reverend gentleman has in an open letter today apologized to the principal and audience assembled, it has been thought best to withhold the interview for a day at least that the gentlemen may again be consulted.

The Ledger is informed that dancing will be considered at the meeting of the board next Tuesday afternoon.

Pastoral Reception.

The members of the Methodist Episcopal church and congregational, of Wollaston, gave a reception on Wednesday evening to their new pastor, the Rev J. E. Waterhouse, and Mrs. Waterhouse. Upwards of 150 persons were present. The reception was held in the auditorium of the church, which was prettily decorated with flowers. At the conclusion of the reception the party, marching in good time to the strains of the music furnished by Miss Emily C. Bjorkman, organist of the church, repaired to the vestry where a most bountiful repast had been provided by the committee of arrangements, as also choice selections from the orchestra, and the singing of favorite gospel hymns. The entire evening throughout was most enjoyable, and every evidence was manifest to impress the Rev. Mr. Waterhouse and his good wife of a most sincere and hearty welcome, as well as a desire to co-operate with them in every way possible in the advancement of the interests of the church and society, which interests the new pastor has already in so many ways emphasized as being upper-most in his mind and heart, attracting at every service of the church increased attendance of members and visitors.

CHEERS FOR G. A. R.

Paul Revere Post Will Stand by Boys of '98

Capt. Kincaide of Co. K. received this morning from Paul Revere Post, 88, Grand Army of the Republic, the action of the Post at its meeting Thursday evening. Not only has the Post tendered to Capt. Kincaide the use of G. A. R. hall on Hancock street, free of charge, for the purpose of recruiting the company, but has adopted the following resolution, which is self explanatory and amounts to considerable to volunteers, who often leave dependent relatives:

At a regular meeting of the Comrades of Paul Revere Post Post 88, G. A. R., the following Preamble and resolutions were adopted:

WHEREAS,—The United States of America is now in war with Spain and as each and every citizen should show by his acts his loyalty to his Country and Flag,

Resolved,—That as so many young men are now going from Quincy in defence of our country, and as some may never return and others become disabled from wounds or disease;

We, the members of Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., pledge ourselves to stand by them and theirs in this hour of trial and trouble, and to aid and assist them so far as we can without injury to ourselves or family. We further promise to recognize them in the same light and spirit as the veterans of the war of the Rebellion from 1861 to 1865.

WILLIAM H. WARNER, Commander.

I. M. HOLT, Adjutant.

Quincy, June 23, 1898.

Capt. Kincaide has accepted the offer of the hall and will tonight open a recruiting office there. Meanwhile the armory at Braintree will be open all day every day. The examination of recruits which was to have been held next Tuesday is now announced for 11 A.M. Saturday. The ranks are not yet filled and it is important that volunteers should respond promptly that Co. K may be among the first to respond 106 strong.

Mock Trial at Milton.

There was a large attendance at Ellsworth hall Thursday evening at the mock trial held under the auspices of the Thursday club. The prisoner before the bar of justice was Charles Southerland, who it was alleged stole a ham from Christopher Graham, and also did deface a monument of John Heuss of West Quincy.

John Graham and Arthur M. Gardner looked after the interests of the prisoner, while the governments case was handled by J. E. Quimby and Melvin Richardson.

Rev. Theodore I Reese occupied the bench as judge and Harry Bailey was clerk of the court.

Robert Sweeney was court crier and Charles Landstrom was the constable. The jury who were empanneled to hear the testimony and decide whether the prisoner was guilty or not were: James Gibbs, foreman; J. F. Reed, William H. Welsh, William Graham, Edward Ellis, James Perry, Robert Clark, Robert Clark, Jr., John Ford, James Arbuckle, William Leavitt, George Leonard.

The witnesses for the government were David Ellis, John Heuss and Christopher Graham, who were ready to swear to anything that would convict the prisoner; while Joseph Pierce and Fred West swore to the good character of the defendant and his honesty. The trial was full of amusing incidents which kept the audience in an uproar of laughter.

After the evidenee the case was given to the jury, who found that the charges had not been sustained and ordered the prisoner discharged.

Against the City.

Quincy must pay the award of $3,000 to Mrs. Phoebe C. Harris for injuries. The full bench of the Supreme Court overruled on Thursday the defendant's exceptions in the case. The suit was brought for damages for personal injuries sustained in consequence of falling upon a sidewalk which was covered with rough and hubbly ice.

The exceptions were to two refusals of the trial judge to rule as requested by the defendant. One ruling asked for was that the plaintiff was bound to show the valuation of the defendant city for the purpose of enabling the jury to fix liability, as by Public Statutes, chap. 52, sec. 20, the city's liability was fixed at one-fifth its valuation in such cases, or, at most, $4,000. The court holds this burden is upon the defendant.

The other exception was to the rejection in evidence of photographs of the sidewalk taken the day following the night of the accident. But the court holds that, for aught that appears these may have been rejected for the defendant's failure to show some preliminary matter of fact necessary to be shown before they could be put in evidence.

L. G. Blair for plaintiff; P. R. Blackmur for defendant.

Is It Patriotism?

I think it is my duty to call the attention of the public to the actions of some of our granite firms, who in my estimation have gravely insulted every civilized granite cutter in the United States, and every true lover of freedom in the world. It is no wonder that the country is in such a state of trouble and woe. It is no wonder so many granite cutters are walking the streets and cannot get work. It is no wonder that they are laughed and scoffed at when they look for their rights, when we have such traitors among us. You may ask, why are they traitors? Because by their actions they have proved it as I will now explain.

When war was declared these firms had several Spaniards working for them, and these Spaniards were loyal enough to go and seek the Spanish consuls in Mexico and Canada, and stay with them for eight or ten weeks, long enough to get drilled in the spy system. Now they have returned to put this education into practice and these firms have given them work to help them along. I am told that the manufacturers even went so far as to discharge good, honest, hard-working American citizens to make room for these barbarians. There are hundreds of Granite cutters walking our streets that cannot get work.

Is not this enough to make any good citizen rebel against such work? I think it is, and all those who hire Spaniards until peace is proclaimed ought to be arrested for treason and get States prison for life. These firms had rather hire these barbarians to do this work than to hire good American citizens. I call them barbarians because of their barbarous actions in this war with Spain; for the way they tortured innocent women and children; for the butchering of our marines last week, and by the blowing up of the Maine. They have proved themselves such. I think they should get leave to withdraw as they may be spys. The more suspicious ones say they might poison our wells, etc.

West Quincy has given six or eight volunteers, among them one of the flesh and blood of some of these firms and if I am rightly informed it was through the hiring of those Spaniards that he has left his home to fight for the land of the free and the home of the brave. This will show you the patriotism of some of our granite firms. I hope those who want a monument will go to some firm which does not hire Spanish help and show those that do, that you do not want any Spanish work around you.

A Note from Mr. Peach.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

I desire to give public expression to my sincere regret that in acting impulsively concerning dancing last night at the Woodward, I however unintentionally showed discourtesy toward the Principal and toward other members of the Board of Directors of the school. I ought to have taken time to hunt them up and request a consultation with them, instead of giving up the search after a hurried passing through the rooms; and my speaking in the circumstances was unwarranted. I was indignant at what I supposed to be unauthorized conduct, and in my impetuosity simply lost control of my judgment. In extenuation I may be permitted to say that for some time I have been in a condition of severe nervous exhaustion. But while thus frankly apologizing for the discourtesy, and expressing the keenest regret over my excited procedure, I deplore the cause of it even more, and resent the way in which the known feelings of a number of ministers have been inconsiderately overidden. I do not stand alone in my protest againt dancing in the Woodward. Although out of town at the time of last year's reception, I heard upon returning that dancing had been indulged in without authority, and that a brother minister had protested and left the scene. Last night I supposed that the waltzing was equally unauthorized, until informed otherwise after having spoken. And herein is a fact passing strange, for I am learning today that it was generally understood that dancing was to be a part of the programme; and yet a brother minister whom I met on the street this morning tells me that he knew nothing about it. Was there not possibly a deliberate discourtesy to us, that we, who give much time that we can ill spare to meetings of the Board and its committees, should be kept in darkness in the matter? Shall the directors not direct? Shall they have no opportunity to direct? The community hold them responsible; should it?

If those who wished to have dancing had laid their request before the principal, and the principal had submitted it to the directors at their regular meeting, and a majority thereof had voted to permit it, the minority would have submitted with the best grace possible. That this was not done, when it was known that several members of the board were opposed was an ignoring of the authority of the directors of the school, and it put some of them into a humiliating appearance of compliance with what they conscientiously oppose.

In all this there is not a word concerning the ethics of dancing. That is a matter for decision by each individual for himself. In his own flock each pastor has official duties to teach and lead in the right way so far as he can and in a board each director is expected to help direct.

Yours sincerly,
ROBERT WESTLY PEACH.

TRADING STAMPS ALL RIGHT.

The following act now before the legislature relative to trading stamps has caused the holders in this city some unnecessary anxiety.

AN ACT.
RELATIVE TO TRADING STAMPS.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court assembled and by the authority of the same, as follows:

Section 1. The provisions of chapter two hundred and seventy-seven, of the acts of the year eighteen hundred and eighty-four shall apply to the giving of any stamps, coupons or other device which entitles a purchaser to demand or receive any other property than that actually sold or exchanged: and also to the delivery of any goods, wares or merchandise upon the presentation of such stamps, coupons or other device: provided, however, that this act shall not effect any existing contract.

Section 2. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

This act has not yet passed and may not, but if it does the merchants and their customers in Quincy and vicinity need not disturb themselves. As stated in the act, existing contract will stand and as the present contracts of the Traders Supply Co. of this city do not expire until the first part of December there will be ample time for all books now out to be redeemed and the fine presents obtained. But the Traders Supply Co. are also making new contracts daily and will continue to make them until the act passes, so it will surely be a year and very likely much longer before the new law can operate. There is not the slightest danger of any holder of the stamps losing anything and every promise made by the company will be kept and every pledge redeemed. There is no reason why the people should not continue to buy goods of merehants having the stamps and taking all of the latter they can get. There is nothing to lose and everything to gain by doing this and people are foolish who allow themselves to be scared by the possibility of a new law.

The Traders Supply Co. has been established in Quincy for the past year and its record is a thoroughly honorable one. All who have had dealings with its agents have found them honest and always ready to keep their agreements. They have fulfilled every obligation made with the people of Quincy and have pleased their customers thoroughly. Rumors that they are to leave town are untrue and they will stay here as long as they are in business. They have a finely equipped and commodious store in the Greenleaf Block on Hancock street where many of the elegant presents which they give for stamps are exhibited and where all interested can see what they can get by simply collecting these little stamps without paying a single cent more for their goods or getting any poorer quality.

The advantage is all on the side of the purchaser, and, contrary to the usual run of things, he gets something for nothing. The merchant takes the cost of the stamps out of his profits in order to get the increased business which the stamps bring him. He is satisfied, the customer is delighted and no one is injured so the trading stamp has naturally had a big run and been a success all around. It will continue to be for a long time yet, in spite of adverse legislation, and shrewd Quincy people should take advantage of its benefits while they last. When the Trading Stamp is taken away from them, if it ever is, they will realize how much they have lost and demand a change in the law so that it may be reestablished.

People who have never used the Trading Stamps should call at the store of the Traders Supply Co. in Greenleaf Block Hancock street, and obtain information regarding them. There they can see the household goods, parlor ornaments, clocks and other articles of every kind and description that they can get in exchange. Everything that you eat, drink and wear, everything you use in your house, you can get for nothing from reliable dealers, the best merchants in the city, in fact, by means of the trading stamps.

Don't get frightened at this bogy in the shape of legislation and stick to the trading stamp as it has stuck by you.

HARVARDS POOR THIRD

Only Nominally In the Intercollegiate Contest.

Eleven Lengths In the Rear of the Winning Cornells.

Had a Clean Stroke, but Deficient In Propelling Power.

New London, June 24.—Cornell won by four lengths of clear water, and Harvard was beaten eight lengths by Yale in the collegiate contest Thursday. The times were very slow, and the race, before half the distance had been traveled, developed into a procession in which there would have been very little to create excitement but for the magnificent work of Cook's eight and Courtney's crew down the home stretch.

Although apparently beaten beyond a doubt, there was any amount of pluck in the New Haven shell, and the little sandy-haired stroke drove Eli's sons spurt after spurt into the first half of the fourth mile, but at the end of each spurt by Yale, Cornell's wonderful little stroke would run his beat up a few points higher and away the Ithacan craft flew, regaining all the distance and adding a few yards on every exchange of spurts.

The first race was uninteresting, except to Cornellians, after the first quarter of a mile had been rowed. A slight lead which Yale secured at the start was taken away by Cornell at this point, and Courtney's men were not again headed. The eight of Harvard were never in the race and labored over the course to the finish a poor third, 11 boat lengths behind the champion New Yorkers and seven to the stern of the historic rivals of Yale.

Prettier form and watermanship have never been seen in America than that presented by Captain Colson and his Cornell crew throughout the four miles of the race. Scarcely a splash was to be seen from the red and white tipped oars which swept through the water at the muscular instance of the Cayuga experts. Their spurts were timely, conservative and uniformly successful, and always with an evident reserve strength and force. It was the conviction of the fair-minded persons who witnessed the race that Cornell might easily have won by a greater margin.

The work of Yale, the second crew, is capable of characterization as first-class when not subjected to the deadly parallel with Cornell. The Yale eight, a splendid contingent, rowed in good form throughout the race, but spurts were unavailing against the responses forthcoming from their clever New York rivals. The Cambridge men pulled a long, clean stroke, but it lacked propelling power, and farther and farther behind lagged the crimson shell, until hope of victory vanished and it became with the despondent sympathizers merely a question of "how much."

The Cornell men finished in superb style, and after the race rowed majestically up the river two miles to their quarters. The Yale oarsmen showed some signs of fatigue, but Captain Whitney was the only man of the crew who appeared to approach the point of collapse. The plucky captain had all but rowed himself out, but recovered quickly. The Harvards finished surprisingly strong. They afforded the rather unusual spectacle of a crew looking into the jaws of overwhelming defeat and still pulling freshly and vigorously across the last line of the contest.

To Fred Colson, the Cornell coxswain, must be given the palm for clever steering. Yale's rudderman stuck to his course admirably and made no mistakes. The Harvard helmsman, however, swerved badly at the lower turn and lost probably a full length as a result of it.

The 24 men were all in good condition, with Cornell's eight a trifle the fittest and Yale the worst off in this respect. The strokes rowed seemed to establish beyond a reasonable contention that to Courtney goes the palm. Bob Cook's ideas certainly seem superior to those taught by Mr. Lehman, Harvard's English coach, and it is predicted that next year will witness adaptations by both Yale and Harvard of strokes more nearly approaching the purely American evolution of Cornell's instructor.

The time of the winning crew as given by the race officials was 23:48, the slowest time made in a university race for several years, but this is attributable to a head wind and the fact that Cornell was not forced. Yale crossed the finish line 14 seconds behind the champions, while the trailing Harvard eight rested on their oars 33 seconds later.

The disagreeable weather which ruined the pleasure of the thousands who came to witness the 'varsity race Wednesday so dampened their enthusiasm that the race Thursday was viewed by hundreds less than were present the day before. A conservative estimate of the number of racegoers places it at 6000. At the conclusion of the 'varsity race the railway stations were jammed by crowds satisfied with the spectacle of the first contest and unwilling to remain for the freshmen event later in the afternoon. After the last race the little city rapidly assumed its normal aspect and settled down to a summer of prospective peace and quiet.

If the university race was tame as a contest the freshmen race, which was started at 5:03, was thrilling to the last degree. Every yard of the course was fought viciously, and the result was in doubt until the Yales rushed across the line the winner in the official time of 11:22 2-5. One hundred yards from the end it was Yale, Cornell and Harvard, and everyone looked for a finish in that order. The Yales spurted and maintained the advantage, but the Cornells were not equal to the strain, and at the last moment the Harvards in a desperate effort shot ahead of the Cornell youngsters and crossed half a length behind the Yales, with the nose of the Ithacan shell lapping the crimson boat.

After the freshmen race the Cornell crew were taken to their quarters in a launch. All the men felt very bad, especially the coxswain. On the float Mr. Courtney greeted the men with, "Boys, you did finely, and I'm proud of you. We can't all win at the same time."

To the Associated Press representative Mr. Courtney said: "We have no excuse to make for not winning the freshmen race. It was fairly rowed and finely won, and I want to tell you that it must have been a mighty fine crew to beat our freshmen. I consider that the freshmen crew was a fast one, but, as a matter of fact, my energies almost wholly were devoted to the 'varsity. We won the race we were after, and we ought to be well satisfied. I did not follow the race, but went out in a punt so I could see the starting line. It was a pretty start, and after I came back to the float and watched the race through a glass, I felt certain that both Harvard and Cornell were opening water between them and Yale. When the crews were about a mile down the course, the water was very rough and the spray which broke over the outriggers went as high as the men's heads. This was the first time that my freshmen had experienced rough water, the only previous occasion when the boat was given a rocking being a few days ago when we ran into a wind squall which preceded a thunder storm. A freshman crew is always an unknown quantity. It is really the only race to see for sport. Then it is the unexpected which happens, and you can look for it generally in the freshmen race."

CHARLES E. COURTNEY.

Mr. Courtney was asked as to his opinion on the rowing of the three crews. He said that, as in the case of the 'varsity race, he saw little of the details and would give no opinion. He said though that from what he saw of the freshmen all three crews were rowing a beautiful stroke. The Cornell crews pulled almost the same stroke, and in both instances the men finished in the best of condition.

Captain Payne Whitney showed the keenest disappointment over the defeat of the Yales. As he stepped out of the shell and walked up the float he could not restrain the tears. His men gave him a rousing cheer and followed it with yells and cheers for Coach Cook, who was very much downcast. Captain Whitney said: "Yale rowed for all there was in it; every man in the boat exerted every muscle and put every ounce of his strength on his oar. We are certainly greatly pleased with the fine showing the crew made. We heartily congratulate Cornell on the victory. They fought every inch of the four miles, and the best crew won."

It was a difficult matter to determine who was the most grievously disappointed at the showing made by the Harvard 'varsity crew, Coach Lehman or the men as the crew rowed back to quarters. The men would give no probable reasons for their unsatisfactory showing further than to say they were outrowed, and the silence preserved by Captain Perkins after the race was likewise maintained by the members of the crew.

Why Carter Is Absent.

Detroit, June 24.—Samuel G. Carter, secretary-treasurer of the Metal Polishers' and Buffers' International union, is missing from his home. Last Friday he left for Dayton to attend the convention of the organization. Tuesday Carter received a dispatch summoning him to Detroit on account of the illness of his wife. The report of the auditing committee was ordered delayed until his return. He did not return to Dayton, and no word was received from him. "The report of the auditing committee will show Carter $2500 short in his accounts," said President Line last night. "I have sworn out a warrant for his arrest."

"If Ignorance Is Bliss."

Bridgeport, Conn., June 24.—Theresa Aquadro, who runs a fruit and candy store in this city, has filed a claim for $24,000 against the United States government. The claim was filed through the Italian ambassador, Baron Fava. The woman bases her claim on the loss of business which she alleges has been caused by a boycott. She says she has complained to the local authorities, but they will do nothing for her. Her story of the alleged boycott is supported by several affidavits.

Young Servant Burned.

Danvers, Mass., June 24.—Mabel Casey, aged about 17 years, was probably fatally burned while lighting a fire at the home of Mrs. F. E. Pead, where she was employed. Her apron took fire and she was enveloped in flames, her body being terribly burned. It is thought she cannot possibly recover.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Congressman Richard P. Bland, the free silver advocate, has been renominated.

Albert H. Rogers of Lowell, agent for an organ company, was arrested at his home in Salem Willows, on a warrant charging him with the embezzlement of $1000.

Mrs. Charles Brown, aged 54, drowned herself in Newton, Mass., owing to ill health. Mrs. Brown was quite prominent in social circles, and a member of several organizations.

Frank Foomeyer of York, Pa., 40 years old, an employe of the Pennsylvania Steel company, who was swinging an iron girder into position on the roof of the new station, was struck and knocked from the staging. He fell 60 feet and was instantly killed.

Boston In Brief.

Boston, June 24.—The body of an aged man was taken from the waters of the Mystic yesterday and removed to the morgue. Whether the man came to his death by accident or suicidal intent the police are trying to determine.

At the 58th annual session of the Grand Temple of Honor the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Leonard Thompson of Hingham, G. W. T.; George W. Couilliard of Wakefield, G. M. V. T.; W. A. Cary of Malden, G. W. R.; Erskine Warden of Waltham, G. W. T.; H. W. Hicks of Cambridge, G. W. U.; Frank Drown of Melrose, G. W. G.; Rev. W. Fall of South Boston, G. W. C.

The full bench of the supreme court has overruled the defendants' exceptions in two capital cases, so each defendant must stand for his sentence, which will inevitably be death. Alfred C. Williams was convicted of murder in the first degree for killing John Gallo in Lynnfield July 17, 1897. Dominick Krathofski murdered his stepdaughter in Springfield on Jan. 17, 1897.

The price of lager beer and ale, by the case, has been increased on account of the war. Such was the decision reached yesterday by the Manufacturers' and Bottlers' association of Massachusetts.

Massachusetts Legislature.

Boston, June 24.—The Massachusetts legislature was formerly prorogued by Governor Wolcott at 10:45 last night after a session of 168 days, somewhat longer than the average in past years. The governor announced that he had signed 580 acts, and 119 resolves and had vetoed two bills.

The most important event of the last hours of the session was the passage of the bill regulating the street railways of the state in many particulars, the bill itself being practically the outcome of the report of a special commission. The bill providing funds for the cattle commission was killed.

The usual speech in praise of the presiding officers of both branches and the presentation of tokens of esteem were pleasing features of the day.

One of the last acts was the passage by both branches of a resolve congratulating the Massachusetts troops at the front upon the fortitude with which they have all entered the war.

Quarter of a Million.

Louisville, June 24.—At 9:30 last night the entire fire department was summoned to combat a fire in the wholesale tobacco district which for a time threatened to do enormous damage. After a gallant struggle the firemen succeeded in gaining the mastery. In 20 minutes the walls of Snead's iron foundry were tottering, and in an hour property to the value of a quarter of a million dollars had been destroyed. The Snead company's loss is estimated at between $250,000 and $300,000.

At 10 o'clock the Phoenix hotel, a block east, caught fire from the sparks emitted by the foundry fire and it was partially destroyed, with a loss of $10,000.

HOT CRITICISM.

Interviews on the Dancing Issue at the Woodward.

The indignation over the action of Rev. Robert Westly Peach at the Woodward Institute reception relative to dancing continues unabated although the gentlemen has apologized on the platform and in the press. Those who never danced in their life never felt more like dancing than after the interruption at the reception Thursday night. They will interest themselves also in the future management of the school and not allow the funds to be squandered as they will be if narrow sectarian views are adopted.

Should the board of ministers see fit to prohibit dancing it is possible that action may be demanded under section four of the will of the founder, Dr. Ebenezer Woodward, which is as follows:

4 "I would recommend that the said town or city as the case may be should choose a committee from time to time to confer with the above-named officers concerning the best mode of managing said property and to see that it is not wasted or lost."

The two clauses of the will which relate to management and studies will be of interest at this time:

5 "The management of said Institute or school so far as the selection of instructors and the studies to be pursued and all internal regulations to be and to remain under the direction of the following gentlemen forever viz:—

The several ordained and settled ministers of the town or city, as may be, and all settled ministers to be added to this committee from time to time as they become residents of Quincy. I mean the Catholics as well as the Protestants and all who are settled for one or more years and reside in the town of Quincy. I wish no sectarianism taught in the Institute, leaving that to the parents and the pastors of their choice; the senior pastor of Stone Temple is to be perpetual Chairman of the said Board or Committee.

6 I wish all the ornamental as well as useful branches of learning taught in this Institute, or school, which are taught in any other similar Institutes in the state.

The Ledger has interviewed a few gentlemen on the issue raised.

Henry H. Faxon, for once, has nothing to say, although it was chiefly through his intercession that there was any dancing at the reception last year. The principal waived then for the sanction of the board, and it having been given, there seems no reason why it should not have been sanctioned this year by her. Mr. Faxon's efforts to hush up the matter out of kindness for his friend, Mr. Peach, have not been successful especially as the reverend gentleman intends to make it an issue at the board meeting next week.

Councilman Packard, who is a warden of Christ church, was ready and anxious to express his opinion. He said: "When one attends a church service he is liable to hear words that he cannot agree with. Then it is his duty to keep silent. But no person has any right to force his individual opinion on a company of invited guests most of whom had never seen or heard of the gentleman before. It was stamped down and blotted out by a liberty loving and modern people as it deserved. No wonder that some children cease to attend church when they come of age if such men are in charge.

Although personally a very fine man Mr. Peach slopped over that time. He can find no command in the Bible against dancing but rather advocating it. And Doctor Woodward whom some of us personally knew, was far from being a bigoted man, and always liked to see young people enjoy themselves, and if he had objections would have stipulated that the liberal clergy should not have any connection with the school, but instead of that he requested that one of them should preside. As I looked at his picture hanging there, he seemed displeased at the interruption.

I trust the matter will be brought before the full board before another graduation, and the would-be reformers rebuked, as it was very annoying to those present for a man to air his personal grievance in public. It did not work that time and will not work.

Charles A. Howland when interviewed said: "The unwarrantable interfernce of the Rev. Mr. Peach with the proceedings of the evening was a direct insult to the principal of the school and also to her guests there present, and evidently arose from a desire on his part to make himself notorious and prominent. It is not in any sense a Presbyterian, or a sectarian institution, and why he, the tail ender of the board of managers, should assume the position of chairman or dictator in regard to the manner of conducting, or suppressing, any of the features of the occasion, passes my comprehension in these times of modern thought, and liberty of action. It was more suited to the dark age of inquisitonal Spanish bigotry than the

THEY FLED!

Troops' First Encounter In Cuba.

THE ENEMY SHOT AND RAN.

Killed Thirteen Before Seeking Safety In Flight.

Playa Del Este, June 25.—General Linares was in personal command of 1200 Spanish troops at Juragua Thursday. The Cuban scouts had brought word of his presence, and a hope had run through the American vanguard that he would stand for a fight, but Linares' order for the day was evidently to risk no engagement. He evacuated Juragua in such haste that his men did not have time to burn the town, and even abandoned an effort to destroy the locomotives and rolling stock of the railroad. These, of course, fell into the hands of the Americans. They will be useful for bringing up the siege guns and the heavy impedimenta.

General Chaffee rode into Juragua at dark with him were the Ninth cavalry and a part of the Eighth, Fourth, Seventh, Twelfth and Seventeenth infantry. Close behind them was General Bates, with the reserve of the Twentieth infantry and Colonel Woods' rough riders, trundling along their dynamite gun, of which they are so proud. The capture of Juragua had not been on the program for the day, but as soon as the couriers brought the news back to Baiquiri such of the troopships as had not disembarked their men steamed up Baiquiri bay, intending to land their men there and save a dozen miles of marching. The surf, however, was too heavy to permit a landing by the boats.

Friday morning the first engagement in grim earnest between the attacking forces of General Shafter on the one hand and the Spanish troops on the other, took place. It was a bloody, bushwhacking sort of a fight in the dense Cuban jungle between dismounted volunteers and regular cavalry and a body of regular Spanish troops.

The men of the first volunteer cavalry, commanded by Colonel Wood, better known as Roosevelt's rough riders, got their baptism of fire. Many of these men are scions of the wealthiest families of the land, men with white hands and accustomed to luxury and ease. They fought like heroes. By their sides fought the hardy fellows of the First and Tenth United States cavalry regiments, who vied with the volunteers in daring acts and close, deadly marksmanship that presently drove the Spaniards in confusion from the field.

More than a thousand men, dismounted attacked the Spaniards, who were 2000 strong, in the thickets. The enemy were fighting in a country with which they were perfectly familiar, and from cover. They resisted determinedly at first and poured a hail of mauser bullets into the advancing Americans. Our soldiers fell before the deadly storm, but nothing could withstand their impetuous rush, and the enemy fled, leaving many dead. The Americans lost the following:

Rough riders—Captain Allyn K. Capron of troop L; Sergeant Hamilton Fish, Jr., Privates Dougherty, Tillman and Dawson of troop L, and Private W. T. Erwin of troop F.

First cavalry—Privates Dix, York, Bjork, Kolbe, Berlin and Lenmeck.

Tenth cavalry—Corporal White.

At least 50 Americans were wounded, including six officers. Several of the wounded will die. Twelve dead Spaniards were found in the bush after the fight, but the Spanish loss was doubtless far in excess of that.

The following officers were wounded: Major Brodie, shot through the right forearm; Captain McClintock, troop B, shot through the right leg; Lieutenant J. R. Thomas, troop L, shot through the right leg, and his condition serious; Captain Knox, whose condition is serious; Major Bell and Lieutenant Bryan.

The following are among the soldiers wounded of the rough riders: Troop B, Privates E. M. Hill, Shelley Fishler, M. S. Newcomb, Fred N. Beale and Corporal J. D. Rhodes.

Troop E—Corporal James F. Bean, Privates Frank B. Booth, Albert C. Hartle, R. G. Bailey, H. Alvers, E. J. Aherton, Clifford Reed and Sergeant G. W. Arringe.

Troop G—Sergeant Thomas F. Cavanaugh, Corporal L. L. Stewart, Privates George Rowland, H. J. Haefner, Michael Coyle, R. M. Reid and M. Russell.

Troop L—Privates J. R. Kean, John P. Dernap, Thomas F. Meagher, Edward Calborst and Nathaniel Poe.

Troop B of the Tenth cavalry—Privates Russell, Gaines, Miller, Gross, Braxton and Wheeler.

Troop I—Privates Ridd and Mayberry.

Edward Marshall, correspondent of the New York Journal and Advertiser, was seriously wounded in the small of the back. It is probable that at least 10 in the list of wounded will die.

The cavalrymen were afterward reinforced by the Seventh, Twelfth, and Seventeenth infantry, part of the Ninth cavalry, the Second Massachusetts and the Seventy-first New York. The Americans now hold the threshold of Santiago, with more troops going forward constantly, and they are preparing for a final assault upon the city.

Queen Suspends Parliament.

Madrid, June 25.—A decree of the queen regent suspending the cortes was read in the senate last evening. Prior to the reading of the decree in the chamber of deputies, which was crowded, as were also the galleries, Salmeron, the Republican leader, declared that some of his remarks had been omitted in the official report of Thursday's proceedings. The president of the chamber said the omission must be attributed to the uproar, which had probably prevented the reporters from hearing him. Salmeron wished to have included in the official report his declaration throwing the responsibility for all the misfortunes of the country upon the monarchy.

Sagasta at this point rose and read the royal decree suspending parliament. The deputies adjourned without the customary cheers for the throne.

Ninth Leaves Camp.

Washington, June 25.—The Ninth Massachusetts and two battalions of the Thirty-fourth Michigan broke camp Friday evening and proceeded to Alexandria by rail. There they took steamers and departed for Newport News, from which point they will embark for Santiago to reinforce General Shafter.

Surgeon O. H. Marion, Sixth Massachusetts, has resigned on account of ill health.

The Rhode Island and New York men are disappointed in not having been ordered away.

Colonel S. M. Welch will ask the postoffice department to investigate the loss of letters intended for soldiers at Camp Alger. A number of letters were discovered in the rear of a grocery store near the camp. They had all been opened, and none had reached the persons addressed.

The Merrimac Prisoners.

Kingston, Jam., June 25.—A flag of truce was taken in by Assistant Chief of Staff Stanton to ascertain the whereabouts of the Merrimac prisoners, Lieutenant Hobson and his companions. The Colon, a Spanish tug, with Captain Concas on board, came out to meet him. Captain Concas stated that Lieutenant Hobson and his men were confined in Santiago town. They were all well, and he was sorry they could not be given their liberty, but the authorities thought it inadvisable. The mission was caused by the refusal of Spain to exchange the prisoners. Had they still been in the castle, Admiral Sampson was to notify the Spaniards that Spain would be held responsible should any harm befall them This ultimatum was rendered unnecessary.

LIEUTENANT RICHMOND P. HOBSON.

American Flag Floating.

Kingston, June 25.—Thursday afternoon the American flag was floating from the top of the Altares mountains, back of Baiquiri. The men cheered and waved their hats, the warships and transports let loose their sirens and the bands played "The Star Spangled Banner." Major Lamotte, with two men of the volunteer cavalry, climbed the heights and raised the flag.

The Spanish-American iron works, which were destroyed before the troops landed yesterday, belonged to the Steelton company, near Baltimore, Md.

The Cubans under General Castillo entered Baiquiri after the Spaniards had deserted the town. The clothing they wore was no more than rags, many of them being two-thirds naked. Some of them had no trousers, while the majority of them were barefooted. They were mostly negroes, some being boys only 15 years of age. The guns they carried were of many models, ranging from flintlocks to mauser and remingtons. All, however, were armed with machetes. The officers rode donkeys and scrub horses. The sun was blazing hot and a number of soldiers were prostrated.

Praised by Secretary Long.

Washington, June 25.—In a letter of commendation to Lieutenant Victor Blue, who made a perilous trip of 70 miles in search of information concerning Cervera's fleet, Secretary Long says: "Undoubtedly it must have been gratifying to the commander-in-chief to know that the confidence he reposed in you to perform this duty was not misplaced, and the department takes much pleasure in highly commending you for this service, and feels sure that your action will prove to be an example for your brother officers to emulate, and a most favorable augury for your future career in a service already distinguished by the personal heroism of its members."

Outbreak of Volunteers.

Mobile, June 25.—Three or four hundred of the Texas, Louisiana and Alabama volunteers, having been paid off, slipped through the camp lines and came to town, where they made a night of it. At roll call some of the companies did not have more than seven men. At guard mount; out of 1700 men that should have been in line, there were not half that number, and a strong prevost guard was sent out to arrest the absentees. Finally the number under arrest became so large that the guardhouse would not hold them and they were all placed in an icehouse, where they raised such a row that a detail of marines was sent for from the auxiliary cruiser, Powhattan. These men put the leaders of the disturbance in irons. Later the prisoners pulled up the brick pavement in the house and threw bricks through the windows into a crowd of citizens standing on the street outside.

Will Sagasta Resign?

London, June 25.—The Madrid correspondent of The Daily Telegraph says: "When the cortes closed martial law was proclaimed. The Sagasta cabinet will resign and make way for a new government, which will open negotiations for peace."

DUFFY KICKED.

Rank Umpiring In the Pittsburg Game Aroused His Ire.

Pittsburg, June 25.—The hottest argument in all respects that the boys from Boston have seen here since baseball began took place Friday. They scrapped from start to end of the game. Tenney struck Donovan with the ball. Tenney claimed that Donovan interfered with him in fielding the ball, and there was a wild scene. The umpires did not please the champions, and they complained bitterly time and time again. One time Captain Duffy kicked so strongly about a decision made by Heydler that the latter changed his decision, and pandemonium reigned for awhile.

Kioby pitched fine ball and was supported splendidly. The hits made off his delivery were of the scratchy kind, but it must be understood that the pirates played the very best kind of ball. Gardner was a puzzle that the Bostons could do little or nothing with. They could not get his measure when a hit was needed. Really the visitors would have been shut out had it not been for the wildness of Gardner in the second inning. Score:

Sockalexis, the Indian ball player of the Cleveland club, who has occupied the bench much of the time recently, probably will be exchanged. Negotiations are pending to trade him for Pitcher McBride of the Youngstown club.

The Newports defeated the Brocktons in an interesting hit and run game, an extra inning being required to do the trick.

The Brooklyns fielded well, but could not do much with Callahan of the Chicagos. The orphans evened up their loose fielding by timely hitting, and won, 8 to 4.

Piatt of the Philadelphias pitched fine ball, and the Louisvilles were lucky to get one run. Both teams fielded well. Score: 3 to 1.

Jones was put in the box yesterday for the Clevelands. In the fourth inning he went to pieces and lost the game to the New Yorks, 11 to 4.

Keister's wild throwing was responsible for the Rochesters' defeat by the Providence team yesterday. The Providences roasted Umpire Doescher with impunity. Score: 6 to 5.

Hughey of the St. Louis club pitched a wonderful game against the orioles yesterday until the eighth inning, when the visitors made three runs and won, 4 to 2.

The wretched fielding of the Cincinnatis allowed the Washingtons to win, 10 to 8. Hawley was relieved by Damman in the seventh.

The game between the Fall Rivers and the Tauntons was a pitchers' battle. The Taunton players were unable to hit Flanagan, and only in the fourth inning did the winners find Mains to any extent, when three runs were brought in, winning the game.

Encouraged to Steal.

Providence, June 25.—Maurice Rosenberg, a shoe dealer, and two boys, George Clarke, aged 16, and Carl Braswell, aged 18, were taken in custody by the police yesterday afternoon. For some time local jobbers in boots and shoes have been the victims of petty thieving, and detectives have been working on the case. Yesterday the two boys were arrested on suspicion; they admitted their guilt and accused Rosenberg of inciting them to the thefts, paying them from 30 to 50 cents for each pair of shoes. Rosenberg denies the charge, but all three are held by the police, and the latter have reason to believe that other boys are implicated. A patrol load of shoes was taken from Rosenberg's store and claimed by the different jobbers.

Anti-Jewish Outbreaks.

London, June 25.—The Vienna correspondent of The Daily News says: The anti-Jewish outbreaks in Galicia are by no means ended. There was serious rioting Thursday near Sandec, and Friday at Meu Sandec the military was called out to restore order. Plundering and assaultings of Jews in the villages have been daily occurrences for a fortnight. On June 15 32 towns and villages were in open revolt. A bloody conflict occurred at Frystak, in which 12 peasants were killed.

FOREIGN PROPAGANDA.

Effort to Stir Up Animosity Over Manila.

Report Concerning Germany Discredited.

Assurances of Friendship Taken as Conclusive of Goodwill.

Washington, June 24.—The reports that Germany has landed a naval force at Manila are discredited in the most positive manner at the state department and in the best informed diplomatic circles. It is looked upon as a part of the persistent foreign propaganda inspired from Madrid, which for weeks has been seeking to stir up animosity between the United States, Germany, France and other countries. That the report is purely conjectural is shown from the fact that there is no cable communication out of Manila, and even Admiral Dewey, who holds the shore end of the cable, has not been heard from in some days.

The authorities here take strong grounds in maintaining that the good faith of Germany cannot be questioned in view of the definite statements from the German ambassador. He said that Germany was not only maintaining the strictest neutrality, but that any reports of ulterior motives on her part were unwarranted, and were a reflection upon the good faith with which that empire remains with the outside world. The officials here regard such assurances as conclusive, and they will not even entertain the idea that the presence of German ships in Manila harbor is a menace. As long as there is no overt act or menace the authorities will take no presumption of an overt act, but will rely absolutely on the assurances Germany has given voluntarily.

In some quarters it is suggested that such a serious condition of affairs might arise at Manila as to lead naval commanders to land forces for strictly police duty; but not such a condition has arisen thus far, and there is every evidence that Admiral Dewey is strong enough to maintain order and protect the lives and property of all parties concerned. In any event, it is pointed out, the landing of a foreign force would be solely for policing purposes. In case an insurgent raid threatened a wholesale massacre, police protection would be temporary and quite distinct from a well defined government policy to secure territory in the Philippines.

Stamps Will Be Ready.

Washington, June 24.—The secretary of the treasury has decided to make temporary use of postage stamps for internal revenue purposes under the new war revenue act, and yesterday the first lot of about 1,000,000 was delivered for shipment to collectors. It is estimated that about 25,000,000 postage stamps will be required to meet the needs of the service until the regular issue can be furnished in sufficient quantities. About 1,500,000 proprietary stamps of the regular issue already have been sent out, and hereafter daily shipments will be made. The Pacific coast will be supplied first, and then points further east until the whole country is covered.

The postage stamps will be largely of the 1 and 2-cent denominations, and will be imprinted with the initials, "I. R." Large quantities of these will be delivered to the telegraph, express, freight and palace car companies for distribution to their own offices. It is now thought that practically the whole country will be supplied with all classes of stamps by July 1, or earlier.

As soon as the revenue collectors receive the stamps, they, in turn, will place them immediately in the hands of their deputies throughout their districts. National banks will be also asked to assist in the distribution of the stamps so that the general public may have as easy access to them as possible. Thursday the bureau of engraving and printing broke its record for the number of stamps turned out in one day. Last evening Director C. M. Johnson delivered to the treasury department 11,200,000 stamps of various denominations, excluding the ones and twos of postage stamps. Such a record has never been approximated by the bureau.

The National Capital.

Washington, June 24.—Discussion in the senate of the Hawaiian annexation question was interrupted by Mr. Rawlins of Utah with a speech in which he criticised vigorously the provision embodied in the conference report on the Indian appropriation bill, which acknowledges the right of Indians to lease mineral lands on their reservations. He declared that it was a far graver matter than the annexation of the Hawaiian islands, as it would involve the cession to the Indians of the mineral rights in territory exceeding 50,000,000 acres of land, not including the territory of Alaska. He charged that speculators had obtained already leases to much of these lands, and if the provisions proposed by the committee were adopted the government would lose tens of millions of dollars.

Mr. Pettigrew resumed his speech in opposition to Hawaiian annexation, addressing the senate for about two hours. In the course of his argument, which was forceful and interesting because he had made a personal investigation, he maintained that the harbor of Kiska, on the island of Great Kiska, owned by the United States, would make a much better coaling station for our navy than Honolulu.

At the session of the house further agreements upon the sundry civil bill were reported from the committee on conference and adopted. Bills of minor importance were passed and 63 pension and relief measures were disposed of. The house adjourned until Monday.

THE BATTLE OF MANILA—ADMIRAL DEWEY'S SQUADRON SWINGING ABOUT THE ELLIPSE. FROM HARPER'S WEEKLY.

FROM A SKETCH MADE ON THE DESPATCH-BOAT "McCULLOCH" BY JOHN T. McCUTCHEON. Reproduced [illegible] Brothers.

A certain dramatic interest attaches to Dewey's recent victory in the Pacific due to the remoteness of the scene of the battle, and to the great difficulty of communication with it. In these days of the telegraph and other numerous facilities for instantaneous transmission of news, it seemed strange to wait for a report from Manila as long as London did for tidings of Trafalgar. Such a delay, coupled with the vagueness of popular knowledge regarding the Philippines, clouded the affair for a time in a romantic mist of unreality.

Now, however, we are beginning to receive the reliable accounts of eye-witnesses, and are able to form a truer idea of the happenings of that historic 1st of May. The accompanying picture is a reproduction of an illustration in Harper's Weekly, which was elaborated by W. A. Rogers from a sketch by John T. M'Cutcheon, who was on the revenue-cutter McCulloch during the fight. It represents the line of United States cruisers swinging into action off Cavite, headed by the intrepid commodore on his flag-ship, the Olympia, and is a vivid and accurate portrayal of a scene which will ever be remembered with patriotic pride by all Americans.

It is hard to predict the ultimate result of the work of Dewey's guns in driving another wedge into the complicated and portentious question of foreign domination in the East, but the immediate effect of his victory we can see in the world's recognition of the efficiency and strength of our new navy and of the dashing courage and trained skill of its men.

TEST OF CITIZENSHIP.

Ex-President Cleveland Describes It In an Address.

Each Individual Must Do His Share of Work.

Nation Never So Beset With Temptations So Dangerous as Now.

Princeton, N. J., June 22.—Ex-President Cleveland delivered the founder's day address at the commencement exercises of the Lawrenceville school Tuesday. The address was entitled, "Good Citizenship," and in part Mr. Cleveland said: "American citizenship means more than any other citizenship, not only because it lives and flourishes beneath the protection of the freest and best institutions in the world, but because it has the perpetuity and success of those institutions absolutely in its keeping and control. American citizenship has built its own habitation and is the tenant of no superior. It must, however, be apparent that this independence in the enjoyment of privileges is not all that is involved in our relations to the government we proudly call our own. American citizenship assumes the responsibility of maintaining unaltered and unimpaired the government which shelters it, and which has thus far been its protection against wind and storms.

"In order that the duty and responsibility we owe our government may be fully appreciated and faithfully discharged, it is vitally necessary for us to be convinced that we cannot delegate to others the work required of us. Each individual must with his own hands do his share. It therefore follows that no one can lay claim in a proper sense to true American citizenship who does not interest himself in matters pertaining to our government, who does not inform himself as to its designs and purposes, or who is not willing by actual interference to guard it against abuses and insidious perversion as well as against open attack.

"Of course this interest and intervention in public affairs are worse than useless unless they are entered upon in a proper spirit and with a proper motive. No one increases his claim to good citizenship who interests himself in public affairs for purely seifish purposes and to accomplish personal ends. The pretense of devotion to the principles of our government may mask nothing better than the advocacy of blind and mischievous partisanship. If such things constitute a good citizenship, we might congratulate our country, for we have them in abundance. Inasmuch, however, as they are really evils which sadly afflict and endanger us, it is of the utmost importance that there should be infused into our body politic the counteracting remedy of truly patriotic or unselfishly American citizenship. This grows out of a love of our government for its own sake and for what it does for every citizen. It is thoughtful and intelligent, and has a clear understanding of the doctrines upon which our government rests. It rejoices in American traditions; it glories in American objects and purposes, and is proudly contented with the accepted mission of the United States among the nations of the earth.

"The existence of the highest type of American citizenship depends largely of course upon the cultivation of the best and most patriotic sentiment among our people. It is nevertheless true that it depends to an equal, if not greater, degree upon a constant steadiness of sound American judgment and an uncompromising ability among our citizens to resist temptation. The American people are tempted every day and every hour to abandon their accustomed way and enter upon a course of new and strange adventure. Never before in our history have we been beset with temptations so dangerous as those which now whisper in our ears alluring words of conquest and expansion, and point out to us fields bright with the glory of war.

"We cannot be entirely exempt from the conditions which may force a nation into war. How then shall the people protect themselves against the folly of a departure from their national purposes and against the crime of unnecessary and unjustifiable war? Manifestly by an intelligent study on their part of the character of the government and the exaction of a clear apprehension on the part of those who would represent them in public life of the national mission and of the baleful effect of war upon a nation's health. The consideration emphasizes in the strongest possible manner the importance of a large participation by thoughtful and educated men in political affairs. Nothing, however, will be found sufficient as a protection of the people against betrayal if conscience and moral courage are lacking. In our present predicament of war we need have no fear that American courage in battle will fail to bring us victory; but I pray you not to forget that when the clash of arms is stilled and the courage of the soldier has done its work we shall greatly need, in dealing with a problem which will then confront us, a steady and uncompromising moral courage, which, unmoved by clamor and undisturbed by the excitement of triumph, will demand the things that true American citizenship discerns to be right and just and safe."

FRUIT AND FLOWERS

THINNING FRUIT.

Facts Derived From Experiments In Various Sections of the Country.

Thinning the fruit of trees that have a tendency to overbear is recommended very generally and practiced very little. Where thinning has been followed systematically for a number of years in commercial orchards it is said to have proved profitable. A few experiments in thinning fruits have been pursued by experiment stations, and a farmer's bulletin, in discussing the subject, notes some results observed.

An experiment reported from the Cornell (N. Y.) station indicates that in the case of blackberries and raspberries no means of regulating the number of berries per plant is necessary other than annual pruning.

Among orchard fruits perhaps none needs thinning as much as Japanese plums, except possibly peaches, which, in commercial orchards, are thinned more systematically than most other fruits. It is reported that in favorable years the fruits of Japanese plums are set so thick as to hide the limbs. In fact, the tendency to overbear is considered by some to be one of their greatest faults. Thinning the fruits of these plums has been favorably reported on by the Alabama college station. The size of the fruit was increased noticeably by thinning. The tendency to overbear is also seen in case of some varieties of native plums, as is shown by an experiment with the Gale seedling plum at the Wisconsin station. About four-fifths of the fruit was removed from a portion of a tree, leaving the fruits about two inches apart on the branches. The fruits on this portion of the tree were considerably larger than on the unthinned portion, as is shown in the illustration.

The Massachusetts Hatch station has reported the results of an experiment with apples and plums. A tree each of Gravenstein and Tetofsky apples was thinned on July 1, and a similar tree of each variety left unthinned as a check. In case of the Gravenstein the yield on the thinned and unthinned trees respectively was first quality fruit, 9 bushels and 2½ bushels; second quality fruit, 1 bushel and 2¼ bushels; windfalls, 9½ bushels and 10½ bushels. In case of the Tetofsky the thinned trees gave a bushel of windfalls and the unthinned tree 3 bushels; of second quality fruit the yield was one-half bushel from each tree, and of first quality fruit the thinned tree yielded 2 bushels and the unthinned tree none at all. The result with plums was similar to that with apples as regards increased production of fruit.

Lady Washington Geraniums.

Of pelargoniums (Lady Washington geraniums) The Rural New Yorker says: These beautiful plants are no good for bedding with us, but they are fine for the house and greenhouse. After they have finished blooming they should receive less water, though not kept dry enough to turn the leaves yellow. Then, in August, the plants should be cut back severely, leaving only two or three eyes to each stem. They are then kept perfectly dry for a week or two, when they receive a slight, overhead watering and begin to make growth. When the young growth is about an inch long, they should be repotted. Shake off all the old soil, give the roots a slight pruning and repot, using good sod loam. The pots should be a size smaller than the flower pot. During winter a temperature of 45 degrees is sufficient for pelargoniums. Grown on year after year, fine large specimens are produced.

How a Famous Grower Forces Peaches.

J. H. Hale, the greatest peach grower on earth, gets ripe peaches two weeks early by the following method: In the middle of the growing season put a strong wire around a large arm of a tree and twist it fairly tight. This checks the flow of sap and causes fruit buds to form early and in great number. The fruit on the branches of this arm will ripen two weeks earlier than that on the untreated branches and will be much more highly colored. But this part of the tree will be so weakened by the treatment that it should be cut away after fruiting that new shoots may come and take its place. Thus one large arm or limb of a tree may be forced each year.—Farm Journal.

Dewberries.

Of dewberries the Austin is highly praised in the place of its origin, at the south, but it can scarcely be expected to excel or even equal the Lucretia, which was introduced and found successful many years since. Indeed it can scarcely be expected that this fruit can ever became popular, save perhaps as a means of opening the blackberry season a few days earlier, says a Michigan experiment station bulletin.

A Siamese Punishment.

Another "decree of expulsion" has been issued by the king of Siam, this time against one of his own officials, Chow Pligh Rax, minister plenipotentiary, general adviser, etc., in which it said that "he shall be publicly stripped of his Siamese honors," that he shall then have his head shaved for the better preservation of his health, and "that he shall be, after the expiration of seven days, made to cut grass for the royal elephants for the rest of his natural life."—Advocate of India (Bombay).

Good Afternoon.

Costly as the war is likely to prove, it is already foreseen that it is destined to lay the basis for a great national revival which will far more than compensate for these temporary outlays. It can never injure a young and vigorous nation, resting on its past and neglectful of its future, to sustain a sharp shaking up such as a foreign war is apt to inflict. Such an event starts inquiry as to what are the national resources, what use has been made of them, what has been neglected and what is within reach. This sort of national survey has revealed to us a way to new openings for our commerce; it has discovered to us our rank and standing among the nations, and surprised us by its demonstration of our power to command the deference and respect of the world's greatest powers. It has uncovered to us a greater future in the world's competition for international trade; which is the one thing the country most vitally needs, and the absence of which has cast grave forebodings over the prospect of our over producing industries, It has also created the occasion for offers of co-operation with the world's foremost commercial power in the promotion of a policy of peaceful access to the commerce of all nations and for the defeat of the policy that would subject international trade to military dictation and monopoly. These are among the things that the war already offers us as its rewards; and it is not surprising that the spirit of the people is becoming more confident and hopeful.

Anyone who will take the trouble to visit the John Hancock school building will readily be convinced that the communication sent to the City Council by the School Committee, asking that the room on the third floor be finished, is timely and should be complied with.

The third floor of the building is in reality the attic, but necessity has compelled its use for a school room, although in its present condition it is entirely unfit for that purpose.

There is but a single board floor to the room and not only are there wide cracks between the boards but there are several large holes through which a child's foot is liable to slip into and cause a serious accident.

For the ceiling there is nothing but the rough rafters of the roof. On each side of the room are four windows as close together as possible. Of these windows it is only possible to open two of them, and then but a little, so that it is almost impossible to create a circulation and supply the room with fresh air. There is absolutely no means of ventilation.

The result of this with the sun beating down on the slate roof makes the room very uncomfortable in summer, the temperature having at times reached 96 degrees. Friday afternoon when visited by a Ledger correspondent the temperature was 84 degrees.

While the room is uncomfortably hot in summer it is correspondingly cold in the winter months, and it has been found necessary at times to take the class into some of the other rooms. The unfinished roof which seems to hold the heat in summer holds the cold in winter and it is not more than half the time that the temperature can be kept at 70 degrees. The normal condition required, and the average for the winter months was below 70 degrees, one morning being as low as 52 degrees.

It is only necessary for the City Council Committee on Public Buildings to fully appreciate the unfitness of the room for the purpose for which it is used, to visit the building upon some warm day.

Quincy Boy Captain.

Quincy boys are becoming numerous and in prominent positions at the front. Harry H. Sheen, a native of this city, and an ex-commodore of the Quincy Yacht club, is captain of Company A, 4th Regiment Virginia Volunteers, known as the "Lee Rifles." The regiment has been in camp at Richmond, Va., but moved to Jacksonville, Fla., last week. He has forwarded to relatives in Quincy one of his pictures taken there, representing him mounted on a fine steel grey. His uniform and brace of pistols, etc., much resembles that of the "rough riders."

Capt. Sheen's father enlisted in the Civil war in 1861, being one of the recruits of Company H. 4th Massachusetts Regiment, of which Franklin Curtis was captain. He was honored with a commission, being made a brevet major April 1, 1865.

Band Concert Tonight.

The Quincy & Boston street railway, to whom the public have been indebted for many enjoyable band concerts in past, has arranged for a grand band concert by Collin's First Regiment Band of the First Heavy Artillery, M. V. M., which will be given in City Square this evening. The band is an excellent one composed of forty musicians, and the following programme which has been arranged can not fail to please:

1. March—First Regiment, M. V. M., D. W. Reeves
2. Overture—America, E. N. Catlin
3. Cornet solo, Selected
   Mr. H. W. Treet.
4. (a) A Hot Time in the Old Town, with vocal chorus, J. W. Chattaway
   (b) A Georgia Camp-meeting, Kerry Mills
5. March—Cuban Liberty, E. C. Ramsdell
6. Medley—A Cluster of Peaches, Beyer
7. Indian Dance, Belstedt
8. (a) Stars and Stripes Forever, Sousa
   (b) America.

Child Lost.

The youngest child of Michael Barry of the Central fire station has been among the missing since 11 A. M., today. The family reside at 36 Quincy avenue and little Alice, who is about three years old, was playing in the yard. She is thought to have gone in search of her father at the fire station, and to have strayed away. The police have been notified and also Chief Engineer Packard of the fire department. An alarm was given at 2 40 o'clock this afternoon from Box 35.

Enlisting.

The recruiting office of Co. K at Grand Army hall was a busy place last night. Many were present, some out of mere curiosity, but there were others who desired to enlist, and before nine o'clock upwards of a dozen had signed the application papers. At Braintree was another recruiting office, and several signed the applications to enlist.

Captured.

The first rattesnake of the season has been captured this week on the State Reservation by Mr. Rufus Pierce of West Quincy. He has twelve rattles and is said to be a real beauty and a grand singer.

The attack of "Granite Cutter" upon the granite manufacturers seems to have been the desire to stir up an unnecessary trouble, and especially unkind to intimate that the son of one the of the maufacturers was driven to enlist because the firm hired a Spaniard. It was upon the suggestion of the Volunteer that the apprentice was taken back. Inasmuch as the fellow understands very little English no trouble is anticipated. He would be naturalized were it possible. Were he driven home he would be compelled to take up arms against this country. The firm in question stand high in its treatment of labor.

FLAG RAISING.

Mayor and Others Speak at West Quincy.

It was a grand flag raising that was held at St. Mary's hall last evening under the auspices of the C. T. A. society and the Ladies' Auxiliary and there was plenty of enthusiasm on the part of the hundreds who had assembled to hear the patriotic speeches and to cheer "old glory, when it was flung to the breeze from the tower of the building.

Previous to the unfurling of the flag the West Quincy band gave a concert and shortly after 8 o'clock, Dr. Ash, who presided, called for order and in a few words introduced as the first speaker, His Honor, Mayor Sears.

Mayor Sears said he was glad of the opportunity of again paying his respects to Old Glory. It was a flag we have paid our respects to and shown our love for many times. It was the common idol of the rich and the poverty stricken, a reminder of the grandeur of the past, the glory of the present, and the hopes of the future. It was just as dear to us in peace as in war. We never see it but it means victory, and now when we see it pitted against Spain, we look for victory. It was a grand sight to see the men of the North and South marching shoulder to shoulder to fight for our country. It was fitting this district should have this demonstration, and when the time comes when we shall again see the flag waving for victory, we shall raise our eves to that flag and praise God from whom all blessings flow.

As Mayor Sears concluded his remarks, the flag was unfurled mid the boom of cannon, the burning of red fire and cheer after cheer from the crowd assembled, which was given with a vim, such as none but West Quincy can give.

Christopher J. Fay, President of the Catholic Temperance Union, the next speaker, said the purpose that brings us together appeals to the hearts of all lovers of liberty. The coming together of free American citizens to pay tribute to the grand old flag was not necessary to show our patriotism, but was a revival of our love and admiration for an emblem that served as a beacon light to the grand old patriots of 1812, to the patriots of the Revolution and of the Rebellion. It was that inspiration that won the victory. This was a fitting demonstration to be held under the auspices of the association, for if there is any material that is needed it is that which graduated from the temperance associations. It is upon the sober, industrious and public spirited citizens, who have the advantage of being physically sound and clear headed, that the government depends. When you realize what a sacrifice our people have made for this flag, what greater honor can come to this society. In closing, the speaker asked the young men to be sober and industrious.

Rev. Fr. Cuffe was glad to be present at the unfurling of the flag over a hall dedicated to the great virtue of temperance. It was the wish of the executive of this State that the flag should be displayed upon all public buildings, not because we might forget our flag, but because he wished to have it before us as an object lesson of religious and civil liberty that has cost thousands of lives of our nation and was left to us as a legacy purchased by the blood of heroes. Under it those who have been persecuted in other countries, find freedom and have prospered, and wherever an American citizen is found, the American flag will be his protector. We know that those who have gone forth today have gone as brothers in the spirit of brother. Let us ask God that those who have gone forth may be preserved from danger and bring to those in misery, peace and happiness.

Ex-councilman Jonas Shackley was the last speaker and he briefly outlined the history of the flag.

At the close of the exercises the band gave a concert and the speakers and reporters were entertained by the ladies of the Auxiliary with ice cream and cake.

At 9 o'clock a dance was commenced in the upper hall under their auspices, music being furnished by Wilson's orchestra. It was a most successful affair and the society are to be congratulated upon their handsome flag and their management of the affair.

It is possible that Mr. Newcomb may be a candidate for the senate in case Senator Flint does not care to return. The senator has had two years and has been an able representative of his district. If he should wish to run for a third term, Mr. Newcomb will not run against him, but if he should decide not to be a candidate, the Quincy representative would probably be in the field. In that case it is said that Mr. Thompson will support Mr. Newcomb.

The temperature today at noon was 95 degrees which is five degrees hotter than any day thus far this year, the nearest approach to it being on June 9 when it registered 90 degrees at the same hour. The temperature is also higher than it has been any time, at noon, since August 10, 1896, when it was the same as today. The hottest day in 1897 was July 5 when the temperature was 94 degrees. The highest point the temperature has reached at noon, since the Ledger commenced to keep its record was 96, which was July 13, 1896.

Twenty years in catering to the trade in Quincy. That means, if we have done business intelligently, that we know what the people want in our line and give it to them.

OUR PRICES are always governed by the market, and are as low as the large first-class Boston and New York stores.

QUALITY is the first consideration and we allow nothing to go to our trade but goods that we can guarantee. We ask you to call and inspect our goods and prices, confident that we can please.

A duty of ten cents a pound is to go on TEA. We ask particular attention to our grades as the VERY CHOICEST sold anywhere. It would pay you to buy your Tea from us.

Commissions Received by Quincy Men in Civil War.

Quincy sent 954 men to the front in the Civil war, and expended $48,912.11. It then had a population of 6,778, and a valuation of less than four million. Will it be less patriotic now that it has a population of 25,000 and valuation of eighteen million dollars. The ranks of Co. K are not yet filled.

KEY WEST LETTER.

Allie Williams Writes Again Very Interestingly.

This letter was received yesterday from Allie Williams :—

KEY WEST, June 16, 1898.

Good morning to you all at home.

I have got to row ashore after provisions : Fifty pounds of meat, fifteen loaves of bread, potatoes and onions.

Six bells 7 A. M., and we are just through breakfast. Don't know what is up yet, but we are going to mount a six-pounder on deck.

We are going to Mobile to have a new boiler put in, then we will have some fun if the war is not over. The captain has ordered the chief engineer to get up steam. We will leave here at 2 P. M.

When we come back I hope to have a stripe on my arm with a bird over it (Quartermaster). I think that the captain will rate me quartermaster, third class. That will be thirty dollars a month. I love my gun and will hate to leave it, but I am here to obey orders, what ever they may be, so everything goes. I would like a chance to try my gun on something that looks Spanish.

I am studying the signals which I have got to know. Taking the wigwag lights, and flags, there are a great many of them, and don't know whether my head will hold them all or not. The quartermaster's work is on the bridge most of the time. He takes a trick at the wheel, the lead, signals, besides other duties.

I saw four Cubans on the Wilmington. I examined the outfit, consisting of a machete, revolver and belt. The story which they tell was something awful. If we ever get down there I expect to see a hot time.

I appreciated the kindness of the people at home in inquiring after my welfare. I will try to represent Ward Five on the water, and I know that Harry Osgood will on the land, for he is made of good stuff. I think Wollaston aught to send more than two men.

The people must be proud of that flag and pole. It must be a dandy. I wish that I could be there. I would show you how to break the flag out from aloft. I never could show you any tricks but will try and have some for you when I come home.

Tell Arra to look at the next full moon and she will see a lady's face as pretty as a picture. It is on the right hand side; the eye forms the bangs and mouth. Tell her to look long she will not see it at first. I have sent her a pair of flying fish wings taken from a fish that came on board off Cape Hatteras.

We get considerable news from the Journal. They have a boat here. I would like to have the Ledger once in awhile, have not seen one since I left home.

Will write when I get to Mobile. I must turn to now.

ALLIE WILLIAMS.

NOTE.—The editors are pleased to send Ledgers to all soldiers and sailors who will write letters, and have forwarded papers to Mr. Williams, but doubtless they have not yet reached him.

Health Fund.

The Children's Health Fund of Boston is entering vigorously upon its summer work of providing change and recreation for poor and sickly children during the heated term.

With the co-operation of its friends it is proposed to enlarge its gracious work among the needy, and it has so systematized its plans as to be able to accomplish the largest amount of good for the smallest amount of money. The Society sends sickly children into the country to board one to three weeks at a cost of $2.50 per child, inclusive of railroad fares. Such a visit away from the stifling atmosphere of tenement houses often means life to a child who otherwise would die. Harbor excursions and barge rides give a breath of pure air which would not be had but for this charity. Excursions and picnics with a hearty dinner can be given at a cost of fifty cents.

During the past four years more than 4,300 children have been thus cared for.

Arrangements for the present season are being made, and the measure of the work is dependent upon the returns to the appeal, which is most earnestly made for financial co-operation.

Cash donations may be made to the Treasurer, G. W. Averell, No. 36 Bromfield street, Boston, Mass.

Any person willing to contribute to this work by taking a child to board without charge can communicate with the same person.

WEYMOUTH.

Little Items of Interest About Town.

Mr. T. A. Watson and family will go to their summer home in Vermont next week.

Miss Moore, a relative of Mrs. Charles T. Crane, has been spending a few pleasant weeks of her vacation with this relative.

Mrs. Julian Fairchild and her daughter, Florence, from Brooklyn, are making a short visit with their relative, Mrs. H. S. Snyder.

At the Jonas Perkins School in East Braintree the graduating class held a new kind of commencement exercises Thursday. Instead of having the 14 year old boys and girls entertain their friends; some of our ministers were invited to make short addresses. The Rev. H. S. Snyder spoke upon "Building Character" as suggested by the skilful work done in the Sloyd room by this class. Father Holland was also present and enlarged upon this topic. Rev. Mr. Cressey and many friends made the day memorable.

TOMORROW.

A fond, dotting mother, with eyes full of love,
Said, "Charley, oh, do pray tonight,
And the angels will come on their shining wings
To cause you sweet dreams of delight."
"Oh, mother," he cried, "I am weary and sad,
But tomorrow, dear mother, I will."
Alas, alas, that night was his last!
Tomorrow he was pulseless and still.

An old man lay on his narrow couch,
And fever was racking his brain.
"Pray God to forgive you," his pastor would say,
"For the penitent's prayers are not vain."
"I am better, much better," he breathed in reply.
"Tomorrow"—and here he loud sighed—
"Tomorrow I'll ask"— No more could he say.
With the sentence unfinished he died.
—Finley Johnson in New York Ledger.

FOR HIS SAKE.

The twilight had deepened into darkness, and the fire was very low, but the red glow from the embers revealed the solitary inhabitant of the room sitting in an attitude of hopeless dejection. There was silence save for the ticking of the old grandfather's clock, and to Colonel Dalmaine the pendulum seemed to beat out the refrain that was echoing in his own mind, "Five hundred pounds, five hundred pounds!" Presently a red-hot coal fell from the grate and threw a faint flicker on the writing table, upon which was a photograph of a very lovely girl in a silver frame.

"Oh, beauty!" said the colonel, with a long drawn sigh, and a softened expression of infinite pity came over his rugged features as he looked at the beautiful girlish face. "Oh, beauty, my heart's dear queen!" And then a sob broke the stillness of the room, and Travers Dalmaine bowed his head on his hands and gave himself up to a paroxysm of silent agony.

Just at this minute the heavy oak door was pushed noiselessly open and a small figure softly entered the room and crossed to the writing table. A little hand was laid on the colonel's arm and a little voice announced, "Chappie's here!" and then Dalmaine raised his head, and the firelight danced with glee, for the sad face now beamed with love and tenderness as he put one arm round the little lad at his side and murmured, "Chappie, my beauty's little boy."

"'Es, Chappie's tum. What for oo kwy?" demanded the baby voice, and then, catching sight of the silver frame, he added, softly, "Chappie's movah—Chappie's booful movah!"

Then the little lad climbed on his father's knee and demanded a story. And hand in hand Dalmaine wandered with his little son through the delightful mazes of fairyland, forgetful of the overwhelming weight of trouble that had come upon him.

As they sat thus the library door opened and let in a flood of light from the hall. It fell on the curly golden head that nestled near the iron gray one, on the sweet baby features and on the man's rugged, sun tanned face. It was a touching picture that would have appealed to any woman's heart, and a little gleam of the sleeping womanhood in Beauty Dalmaine awoke as she paused on the threshold and watched her husband and her little son. Both turned, and then the child ran forward to greet the beautiful young mother, but she drew back, saying, "Be careful, child; you will crush my dress," and then daintily gathered up the shimmering satin train. But there was an ache in the heart of the loving little lad as he gazed at the faultless face above him, and then a kind hand was laid on his head, and his father said:

"You must run away now, Chappie. I want mother. Good night, my son," and he stooped and kissed the sorrowful little face with all the tenderness of a woman.

"Fardle wants Chappie's movah," the child repeated to himself as he ran up the stairs, and then the library door closed, and the husband and wife were alone.

"You'll be brief, Travers, because I have an engagement," the cold, clear voice rang out.

"To-night your engagement must fall through. I have much to say, and I must say it now."

The colonel spoke with decision, and it was hard to believe that he was the same man who had just been telling Chappie such wonderful fairy tales. The tender smile had vanished, and his usually stern face had assumed its severest expression.

"Pray sit down," he continued, pushing a chair toward his wife, but Beauty Dalmaine remained standing.

"Nonsense, Travers. I can't postpone tonight's engagement. We are going to the play. Sir Arthur has had the greatest difficulty in getting the seats, and as he has taken so much trouble I cannot put off going."

"There are worse faults that can be laid at your door, my child," her husband replied gravely. "You owe some obedience to your husband, and tonight I wish that you remain at home. I will send an apology to Sir Arthur." And so saying he rang for the lights and sat down to the writing table.

When the note had been duly dispatched, Colonel Dalmaine turned once more to his wife. She looked wonderfully beautiful, but it was the beauty of a statue. Her expression was cold and proud, and her attitude was one of haughty defiance. The severity died out of Dalmaine's face and gave way to a softer expression as he spoke.

"Did you hear what the little one said? 'Fardie wants Chappie's mother.' That is just it. I want you, beauty. I want a little of the wifely love and tenderness that is my due. Wherever I go I hear of Beauty Dalmaine's loveliness, of her sweetness, of her talents. I am the envy of all men, but if they only knew—if they only knew—that that sweetness is reserved for any one but her husband, that those talents are not used for the beautifying of her home, but to lure on other unfortunate men to the same abyss that was my fate; that her beauty, instead of being my pride and joy, is the cause of my most bitter misery! My child, I have excused you, even to myself, and have, moreover, blamed myself in a great measure that my love should not satisfy you. Perhaps I did wrong to marry you, a mere child in comparison with myself, but I loved you, Beauty, and I cannot see you rushing on headlong to your ruin without putting every obstacle in your way. Your name, the name of Beauty Dalmaine, my peerless wife, is on every tongue in London. Am I to stand that? Am I to let the name of the woman whom I chose from among all others to make my wife—am I to let that name be dragged in the dust? Is the mother of my son to be the plaything of these empty headed society men? What am I better than a brute if I stand by without interfering? You shall not drag my name and honor in the dust. Your insane vanity, which is leading you into all sorts of difficulties, must be curbed. Today I have a bill for £500 from your dressmaker. There was a time, child, when to please me seemed your greatest pleasure. That time has passed. But what have I done to forfeit your love? I have done my utmost to make you happy, and yet how I've failed!" And Travers Dalmaine drew his coat sleeve across his eyes, and there was silence for the space of a minute.

During this speech his wife had stood motionless, her eyes downcast. She was very pale, but otherwise showed no emotion. Presently he spoke again, but his voice sounded husky and far away.

"Beauty," he cried, "for my sake pause in your mad career, or if not for mine for Chappie's."

Surely that appeal would have touched any mother's heart, but Beauty Dalmaine heard it unmoved. She slowly crossed to the door, and turning she looked defiantly at her husband, and her voice rang out with metallic clearness as she said:

"I have listened to you patiently. Now I am going to the play with Sir Arthur Maynard." And then she vanished, and like one stunned her husband remained vacantly gazing at the door through which she had disappeared.

But Beauty Dalmaine did not go to the play that night. When she left the library, she slowly ascended the stairs with the intention of fetching a fan from her room. The servants were all at supper, and the house was very still, when suddenly a small voice broke the stillness, "Chappie wants movah!" followed by a sound of sobbing.

Beauty paused. The sobs continued, and again the little voice called: "Chappie wants movah! God send Chappie's movah!"

Swiftly she flew down the passage and entered the nursery. The little lad's prayer had not been in vain. God had heard it and used it as an instrument to unlock the mother's heart. In a few short seconds Chappie was in his mother's arms. The costly satin dress was forgotten, and freely her tears were mingling with his own. For the first time in his baby life he tasted the joys of a mother's love. Hitherto she had only been a beautiful, unapproachable dream. Now she was a living, loving reality.

An hour later, with weary footsteps and an aching heart, Travers Dalmaine climbed the nursery stairs, and on the threshold a beautiful picture gladdened his sorrow laden eyes. By the cot of their sleeping child knelt Beauty Dalmaine, her lovely face illumined with the light of the newborn mother love and her hands clasped in prayer. Softly her husband crossed the room and laid his hand tenderly upon her head, while she raised her dark eyes to his and still kneeling said:

"Travers, my husband, forgive me. I meant to go, but Chappie wanted me, and when I heard him say so there suddenly flashed on me the dark, loveless future I was making for my little son—our little son." She corrected herself softly, and then she was raised to her feet, and a pair of strong arms enfolded her and her husband's deep tones assured her she was forgiven.

"For his sake we'll start again, my darling," he added.

"And for Chappie's father's sake," she whispered, as her white arms stole round his neck. And the little sleeper moved, and they looked down to see a radiant smile dawn on his face and both stooped and kissed him. Then hand in hand they stole from the room.—Lady.

OUR WEEKLY FASHION PLATE.

PLAIN AND EMBROIDERED BATISTE GOWN FROM HARPER'S BAZAR

A French batiste dress for morning wear, of pale biscuit color, is a simple model, whose beauty lies in its exquisite texture and quaint simplicity.

The seven-gored skirt, long and beautifully hung in the back, is made to fit the figure closely about the hips. The ruffle at the foot, slightly full, is of white batiste, with large eyelets wrought with heavy silk in mauve; this also makes the ruffle on the broad bertha. The ruffles are headed by three narrow milliner's folds of a paler tint of mauve. The open bodice discloses a hemisette of turquoise blue, which, with mauve, forms one of the favorite French color combinations. The vest is tucked at the neck, and gathered full below the yoke and into a narrow belt of the same material, which is a feature of summer fashions. The sleeves are tight and long, with needle-work frills at the wrist, and the collar is a high straight band of the embroidery.

The proper cut of this gown can be obtained only from the cut paper patterns published by Harper's Bazar, where it appears.

Quantity of material for gown—Plain batiste, 8 yards; embroidered batiste, 2 1-2 yards; colored batiste for vest, 3-4 yard; batiste for folds, 2 yards.

Friendship For Friends.

The dogs of Constantinople are the scavengers of the city. For this reason, as well as from innate humanity, the Turks are tolerant of them, although visitors to the city find them unamiable. As a proof of their intelligence and recognition of friends Major Johnson relates this experience of his own:

One evening I was walking with an English officer, when a dog came up and licked his hand. He told me to notice that she would follow us to the boundary of her district, as he had once petted her and she had never forgotten it. Exactly as he had said, she followed us a little way and stopped short in the middle of the street. She wagged her tail and looked wistfully after us, but did not stir when we called her.

A few nights afterward, returning alone to my hotel, I passed the same spot, when I suddenly felt a cold nose put into my hand and a tongue licking my palm. I looked down and saw the same dog. She had recognized me as having been with her friend, the officer, and as before, she followed me to the boundary of her district.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning June 26.
Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—The right use of time.—Eccl. iii, 1-8; Acts xxiv, 24, 25.

One of the most important things in life is the right use of time. Time properly used fits men for both time and eternity; time neglected or improperly used unfits them for both. Our temporal and eternal destinies depend upon our use of time. How important, then, that it should be rightly used!

The topical references suggest some important reasons why time should be rightly used.

1. Time should be rightly used because God has appointed "to everything a season and a time to every purpose under the heaven." We can easily see that this is true in the physical world. God has a time for every season, a time for day, a time for night, a time for summer, a time for winter, and with unfailing regularity each season comes at God's appointed hour. God also has appointed times for the life of man. Every hour has its divinely appointed duty, and he who fails in the performance of it fails in his duty to God. Our greatest anxiety concerning time should be to learn what is the divinely appointed duty of the hour and then to perform it.

2. Time should be rightly used, because it passes swiftly by and never returns; if, therefore, the duty of the hour is not performed, the opportune time has gone forever. What confusion there would be in the physical world if the duties of the hour were not performed. What if day should extend into night or night prolong itself into the day, summer extend into winter or winter continue into summer? Confusion would be the result. How many human lives are thrown into absolute confusion from such a cause as this. The duties of one hour are neglected or postponed until another, and this is continued until so many duties crowd upon us that it is impossible for us to straighten out the confused affairs of our lives. There should be no procrastination in our lives. It is indeed the thief of time. The more important the duty of the hour, the more certainly it should be performed. There was a time in the life of Felix when under the vigorous preaching of Paul he was on the verge of decision for God and for righteousness, but he failed to seize his splendid opportunity, he put off decision till a more convenient season, with fatal results. The foolish virgins had a time for buying oil. They neglected it, and when they sought the opportunity again it was too late. Time is given us of God; let us use it aright for God.

As to how to use our time aright no better advice can be given than that of Richard Baxter: "Spend your time in nothing which you know must be repented of. Spend it in nothing on which you might not pray for the blessing of God. Spend it in nothing which you could not review with a quiet conscience on your dying bed. Spend it in nothing which you might not safely and properly be doing if death should surprise you in the act."

Bible Readings.—Ps. xxxix, 1; xc, 1-12; Eccl. xii, 1; Isa. lv, 6, 7; Math. v, 25; Luke xix, 41, 42; John ix, 4; xi, 9, 10; xii, 35, 36; Rom. xiii, 8-14; II Cor. vi, 2; Gal. vi, 9; Eph. v, 15, 16; Col. iv, 5, 6; Rev. x, 5, 6.

Music Worship.

Granting the need of reform, we are moved to explain that the first step must be a change of heart and a work of grace among ministers and church officers by which they will be enabled to understand that the first and the one vital requisite in a successful choir is not musical proficiency, but Christian character. Any other foundation is wood, hay and stubble. So long as church officers prefer of two candidates "the better player" or "the better singer," irrespective of religious considerations, so long will they have and deserve to have unmeasured trouble, for the curse of God rests on any such mockery.—Church Economist.

Ministry to the Soul.

Christ emphasizes ministry to the soul. He does not overlook physical ills, but makes their relief subordinate to the necessities of the spiritual nature. There seems to be a tendency in our day to reverse this order of service. Humanitarianism is exalted at the expense of Christ's gospel. There is too much attention given to a gospel for this life and too little to the gospel for the life to come. Let there not be less relieving of the sick, the suffering and the needy, but more instructing the ignorant, more rescuing the fallen, more comforting the dying and more helping men into heaven.—Presbyterian.

Transforming Power of Conversion.

A new creature in Christ Jesus—that is what conversion makes one. It changes the point of view from which everything is regarded. He who has been accustomed, more or less consciously, to consider primarily what he has supposed to be his own interests now learns to think first and chiefly of the divine interests. God and his relation and duty to God now are the most important subjects of his thought.—Congregationalist.

The Most Difficult.

Wonderful changes are taking place, and these often come suddenly. They show that we should not despair in any circumstances of the triumph of truth. That triumph is as certain as that the promises are true. All we have to do is to work, wait and suffer. The latter is a most difficult thing to do without complaint.—Christian Instructor.

Among the Briers.

If you cannot in the harvest
Gather up the richest sheave—
Many a grain, both ripe and golden,
Will the careless reapers leave—
Go and glean among the briers
Growing rank against the wall,
For it may be that their shadow
Hides the heaviest wheat of all.

EIGHT SHIPS BOUGHT.

Departure In the Policy of Securing Transports.

Leasing at High Prices Is Too Costly.

Vessels Provided With Refrigerators and Very Capacious.

Washington, June 25.—An important addition to the war department's list of vessels available for transports and freight service was announced Friday. This was the purchase of eight ships of over 3600 tons burden each, seven for use on the Atlantic coast and one on the Pacific coast. The seven to be used on the Atlantic were obtained from the Atlantic transport line, which operates steamers from New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore to London. Heretofore the war department has chartered the vessels which it has used, and the acquisition of the ships by purchase is distinctly a new departure in the policy of the government, due, it is believed, to the fact that the owners and agents of the companies heretofore have asked high prices. Impressment of ships on the Atlantic coast will not be resorted to. The purchase price of the ships secured from the Atlantic line is not stated, but it is understood that the amount approximately was $4,000,000. All the vessels of this line are to be delivered to the government in New York. Owing to their large capacity for carrying passengers and supplies, they constitute a formidable addition to the fleet of 41 ships already under charter by the government for transport use on the Atlantic coast.

The acquisition is presumed to be a decidedly forward step in the arrangements for the Porto Rican expedition, although officials decline to say to what port they will be ordered. Added to the dozen ships already available for this expedition, the eight vessels make up a fleet that will transport an army fully two-thirds as large, and probably as large, as that which General Shafter took with him. Nine of the transports heretofore chartered by the government are at Tampa, two are on their way there from New York, while one remains at the latter city. It may be that some of those at Tampa and now on their way to that city will be utilized for transporting some of the reinforcements for Shafter's army, as there are a large number of soldiers at Tampa, as well as a great quantity of supplies.

The vessels purchased from the Atlantic transport line, with the description of them furnished by the department, are as follows: Massachusetts, Manitoba, Mohawk, Mobile and Minnewaska, with an average tonnage of 5700 tons, fitted with twin screws, driven by triple expansion engines, developing a speed of 12½ knots per hour when fully loaded upon a coal consumption of 60 tons a day; Michigan and Mississippi, each of 3700 tons, single screw, driven by triple expansion engines, developing a speed of 11¼ knots per hour on a consumption of 35 tons of coal.

The fact that the Atlantic line's vessels have a refrigerating capacity of over 2,000,000 pounds of fresh meat was no doubt an important consideration in determinating the action of the officials in securing the vessels. The commissary's department is anxious to furnish fresh beef to the soldiers in the West Indies as far as practicable.

The other vessel purchased on the Atlantic coast was the Obdam of the Netherlands-American Steam Navigation company. She is used for passenger and freight business, and is 3656 tons burden. The vessel has a capacity for 1000 passengers and can carry a regiment of troops together with their equipments and supplies.

For the uses of the commissary department exclusively, General Eagan is having inspected two ships now at New York. They are the Port Victor and the Port Chalmer, both over 300 tons, with ample storage capacity for refrigerated beef. The probability is that both vessels may be taken by the government and put in thorough repair. Another vessel for the same purpose probably will be necessary soon, and then frequent trips with large cargoes of beef and other supplies aboard will be ordered to Santiago and other places. General Eagan has been waiting on this matter before awarding the contracts for supplying the beef.

BRIGADIER GENERAL CHARLES P. EAGAN.

For the Philippine expedition the department has purchased a large steamer which is to be delivered in San Francisco.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW.

A Perceptible Quieting of Distributive Trade In Many Parts.

New York, June 25.—Bradstreet's this week reports a perceptible quieting down of distributive trade in many parts of the country, with announcements of the fixing of periods of annual shutdowns in industrial lines; but significant of the changed conditions which now animate and control business, as compared with corresponding periods in previous years, are the continued large gains in the volume of bank clearings, quite favorable reports from most of the country's leading industries, notably iron and steel, in which next year's wage scales are being adjusted with unexampled ease, comparatively heavy exports of cereals and other products from most of the leading ports, and rather less than the usual shading of prices common at this period of the year.

An example of the generally well employed position of the industrial classes is furnished in the report of the New York state factory inspector, which shows 40,000 more people employed this spring than there were one year ago. The tone of cotton manufacturing has quite perceptibly improved, this being due perhaps on one hand to the placing of large amounts of bleached goods at price concessions, and to the development in some degree of the delayed eastern demand for summer fabrics. Less satisfaction is expressed in the woolen goods trade, and business is classed as slow and unprofitable, with raw wool reflecting dullness in manufacturing and in unchanged eastern quotations.

Business failures for the week in the United States are about normal, numbering 220, as compared with 207 last week, 215 this week a year ago, 218 in 1896 and 215 in 1895. Bank clearings for the week aggregate $1,150,553,000, which are 9 percent smaller than last week and 18 percent larger than in this week a year ago.

Reverses For the Socialists.

Berlin, June 25.—The results of 54 second ballots in the reichstag elections show the return of five Conservatives, five Centrists, four Freisinnige candidates, 11 Socialists, nine National Liberals, three Imperialists, 15 Radicals, one anti-Semite candidate and one candidate of the Reform party.

The feature of the elections, which everywhere have been orderly, has been the heavy reverse to the Socialists, which is calculated to have a far-reaching effect. The lesson to be learned is that Socialist success in the past has often been due to the discord and indolence of paries opposed to them almost to as great a degree as to the party discipline of the Socialists.

The returns from the provinces are coming in slowly, but they indicate that the Socialist gains are less than had been expected. The radicals have every reason to be satisfied. They have already gained 28 seats, and are likely to have greater strength than they had in the last reichstag. A Conservative majority will be quite out of the question unless the jealousy of radical success resulting from the combination of parties against socialism should again play into the socialists' hands. Political life in Germany may undergo a marked change, and socialism in the future may receive far greater rebuff.

Would Injure the South.

Washington, June 25.—The principal ground of Senator McEnery's objection to the annexation of Hawaii was that he apprehended it would paralyze the industries of the south. The gray dawn of prosperity was just beginning to appear in that section. Northern capital, northern energy and northern brains had been going to the south, and although the dawn of prosperity was in sight, he felt the sunrise would never come if Hawaii were annexed. The moment the policy of colonization is entered upon, the prosperity of the south would be checked. Capital would be diverted, enterprise stopped. Every industry would be paralyzed and every cotton factory would close.

Mr. Turley of Tennessee made a lengthy argument against the pending resolutions. He maintained that the method of acquiring the Hawaiian islands set out in the resolutions was unconstitutional, and was obnoxious too because a treaty having the same object in view was undisposed of in the senate.

Verdict of Guilty.

Wilmington, Del., June 25.—A verdict of guilty was returned against Thomas S. Clark of Dover on the charge of aiding and abetting W. N. Boggs, the defaulting teller of the First National bank of Dover, in the embezzlement of the funds of that institution. Boggs disappeared about a year ago, but returned a few months since and confessed to having robbed the bank. He implicated a number of prominent Delawarians, who, he alleged, had knowledge of his use of the bank's money. He said that having their aid in drawing large amounts, he engaged with them in speculating schemes which proved disastrous. Among others who stand accused of the charge is United States Senator Kenney.

The Bankruptcy Bill.

Washington, June 25.—The conference report on the bankruptcy bill was disposed of by the senate yesterday without debate. At the request of senators, Mr. Nelson, author of the senate bankruptcy measure, made a brief explanation of the bill as agreed upon by the conferees. The report was agreed to by a vote of 43 to 13.

Mr. McEnery, in a speech against the annexation of Hawaii, maintained that the adoption of a policy of imperialism would prolong indefinitely the rule of the Republican party, and declared that every Democrat who voted for annexation in effect would vote to surrender his party and commit its chances to the misty future.

Cab Occupants Suffered.

St. Joseph, Mo., June 25.—As the second section of the Burlington train carrying the Torrey cowboy regiment of cavalry from Fort D. A. Russell to Jacksonville was pulling into the station yesterday, the engine jumped the track, and, after ploughing through the earth for 30 feet, toppled over on its side. Engineer John W. Fuller, who remained at his post, was caught beneath the tender and killed. Fireman Christman was fatally scalded. Three cars carrying horses were derailed, but none of the animals was injured.

THE BLOW THAT FELLED

Boston Boxer Defeated a California Lightweight.

Sent Him Flat on His Face to the Floor.

Sports From the West Backed the Loser at Odds.

New York, June 25.—"Spike" Sullivan of Boston knocked out Dal Hawkins, the lightweight boxer from California, in the 22nd round of a 25-round bout at the Lenox Athletic club. The men met at 133 pounds and put up an excellent fight. Hawkins had the better of the contest on points up to the 20th round, when Sullivan floored him with a left swing on the head. Everyone thought that the fight was finished right there, but Dal surprised the 5000 spectators by regaining his feet in six seconds. He was very groggy, but game to the core. Sullivan, flushed with apparent victory, rushed wildly and tried to land an effective blow, but in his anxiety and haste, missed each attempt until the bell interfered.

Dal's legs were weak when he came up for the 22nd round. The blow which felled him in the 20th round had evidently done its work more forcibly than outward appearances indicated. The Californian's friends took heart at seeing their man come to time so gamely, and thought that he would last the limit; but after a minute's fighting Dal's chances were quickly settled by a right swing on the jaw which put him down and out. His seconds worked over him for nearly five minutes, while the spectators were yeling like crazy people.

Western sporting men lost a lot of money by the defeat of Hawkins, as all through the fight they kept backing him at liberal odds on his chances of success.

Panic at a Circus.

Sioux City, Ia., June 25.—A wind-storm struck this city last night, blowing down the main tent of the Sells-Forepaugh circus while a performance was in progress. The collapse of the canvass caused a panic in which a score or more of people were injured. One of them, Adolph Halversen of this city, died soon afterwards of his injuries; Frank Reynolds, an attache, is hurt internally and will probably die.

At about 9 o'clock the hot wind which had been blowing all afternoon freshened, and within a few minutes a deluge of rain fell upon the hundreds of pleasure-seekers, pelting through the canvass shelter and drenching them. This had lasted but a few minutes when the great center pole began to sway and guy ropes to creak from the pressure of the wind, which had become a gale. Fright took possession of the crowd, and a wild scramble for the exits began. Scores of the employes of the circus attempted to prevent a headlong break for the open air. Many were trampled under foot or bruised by falling timber as the structure collapsed.

Not to Be Pressed.

Washington, June 25.—The supporters of the currency reform bill recently reported to the house have decided not to urge consideration further at this session. It is acceptable substantially to all the Republican members, but some of them oppose calling it up because of the overshadowing interest in war questions and the inability to secure its passage in the senate at this session. The most positive assurance is given by the supporters of the currency reform movement that there will not be serious opposition to a comprehensive bill, but that it will receive the cordial support of the Republicans. Speaker Reed expressed no opposition to the consideration of a bill at the present session, and 150 members of the house, including half a dozen Democrats, signed a request to the committee on rules that a special order for consideration be reported. The signers of this petition will continue to support the bill, and they consider it certain that a measure will eventually be passed.

Crime In Washington.

Washington, June 25.—George W. Horton, an ex-member of the Washington police force, and Jane Nicholson, a divorced woman, were sitting last evening on a bench in Armory square, when the woman announced to Horton that she proposed no longer to sustain her relations with him and was about to leave him. Horton drew a penknife and slashed her across the throat. Her screams attracted scores of people, but Horton continued to slash the woman until she fell to the ground dead. He almost severed the head from the body. He was arrested. Horton is a married man.

Two Firemen Killed.

Philadelphia, June 25.—Two firemen were killed and others injured at a fire in the works of Thomas Potters Sons & Co., manufacturers of oil cloth and linoleum. The dead are James Magee and an unknown fireman. The casualties were due to a falling wall.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

One mile north of White Hall, Ills., a robber crawled aboard an engine and shot the engineer, probably fatally. It was an attempt at a holdup.

The supreme court of Ohio has sustained the Pugh law, which says that if a man petitions for a particular party ballot to be put on the ballot sheet he must vote the ticket of that party.

The British house of commons petroleum committee has resolved to raise the flash point from 75 to 100 degrees. This is the outcome of the newspaper campaign chiefly directed against American petroleum, which, it is charged, is responsible for numerous fatalities due to explosions of lamps.

Captain Stoermer, of the North German Lloyd steamship Kaiser Frederick, lying in Hoboken, N. J., discovered that a life-sized portrait of Emperor Frederick had been slashed with a knife in a mysterious manner during Thursday night The picture was in the forward end of the reading room. It was in oil, in a handsome frame and was painted at the cost of $18,000.

There is too little preaching of the gospel of health. It is the last thing that anyone thinks of teaching, either to a man-child or woman-child. It is one of the most important branches of an education.

Without health, a man will be a business, and a woman a social failure. When the body of either a man or a woman is properly nourished, the result is the enjoyment of good health. Almost all ill-health is due to improper or insufficient nourishment. If the stomach is right and the liver is right, the blood will receive its normal supply of the life-giving elements of the food and the body will be properly nourished. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery acts directly upon the stomach and liver. It purifies and enriches the blood. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder, nerve tonic and restorative. It promotes the natural activity of the entire nutritive organism. It puts an end to the slow starvation that is at the base of many diseases. It does not make flabby fat like cod liver oil, but firm, muscular tissues. It does not make corpulent people more corpulent but builds up the system to the normal standard.

"I was run down with nervous prostration and female weakness and kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Maranda Ramsey, of Smartt, Warren Co., Tenn. "My bowels were constipated. My whole system was wrecked. My friends thought I would die. I had read of Dr. Pierce's medicines and sent for the 'Golden Medical Dicovery,' 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Pleasant Pellets.' In one week's time I began to sit up. In two weeks I could sit up all day, after being so bad that I had to be helped in and out of bed. I have taken four bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and two of 'Favorite Prescription' and am in better health than I have been for years."

Constipation is the father of all manner of maladies. If it did not exist, or was in all cases promptly relieved, the majority of medical books could be safely destroyed. It is the easiest sickness to neglect and the simplest to cure. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation every time. They cure it promptly, completely and permanently. They never gripe. They don't get you out 'o nights. One "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. Druggists keep nothing else "just as good."

HOT CRITICISM.

present. His enforced apology afterward coupled with a threat (which however is harmless) places him in an unenviable position, in public opinion and I think the best thing he can do, is to withdraw from the position which he does not dignify or adorn."

Ex-Councilman E. H. Sprague was interviewed by the Ledger on the action of Rev. Mr. Peach and said: 'I have not a personal acquaintance with Mr. Peach and should not perhaps, criticize him and I do not so much find fault with the man; for it was evident he did what he at the time felt to be his duty; and he tried to perform that task in a gentlemanly and kindly way. But I am of the opinion he stood entirely alone, he was mistaken in what he thought was his duty. It seems strange that honest educated and religious gentlemen cannot get in closer touch with the men, women, boys and girls of today. In dancing there can be no harm for Webster says "dancing is movements regulated by art and the sound of music" Surely that is not a wicked performance and entered into by father mother, sisters, brothers, lovers and by the minister and his family a grander or prettier sight it would be impossible to imagine. But of course Mr. Peach does not look at it that way. He perhaps can see in his mind's eye those who were enjoying the dance on that warm June evening dancing in the next world around that hot fire of which a few marrow-minded clergymen continue to preach but he should "cheer up for there is no hell."

If clergymen are ever to have the influence in this world as great as that of the Teacher he must look at life in a broader light enter into the amusements that interest the young and eliminate the wrong in them if there be any.

The Ledger invites correspondence on the issues raised.

Willard School Exhibition.

An exhibition of the years' work of the pupils of the Willard school was held yesterday at the school building from 9 A. M. to 7. P.M., and during those hours there were many visitors to the rooms, largely the parents of the pupils, who must have certainly felt proud if not suprised at the work their sons and daughters were doing.

The room in the upper hall was used for the exhibit and the specimens shown were arranged in a tasteful manner about the room. On the platform were a number of handsome potted plants while hundreds of daises were about the room and added to the effect. The work shown was in writing, arithmetic, drawing, paper designing, composition, sewing, etc.

The penmanship was unusually good even that of the first grade pupils who only entered the school last September. The sewing, which is confined to the four upper grades was the one objective point of mothers, and it was certainly well worth their inspection.

The work of the upper grade, or the graduating class, shows that they have profited by the instruction given.

The work of this grade which attracted the most attention was the compositions by each member of the grade upon Cuba. Each composition began with a map of Cuba and was illustrated throughout with pictures of characters and points that are prominent in the minds of the world. These were bound in covers or upon which were original designs all of which were excellent.

There were also specimens of water color work of flowers, shrubs, etc., that were unusually fine. Taken as a whole the exhibition was one worthy of more than a passing notice and should be inspected by all who are interested in the work of the public schools.

Keith's Theatre.

Robert Downing, the robust tragedian, plays the last week of his engagement at Keith's the week of June 27, when he is to present the arena scene from the Gladiator, supported by an excellent company. The re-engagement, for one week only, is also announced of Edwin Milton Royle, Selina Fetter, Mamie Dupont and Theodore Roberts, in the laughable comedietta, "Capt. Impudence," which made such a hit at Keith's in March last. Every part in the piece is a star role, though, perhaps, the vivacious Miss Dupont carries off the greatest honors. Other attractions will be: Tony Wilson and his clown, in their original and clever horizontal bar act, including Wilson's record-breaking feat of turning nearly half a hundred simultaneous somersaults; McNish and Cain, in their pleasing blackface specialty, introducing accrobatic features and songs; the Four Emperors of Music, talented instrumentalists and vocalists; Lovenberg's orchestra, in popular concerts (their last week,) and new motion pictures in the biograph.

It is not generally known, perhaps, that Keith's model playhouse in Boston is cooled in summer by the most elaborate ventilating plant in this country, and that on hot days in July and August the audiences are seated over from 8,000 to 12,000 pounds of ice, which is placed in an apartment underneath the auditorium, and through which pure air, drawn from the roof, 130 feet above, is forced and conveyed by an intricate system of piping to all parts of the auditorium. Keiths keeps open all the year round, and does as big a business in summer, as is done in winter. One reason is the excellent entertainment always provided; the other that the house is really the coolest spot in Boston.

Castle Square Theatre.

The thrilling melo-drama "The Lights o' London," has peen selected as the attraction at the Castle Square theatre for the coming week, and the management has had the preparations for this production in hand for a great many weeks. The elaborate scenic and mechanical effects called for by the realistic scenes of the play will afford a splendid opportunity for a display of the great resources of the stage which will be fully improved by Messrs. B. W. Craig and Ansel Cook. The preparations of the production have been personally supervised by Mr. J. R. Pitman and the cast will introduce the full strength of the membership of the popular stock company. Following the production on Monday, July 4th, the Castle Square theatre will bring out for the first time in this city, B. B. Valentines' "A Southern Romance" which is a dramatic version of Dolly Higbee's novel "In God's Country." At next Tuesday's matinee souvenir portraits of Mr. William Charles Masson as David Garrick, will be given to all patrons.

CUBANS TO ATTACK SANTIAGO TOWN.

Plans Perfected by Shafter and Garcia.

LED ASTRAY BY ENTHUSIASM.

Our Cavalry Said to Have Acted Impetuously.

FOUGHT LIKE DEMONS IN THE TRAP.

General Wheeler Puts the Loss of American Soldiers at Twenty-Eight.

Kingston, June 27.—General Shafter, who hurried to the front upon hearing of Friday's engagement, held a conference Saturday afternoon with General Garcia. They perfected plans for a junction between 4000 Cuban regulars and the American troops commanded by General Wheeler. It was arranged for the Cubans to make an immediate attack upon the town of Santiago.

There no longer is any question that the cavalry forces allowed their enthusiasm to carry them into the ambush in which they were caught by the Spaniards Friday morning. Their daring exploit in dashing into the mountains almost immediately after landing is said to have been undertaken without the knowledge of the commanding general. There is talk of court-martialling the responsible officers, but this proposition has no official status.

The advance guard of the army of invasion made a gallant stand against superior numbers. The Spaniards adopted the usual guerilla tactics, and, although the now familiar cuckoo call sounded through the hills at frequent intervals, it was not until our men were surrounded that they realized the gravity of their position. When the situation dawned upon them they fought like demons.

It is now definitely known that 16 men on the American side were killed, while 60 were wounded, or are reported to be missing. It is impossible to calculate the Spanish losses, but it is known that they were far heavier than those of the Americans, at least as regards actual loss of life. Already 37 dead Spanish soldiers have been found and buried, while many others are undoubtedly lying in the thick underbrush on the side of the gully and on the slope of the hill, where the main body of the enemy was located. The wounded were all removed.

That the Spaniards were thoroughly posted as to the route to be taken by the Americans in their movement towards Sevilla was evident, as shown by the careful preparations they had made. The main body of the Spaniards was posted on a hill, on the heavily wooded slopes of which had been erected two blockhouses flanked by irregular entrenchments of stone and fallen trees. At the bottom of these hills run two roads along which Lieutenant Colonel Roosevelt's men and eight troops of the First and Tenth cavalry, with a battery of four howitzers, advanced. These roads are but little more than gullies, rough and narrow and at places almost impassable. In these trails the fight occurred. Nearly half a mile separated Roosevelt's men from the regulars, and between them and on both sides of the road in the thick underbrush was concealed a force of Spaniards that must have been large, judging from the terrific and constant fire they poured in on the Americans.

A force of Spaniards was known to be in the vicinity of La Quasina, and early in the morning Roosevelt's men started off up the precipitous bluff back of Sibeney to attack the Spaniards on their right flank. General Young at the same time took the road at the foot of the hill. About 2½ miles out from Siboney, some Cubans, breathless and excited, rushed into camp with the announcement that the Spaniards were but a little way in front and were strongly entrenched. Quickly the Hotchkiss guns out in the front were brought to the rear, while a strong scouting line was thrown out. Then cautiously and in silence the troops moved forward until a bend in the road disclosed a hill where the Spaniards were located. The guns were again brought to the front and placed in position, while the men crouched down in the road, waiting impatiently to give Roosevelt's men, who were tolling over the little trail along the crest of the ridge, time to get up.

At 7:30 a. m. General Young gave the command to the men at the Hotchkiss guns to open fire. That command was the signal for a fight that for stubbornness has seldom been equalled. The instant the Hotchkiss guns were fired from the hillside commanding the road came volley after volley from the Mausers of the Spaniards. "Don't shoot until you see something to shoot at," yelled General Young, and the men, with set jaws and gleaming eyes, obeyed the order. Crawling along the edge of the road they protected themselves as much as possible from the fearful fire of the Spaniards. The troopers, some of them stripped to the waist, watched the base of the hill and when any part of a Spaniard became visible they fired. Never for an instant did they falter. One dusky warrior of the Tenth cavalry, with a ragged wound in his thigh, coolly knelt behind a rock loading and firing, and when told by one of his comrades that he was wounded laughed and said: "Oh, that's all right. What's been there for some time."

In the meantime, away off to the left could be heard the crack of the rifles of Colonel Wood's men, and the regular, deeper toned volley firing of the Spaniards. Over there the American losses were the greatest. Colonel Wood's men, with an advance guard well out in front, and two Cuban guides before them, but apparently with no flankers, went squarely into the trap set for them by the Spaniards, and only the unfaltering courage of the men in the face of a fire that would even make a veteran quail prevented what might easily have been a disaster. As it was, troop L, the advance guard under the unfortunate Captain Capron, was almost surrounded, and but for the reinforcement hurriedly sent forward every man would probably have been killed or wounded.

From the American position at Sevilla Santiago is plainly visible and the fortifications can be seen. The following reports to General Shafter from generals at the front show the conditions: "To General Shafter—I have just seen two negro boys who left Santiago Saturday. They report that the soldiers and citizens are very short of food. The soldiers and officers have seized all the food in the shops. They are killing young horses for food, and in the patients' wards in the hospitals they are subsisting on bread of rye flour. Three Spanish generals took part in the fight at Sevilla. Five wagon loads of wounded were carried into Santiago, and many others wounded got there on horses or afoot. We can see Morro castle and the flag very distinctly from our position. The Cubans confirm the reports as to the fine character of the fortifications around the trenches. The Spaniards have recently dug deep trenches around the entire city, connecting a series of small forts. (Signed) Wheeler."

While the army advances the main portion of the fleet lies patiently in front of Morro castle, awaiting its opportunity. Before the end of this week the fate of Santiago and Admiral Cervera should be decided. By that time it is believed the Spanish troops will have been forced back upon the city and defeated in a decisive engagement. Simultaneously the forts at the mouth of the harbor should be captured under cover of a naval bombardment. Three things will then be left to Cervara—to surrender with his ships, to surrender after destroying his ships, or to make a dash out to sure destruction. He may forestall fate by making an attempt to get out of the harbor before the army accomplishes it. The first Spanish ship to appear off Morro castle would be sunk within 15 minutes. Nothing in Admiral Cervera's fleet could survive the concentrated fire of all the battleships in the navy and three of the best cruisers. The general opinion among naval experts is that Santiago town will be burned by the Spanish troops before they surrender; that Admiral Cervera will destroy his ships, and that he will then submit to the enemy. If this supposition is correct the whole work should be accomplished in a week.

PORTO RICO IN VIEW.

That Province to Be Besieged After the Fall of Santiago.

Washington, June 27.—Shafter will be left to carry on his campaign without the moral encouragement of knowing that reinforcements will be at hand if needed. By the time he makes his assault on Santiago he may have 15,000 more troops waiting to aid him or to supplement his work if needed. The two brigades from Camp Alger will be the advance guard of the reinforcements and they will be joined speedily by others. Major General Wilson, in command of the provisional army corps at Chickamauga, has been ordered to leave for Cuba tomorrow, and it is supposed that he will take with him to Santiago the best drilled and equipped troops now at Camp Thomas. Wilson is regarded by many as the most capable corps commander in the army, and his orders to the front are believed to be of great significance.

The troops which go to Santiago, however, are intended for operations there

Attitude of the Powers Displeases the Spaniards.

The Fear of Domestic Trouble Checks Steps For Peace.

Negotiations For an End of the War Expected Soon.

Madrid, June 27.—The tone of the newspapers is despondent, and many journals bemoan the fact that the powers have abandoned Spain while she is defending their cause. They say that France, having received commercial concessions from Washington, remains indifferent, while Germany keeps in the background, and Russia uses Spain as a catspaw in her diplomacy. Spain must in no case, the papers declare, accept the intervention of Europe. It would be better to treat directly with the enemy.

There are no longer any illusions in official minds in Spain regarding the disinterested good offices of any of the powers. Even the Duke of Almodovar says on this point: "It would be folly to expect any nation, including Germany, to risk a war with the United States, a strong nation, to assist Spain, a weak nation. There are no Don Quixotes now, not even in Spain. I hope our difficulties will be settled, but we will have to settle them ourselves. They will not be settled by the United States giving in. Have you ever known of a case in court between a rich man and a poor one ending by the rich one giving in? The rich man expects to crush the poor man with the power of wealth. That is what the United States will do."

Very different is this language from that heard on all sides in Madrid two months ago, but the reason for the prevailing pessimism is more domestic than foreign. Madrid may not unlikely be the scene of more important events than Santiago in the next few days. The only people in Spain at the present time who are opposed to peace, except on the possible basis of the Spanish retention of Cuba, are the Carlists, and they make pretensions to their quixotic patriotism only for the purpose of usurping the throne. The truth is, and has been for several weeks, that the only reason that Spain has not sued for peace is because the dangers of the domestic situation are so threatening. Even more courageous statesmen than Sagasta would be appalled. Peace negotiations, if undertaken earlier, would certainly have plunged the country into civil war. If undertaken now it is impossible to forecast the effect upon the dynasty and the monarchy itself. Nevertheless they will probably be undertaken in some form within a few days, and by the co-operation of both existing parties.

The proclamation of martial law is expected to precede all other steps, and then the most important factor in the situation, namely, the attitude of the army, will define itself, and subsequent action depends upon the solution of that problem. The nation is almost unanimously for peace. Even the common people deceive themselves no longer regarding the loss of Cuba. This is now a foregone conclusion, even in the minds of the Carlists.

Public men are chiefly considering whether it is possible to save the Philippines. A statesman, who is likely to be in office in a few days, thus plausibly puts the case for Spanish sovereignty in the Philippines: "If the war continues the United States must spend millions of money and thousands of lives before they conquer Cuba. Will it not be more profitable to save money and men by abandoning in the Philippines an increase of territory which they never desired, and which, if obtained, might prove highly undesirable? American humanitarians may reply it would be contrary to their principles to hand back the natives of the Philippines to the continuation of misrule. But there will be room enough for the discussion of the future of the islands and the making of satisfactory arrangements for their prosperity and development without depriving the mother country of the last living link that still connects her with the glorious epoch in her history. The independence of Cuba would be placed in the scale against the evacuation of the Philippines.

"Moreover, the Philippines consist of many islands, Manila is the capital of only one island. In the others the natives are loyal to Spain, and are ever ready to fight in her defense. It is premature, therefore, to speak of the occupation or independence of the Philippines, seeing at the most only one of the islands is either occupied or independent. The condition may be lost sight of by the Yankees, but it will be brought into painful relief if hostilities continue much longer."

Preparing For the Future.

Madrid, June 27.—In view of the American threat to send a fleet to the peninsula the government deems it advisable to be prepared for eventualities. The lights at certain ports have been extinguished; torpedoes have been prepared and additional guns have been mounted.

The government has prohibited the dispatch of telegrams from Cuba announcing the arrival of vessels which have "forced the blockade."

The Impartial, in an article which has created a sensation, urges direct negotiations with America for peace, when the time comes on the ground that Spain can get better terms from America's generosity, "as America will only be too delighted to dispense with European intervention." The article reflects the growing resentment against the powers.

Seven boats and the Gismonda put out to her. She was soon righted and towed to Grape island.

Q. H. S. FIELD DAY.

Class of 1900 Wins the Handsome Banner.

Saturday was "Field Day" for the High school, and the contests were held at Merry Mount park. In spite of the excessive heat, each event had a large number of entries, and the results were most gratifying to those who had the games in charge.

Considerable rivalry arose between the classes to see which could score the largest number of points, on a basis of 5, 3, 2, and 1 for the first four placs in each event, with 6 for the tug-of-war and 6 for the relay race.

After the first four contests, 1900 was sure of first place, and then came the struggle between '98 and '99 for second place, '99 finally won by 1 point.

By winning this year, 1900 has for one year the possession of a handsome banner, which it has to defend next year against the different classes. This banner cannot become the permanent property of any class, but is held each year by the one scoring the most points.

The events, with the winners of places, were as follows:

1—100 yards dash: Scharnagel '00, Foss '99, Magnuson '00, Hanson '00.

2—Running high jump: Scharnagel '00, Foss '99, and Magnuson '00 tie for 2d, Murphy '99 and Estabrooks '01 tie for 4th.

3—Putting 16 pound shot: Scharnage '00, Dorley '00, Pendis '98, Magnuson '00.

4—220 yards dash: Hanson '00, Magnuson '00, Murphy '98 Scharnagel '00.

5—Running hop, step and jump: McLean '98, Magnuson '00, Foss '99, Murphy '98.

6—Tug-of-war '98 winner. Team: Marnock, McLean, Pendis, Lewis McDonnell.

7—Running board jump—Scharnagel '00 Murphy '99, Magnuson '00, (Thayer '98, Marnock '98) tie for 4th.

8—Mill run: Hanson '00, Pitts '99, Magnuson '00, White '01.

9—Base ball throw: Thayer '98,

10—Relay race '99 winner, team: Sargent, Murphy, Thomas, Pitts and Foss. Marnock '98, Dorley '00, Black '00.

11—Bicycle race (5 miles): Davy 00', Smith '00, Kingston '01.

The best record for one man was Scharnagel's. He won 21 points, getting first place in four events. Magnuson was a good second with 15 1-2. Hanson was third with 11. Foss, Murphy, and Thayer did well, with 7 1-2, 6 1-2, and 5 1-2 respectively.

The summary:

Doble—Bearden.

The Asheville Daily Citizen of June 20 had the following item of local interest:

The marriage of Miss Mary Elizabeth Bearden of this city to Dr. Ernest Edgar Doble of Boston occurred this afternoon at one o'clock at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Bearden, 235 North Main street.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. F. Rice, rector of Grace church, the presence of a few relatives and friends of the family.

The bride was given away by her father. Dr. and Mrs. Doble left this afternoon, followed by the congratulations of a large number of friends, for Washington, New York and Boston. They will live at Quincy, Mass., a suburb of Boston. A feature of the occasion was the presence of Betsy Greenlee, the old family servant, once the property of the great-grandfather of the bride.

Ledger Congratulated.

A prominent gentleman of the city writes to the editor:

"Allow me to congratulate you for the way you have just furthered the interests of the Thomas Crane public library in your last issue of the Ledger. The printing of a complete list of books bearing on Spain and her provinces must help to increase the circulation of these books and materially add to the percentage of solid books taken out which is always desirable."

THE SCRUB RACE.

Many Mishaps Add to the Excitement.

The most exciting race which has been sailed in this harbor for several years was the Quincy Yacht clubs handicap race, which was sailed off the club house on Saturday afternoon.

The wind had been blowing strong from the south-west all day. In the afternoon the spiteful gusts kicked up a nasty chop sea, and together with the flurry wind made racing anything but a pastime for the skippers.

Out of the thirteen boats that started one was total disabled, the Helen, by being dismasted about thirty seconds before the starting gun had been fired; four were disabled so that they were compelled to withdraw; two withdrew owing to the heavy wind; and six finished.

The Arbutus, which was in the lead, carried away her boom while opposite Rose cliff; the Princeps, which was pressing her close, broke her bobstay, and in order to save the mast, withdrew; the Vexer had trouble with her wheel, the teeth on the shaft jumping the cogs on the quadrant; the Stella Manning carried away her bowsprit about two feet from the tip; and the Kitty had a lame goff but finished the race in order to win the 25 per cent.

The Chatham was late in starting, not crossing the line until eight minutes after the starting gun was fired.

But notwithstanding all of these accidents the remainder of the boats had an exciting race, the Hustler, "Chet" Collins' new Cape cat showing them the way over the course, closely followed by the Thisbe and Chatham.

The Hustler gets 100 per cent. and the Thisbe and Chatham 75 and 50 respectively, the other getting 25. The Hustler also won the club burgess.

The summary:

Immense Travel.

The warm weather Sunday served to drive people from their homes toward the beaches, and the Quincy & Boston did an enormous business on all its lines, especially on the through line between Neponset and Nantasket. Anticipating a heavy travel all available cars were brought into use and on the Nantasket line cars were run every fifteen minutes and the road was enabled to handle the crowd much more readily and easier than last year when half-hour service was in force. Although cars were run on this line every fifteen minutes there were no spare seats, and it was found necessary on many trips to send two and three cars at a time. This year round trip tickets are sold between Neponset to Nantasket and the route has proved to be a most popular one with the travelling public, affording as it does one of the most pleasant methods of reaching Nantasket and intermediate points.

Surprised at Houghs Neck.

On invitation of Chief Engineer Packard, the committee of the City Council on fire matters gathered informally at the Hose house, Houghs Neck, Sunday afternoon. Everything was found in extremely good condition. The growth of the village was a surprise to many especially the new Hotel Fensmere property. There are some fine buildings, and the great lake reclaimed from the sea which make possible to indulge in bathing at all stages of the tide was truly wonderful, showing what brains and money can accomplish. The committee was invited to partake of one of the clam bakes for which the place has become famous. The presence of the young and beautiful wife of one of the members was sufficient guarantee of good order and decorum.

Children's Sunday.

The hot weather of Sunday, with its tendency to wilt starched clothes and the best of church intentions, doubtless prevented a large attendance of grown people at the Children's Sunday exercises held at the Universalist church. But the children were out in force and very pretty they looked in the predominent white which prevailed among them, and their exercises were exceedingly interesting. The altar was covered with flowers and after the opening service twelve little ones were christened by the pastor. This service was very impressive and touched the hearts of all present. At the conclusion of the service the pastor gave the children a short talk in which he warned them to take heed to the first direction of their lives.

THE SCORE.
DEWEY,	1
HOBSON,	12
SAMPSON,	02
SCHLEY,	022
CERVERA,	NIT.

FIRST INNING.

Dewey strode to the home plate, made a smashing hit at the first crack out of the box, and sent a hot grounder that went down among the Alphonsos, but which they failed to grasp. Dewey cantered around the bases and came in on a home run. The Bleachers went wild and a lady reporter from Chelsea swallowed her gum.

All the Boston newspaper reporters went down to the players' bench and solemnly congratulated Dewey and thanked him for following out their instructions.

Sampson popped up a fly, but the Alphonsos being a little weary, failed to get under it, and Sampson sat down on first base to wait till the Alphonsos' 1st baseman came back from the bull fight. Hobsen followed Sampson and hit at the first wild ball that came his way. Took desperate chances and made one of the greatest plays ever made on any field, but got caught at third. The game was called on account of rain before the Alphonsos got a hit. The score at the end of the first half of first inning stood: Dewey, won one; Hobson, won, too; Sampson, ought, to; Schley, ought,to, too; Cervera, nit. The game will be finished on Jan. 1st, year 2,000.

If you want to make a hit this week, come down and get a rough and ready Straw Hat for 98 cts. They are Boston's $2.00 kind, only we don't charge you for the name.

You can buy a Red, White and Blue Tie for 4c. Put the band around your neck and hear it play Hurrah for the Red, White and Blue.

If you want to take it cool get a crash hat for 24c. You can get a Blue Serge Suit (all worsted) for $7.50 and go and catch a high ball with what you save. If you want to make a two-bagger, buy two linen collars for 25c. Negligee Shirts, 45c. These are not worth any more, but some people sell them for 50c. and claim they are worth 75c.

THE PEACH PIE.

A Writer Comes to the Defence of the Clergyman.

Editors of the Ledger:

Isn't it about time some one took up the cudgles for Mr. Peach? His opponent, Terpsichore, seems to find many defenders, although amply able to defend itself. Perhaps the reverend gentleman is as able, but is he having fair play? And is there not some confusion as to the real question? It is not, shall the Woodward maids dance or not dance, but is it right for them to do so under the Woodward roof, without the permission of the majority of their reverend fathers?

If, as Mr. Peach asserts, there was no opportunity given previous to Thursday for the trustees to discuss the matter of dancing, and put it to a fair vote, then Mr. Peach, as a trustee with conscientious scruples about it, has a right to protest. Nothing could be fairer than this proposition of his, and no more should be said about his original protest after his gentlemanly letter of explanation and apology published in Friday's Ledger. To acknowledge a fault and to say "I am sorry!" is all that is required of any of us at a very high tribunal and surely we ought not to ask more of one another before we grant absolution.

Perhaps a good deal of this trouble is found in the mistaken interpretation of the function known as a reception. Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes said the rule of action, upon these occasions, for those taking part, is to "gabble gobble, and git," thus making room for those in the rear. A reception and dancing party are two separate affairs Webster defines the latter as "a social assembly for the purpose of dancing "and a reception as an occasion for ceremony of receiving guests." The receiving party being usually the distinguished ones and most observed, then it would see that a graduating class loses some of its dignity, when it comes down from the pedestal it can occupy but once and makes itself a part of a whirling mass of pleasure-seekers.

Keeping time with the feet to inspiring music is a great delight, and to the majority an innocent pleasure. It will doubtless prove such to the Woodward girls, if they can indulge in it under the protection of their Alma Mater and with the sanction of those in charge. Why not have a Woodward Alumni Association? The members having necessarily and in spite of themselves, reached years of discretion, could give an annual reception followed by dancing. The graduating class of the year, naturally would be invited. All this, of course, if the victims of the Woodward will, decide that the beneficiaries of the will, can trip the light fantastic toe under the Woodward roof without detriment to themselves or to the memory of their benefactor.

THE DAILY EVENTS.

The Little Items About the City Yesterday and Today

The Quincy Clothing Co. appears to have kept the score correctly. See advertisement.

It was a hot game of base ball which the two Wollason nines play'd at Merry Mount Saturday afternoon.

Hall's bicycle store at Wollaston was entered by burglars Sunday night and a Hall special and Crawford tandem stolen. Entrance was made by turning a catch in a rear window.

The meeting of the Christian Endeavor society of the First United Presbyterian church was well attended Sunday evening, a large number taking part in the meeting.

The president of the Fragment society calls a special meeting in the Unitarian chapel, Wednesday afternoon, June 29, at 3 o'clock. All persons interested in the work of this society are invited to be present.

The first open air band concert of the season was given Saturday night in City Square under the auspices of the Street Railway Co. It drew a large crowd who thoroughly enjoyed the excellent concert given by the First Regiment band. Another concert will be given next Saturday night.

WEYMOUTH.

Little Items of Interest About Town.

Children's Sunday was observed yesterday at the M. E. church, East Weymouth in the usual manner. The auditorum was lavishly decorated with cut flowers and potted plants. There was special music by the choir under the direction of W. H. Pratt, chorister. At 6.30 evening service was omtited, a concert by the Sunday School being given in its stead, assisted by the choir in chorus and quartette numbers.

Children's Sunday was also observed at the Third Universalist church, North Weymouth, with special music by the choir under direction of the the chorister T. H. Emerson.

A concert by members of the Sunday school was held in the evening.

The long expected event in the history of Weymouth will occur on Thursday next on the dedication of the new union High school building. The building will be open for inspection from 10 to 12 o'clock and at 1. Afternoon exercises will begin at 2 o'clock, open to all. A few seats will be reserved until 1.45, but as the seating capacity is 1,000, there will be room for all. Ushers from the North High will attend to the comfort of the citizens under the direction of the head ushers, Messrs. Russell B. Worster, George P. Hunt, '96, and Ralph E. Bicknell. A banquet will be held at 6 30, Mr. M. E. Hawes, toast master. Of those who are expected to be present are His Excellency Roger Wolcott, Governor of Massachusettes, Hon. William M. Olin, Secretary Hill, of the State Board of Education, Col. Henry A. Thomas, Postmaster of Boston, Rev. W. H. Bolster, D. M. Easton, and others. LATEST!

3 O'Clock.

ON THE ADVANCE.

Gen. Shafter Moving On to Santiago.

Kingston, Jamaica, June 27—Advices just received from Bailiquri say that Gen. Shafter expects to move his headquaters to Guragus thus advancing toward Santiago. The army is now about four miles from the city on the hills with the city in sight.

No Coal.

Port Said, June 27—The Spanish Cadiz fleet has been refused permission to coal here.

NOTE—Port Said is on the coast of Egypt at the entrance to the Suez canal, about 2,000 miles from Cadiz, Spain. If the Cadiz squadron has reached this point, it evidently has sailed for the Philippine islands, but these are still over 6,000 miles away.

Quiet at Manila.

Manila, June 23, (Delayed in transmission.)—The American transports have not arrived up to this evening. There is no change in the situation. All is quiet.

To the Philippine.

Madrid, June 27.—The Spanish minisier of Marine says that Admiral Camaras' squadron has been ordered from Port Said to sail to the Philippine islands.

Will Attack Spain.

Washington, June 27.—The Navy department posted the following bulletin at 11.15 A. M.: Commodore Watson sails today on the Newark to join Sampson's squadron where he will form an armored squadron with several cruisers and sail for the Spanish coast.

Services Recognized.

Washington, June 27—President McKinley sent two messages to Congress this morning, recognizing the services of Lieut. Hobson, Lieut. Newcomb, Captain Hodgesdon and other naval heroes.

Havana Panic Stricken.

Key West, June 27—Reliable information from Havana says that a reign of terror exists. The police threaten to revolt. Famine is eminent and the city is panic stricken.

Lieut. Sprague Off.

The recruits raised by Capt. Thomas F. Clark and Lieut. Henry W. Sprague, for service in the United States signal corps, leave Boston today at 6.45 P. M. via Boston & Albany Railroad for Washington barracks at Washington. There are sixty or more in the corps, which is composed largely of telegraphers.

Lieut. Sprague of this city is an expert visual signal man. He was born in the house at Quincy Point now occupied by Fred. H. Smith, being a nephew of the late Farnum Smith At five years of age he removed to Dorchester, and has since resided at Malden. He married a daughter of Mrs. William Johnson of Maple place and they have recently lived with her. Lieut. Sprague studied law with Secretary Long of the Navy when the firm was Allen, Long and Hemenway. He enlisted in the signal corps, 2d brigade, in 1886, and has held every office in the corps. He was appointed commander with rank of 1st lieutenant by Brig. Gen. Benjamin F. Peach, Jr., April 21, 1891, and has held the position since.

The corps recently completed a tour of duty along the coast from Boston to Cape Ann. Lieut. Sprague is familiar with all signals with flags, lanterns and heliograph and we shall expect to see him soon commissioned as a captain and possibly a major. His present commission of lieutenant was dated May 20, and he has been on duty recruiting since June 6.

A Good Showing.

Our Quincy boys made a fine record in the Y. M. C. A. relay race from Boston to Lowell on Saturday. Five men took part in relays of ten miles each and it was a hard day for the trials. Jones of Wollaston took the first ten miles from Boston to Winchester, and did the same in 31 minutes, 30 seconds. Coe of Atlantic took the same route back, in the face of a fierce gale, which was against him all the way, and covered the distance in 30 minutes, 19 seconds, his time being only 38 seconds slower than Dr. Cummings of Boston, who took the time prize. Out of five strong riders, Quincy came in second and third, not a bad snowing.

MANY REJECTED.

But Co. K will Have Ranks Full Before Departure.

Saturday was a very busy day at the Amory of Co. K at Braintree. Assistant Surgeon Batemont of the 5th regiment arrived at the amory early in the morning and from 10 o'clock until nearly 10 o'clock at night he was busy making the physical examination of the volunteers.

The examination was a thorough one and out of the 108 examined but 84 were accepted. Minors were not accepted and married men as a rule were not accepted unless it was shown that their families were well provided for.

Seven applicants were thrown out because they were flat footed. Others because their feet were out of shape from wearing shoes with peaked toes, or because their heart or eyes were affected, or because their grinders were gone, for unless a man had two back grinders he was not in it.

Of the old company half were rejected for various reasons, some because they were minors. All of the officers however were accepted.

Owing to the change of the examination from Monday to Saturday, all applicants did not receive the notice to present themselves for examination, and these were sent to Boston this morning to take their examination.

Captain Kincaide when seen this morning said that he would have no difficulty in bringing his company up to the required standard of 106 men.

Quartermaster Sergeant Crane with three cooks and two assistants, were sent to the camp at Framingham this morning to get it in readiness for the company which will go Thursday morning.

When asked if there would be any parade of the company Thursday morning, Captain Kincaide said that personally he was opposed to any demonstration and preferred that the departure be as quiet and unostentatious as possible, and if the citizens desired to express their appreciation they can do so by looking after the families of those left behind or in providing members of the company with some of the many things that the men will need and with which they are not now provided.

The regiment will parade in Boston early Thursday morning.

FOUND IN WOODS.

Searching Party Rewarded with Success.

Alice, the little daughter of Michael Barry of the Central Fire station, who was reported in Saturday's Ledger as missing since 11 o'clock that morning, was found that night shortly before 8 o'clock in the woods to the west of Quincy avenue about half a mile from home, by one of the members of Hose 1 who was with a searching party. All day long the woods between the little girl's home and Quincy Neck had been searched in vain.

Shortly before 3 o'clock an alarm was rung in from Box 35, to collect volunteers and many who responded to the call joined in the search, but no trace of the child could be found.

As night drew on the parents became frantic with grief and at 6.45 another alarm was sent in from Box 35. This brought additional searchers including Mayor Sears. First a search of the reservoir on Water street was made. Then at the suggestion of His Honor two large searching parties were organized. One under Capt. Gavin lined up and started toward Quincy Neck on the west side of the avenue. The other headed by the Mayor himself took the east side covering all the woods as far as South street to the Neck.

Just as the darkness was settling down Murdock Martin came across the little one couched beside a stone wall directly in a well travelled path in the rear of Mr. Perrow's house on the west side of Quincy avenue. The "babe" was well and happy and not at all frightened. She was glad to see Mr. Martin and happy at the thought of being taken home.

Mrs. Barry was overjoyed at the safe return of her darling. Two recalls of two blows on the fire alarm were sounded at intervals but it was some time before Mr. Barry and many of the searchers could get back.

Mr. Martin was the hero of the evening and many who congregated about the Barry residence on Quincy avenue congratulated him and the parents.

The child was found more by accident than anything else. Mr. Martin says he became separated from the party he was with and finally got lost himself, although he thought that he knew where he was. He was thirsty and started as he supposed for the ice houses and was beating about when he saw a house known as the old Paddy house. He headed that way and in the rear of the house found the missing child leaning against a wall. He lost no time in taking her in his arms and making his way out. The child's face and hands were badly scratched by the briers she had passed through, and she had been poisoned by ivy and mosquitoes, which had feasted upon her delicate skin. She was hungry and thirsty and had evidently cried herself out.

Today the child is as bright as a new dollar and save from the scratches and poison is as well as ever.

Mr. and Mrs. Barry feel very grateful to the many who assisted in the search and say that they are at a loss for words to thank them.

Scandinavians for Temperance.

Union temperance services were held Sunday afternoon in the Swedish Lutheran church by the different Scandinavian churches and societies of the city. The following were represented: — The Swedish Lutheran, Swedish Methodist, Swedish Baptist and Swedish Congregational churches, the Finnish society and the Good Templar lodge "Klippan." Rev. Anderson of the Lutheran church was master of ceremonies. Rev. Larson opened with prayer and Dr. J. A. Elmere delivered are able and scholarly address in Swedish language on "the use and abuse of alcoholic liquors from a medical standpoint." Rev. Bjornbom closed with some very pithy remarks. Mr. F. Swanson sang a beautiful, baritone solo and the local orchestra executed some very thrilling music between the parts. Notwithstanding the intense heat, the church was packed to the very doors and closed with an old war hymn:—"Vor God ar oss en valdig borg." The next meeting will be held in the Swedish Baptist church.

DUE TO RECKLESSNESS.

Tragedy on a Railway by Which Soldiers Suffer.

Three Men Killed and Others Badly Injured.

The Engineer Neglected to Take Necessary Precautions.

Tupelo, Miss., June 27.—By a railway accident at 3:40 Sunday afternoon three soldiers and a railway porter lost their lives and other soldiers received serious injuries. The victims were on a section of a train bringing Colonel Torrey's regiment of rough riders from Cheyenne over the Kansas City, Memphis and Birmingham railroad.

The first section had stopped to take water, and had whistled to start on when the second section rounded a sharp curve in the track just before the town is reached and dashed into it. In the rear of the first section was the sleeper "Seville," containing Colonel Torrey and his regimental staff. This car was completely demolished, yet, strange to say, every inmate escaped unscathed except the colonel, who is injured, though not seriously.

The chief fatalities occurred in a coach in the center of the first section, which carried troop C from Laramie, Wyo. This coach was completely telescoped and the soldiers within were jammed and bruised beneath the masses of timbers, broken car seats and other debris. In the second section one baggage car was thrown into the ditch, but in this train few were hurt and none dangerously.

The killed are: Willie B. Wallace, troop A; Sam Johnson, troop C; ——— Gordan, colored porter; Cornelius Lennihan, troop C; Private Gimmer, troop L, head crushed. Fatally injured: Henry S. Mapes, troop C, both legs cut off; internally injured.

The fault probably lies with the engineer of the second section, who was running too fast and near the first section.

Sloop With a Cuban Flag.

Key West, June 27.—The sloop Isabel came into port yesterday morning flying the Cuban flag. On her were Captain Mora, Lieutenant Rios and four others of the Cuban army, carrying sealed dispatches from the Cuban government to T. Estrada Palma of the New York junta. These dispatches will be forwarded by the local junta.

Captain Mora reports that on June 9 a heavy battle was fought in the Camaguey province by General Lope Recios of the Cuban army with a force of 1500 men, and 5000 Spaniards. The Spaniards were defeated and retreated. They buried their dead in 17 graves, which the Cubans opened. Some of the graves contained 11 bodies, others 10, nine, six, two and so on. In all the Cubans counted 150 bodies and their scouts reported that 107 Spaniards were carried away in litters. The Cubans had nine men killed and 32 wounded.

Boston Opinion.

Boston, June 27.—"Instead of being weak, rather cowardly bandits, the insurgent troops and leaders have been of almost invaluable aid to the American forces near Santiago," says The Advertiser.

The Post argues that "the more money we spend in driving Spain out of Cuba, the more lives that are lost, the more onerous to Spain will be the terms on which peace can be granted. The sober thinking men of Spain unquestionably want the war to stop where it is."

Boston In Paragraphs.

Boston, June 27.—A collision occurred in the harbor Sunday morning between a fishing schooner and a steam launch. The latter was struck amidships and sunk. Eight men who were on board saved themselves by swimming to a coal barge.

By the arrest of four men in this city and a fifth in Cambridge the police believe that they have in custody part of a band of pickpockets who have been operating hereabout for a long time.

The Herald says that "Spike" Sullivan of this city has challenged "Kid" Lavigne for the lightweight championship and will back himself for $5000.

Killed by a Jump.

Lynn, June 27.—The horses of the regular barge running between this city and Nahant became frightened Sunday afternoon when a short distance from Nahant and ran for nearly a mile. The barge was not upset, but Mrs. William A. Peavear of this city, who attempted to jump, was thrown to the ground and killed, while her husband and two other gentlemen who jumped after her received severe injuries. Other occupants remained in the barge and escaped with nothing more than a thorough shaking.

Gone to Santiago.

Newport News, Va., June 27.—The cruiser Harvard started at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon for Santiago with the Ninth Massachusetts regiment and two battalions of the Thirty-fourth Michigan. Thousands of people were answered with enthusiasm by the troops, who crowded the side of the vessel and caused her to list sharply on account of the unequal distribution of weight.

A Cutting Affray.

Providence, June 27.—A serious cutting affray took place among the Italians at Eagle park in this city last evening in a general row. Peter Batasso, 22 years old, was severely slashed in the groin and sustained scalp wounds. Louis Pisanda was badly cut about the head. One arrest was made.

CUBANS TO ATTACK SANTIAGO TOWN.

only incidentally. As soon as the city shall fall into our hands, or as soon as Cervera's fleet shall have been captured or destroyed, the best troops at Santiago will be moved on to Porto Rico, which is regarded as a strategic point of infinitely greater importance. Indeed, Santiago is not regarded as a strategic point at all.

The president and Secretary Alger are gratified with the success that has so far attended the progress of Shafter's campaign would be stating the case mildly. The president, in quick appreciation of Shafter's energy, has sent a cablegram congratulating him and the men composing his army on the excellent work they have done. The message could not be obtained, the officials taking the ground that it would be proper for General Shafter to make it public, but it is known to be couched in terms of praise.

The notice from Spain that the government had succeeded in purchasing three powerful cruisers gains not the slightest credence here. No European nation possessing such vessels dare be guilty of the violation of neutrality involved in the making of such a sale. If any vessels were secured it is probable that they are only merchantmen, bought with the purpose of converting them into armed transports by the addition of a few guns.

Notwithstanding the report of the arrival of Admiral Camara's squadron at Port Said, the westerly entrance to the Suez canal, the officials here still doubt that the vessels are bound for the Philippines. Rumors reach here, unconfirmed as yet, that the only ironclads in the squadron, the Pelayo and Don Carlos V, have left the squadron and returned to Spain, so that Camara no longer possesses a force that would threaten Dewey. If this be so, either the Spaniards have realized the folly of leaving their home ports unprotected, or they have received information from the British government that the navigation of the Suez canal cannot be jeopardized by allowing deep draught, unwieldy ironclads to attempt the passage. Some attention has been attracted at the state department by the dispatch from Madrid to a British paper, stating that Camara's purpose is not to attack Dewey, but to seize and hold with his ships and troops another island in the Philippine group. It is suspected, if this be so, that the object is purely diplomatic, the Spanish government being anxious to assert, in the event that peace negotiations are forced upon it, that the United States is not in such occupation of the Philippines as would justify a demand for their retention as one of the terms of peace.

Spanish Scheme Frustrated.

Key West, June 27.—Federal officials are convinced that by the capture of the little brig Amapala by the blockading squadron off Havana last week a daring Spanish scheme has been frustrated. When the Amapala was taken she was flying the Honduras flag and, so far from attempting to elude the American ships, she deliberately ran out to the blockade lines with the evident intention of being made a prisoner. To the Vicksburg was assigned the task of capture and Ensign Senn, with a prize crew, brought in the brig.

It is now asserted that the Honduras registry of the vessel was a blind; that she is owned by Spaniards and that she was being used in an attempt to get food and provisions into the blockaded city.

In consequence of an investigation the prize officials have discovered aboard the Amapala documents and letters which make clear the entire scheme of deception. The brig's Honduras patent was dated May 18 and was for six months, and her papers showed that she was bound for Jalapa, Mex. She carried no cargo, but a polyglot band of passengers, refugees so-called, including Spaniards, Hondurans, Mexicans and South Americans. Her ostensible owner, according to documents, is Manuel Montesina, who is set down as a Honduran, but this person, it is said, is a mere figurehead in the transactions, her real owners being well-known Spanish shipping firms.

The incriminating evidence thus far discovered is said to be of positive character. It shows the intention of the brig was to pass the blockade lines as a prize, confident that the Honduras flag would free her after a possible delay of a few days, when she was to proceed to Jalapa, take on cargo and return to Bataban, where, it is said, many shiploads of supplies for Havana are being safely discharged.

May Abandon Caimanera.

Guantanamo Bay, June 27.—It is believed in camp that the town of Caimanera, on the inner bay, is about to be abandoned by the Spaniards, who are said to be in a desperate condition, owing to lack of food. The report is that they will leave the town and fall back on Guantanamo.

Spanish Cabinet Met.

Madrid, June 27.—The cabinet held a long session Sunday for the purpose of devising national defenses, Mr. Sagasta endeavoring to persuade his colleagues to defer the consideration of domestic questions. Changes in the ministry were discussed.

It is hoped in official circles that the Spanish forces will be able to defend Santiago until General Pando's reinforcements arrive there by forced marches. The Americans are advancing in three columns via Alcares, Firmega and Jarauga, flanked by insurgents, in order to force the Spanish positions at Sevilla and Gran Pena.

The arrival of the Spanish fleet at Port Said causes no surprise here. Admiral Camara had announced that he was going to the Philippines. The threat of the American government to attack the Spanish coast has had no effect. A third squadron is preparing for the defense of the coast. A member of the cabinet, in an interview, said: "Let them come. We will receive them as they deserve."

Courage Returning.

Havana, June 27.—The people of Havana are getting accustomed to the blockade and the incidents of war times. Their courage is returning; and they are once more resuming attendance upon religious services and participating in their customary amusements. The churches, parks and bay are literally crowded. The ladies have chosen San Lazro avenue as the fashionable promenade and drive. From that thoroughfare they can watch the movements of the blockading ships with glasses; and many a light jest falls from beautiful lips. Equestrians accompany the carriages; and the military element, high in the favor of the Cuban women, is conspicuously in evidence.

The insurgents, it is officially reported, have sustained numerous losses in the province of Santa Clara. Their position there is growing worse; and their bands are demoralized, divided and very difficult to concentrate.

The official accounts of the engagements in the province of Santiago on Thursday and Friday of last week represent that the American forces, supported by artillery, attacked the Spanish on the morning of the 23rd, but were repelled, with heavy loss. The Spanish losses on the 23rd and 24th are reported as one officer and eight soldiers killed and 24 soldiers wounded.

Bay State's Eighth.

Chickamauga, June 27.—An order was issued by Major General Brooke Sunday which virtually amounts to an order for the movement of 15 regiments to Cuba.

In accordance with this order the first division of the First corps and two brigades of the second division of the same corps will form an expeditionary force, and are ordered to be immediately prepared and equipped for active field service. Included in this order is the Eighth Massachusetts.

The order does not specify just when those troops will go, or to what point they will be sent for embarkation, but it is understood that they will go to Tampa for direct departure for Cuba.

The Third Expedition.

San Francisco, June 27.—Four thousand men, comprising the third expedition to the Philippines, embarked Sunday, and soldiers now swarm in the holds and upon the decks of five steamers. They are the bulk of the expeditionary force, and probably will sail this afternoon, to be followed Wednesday by the Newport, upon which General Merritt is expected to depart.

Before orders to march were given, very few of the visitors to the camp went in empty handed. Many were the packages containing little necessaries and the delicacies were packed with the luggage of the departing troops. Many of them that had not received "comfort bags" were supplied with this little necessity to healthful soldier life, and the absolutely necessary abdominal bandage was furnished those of the departing men who had not received them. Bouquets of beautiful flowers were distributed among the men in large quantities, and many a rifle barrel was made pleasantly heavier by floral decorations.

Admiral Camara's Squadron.

Port Said, June 27.—Admiral Camara's squadron is in the harbor here awaiting orders. It consists of the battleship Pelayo, the armored cruiser Emperado, the Carlos Quintos, the torpedo boat destroyers Osado, Audaz and the transports Patriota and Buenos Ayres and the Isla de Panay, Colon, Covadonga, Rapida and San Frisco.

DYNAMITE AND BARBED WIRE.

Two of the Weapons Used by the Barbarians.

Mines of Deadly Explosive In the Roads to Santiago.

Difficulties In the Way of the American Advance.

Position Occupied Where Siege Guns Will Be Useful.

Kingston, June 28.—Every by-path leading into city of Santiago has been mined with dynamite by the Spanish soldiers under the direction of General Linares. This information was contained in a letter from Santiago received by a Cuban now in Kingston. His correspondent added that the Spanish officers expect to do enormous damage by this system of mines. If they succeed in carrying out their plans, they will annihilate the advance divisions of the American and Cuban armies when the assault upon Santiago begins.

The guns of the American army now look down on Santiago. If the siege guns were here they could easily shoot into the city itself, for from this eminence, just over the Rio Guama, the intrenchments of General Linares are so near that we can see the buttons shine on the officers' uniforms, and the city itself is not much more than four miles away.

Cubans who have come out of the city of Santiago report a condition of panic there. They say the Spanish troops are affected and are ready to run. The wildest stories are out as to the size of the American army and its armament. The general belief is that General Shafter has between 40,000 and 50,000 men, with great guns of tremendous range and power, dynamite throwers of miraculous destructive force and war balloons, which drop liquid fire and desolation from the clouds. General Wheeler was eager to take advantage of this panicky feeling and make a bold dash at the enemy—barbed wire, rifle pits, batteries, machine guns and all. Most of the officers on this fighting line were praying that Wheeler's idea would prevail; but Shafter said "No," and a very determined "No" it was, too.

Barbed wire is a new feature in warfare. The Spaniards have set four succeeding rows of posts in front of their intrenchments and rifle pits, and on these posts barbed wire is heavily strung. Between the four lines is a tangle of the same wire. The idea is, of course, to hold the American troops while the Mausers and Remingtons, the machine guns and the great cannon shoot the struggling men to death.

The problem confronting the American army is the transportation of supplies, for the roads to the front are still impassable for wagons, but are being improved. In the meantime the pack train is being used. The first of these left Juragua Saturday night and others left Sunday. The officers and men were completely out of rations Saturday. The Seventh received half rations, and Sunday they received nothing. The boys are complaining bitterly, but are pacific on the assurance that the pack train will be on hand shortly. Should a night attack occur our soldiers would fare worse than did the marines at Guantanamo, as the attacking force here would not be at the disadvantage of having to charge up hill.

The Cubans with the advancing forces, in spite of the good behavior of their comrades at Guantanamo, seem to be utterly worthless. All day they sit in the shade of their palm thatched camps, and at night they smoke cigarets and gorge on Uncle Sam's rations, while in sight of them Uncle Sam's boys, with empty stomachs and not a bit of tobacco for their pipes, build roads all day under the blazing sun and sleep on their rifles under the starlight.

The Spaniards are using brass-sheathed lead bullets, and the brass tip on touching tears the flesh horribly, while the small splinters cause blood poisoning. They are practically explosive bullets, and are used in their Remingtons. They also cut a small cross through the end of the Mauser bullet so that it mushrooms on striking, with a similar result.

The outlook is threatening. Everybody believes a great battle is imminent. With the Spanish and American advance posts close enough to see the whites of each other's eyes a collision may occur at any moment. Some officers believe it will be necessary to lay a regular siege to Santiago and advance with a line of earthworks until the rifle pits can be shelled with shrapnel by the light artillery. These pieces have an effective shrapnel range of 2800 yards, and the Mauser rifles in the hands of the Spaniards are sighted to 1900 yards, and they kill at 2100 yards.

TIRED OF THE WAR.

President Expects to End It by an Attack on Spain.

Washington, June 28.—A vital blow is to be struck at Spain. Across the ocean is to sail a squadron of two battleships and four cruisers. They are to prey upon the commerce of Spain, to bombard the Spanish cities, and, unless Admiral Camara gets out of the Mediterranean sea, to capture and destroy his fleet.

The war is to be carried into the enemy's country. The people of Spain are to be given an object lesson. Instead of being fed with craftily concocted stories of Spanish victories, they are to see American ships, to hear the shrieking of American shells, and to feel the terrible effects of a bombardment. The fleet is to sail at once, and is to carry terror and destruction to the Spanish coast.

This is one side of the picture. On the other hand, the real meaning of the theatrical announcement by the navy department is that Spain is to be frightened, if possble, into suing for peace. The president is heartily tired of the war. It has already lasted longer and cost more in lives and money than he had anticipated.

The determination to send this squadron against Spain was the outcome of direct official advices reaching the state and navy departments as to the progress of Admiral Camara's squadron. These advices gave a list of the Spanish ships now nearing the Suez canal, which differs somewhat from the list given in the press dispatches and by Lloyds. The official list is as follows:: Pelayo, Carlos V, Audaz, Ocada, Proserpina, Patriota, Rapido, Buenos Ayres, Isla de Paney, Colon, Covandonga and San Francisco. The squadron is the most formidable Spain has afloat in total tonnage, strength of individual ships, armor and guns. The Pelayo is the strongest of the ships, and is the only battleship in the Spanish navy. She is 9900 tons, with a speed of 16.7 knots. She carries 35 guns of various caliber, and has seven torpedo tubes. The largest guns are 12-inch Hontorias—one forward and one aft—and 11-inch Hontorias, one on each beam. The Carlos V is of 9090 tons, with a speed of 19 knots. She has 28 guns, the largest being 11-inch Hontorias worked electrically, one forward and one aft. She has also six torpedo tubes. The Audaz and Osado are torpedo boat destroyers, finished in England just before the war began. They are of 400 tons each and are 30-knotters. Each carries six guns and two torpedo tubes. The Buenos Ayres belongs to the Transatlantic company of Cadiz, and has been transformed into a cruiser. She is 5200 tons, with 14 knots speed. The Proserpina, Patriota and Rapido are merchant vessels recently reconstructed and armed. The Colon, Covadonga and San Francisco are colliers. It is apparent from this that the main reliance of his fleet is on the Palayo, the Carlos V, and the torpedo boat destroyers. The others are auxiliaries and colliers. As there are only two armored ships in the lot, Admiral Dewey's fleet of protected, but unarmored, ships probably will take care of this Spanish squadron. With the Monterey added, it could certainly do so. The eastern squadron far outranks this squadron, the Iowa and Oregon exceeding the Pelayo and Carlos V at every point, while the other United States vessels are far superior, ship for ship, to those of the Spanish squadron, with the single exception of the two torpedo boat destroyers.

In a State of Ferment.

London, June 28.—The Madrid correspondent of The Daily Telegraph says: "Spain is in a state of ferment, of transition without parallel during the present century. Troubles of the gravest kind are brewing all over the provinces. Every political and social institution is threatened in turn, and the least nervous among far-sighted politicians apprehend a complete debacle.

"Inconceivable as it may seem, the majority of Spaniards have no interest in the war, and even display a willingness to forget the past and to endeavor to rub along without colonies. The statesmen responsible for the loss of the colonies are utterly reckless, and the indifference to the people's ruin manifested by the governing and upper middle classes is probably unparalleled in history. Hunger and misery are making themselves felt throughout the country. There will soon be 35,000 unemployed in Catalonia and everywhere else there are similar accounts of distress, going from bad to worse day by day.

"The government is plainfully conscious and is now taking energetic measures, but all of these are of a coercive character. Troops which might have successfully defended the Philippines are being massed at all the centers

WHAT'LL HOBSON GET?

Justice to Other Officers Influencing Delay.

May Be Placed High Among the Lieutenants.

Prisoners' Release Expected Only With Santiago's Downfall.

Washington, June 28.—It has not been positively determined by the administration just what measure of reward shall be meted out to Constructor Hobson. He will be transferred to the line, but just what place in the line is to be given him is not yet settled. It can be stated that he will not, as was at first supposed, be placed in the grade of lieutenant commanders. With a full realization of the merits of Hobson's achievement, the naval officials have concluded that so great an advancement as that, amounting to a promotion of more than 350 numbers, would be unwise, so it is likely that Hobson will take his place well up among the lieutenants of the naval service, which officials believe will make his reward equal to that bestowed upon Cushing for his daring feat.

Through the retirement for age, on July 23, of Naval Constructor Hoover, Hobson would be promoted in regular course to the grade of naval constructor. He has the relative rank of lieutenant, junior grade, and with his advancement he would attain the relative rank of lieutenant. His nomination for promotion would have been sent in immediately after Mr. Hoover's retirement if the question of rewarding him for his heroism had not been pending.

The navy department, while not relaxing in any degree its efforts to secure the release of Hobson, Daniel Montague and their associates at Santiago, has about concluded that nothing practicable can be done in this direction until the town itself has been captured. The reasons assigned by the Spaniards for declining the exchange are admitted to be sound if the facts are as represented, namely, that Hobson has had an opportunity of seeing much of the Spanish defenses—their strength and weakness—that he could not safely be permitted to return to the American fleet at ths time.

It is regarded as singular that three of the sailors of the Winslow who participated in the affair at Cardenas when Ensign Bagley was killed have been rewarded by being advanced to warrant officers, while the man who most of all distinguished himself on that occasion, Lieutenant John Bernadou, lies unrewarded at Key West, still suffering from the effects of his wounds. This, however, is explained by the fact that the department possesses within itself the power to reward in this way enlisted men, but can act in the case of a commissioned officer like Bernadou only upon the recommendation of his superior officer. In the present instance that superior officer at the time of the Cardenas affair was Admiral Sampson, who is now presumably too busily engaged with other matters to recall to mind Bernadou's case.

In a message to the congress Monday the president recommended that, in view of the act of heroism of First Lieutenant Frank H. Newcomb, revenue cutter service, during the conflict in Cardenas bay, "the thanks of congress be extended to him and to his officers and men of the Hudson, and that a gold medal of honor be presented to Lieutenant Newcomb, a silver medal of honor be presented to each of his officers, and a bronze medal of honor to each member of his crew who served with him at Cardenas." It was also suggested that Captain Hodgson of the Hugh McCulloch be placed upon the permanent waiting orders on the retired list of the revenue cutter service on the full duty pay of his grade. Senator Frye introduced a bill prepared at the navy department, carrying the president's recommendations into effect. The resolution appropriates $1000 for the manufacture of medals.

Good Afternoon.

The question which seems to agitate the yachting world, especially in the columns of the Boston Sunday papers, is "Did or did not the Quincy Yacht club give a cup for the 21 footers? There was, and is no doubt in the minds of the donors but what the cup was given for 21 footers to race for and nothing else. Jib and mainsail yachts carrying a jib and lugger foresail, disguised as a schooner and claiming time allowances are rightfully barred by the club. Sunday's Herald tells the Quincy club in very forcible language that its decision on the matter is the right one and that it should stick to it. That sounds like good advice, especially as it comes from a disinterested quarter.

A GRAND CONCERT.

One of the Best Ever Given in the City.

The concert at the Woodward Institute hall on Monday evening was a grand success as it will ensure the establishment of a second free kindergarten school in this city during the summer months, a very commendable work of the Quincy Home Science Association.

The concert was also very enjoyable and a musical treat. Through the interest of two Quincy gentlemen the association was under no expense for the quartette or violinist, while the local talent kindly volunteered. To Mrs. Warren W. Adams, however, who arranged all the details, congratulations are due.

The Albion quartette, composed of Messrs. Johnson, Bartlett, Remele and Babcock, opened the programme and won favor instantly, and they gave three numbers during the evening, and responded to one encore.

Mrs. Alma Faunce Smith contributed a group of piano solos, and her productions are always appreciated.

Mrs. F. A. Page gave two vocal numbers, one a group of three charming songs, which were much enjoyed.

The violin solos by Miss Adelaide Thomas were artistic gems and were liberally applauded. She responded to one encore.

Miss Florence Emery was particularly good on this occasion in her song "Parla'" and was recalled.

Mr. Bartlett, the tenor of the quartette, sang a group of three songs, and Mr. Babcock's bass solo called forth an encore.

Much interest centered in the final number by the quintette, as Mr. Bateman of this city sang with the quartette of which he was formerly a member. It called forth an encore, which proved a little surprise as all the artists of the evening responded and gave "Star Spangled Banner" Mrs. Page singing the solo of one verse, and Miss Emery of the other. The audience joined in the final chorus.

The ushers of the evening were Mr. George G. Saville, Mr. C. T. Hardwick, Dr. E. E. Davis and Dr. N. S. Hunting.

WEYMOUTH.

Little Items of Interest About Town.

Miss Jane L. Kendall of Weymouth Heights, Weymouth North High school, '96, is at home for the summer from Mt. Holyoke college.

A party of twelve of North Weymouths cyclists enjoyed a trip through Hingham and Nantasket Friday evening.

Miss Maud Kendrick of the Athens school corps of teachers has left town for the vacation.

Miss Geogia L. Cushing is at home from East Greenwich seminary where Miss Cushing is pursuing a course of study.

The Fire Department of East Weymouth held a farewell banquet one evening last week to a member, A. L. Flint, who soon will leave for the Klondike with Messrs. W. M. Healey and Mr. Frank Drew. The party leaves July 4.

Miss Amy Kendall of Weymouth Heights is enjoying her vacation at home from Wheaton seminary.

The public schools of Weymouth closed Friday last.

Miss Florence E. Locke, teacher of Grades I and II at the Athens school, North Weymouth, left town Saturday to spend her vacation with friends at Plainville and Needham.

Miss Fannie P. Chubbuck, assistant in Grades I and II Athens school will enjoy her vacation with her parents at North Weymouth.

The Ladies' social circle of the M. E. church, East Weymouth, held a good lawn party on the church grounds Wednesday evening. Music by Marie Grose.

Mrs. Delia Jones and son of East Boston, are visiting Mrs. Betsey Prouty at Lovell's Corner.

A patriotic entertainment will be given in the Porter M. E. church, Wednesday evening.

Miss Annie Quinn, a resident of Lovell's corner, died at her aunt's home in Abington Friday, was brought here for interment Sunday.

Squantum Streets O. K.

A resident of Squantum takes exception to the statement that Squantum street is impassable at present. He writes: "In no time for the past ten years have the roads been in as good order. The main road was raised by the city of Quincy two years ago and after the water pipes were laid the street was rolled, and all small stones raked off. It has been newly gravelled this year, and put in good order under the direction of the Street department of the city of Quincy. The private road leading to the Squantum Inn is in first class order."

FOUR PICKPOCKETS.

One Arraigned in the Quincy Court This Morning.

Thomas Adams, who has a number of aliases, one of the gang of four pickpockets arrested by Boston police inspectors on Monday, was later turned over to the Quincy police whom he was wanted for picking the pocket of Miss C. Emily Fairbanks of Dedham. Miss Fairkbanks was in Quincy two weeks ago and boarded a car for Neponset. A stranger came in and sat beside her. Suddenly she felt a tug at her pocket and the man left the car with her pocketbook containing $14 in his possession. When the four pickpockets were taken to headquarters Monday Miss Fairbanks was sent for and upon her arrival the four were stood up in a line and she readily picked out Adams as the man who took her pocketbook.

Inspector Morrissey of Boston then visited Quincy for a warrant but as the court had gone he returned to Boston and secured a warrant from Clerk Churchill at his office. The Quincy police were then notified. Officer Cameron was on duty at the station during the temporary absence of the chief and not waiting until he returned to report to him he took it upon himself to go to Boston and bring Adams out which he did. It is reported that the chief read the riot act to the officer upon his return for leaving the station when he had been left there in charge.

The International Ball Game.

The Uncle Sams and the Alphonsos.

THE SCORE.
DEWEY,	1
HOBSON,	12
SAMPSON,	02
SCHLEY,	022
CERVERA,	NIT.

FIRST INNING.

Dewey strode to the home plate, made a smashing hit at the first crack out of the box, and sent a hot grounder that went down among the Alphonsos, but which they failed to grasp. Dewey cantered around the bases and came in on a home run. The Bleachers went wild and a lady reporter from Chelsea swallowed her gum.

All the Boston newspaper reporters went down to the players' bench and solemnly congratulated Dewey and thanked him for following out their instructions.

Sampson popped up a fly, but the Alphonsos being a little weary, failed to get under it, and Sampson sat down on first base to wait till the Alphonsos' 1st baseman came back from the bull fight. Hobsen followed Sampson and hit at the first wild ball that came his way. Took desperate chances and made one of the greatest plays ever made on any field, but got caught at third. The game was called on account of rain before the Alphonsos got a hit. The score at the end of the first half of first inning stood: Dewey, won one; Hobson, won, too; Sampson, ought, to; Schley, ought,to, too; Cervera, nit. The game will be finished on Jan. 1st, year 2,000.

If you want to make a hit this week, come down and get a rough and ready Straw Hat for 98 cts. They are Boston's $2.00 kind, only we don't charge you for the name.

If you want to make a two-bagger, buy two linen collars for 25c. Negligee Shirts, 45c. These are not worth any more, but some people sell them for 50c. and claim they are worth 75c.

Guns Manned by Sailors.

Details for Fifth.

Col. J. H. Whitney and the officers of the Fifth Regiment had a conference at the South Armory in Boston Monday. It was officially announced that Capt. E. M. Weaver had been appointed colonel.

At 9.30 on Thursday Gov. Wolcott will review the Fifth as it passes en route for camp at Framingham. Col. Whitney says the regiment will probably rendezvous at Post Office Square, marching thence via Milk, Broad, State, Washington and School streets to the State house.

At Framingham the Quartermaster is hard at work, and the Commissary Department will be ready to receive the regiment when it reaches there.

Gen. Dalton believes that when a regiment gets to its camp everything should be in readiness for food and shelter. Col. Whitney has shared this belief right along.

Summer Time on Boston & Maine

The general change of time on the Boston & Maine railroad went into effect yesterday, and many important changes are noted.

On the Eastern division the service to Marblehead and Gloucester is the same as last season, while on the York Harbor & Beach, the service between Portsmouth and the harbor is practically hourly. Sunday trains leave at convenient hours over this branch, the running of Sunday trains being a new departure.

The mountain trains over the Eastern division leave Boston at 9.40 A. M. and 1.30 P. M. The 3.30 P. M. train will run through to Wolfeboro, and the 3.15 P. M. train is a York Beach train, stopping only at Hamilton and Wenham, Newburyport, Hampton, North Hampton and Portsmouth.

The Portland trains in the evening for down East points will leave Boston at 7 and 9.45 P. M., the Bar Harbor sleeper being the last mentioned.

On the Western division, quite a few changes have been made, the time on the through trains having been shortened.

The usual summer trains from Portland to Old Orchard, Biddeford and Kennebunk have been put on both week days and Sundays. The York Beach train from Lowell will run on the same time as last year. Sunday's Boston trains from Portland have been re-arranged in the latter part of the day so that expresses will leave at 5 and 5.30 P. M., and a late train for Boston will leave Haverhill Sunday night at 8.45 P. M. The 8 A. M. Sunday morning train from Boston will run through to Exeter, and the usual Sunday service will be in effect between Lawrence and Newburyport. The down East train will leave Boston at 8 A. M. week days, and the Portland train will leave Boston at 1.15 P. M. instead of 1 P. M.

The Southern division trains are to run practically as last season to the White Mountains and Canadian points. On the Central Massachusetts railroad, trains have been added between Boston and Hudson, Mass.

STILL RECRUITING.
Co. K Wants But a Few More to Fill the Ranks.

Work bringing Co. K up to the required standard goes merrily on. Several were sent to Boston Monday to take the physical examination and five more accepted swelling the number to 87 men. The recruiting office at Grand Army hall and the Amory at Braintree were open all day Monday and eighteen applications were received and these have been sent to Boston today to be examined.

Two new recruiting offices have been opened tovay, one at Weymouth in charge of private Lord, and one at Rockland in charge of Corp. Adams, and it is expected that a number will be enlisted from these places.

The command will leave the Amory early Thursday morning for Boston and will take the train at Braintree. The members of the present company will wear their regulation blue uniforms and the recruits will wear the canvas suits. When the company arrives at Framingham all will be provided with canvas suits.

Tarr—Mears.

The Chelsea Pioneer reports the marriage of a young lady who formerly lived in this city, and whose parents are well known here:

"Miss Crissie Belle Mears, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Mears of Fitz terrace, and Mr. William H. Tarr of Chelsea, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents Wednesday afternoon, June 22, at 3 o'clock. The contracting parties are well-known society people, and the reception which followed the ceremony was a brilliant affair.

"The nuptial knot was tied by Dr. Ross C. Houghton, pastor of the First Congregational church, in the presence of friends and relatives.

"Little Miss Flora Wentworth of Quincy was the maid of honor and Master Arthur Wentworth of Dorchester was the little page. They were both cousins of the bride and were presented by her with a beautiful ring.

"The bride was charmingly attired in a gray broad cloth travelling suit, with hat to match and carried bride roses. The marriage was performed under a canopy of roses and other cut flowers. A reception followed the ceremony, after which a wedding supper was served. The interior of the house was beautifully decorated with palms, cut flowers and daisies.

"After an extended tour Mr. and Mr. Tarr will reside in Chelsea."

Grammar Graduates.

The public schools of the city will close tomorrow, but the graduation from the grammar school will not take place until Thursday afternoon. That Quincy is growing, and that more are availing themselves of the full grammar school course is shown by these figures. The number to be graduated is surprisingly large; a total of 320, being a gain of 76 over last year, 107 over five years ago and 207 over ten years ago.

New Magazines.

The July number of the New England Magazine opens with "The Story of the Isle of Shoals," by Mrs. Aubertine Woodward Moore. This is a delightful summer article, setting forth the interesting history of the islands, telling of the spots which are so attractive to those who visit the Shoals and dwelling especially upon the days when the gracious presence of Celia Thaxter drew so many to their shores. The article is beautifully illustrated, many of the pictures showing glimpses of Celia Thaxter's home and the places closely associated with her life. An article on "The King Philip Country," by William Adams Slade will be especially timely, as it describes the region visited by the Old South Historical Society on their annual historical pilgrimage, which takes place at about the time the article appears. Published by Warren F. Kellogg, 5 Park Square, Boston.

The July issue of the Woman's Home Companion is quite strong in good fiction contributed by such popular writers as Robert C. V. Meyers, Sophie Swett, Margaret Steele Anderson and Ella Rodman Church. Book lovers will read with appreciation Florence Hull Winterburn's sympathetic discussion of the influence and power of book friends under the title "Our Nearest and Dearest." J. Harry Adams describes and illustrates a style of decoration for a Dutch dining-room that is both practical and artistic. Other artistic helps and hints include Enid E. Bennett's instructions to art amateurs on rose-painting, and Louise Long Chrisdie's original designs for novelties in Battenberg lace. Mary R. Baldwin continues her intimate talks to home women, and Sallie Joy White, in the department of "Cookery for Girls," initiates the novice into the practical mysteries of cake-baking. Another unique feature of the illustrations is the pretty little romance of love and war told in the series of headpieces designed by Frederick McCormack. Published by Mast, Crowell & Kirkpatrick, Springfield, Ohio; fifty cents a year; five cents a copy; sample copy free.

Conditions of a Happy Marriage.

President Eliot, in a recent address before the Dorchester (Mass.) Woman's club, discussed the happy marriage and gave it what free and easy writers call a first class notice. A very brief extract from his address credits him with saying that the idealizing devotion with which the happy marriage begins is the most admirable thing in human nature. He does not seem to favor the idea that the cornerstone of happiness in marriage is a sufficient income secured against the chances of fortune. On the contrary, he declares, as The Transcript quotes him, that the young woman who marries for money or position is sacrificing the best of life which marriage affords. The chief conditions of a happy marriage, as he finds them, are health, common intellectual interests and a religious belief held in common between husband and wife. No doubt he enlarged upon these conditions and qualified the idea of the superlative importance of the latter two by taking large views of them. We often see, for example, people very happily married whose minds are so differently constituted that it seems impossible that they should have more than a limited number of intellectual interests in common. But there are different kinds of good minds, and minds that supplement one another seem quite as well suited to harmonious associations as those that run in parallel grooves.

So as to a common religious belief. That must mean agreement in the great essentials, the roots of which lie deep in character, and which really determine standards and shape conduct. The existence of practical agreement of this sort is not necessarily inconsistent with much variation in details of belief which are important, but not really vital. A marriage between a Protestant and a Catholic may be happy, though such alliances are highly inconvenient. The marriage which may be expected to fail is one between persons who are not likely to agree as to what is right and what is wrong.

AGAINST CAUCUS RULE
Democratic Congressmen at Odds With Leader Bailey.
Unwilling to Assent to a Binding Obligation.
Quorum Not Present at a Meeting Called Last Night to Adopt It.

Washington, June 28.—The postponed meeting of the Democratic caucus adjourned until December without disposition of the resolutions introduced by Mr. Bailey and amended by Mr. McRae, proposing to make future action of Democratic caucuses binding upon all participants. The resolutions were perfected last Monday night, but after a debate a vote was deferred until last night.

When the caucus met, Mr. McGuire of California presided. A vote upon the resolutions was taken and resulted in a vote of 47 for to two against them. Mr. Lewis of Washington made the point of no quorum, which the chairman sustained. It was manifest that no quorum could be secured, and upon motion of Mr. Bailey adjournment was taken to the first Saturday after the first Monday in December, when, under the continuing order for the previous question, a vote will be taken upon the resolutions.

Briefly, they declare that all participants in Democratic caucuses shall be bound by their action except where the action is contrary to the member's construction of the constitution, or opposed to the action of a member's district convention, or to his personal pledges. The opposition to the resolutions either remained away from the caucus, or, being present, did not vote. Each side claims that it will ultimately win.

Bill on Volunteers' Pay.

Washington, June 28.—A bill was introduced in the house by Representative Dockery of Missouri, providing that the pay and allowances of the volunteers received into the service of the United States under the volunteer acts shall date from when they joined for duty and are enrolled at company, battalion, regiment or state rendezvous, provided that those companies about to embark for service in the Philippines may be paid one month's wages in advance prior to embarkation.

Watchdog of the Treasury.

Washington, June 28.—According to a decision of the comptroller of the treasury, extra duty pay of all soldiers is cut off in war time no matter where they may be employed. The act of congress of April 26, 1898, provides for an increase in the pay proper of all enlisted men in time of hostilities. The comptroller also holds that the act of May 4 last, making an appropriation for extra duty pay for certain enlisted men in the quartermaster's department, does not authorize their pay for extra duty in war times.

Corbett and McCoy.

New York, June 28.—The Journal ths morning printed the following: "James Corbett and 'Kid' McCoy, two of the cleverest boxers that ever drew on a glove, are to meet in the 24-foot ring at Buffalo, Aug. 27. While the men are practically matched the details will not be arranged until next Wednesday afternoon, when the principals have agreed to meet at George Considine's cafe, Fortieth street and Sixth avenue.

"It was the refusal of Joe Choynski to box McCoy that opened the door to Corbett, and the former champion was not slow to take advantage of the opportunity, as he has been very anxious for some time past to meet the 'Kid.' The bout will be for 20 or 25 rounds, for a $12,000 purse."

where starvation protests are likely to assume an aggressive form; while money is being wasted on warships that will never fire a shot. The press expects to be gagged, but it unanimously declares that no amount of coercion and no degree of dictatorial despotism will hinder the country from rising and manifesting its will."

Fought Magnificently.

London, June 28.—A dispatch to The Daily News from Port Antonio, Jam., says: "The conditions in which the Americans entered the battle at Sevilla show that their fighting was really magnificent. When attacked, they were hysterical and half out of their minds. All courage would have been scorched out of less thoroughbred men. Their tongues were swelled from thirst and their throat shrivelled. "Hell," said a survivor, 'has no terrors for me now.'"

Drunk and Disorderly.

Chattanooga, June 28.—A small riot between city police and a number of colored soldiers belonging to the Tenth United States cavalry occurred at the central passenger station Monday morning. The soldiers were drunk and disorderly, and when the police attempted to arrest them they fought fiercely. In self-defense, the officers, of whom there were only three, were forced to use their pistols. One of the soldiers, Rufus Cobb, was hit, the ball passing through his leg. Policeman Carleton was struck over the head with a billet of wood and severely injured. Four of the rioters were finally landed in jail.

Spain Blinks and Thinks.

London, June 28.—The Madrid correspondent of The Times says: "The threat to send a squadron to Spain, as reported from the United States, is regarded here as proof that the American government is seriously alarmed at the prospect of Admiral Camara appearing in the neighborhood of Manila. It is argued that if the United States were to show so little regard for civilized warfare as to bombard small, open towns, America might kill a few peaceful inhabitants and injure private property; but the practical effect of such a flagrant infraction of the laws of war would merely be to inflame the war spirit of the Spaniards.

"As for the fortified ports, experience in Cuba has shown that the fire of men-of-war makes but little impression, and America would find it much harder to maintain a fleet off the coast of the peninsula than a few hours' sail from Key West. The landing of any considerable armed force is out of the question, because that is precisely what the Spaniards would like.

"Reinforcements are on the way toward Guantanamo to oppose the expected advance by the Americans from that point. Considerable reinforcements are expected also from Manzanillo; but they may be delayed by the bad roads and by insurgent bands."

Vessels Behind the Age.

Gibraltar, June 28.—The third Spanish squadron, it is announced here, consisting of the Cardenal de Cisneros, Lepanto, Numancia, Vitorria, the monitor Puig Cerda, three torpedo boats and the auxiliary steamers Meteoro, Leo XIII and Montserrat, commanded by Admiral Barrosa, has been "ordered to assemble at Cadiz as early as possible."

Some of the vessels are much behind the age. The Numancia is an iron vessel built in 1863, capable of steaming, according to the registers, eight knots, and having a belt of five and a half inches of old-fashioned armor. Her main battery consists of eight 10-inch muzzle loading Armstrong guns, and her secondary battery is composed of six 6.2 inch quick-firing guns.

The Vitorria is a training ship, of the broadside frigate class, built in 1865 and having a belt of 5½ inches of old-fashioned armor. Her main battery consists of eight 9-inch muzzle loading Armstrong guns. She may be able to steam 10 knots.

Third Fleet Gone.

San Francisco, June 28.—Monday afternoon the third fleet of vessels loaded with soldiers sailed for the Philippines amid the screeching of a hundred whistles, the clanging of bells and the booming of cannon. The men on the transports were perched in the rigging, and handkerchiefs and flags waved and fluttered from every porthole and spar.

The ships carried about 4000 men under command of General Arthur McArthur, who has made the steamer Indiana his flagship. The City of Para, the Ohio and the Morgan City were the other vessels to sail with the Indiana. The Valencia will probably sail with the Newport Wednesday. General Merritt and his staff will proceed to the islands in the Newport.

Canada at Port Said.

New York, June 28.—A dispatch to The Tribune from Cairo, Egypt, says: "The Egyptian government has instructed its authorities at Port Said to prevent the 150 stockers engaged there by Admiral Camara for his fleet from embarking on Spanish ships, and has courteously informed Admiral Camara that so doing would be an infringement of the laws of neutrality, which Egypt intends rigorously to observe. The Audasa's machinery requires repair, and Camara has signified his intention of remaining at Port Said for three days.

A False Alarm.

Kingston, Jam., June 28.—It is believed that Admiral Cervera contemplated making a dash out of the harbor Saturday night. Four columns of smoke were seen at sundown advancing towards the mouth of the harbor, and two small boats, believed to be torpedo boat destroyers, were observed in the neighborhood of the Merrimac. Consequently Admiral Sampson ordered extra precautions to be taken. The Ericsson and Porter stood very close into the harbor all night, but no ships came out. Shortly after midnight the dynamite cruiser fired three guncotton shells in the direction of Morro castle. They exploded on the ridge and behind the eastern hill. The damage done is not known.

Boston Opinion.

Boston, June 28.—The Advertiser asserts that "before Camara's fleet can arrive at Manila Spain must decide either to ask for peace or to subject the Spanish people to a loss far more real and serious than would have followed the withdrawal of the Spanish troops from Cuba two months ago."

The Post declares that "by sending Commodore Watson's fleet to the coast of Spain the United States brings war into the peninsula as surely as if an army were marched upon Spanish home territory."

Senate's Daily Sitting.

Washington, June 28.—Monday the senate adopted a resolution of Mr. Davis, chairman of the foreign relations committee, providing that hereafter, until further action shall be taken, the senate convene daily at 11 a. m. Consideration of the Hawaiian annexation resolutions was resumed, and during the session Mr. Clay (Dem., Ga.), Mr. Roach (Dem., N. D.) and Mr. Caffery (Dem., La.) spoke in opposition. Mr. Roach advanced the novel argument that the United States should not annex the islands, as their existence was problematical. They were liable to be swallowed up in an earthquake.

Mr. Caffery and Mr. Stewart became involved in a sharp colloquy over the former's assertion that the United States under the constitution could not acquire foreign territory by legislative act. With this statement Mr. Stewart took issue. In answer to an inquiry by Mr. Faulkner, Mr. Caffery said he had never known any nation to acquire foreign territory by purely legislative act.

Stopped by the Police.

St. John, N. B., June 28.—The fight between Joseph Mullins of Boston and Edward Harvey of this city was decidedly in Mullins' favor. In the first round the Boston man sent Harvey to the floor, but he was up in two seconds. In the second and third rounds Mullins administered considerable punishment. In the fourth round he sent Harvey to the floor, but the prostrate man was up when Referee Powers counted six. Mullins again forced the fighting and again sent Harvey to the floor. The referee had counted eight when the chief of police stepped into the ring and forbade further fighting.

News of Boston.

Boston, June 28.—Alva Sholto was drowned in the Charles river yesterday afternoon while bathing. He dove and did not reappear, and it is thought that he struck his head against a rock.

Word was received by the local police yesterday of the arrest in Seattle of William E. Baker, who was employed in the office of the Adams Express company up to the time of his departure. The company thinks it was defrauded out of $200, or even a sum as large as $1000 by Baker, and so caused his arrest.

Alonzo J. Whiteman, ex-mayor of Duluth, defeated candidate for congress, president of a bank and at one time director in many corporations, has been arrested in St. Louis at the request of Chief Inspector Watts to answer to the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses and beating several hotel keepers out of hundreds of dollars worth of board.

"Is She Your Daughter?"

Have you a young daughter just at the age when young girls most need a mother's loving care? Is she physically strong and well or does she suffer from any weakness of the delicate organism which most intimately concerns her womanhood?

If so, you understand her suffering better than anyone else can. You know that such troubles, unless remedied, mean a life of incapacity and wretchedness for her. You appreciate her reluctance to undergo physician's "examinations" and "treatments;" and you will be glad of assurance from the most eminent medical authorities in this country that in nineteen cases out of twenty these mortifying methods are absolutely unnecessary.

Any mother who will write about her daughters case, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N.Y., will receive free of cost the best professional advice obtainable, and instructions whereby a complete cure may, in nearly every instance, be effected by simple, common-sense home methods.

No living physician has a wider practical experience or a higher reputation in the treatment of diseases peculiar to women than Dr. Pierce. His "Favorite Prescription" is the only proprietary remedy ever designed by an educated authorized physician specifically to cure women's diseases. His great 1000-page illustrated book, "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," is of priceless value to every mother. It will be sent absolutely free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps, to pay the cost of mailing only. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.; or, send 31 stamps for a heavy, cloth-bound copy.

The unfailing, never-griping cure for constipation—Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

CROP BULLETIN.

Prospects of the District Fully Up to the Average.

Boston, June 28.—Last week is considered the best of the season in many sections of Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut; the sunshine caused rapid growth of crops and the fair weather favored farm pursuits. Reports from the agents of the weather bureau show that haying is in advance from a week to 10 days. Hoeing is a week to a fortnight late. The result of hay making and hoeing coming at the same time is foulness from weeds and overworked farmers. A want of rain is reported from all sections of Rhode Island. The same applies to Connecticut, except that an excess of moisture in the soil is reported in some sections of New London county. In the larger portion of that state the drought is becoming injurious; pastures are browning and strawberries are showing the effects of dry weather. The prospects of the district as a whole are fully up to the average.

Corn is improving in about all sections, but is still backward. The sunshine and showers have improved the color, though the cool weather in northern sections has been unfavorable to rapid growth. Rye and oats are showing rust in western Massachusetts, and rust is also affecting the oats in sections of Fairfield county, Conn. As a whole the grain crop is promising.

The caterpillars have about ceased their ravages, but the apple crop in many sections has been destroyed. Most damage was done in parts of Chittenden county, Vt. In Shelburn, which is located in an apple producing district, the crop will be but a small percentage of that which was promised. The forest worm has wrought great damage to the sugar maples in sections of Windsor county, Vt. It is believed that the trees in many instances are permanently injured. The apple crop of the district will probably be an average one. The indications are favorable to a good supply of pears, plums and cherries. The peach trees in Connecticut show plenty of fruit.

Field and garden vegetables have, as a rule, made good progress. The potato crop in all sections is very promising and seems unusually free from injurious insects. The early crop is blooming in northern sections, and in southern portions the new potatoes are nearly ready for market. Asparagus is still being cut in Massachusetts. Garden truck generally is in excellent condition and very plentiful.

The strawberry crop is especially abundant. In some sections the market is reported overstocked. The fruit is very fine in quality. Blackberries, raspberries and wild berries promise a large yield.

Some setting of tobacco has been done during the week in western Massachusetts. The plants are reported backward and small in some sections, as the weather has been too cool for rapid growth.

SUFFERED A SHUTOUT.

Opening Game In the Mining City Was Not a Victory.

Pittsburg, June 28.—Tanny's left hand had its cunning Monday and no mistake. He never performed better. He was patent and his aim was deadly. His support was fine. Lewis also pitched gilt-edged ball. His support was perfect, for his colleagues did not make an error, nor did they come near it. The fact is the champions played championship ball to the end, still were beaten.

Lynch and Andrews were the unpires, and there was no kicking against them except in the third inning, when Donovan was declared safe at third. Andrews called him safe, and it was a close affair. The umpire could have called the runner out, and there would hardly have been any murmur from the pirates. Captain Duffy stated yesterday that his men are going to do a little kicking. Score:

The Baltimores hit the ball in both games in St. Louis, winning by 16 to 4 and 12 to 1.

The Washingtons made it three out of four in Cincinnati yesterday by hitting Hawley opportunely. The losers could do nothing with Swaim. Score: 9 to 2.

Umpire Doescher called the Rochester-Springfield game at the end of the 12th inning because of the late hour, with the score a tie, 5 to 5. Yousouf and Adam Miller gave a wrestling exhibition before the game.

The Chicagos hit Stein hard yesterday, while Woods kept the Brooklyns' hits far apart until the game was practically won. Score: 9 to 4.

Pitcher Amole lost yesterday's game for Buffalo in the first inning, when the Providences made three runs. Score: 5 to 2.

World's Record Shattered.

Waltham, Mass., June 28.—In his practice Monday on the Waltham track Michael broke the world's record for 10 miles, in 17 minutes and 20 seconds. The record of course will not stand. The start was a flying one, and he was paced by four quints and two triplets. The present time for a flying pace is 18.06 3-5, held by himself, while the competitive record is held by McDuffie in 17.49 1-5.

CUT WATER MAINS OF SANTIAGO.

Deadly Blow Given to the Cuban City.

Rain Water the Only Reliance of the Spaniards.

Plan For Junction of Two Forces Abandoned.

The Army of Invasion Is Nearly Ready to Advance.

Kingston, June 29.—Santiago's water supply has been cut off, and now the city has nothing but rain water. As nobody in the doomed Spanish stronghold could have conceived that the Americans would cut the big water mains, there is no question but that there is very little between the city and a water famine. Only the rainy season can help them, and the weather is fighting on the side of he Americans.

The Cubans say it will be three weeks at least before the clouds open and let loose the floods. What water there is will undoubtedly be reserved for the Spanish troops. This means the practical abandonment of Santiago as a city. The Americans will permit women and children at least to pass through the lines to safety. When they are gone Santiago will be nothing but a fortified camp

It was the Cubans who discovered that the city's mains coud be reached and destroyed. At 8:30 o'clock Monday night the engineer corps went on the Santiago road and crept up to within a mile of the rifle pits that guard the city. Every conduit and pipe was destroyed. If the Spaniards were aware of this awful act of war they made no sign. Their campfires dotted the hills and plains almost within rifle range of where General Shafter's men were breaking down aqueducts and tearing up pipes.

The Cubans say that without the water supply General Linares must evacuate Santiago, as the cistern supply will not be sufficient for such an army as he has massed there. The American officers have figured out, however, that he can put his men on water allowance and that, though they may suffer considerably from thirst, the rain water will pull them through. The destruction of Santiago by fire is now an assured thing. As soon as the shells get to bursting in the town everything inflammable will go.

Information has been received from Manzanillo to the effect that five battalions of Spanish troops which left that city several days ago to reinforce General Linares returned to Manzanillo two days after their departure. This is by far the most important news received for sometime. It is regarded as indicating the failure of the Spanish attempt, under command of General Pando, to rush 10,000 trained troops to the defense of Santiago. General Pando, as has been told in former dispatches, began a desperate effort to get his troops to Santiago as soon as it was known that the Americans would land and begin the invasion of Cuba in that vicinity. He commands the most important body of Spanish troops, aside from General Linares' forces, in eastern Cuba. He was ordered by Captain General Blanco to proceed with all possible haste toward Santiago, and the Spaniards based their only hope of repelling the invasion on the prompt arrival of Pando's forces.

The information has set at rest the fears of both the American and Cuban commanders. They believe that either Pando's men were unequal to the difficult march from Manzanillo to Santiago, or else that General Linares, realizing the hopelessness of his position, sent word that it was useless to send these additional troops to that point.

The army of invasion is compactly formed within three miles of Santiago, with General Lawton's division occupying the center, and flanked on the left by General Wheeler and on the right by General Kent. The engineering corps has completed a military road which is a great improvement over the old bridle path, but the sand is several feet deep in places, and a copious rainfall would soon convert it into quagmire, rendering traveling extremely hazardous.

SHAFTER'S CONFIDENCE.

Reports Laconically to the Secretary "All Is Progressing Well."

Washington, June 29.—If General Shafter fears that he has a hard nut to crack in the capture of Santiago, he does not manifest it in his official dispatches to the war department; if difficulties confront him, they are not of a character sufficient to cause him serious consideration; if the force of the enemy is threatening from its size the fact remains to be related; if American reinforcements are needed General Shafter has not yet taken the trouble to send even the briefest appeal to Washington.

On the contrary, his dispatches are full of confidence. He insisted by cable a few days ago that he wanted nothing, and the advices received from him yesterday were remarkable for their thoroughly self-reliant and self-satisfied tone. "All is progressing well," said General Shafter, beginning the brief dispatch which the war department made public yesterday afternoon. The cablegram also told in concise but graphic manner of the continued progress of the army.

In spite of the press dispatches to the contrary, the secretary thinks that Shafter will be obliged to wait for the arrival of the lighters sent by the navy department Saturday before getting his siege guns ashore. As soon as the guns are mounted the assault on Santiago will begin, and the department is confident that it will not be of long duration. It fully expects that the success of Shafter's expedition will be assured before the close of the week. At the same time, every energy is being bent toward getting the expedition under way, which is now being gathered from the camps at Chickamauga and Tampa. This expedition will consist, probably, of 25,000 men, and it will be under the command of General Miles. It will go to Santiago, but Santiago will not be its objective point. Indeed, it is possible that the troops may not be landed there at all. Santiago is regarded by the department as a port of call on the way to Porto Rico, which is the ultimate destination of this most important expedition which has thus far been prepared.

The comment was heard at the navy department that there is a certain poetic justice in the fact that Captain Sigsbee has met a torpedo boat destroyer and won a signal victory over her. Sigbee's ship, the Maine, was blown up by a torpedo, and he has now effectively destroyed the torpedo boat scare. The success of his ship, an auxiliary cruiser without steel protection and commonly supposed to be helpless in the presence of a torpedo boat, in repulsing the dangerous destroyer Terror and a Spanish cruiser off San Juan is regarded by officers of the navy department as in the nature of an exploit. Great satisfaction is expressed with the outcome of the apparently unlooked-for encounter, and a new source of encouragement is found in the incident. The navy department has not received any information other than that contained in the brief bulletin that the St. Paul hit the Terror three times, killing one officer and two men and wounding several others. The Terror dropped back under cover of the fortifications, with difficulty, and was towed into the harbor in a sinking condition, where she is now being repaired.

Needs of Gomez.

Key West, June 29.—General Gomez is in urgent need of clothes, rifles and ammunition. Colonel Bernabe Boza, General Gomez's chief of staff, who is in Key West, brought from his commander a list of supplies needed by his army. He asks for each of his three brigades 900 infantry rifles, 600 cavalry rifles, one dynamite gun, and 1500 machetes. These arms, General Gomez says, are needed for unarmed men. He also asks for clothes, shoes, medicine and food. For 13 months Gomez has received practically nothing from the filibustering expeditions, owing to the difficulty of landing on the Santa Clara coast, as compared with Santiago.

Gall of the Germans.

London, June 29.—The Berlin correspondent of The Daily News says: "The following semi-official note has been published here, apparently with the object of preparing the world for the landing of German marines at Manila: 'As yet no statement has reached here about the landing of German marines at Manila; but it is a matter of course that Admiral Von Diederichs will interfere so soon as it may become necessary fo. the protection of Germans there. Inhabitants Co-operating With the Authorities.

Centers of Trade Said to Be Well Protected.

Alleged Capture of Americans During a Fight In Cuba.

London, June 29.—The Madrid correspondent of The Standard says: "Regarding the threat of the United States to send a squadron to the coast of the peninsula, it is to be said that important centers of trade like Bilbao, Santander, Gijon, Corunna and Vigo could be promptly put into a respectable state of submarine and land defense; and the inhabitants everywhere have already volunteered, with men and money, to co-operate with the authorities. The arsenals, such as Ferrol and Cadiz, are well provided with forts and batteries armed with modern heavy guns; while the approaches have extensive submarine defenses. Numerous torpedo boats are attached to both those ports; and the same can be said of Carthagena and Ceuta, while preparations for defense are being actively pushed at Barcelona and other Mediterranean ports, as well as at the Balearic islands.

"For some hours yesterday the authorities at Cadiz put the land and sea forces and batteries through sham defenses against attacks from the sea in the presence of thousands of inhabitants, who lined the walls and esplanades, and showed much enthusiasm over the excellence of the artillery practice.

"The latest reports from Cuba show that General Luque has only been able to detach a few battalions and one mountain battery under Colonel Esquario to reinforce Santiago. The Spaniards, during a recent fight, took several American prisoners who complained of suffering from the lack of provisions and the excessive heat. The American prisoners reported also that there was a great deal of sickness in the American forces.

"Admiral Cervera has been authorized to act at his discretion—either to cooperate in the defense of Santiago or to make a sortie. The Spanish papers lay great stress on the probability of a rupture between General Garcia and General Gomez. The latter is incensed with the special attention shown by the Americans to Garcia, Sanguilly, Rabi, Castillo and other chiefs while not only discarding the oldest leader of the rising, but providing him sparingly with the supplies he so sorely needs."

Good Afternoon.

An enthusiastic rally in aid of Company G, Fifth regiment, who are going into camp on Thursday, was held in the Auditorium at Woburn last evening, and nearly $700 was subscribed. Speeches were made by Mayor Feeney and other prominent citizens.

The citizens of Charlestown have already taken hold of the matter of providing for the members of the two Charlestown companies of the Fifth Regiment. The committee last night discussed the matter and made arrangements for receiving subscriptions. A meeting will be held at the quarters of the post on Thursday evening, and in the meantime subscriptions for the general fund will be received at the hall on Green Street.

Quincy people after reading such items as these in the Boston press must realize the fact that they are not doing their duty by those who are sacrificing so much to defend the Nation's honor and free the oppressed. Let it not be said, that Quincy is slow or unpatriotic.

Those who expect to see a wrangle among the ministers of the city over the issue of dancing at the Woodward will probably be mistaken. We shall be surprised if they vote either for or against it at their meeting this afternoon.

A minsister whose religious belief is against dancing, should not as a director of a public non-sectarian school allow his religion to enter, while ministers who personally see no harm in dancing will not care to go on record as endorsing it. The subcommittee in charge of the closing exercises of the school in 1897 gave permission to dance, and the precedent was established. It should not be necessary to raise the issue every year, and it would seem that the principal only exercised her prerogative. She discouraged all attempt to make dancing the prominent feature of the reception, and would not allow it before 9.30 or after 11 P. M. It cannot be gainsaid but the public has stood by her.

It is said the more prominent issue with some ministers is the assumption that they have been ignored as members of the board. That they feel that they should have more to say concerning the management of the school, and that they are to take a stand. On the other hand it is said that there are too many directors, and that the principal is not allowed the discretion that should be granted. It would be surprising if a board of 20 to 25 ministers of all denominations should agree on all the details of conducting a school, and a mistake will be made if all attempt to execute pronounced views. As in the public schools the school committee leave much of the details to the superintendent, so should the directors of the Woodward delegate this to the perpetual chairman of the board and the principal.

TEACHERS ELECTED.

Action Taken on Recommendation of Superintendent.

The School Committee held its regular meeting Tuesday evening, the only absent member being Dr. Hallowell.

Miss Isabella Moir was granted a leave of absence until the last of September.

Voted, when the committee adjourn it be until the August meeting.

The Superintendent reported the following resignations: Miss Mary E. Alexander of the High, who goes to Malden; Miss Mary E. Alden of the Quincy, who goes to Milton; Miss Myra C. Mayo of the Massachusetts Fields, on account of ill health; and Miss Mary F. Eaton of the Quincy after eight years of successful service.

The special committee appointed to consider the recommendations contained in the annual report of the Superintendent reported as follows:

That manual training and kindergarten work is desirable but not possible. Accepted.

That some one elementry High school study be introduced in the eighth grammar grade, either physics or language, provided the number of studies are not increased and if introduced that a text book be provided for each pupil. Referred back to the committee to report at the August meeting.

That the training class be abolished but that a limited number of young ladies be admitted as observers and helpers with no theoretic teaching.

After some discussion it was voted that in the opinion of the committee the training class should cease at the close of the school year of 1899, and that it be carried on under the direction of the Superintendent and under such rules as he may formulate subject to approval by the committee.

No More Stamps.

The store of the Trading Stamp concern in the Greenleaf block is closed, and the indications are that it will never be reopened. After the announcement which the company made in the Ledger of Friday the action comes as a suprrise, particularly as it was there stated that "Merchants and their customers in Quincy and vicinity need not disturb themselves. As stated in the act, existing contracts will stand and as the present contracts of the Traders Supply Co. of his city do not expire until the first part of December there will be ample time for all books now out to be redeemed and the fine presents obtained."

In the London Directory for 1895 the Smith family occupy upward of 20 closely printed pages.

OFF TOMORROW.

Co. K Has a Mascot to Take to Camp.

This is the last day of Co. K at home, for tomorrow the members respond to duty's call and will go forth to battle with Spain. As it is Capt. Kincaide's wish that there should be no joyful demonstration, the company will depart quietly from the Braintree station early in the morning.

The Fifth regiment will rendezvous in Boston and will pass in review of Governor Wolcott at the State House about 9.30 A. M. They will march to the Huntington avenue station of the Boston & Albany railroad near the Mechanic's building and there embark for South Framingham.

The Daily Ledger sends a representative with the company as a recruit and expects to hear from him daily with particular reference to the members of Co. K.

The members of the company who recently performed a tour of duty at Gloucester were paid off Tuesday by John Mohan, the treasurer, so that they will have a little spare change at the start.

Those who are taking the examinations today will probably swell the ranks to more than the compliment.

J. I. Condon caught an eagle at South Weymouth a few days ago and he has presented it to the company. The bird was on exhibition at the Armory all day Tuesday and it is the intention of the boys to take him to the front as a mascot.

Tomorrow the Ledger will report the departure at length and will publish a full list of the volunteers.

The Post says, Adjutant-General Dalton accompanied by Colonel Morgan, went to South Framingham yesterday to make a final examination of the camp prior to the ocupancy by the Fifth. He found everything to his liking. Quartermaster Ramsey has all but completed his arrangements for turning over to the State the property held by the regiment.

Governor Wolcott has designated his staff detail to review with him the passage of the Fifth from the steps of the State House.

It may be that the ranks of the Fifth will receive a number of valuable recruits from the three batteries of light artillery. It has been well known for some time that the artillery men were anxious to get to the front, but the government has not seen fit to call upon Massachusetts to furnish either cavalry or artillery. Captain Jacob C. R. Peabody has done his utmost to have his men called out, but his efforts have been of no avail. "If the department does not want us in one way we'll go in another," seems to be the sentiment of the men.

Adams School Sports.

On Friday afternoon, at 3:45 o'clock, a very enjoyable series of races took place at the Adams school. The children taking part were from the four upper grades. In spite of the fact that the weather was intensely hot, the boys struggled hard for the goal which they all wished to win. The programme was as follows:

1—Bicycle race, won by Charles Barnicoat.

2—100 yard dash 1st class, won by Edward Duran.

3—100 yard dash 2d class, won by James McClellan.

4—Hop, skip and jump, won by Edward Duran.

5—Broad jump, 1st class, won by Edward Duran.

6—Broad jump, 2d class, won by Frank Haynes.

7—One-half mile run, 1st class, won by Willie Lang.

8—One-third mile run, 2d class, won by Henry McGee.

9—Three-legged race, won by Frank Haynes and Joseph Malley.

10—Potato race, won by John Smith.

The winners of each race received a prize.

Two Grocers' Days.

The grocers will have two outings this year, at least some of them, but the stores will be closed on only one of the dates. On Thursday, July 21, the Old Colony Grocers' association will repeat its memorable excursion to Crescent Park, R. I. This, however, will not be "Grocers' Day" in Quincy for the Quincy Association has decided to have another of its enjoyable gander parties on Thursday, July 28, when they will close shop and invite the business men of the city to do likewise and hie themselves to some of the woods on the South Shore for a shore dinner, base ball, etc. The stores will not close on the date of excursion to Crescent Park but Quincy will be largely represented by grocers, their families, and friends, as everybody is invited. Mr. Osborne Rogers of this city is on the committee of the Old Colony Grocers, while the committee of the local association are: Messrs. John W. Nash, Joseph Johnson and Fred Goss.

THE SCORE.

DEWEY,	1
HOBSON,	12
SAMPSON,	02
SCHLEY,	022
CERVERA,	NIT.

FIRST INNING.

Dewey strode to the home plate, made a smashing hit at the first crack out of the box, and sent a hot grounder that went down among the Alphonsos, but which they failed to grasp. Dewey cantered around the bases and came in on a home run. The Bleachers went wild and a lady reporter from Chelsea swallowed her gum.

All the Boston newspaper reporters went down to the players' bench and solemnly congratulated Dewey and thanked him for following out their instructions.

Sampson popped up a fly, but the Alphonsos being a little weary, failed to get under it, and Sampson sat down on first base to wait till the Alphonsos' 1st baseman came back from the bull fight. Hobsen followed Sampson and hit at the first wild ball that came his way. Took desperate chances and made one of the greatest plays ever made on any field, but got caught at third. The game was called on account of rain before the Alphonsos got a hit. The score at the end of the first half of first inning stood: Dewey, won one; Hobson, won, too; Sampson, ought, to; Schley, ought,to, too; Cervera, nit. The game will be finished on Jan. 1st, year 2,000.

If you want to make a hit this week, come down and get a rough and ready Straw Hat for 98 cts. They are Boston's $2.00 kind, only we don't charge you for the name.

You can buy a Red, White and Blue Tie for 4c. Put the band around your neck and hear it play Hurrah for the Red, White and Blue.

If you want to take it cool get a crash hat for 24c. You can get a Blue Serge Suit (all worsted) for $7.50 and go and catch a high ball with what you save. If you want to make a two-bagger, buy two linen collars for 25c. Negligee Shirts, 45c. These are not worth any more, but some people sell them for 50c. and claim they are worth 75c.

New England Summer Resorts.

New England is acknowledged by all to be the leading summer resort region of the country, and the variety of resorts within its precincts is so great that every class and every want can be accommodated.

The Northern part of New England has many beauty spots, and it matters not whether at seashore, lake or mountain, cool and invigorating surroundings will be found.

The railroad reaching this section is none other than the Boston & Maine, and its trains run at frequent hours to every point of this great and interesting region.

The care for the summer tourist is a trade in itself, and its every detail is carefully and systematically attended to. The houses are models of convenience and comfort, while the cuisine is unsurpassed.

You want of course to know of the region before you go there, and to help you in selecting a summer abiding place the Boston & Maine Railroad has issued books to the number of thirteen treating upon New England in every part and place, and a finely illustrated catalogue describing the books is sent upon application to any address free, as is also the Summer Tour and excursion Book which the General passenger department of the Boston and Maine Railroad publishes. Send for them; it will pay you if you are vacationing.

To the Editor of the Ledger:

I was rather amused at an item which appeared in yesterday's edition of the Ledger, which stated that the "riot act" had been read to me by the Chief of Police, for "taking upon myself" the great achievement of bringing to Quincy a prisoner, captured by the Boston police. I simply did my duty in the case and received no reprimand.

JOHN WANAMAKER,

The millionaire of Philadelphia, who made his fortune by store advertising, says: "I never in my life used such a thing as a poster, or hand bill, or dodger. My plan for 20 years has been to buy so much space in a newspaper and fill it up as I want it."

LOVE, CRIME AND WAR.

Rich Material For a Novel In a Convict's Story.

Filed His Way to Freedom From Chain Gang.

Reached the Cuban Coast and Taken on an American Vessel.

Key West, June 29.—There is a Cuban passenger on one of the ships of the blockading squadron to whom the phrase, "Cuba libre," has taken a new meaning. He is an escaped murderer and tells a strange tale of love, crime and war.

Between 4 and 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon, one of the auxiliary gunboats was cruising slowly about a mile off Point Bacuranao, east of Havana, when two figures were observed on the beach, signalling with handkerchiefs fastened to the end of sticks. A small boat was sent off to them, but as it approached the shore one of the figures started suddenly into the brush and was seen no more. The other man held his ground, and was taken off to the ship, and there told his story with no show of reluctance.

He is Pablo Benites, 30 years old, a native of Consolacion, Pinar del Rio. Seven years ago he killed a man. Benites told of the affair in the most matter of fact way imaginable without the quiver of an eyelash.

"It was a little dispute. No, we had not been drinking."

"A love affair, perhaps?"

The words were magical. The merest tinge of color crept over his cheeks, gaunt and haggard from seven years' confinement in a Spanish prison, and a glimmer of light came into his dull eyes.

"Perhaps," was the response. "There were words and I—" he made a gesture like the plunge of a knife.

The gesture told the tale—words being unnecessary—of love under tropical skies and murder done for a pair of soft, black eyes. He would say no more. Twenty-four years was the sentence. For seven of these Benites lay in the Havana prison. A month and a half ago he was put in a chaingang and sent to work on the fortifications. His duty was wheeling sand in a barrow at the east end of Morro castle. They gave him nothing to eat there but a few beans, he said, and he was almost starved.

One day last week, while working at the battery, he saw among a group of spectators one who had known him in past years. There was a glance of recognition, with a meaning look at the prisoner's manacles.

A day or two later the friend reappeared, and when he departed Benites had concealed in his sleeve a small file. The rest was easy. It was not long before the irons had been cut through. The file was then passed to a favorite comrade of Benites, and he, too, accomplished the same task. Their chance of escape came at noon on Thursday last while the guard was at lunch. They shook their shackles from them, ran into the woods and were soon safely away.

For three days they made their way through thicket and brush, eluding the Spanish soldiers, until they reached the water front, on Sunday. At the last moment the other man became panic-stricken and ran back into the woods.

Benites knew little of the war; but, when asked if he was a patriot, he replied: "I'll fight for America."

There are between 300 and 400 men working on the sand battery from which he escaped, he said, and big forces are at work on all the fortifications around Havana. Some information had reached him as to the conditions prevailing in the Cuban capital. The poor are starving in the streets, he asserted, and the Spanish soldiers are on half rations. Bread brings 60 cents per pound, beef costs 40 cents and pork is sold for 50 cents a pound. Benites has a brother at Palma, Island of Majorea. The prisoner will be turned over to the disposition of Commodore Watson.

A. O. H. Convention.

Trenton, June 29.—Bishop Foley of Detroit, the national chaplain of the American branch, who was treasurer of the $50,000 fund raised by the American branch for the endowment of a chair in the Catholic university for the teaching of the Irish language, sent a letter to the convention with a check for $219, being the amount that had been collected in excess of the $50,000.

National Secretary O'Sullivan of the American branch showed that wing of the order to exist in every state except Wyoming, and to have 1481 divisions with a total membership of 90,967. The total receipts of these divisions for the past two years are $1,630,455. The expenditures included $517,064, paid for sick and funeral benefits, and $412,943 paid for charitable and other purposes.

Secretary O'Sullivan's report of the ladies' auxiliary showed 298 divisions; total membership, 19,915, with total receipts for two years of $95,462. The expenditures include $11,087 for aid and funeral benefits, and $19,143 for charitable and other purposes. The 298 divisions have a balance on hand of $48,545.

The report of Secretary Hayes showed that the board of Erin wing had before amalgamation a total membership of 5000.

May Extend the Service.

Washington, June 29.—A circular has been issued to the postmasters of the 140 offices from which the present experimental test of rural free delivery radiates, informing them that, as congress has continued and increased the appropriation for the fiscal year, all rural carriers now in the service may consider their contracts renewed unless otherwise ordered by the postmaster general. The department is considering a plan of alloting the extra service to be provided for among such states and communities as have not hitherto had the advantages of delivery, and in localities where the service can be established at the least cost and with a certainty of rendering the best results.

a measure would have no political significance whatever. Neither at Washington nor at Madrid have negotiations occurred on this matter.'

"The assurance that a landing of marines would have no political significance is very nice. The only question is whether the United States and other powers will share this opinion, or whether the other powers will see in the landing an act of interference compelling them to follow suit."

Four Supposed Spies.

Atlanta, Ga., June 29.—Four supposed Spanish spies reached Fort McPherson yesterday. One of them is Private F. J. Glenhurst, of the Fourth army corps. He is supposed to have entered the army to enable him to carry on his secret operations without attracting suspicion. He was arrested at Tampa. The three other suspects are officially known as Thoribio Negrin, a deserter from the Spanish navy; Joseph Martin and John Rodriguez, alias "Spanish John." They are thought to have been obtaining information about the fortifications at Tybee for the use of their government.

Hardtack and Jerked Beef.

Washington, June 29.—The sending of delicacies to the army, although most generous and fully appreciated by the war department, will not longer be encouraged, as it has been found that such delicacies for troops in the field are injurious rather than helpful. The secretary of war suggests that donations of this character in the future be sent to the hospitals only, and that the surgeon general of the army be consulted as to where they will be most needed.

Two New England Regiments.

Chickamauga National Park, Ga., June 29.—The order issued Sunday to equip and prepare immediately 15 regiments of the First corps to form an expeditionary force was revoked by Major General Brooke yesterday. Twenty-seven regiments are to be hastily prepared for active service and the natural inference is that the entire force will be off for Tampa or other points within a week or 10 days. The regiments include the First New Hampshire and Eighth Massachusetts. General Brooke has been appointed by the president to command the corps. Major General Wade will be left in command at Camp Thomas.

Camara's Slow Progress.

London, June 29.—A Gibraltar correspondent says: "The Cadiz authorities are persuaded that Cadiz is the objective point of the Americans, but neither their measures of defense nor the third squadron will be of use unless Spain can find English or German engineers. Admiral Camara, at his present rate of progress, cannot reach the Philippines before 60 days. It is reported that he is carrying 40,000 tons of coal and that the second-class cabins of the auxiliary cruiser Rapido are stuffed with coal."

Hamilton Fish's Body.

Washington, June 29.—The body of Hamilton Fish, who was killed by the Spaniards in the engagement of last Friday, will be brought back to the United States for burial. Mr. Nicholas Fish, the father of the young rough rider, saw the president and the secretaries of war and navy yesterday in regard to the matter. President McKinley gave him an autograph leter to Secretary Alger, referring to the request of Mr. Fish that he be allowed to bring his son's body back to the United States. Mr. Fish also requested that the side arms carried by his son be given to him. These requests will be granted by the secretary of war. Secretary Long gave Mr. Fish permission to take a casket to Santiago on the cruiser Yale, when she makes her second trip with the troops.

HAMILTON FISH.

General Augusti's Troubles.

Madrid, June 29.—Captain General Augusti cables from Manila under date of June 23 that he continues to maintain his position, though the enemy is increasing in numbers, while rains are inundating the intrenchments and desertions of native soldiers are increasing.

Aguinaldo, the insurgent leader, has called upon Captain General Augusti to surrender, but the latter refused, saying he was "resolved to maintain the sovereignty of Spain and the honor of the flag to the last extremity."

Promotion For Frank.

Washington, June 29.—Brigadier General R. T. Frank, just released from duty in command of the department of the east, with headquarters at New York, will be promoted to the grade of major general and assigned to command a division of the troops operating against the Spaniards in Cuba.

Can't Override the Law.

Washington, June 29.—Adjutant General Corbin has written a letter to Governor Dyer of Rhode Island concerning a question which has aroused very general inquiry. "In reply to your letter requesting authority to appoint an additional major for the First regiment of Rhode Island volunteers now stationed at Camp Alger, Va.," he says, "I have the honor to invite your attention to the specific provision in section 6 of the act of April 22, 1898, which provides for raising a volunteer army.* * * It is held that under these laws volunteer regiments of the states to be entitled to a third major, battalion adjutants or any extra officers not allowed in the regular army organization, or with higher rank than allowed for similar officers in the regular army organization, must have been organized as a militia organization under the state laws and have entered the United States 'service as a body with its officers as so organized.'

"It may be added that this is not only a question of organization, but also a question of pay, and it is pretty certain that the accounting officers of the treasury department will not pass the pay accounts of an extra officer admitted to the United States service contrary to the express provisions of the law, even if the muster in of such officers shall be authorized by the war department. It is not seen therefore how under the law a third major can be now commissioned and mustered into the first regiment of Rhode Island volunteers."

Boston Opinion.

Boston, June 29.—The Journal says: "The bloodless victory of Manila has in one way had an unfortunate effect. It has encouraged the country in the delusion that a great war can be carried on—on our side—without loss, and that if American soldiers or sailors are killed or wounded it must all be due to recklessness or incompetence."

"The great battle may take place today or tomorrow, and it may be deferred until later in the week; but when it is fought it is likely to take a place among the historic battles of the world," is the conclusion of The Post.

The Advertiser insists that "it is a good thing to let all the world know that we mean to fight with unceasing energy, and mean to avail ourselves of all legitimate means for conquering a speedy and righteous peace."

"The Spaniards," remarks The Globe, "are said to have fenced in Santiago; but our brave boys, it is to be hoped, will have little difficulty in pulling down the fence and of making it hot in the back yards of that city."

WON IN PITTSBURG.

Second Game of the Series Secured by Bostons' Stick Work.

Pittsburg, June 29.—Those league champions from Boston continued their great ball playing here yesterday and won another close and exciting game. They will remember this trip to the smoky city. They seemed to have an easy thing of it up to the last inning, when the pirates made a lively finish and came within a pop of tieing the score. Two bad throws by Ely and Gray spoiled the chance of the locals to win, and this was quite apparent when the three runs were made by the pirates at the last ditch. The champions left here with the knowledge that they have led the cranks to believe they will again be champions of the league this year. They have played a splendid series and had they not they would have lost every game.

There were 2500 people at the game. Willis pitched splendidly. Killen was hit so hard by the visitors that he was retired at the end of the fifth inning, and Hastings took his place. The visitors would have had lots more runs had they not been too foolish on bases. Score:

Earned runs—Pittsburgs, 1; Bostons, 4. Three-base hits—Gray, Stahl. Sacrifice hits—Tenney, Long, 2. Stolen bases—Donovan, O'Brien, Hamilton, Duffy. Double plays—O'Brien and Davis; Long, Lowe and Tenney. First base on balls—Off Willis, 4. Hit by pitched ball—Donovan, O'Brien. Struck out—By Killen, 4; by Hastings, 2; by Willis, 4. Hits—Off Killen, 8; off Hastings, 6; off Willis, 8. Time—1:55. Umpires—Lynch and Andrews.

Poor playing by the Rochesters, together with a few hits by the Springfields, gave the latter the game yesterday 10 to 1.

The Cincinnatis played two postponed games in St. Louis and captured both. The first game was a pitchers' battle. The winners easily hit Sudhoff at critical times in the second game.

The Quakers made it three straight by winning in Louisville, 8 to 3.

Rusie of the New Yorks was invincible in the first game in Cleveland yesterday, and the home team took a shutout with only two hits. The giants went to pieces in the second game, and the Clevelands won.

The Brocktons pounded Flannagan yesterday, but could not rub out the lead secured by the Fall Rivers in the second and third, when they bunched seven hits, which, with errors, gave them the game, 7 to 5. Jim Corbett covered first base for the spindle city team, playing a fair game. He was weak with the stick.

The Yale team shut out the Harvards in the second game of the championship series by the score of 7 to 0. It was a complete victory for the blue, as the nine outplayed the Harvards in every position. The features were the batting by both teams and a beautiful double play by Hazen, Sullivan and Wadsworth in the third inning at the most critical point in the game when the Harvards had the bases full.

At a conference between the managers of the Yale and the Harvard nines it was decided to play off the third and decisive game in the championship series between those two universities on next Saturday on the polo grounds in New York.

The Western Baseball association, composed of St. Joseph, Peoria, Dubuque, Rock Island, Ottumwa and Quincy, has disbanded because of poor business.

The Pawtuckets whitewashed the Tauntons, 8 to 0. McCafferty pitched a strong game and was finely supported, while the Pawtucket team hit McDougall at opportune times.

The Toronto club has purchased the release of Hannivan of the Syracuse club of the Eastern league, and he will be placed in the outfield regularly. Casey returning to his old position behind the plate.

Mr. Caffery Had the Floor.

Washington, June 29.—Almost the entire session of the senate yesterday was occupied by Mr. Caffery (Dem., La.) in a continuation of his speech against the annexation of Hawaii. While discussing what he deemed the wrong done to the constituted authority during the Hawaiian rebellion of 1893, Mr. Caffery declared that it was a bitter and rancorous spirit which directed the attack made upon President Cleveland for the bold, patriotic and righteous stand taken in attempting to right the wrong done by Minister Stevens and the band of Hawaiian revolutionists. Concerning the formation of the defacto government of Hawaii, Mr. Caffery declared there was never anything like it in the history of nations. No government was ever made so easily or elevated so quickly. "Within half an hour," said Mr. Caffery, "Mr. Stevens had acknowledged that the revolutionists had overthrown the regularly constituted government. International law requires that a defacto government shall be strong enough to maintain itself with the consent of the people, but within 10 hours after the revolutionary government had been created it demanded the protection of the United States."

Killed by a Tallyho.

New Haven, June 29.—Thomas Harrison, aged 35, married, fell from the driver's seat of the tally-ho coach that was carrying the Harvard ball team to the Yale field yesterday afternoon, and received injuries from the forward wheels of the coach passing over his legs which caused his death.

Every Advance Upon Santiago Backed Up Carefully.

Army In Shape For Battle at the Crucial Moment.

Precautions Against Falling Into an Ambuscade.

Pando's Efforts to Effect a Junction With Linares.

Kingston, June 30.—The coils are drawing tighter hourly around Santiago. The heavy siege guns have been landed and are being rolled steadily forward. Though the whole army is pushing up nearer and nearer the city, it is in shape for battle at any moment. Every advance is carefully backed up. There will be no surprise, no doubling up of an army on the march in this campaign.

It is understood that as soon as every soldier has three days' rations in his knapsack the forward movement will be made. Meanwhile the work of reconnoisance is being done thoroughly. Although the Cubans, who form our scouting guard, seem to have a thorough knowledge of the country, we are not depending entirely upon them. The army is taking no chances of ambuscades. In the matter of ambuscades, by the way, General Wheeler, in his official report of the battle at La Quasina, says there is no warrant for the statement that our troops were ambuscaded. He says that the attacking force in his possession the preceding night. The engineers have made most elaborate maps of the entire country up to the very trenches of the enemy. Colonel Mendoca of General Lawton's staff pursued his investigations so far last night that he overheard the Spanish sentries talking on the picket line. Reconnoissances show that the Spaniards have drawn in closer to Santiago than had been suspected.

From two Cuban officers picked up by the Vixen it has been learned that General Pando is moving eastward from Manzanillo with 8700 Spanish troops for the purpose of assisting the beleagured city of Santiago. They report that General Pando has with him seven battalions, with cattle and a pack train with provisions. He left Manzanillo, Santiago, June 22, to relieve General Linares. The Spaniards were moving at the rate of 12 miles a day when the messengers left, and at their present speed it is expected they will reach Santiago Sunday. The Cubans have a small force hanging on the Spanish flank and rear and harassing General Pando's troops at every step. Manzanillo is 127 miles west of Santiago and the roads are in bad condition. The Cubans say that if General Pando reaches his goal it will be with less than half the force he started with. The Cubans who are harassing him only number about 200 men, but in the passes and in the bush they are at a great advantage. It is probable that immediate steps will be taken to throw a force of Americans and Cubans between General Pando and General Linares. Pressed as the latter is on the east, he could not spare a man for a sortie to the west.

The troops belonging to General Lawton's division are kept ready to move, in light marching order, while the reconnoitering parties are out. This precaution is considered necessary in order to avoid disaster in case the small parties of troops should collide with the Spaniards in force. Not a single skirmish has occurred. The Cubans under General Castillo are doing commendable work as advance pickets. They are thrown out day and night from half a mile to a mile in advance of our pickets, along the front and flanks, thus forming a double cordon about the army. There are now more than 13,000 men at the front.

As soon as the remaining battalions of the Twenty-fourth Michigan and Eighth Massachusetts and the 6000 reinforcements sent out from Tampa reach here Aguadores will be taken. The place was shelled Tuesday by several ships of the fleet. Aguadores is on the line of the advance of the army into the interior and close to the railroad. It will then probably become the base of operations, while the supply base may remain at Juragua. Captain Wright learned that 3000 Spanish troops have been sent to reinforce the garrison at Aguadores.

An epidemic of measles, which was started on board one or two transports, is spreading to the camp, and about 20 new cases have broken out. The disease is not dangerous, but the men attacked have been sent to the rear, where they can have airy quarters. Our boys are cheerful in spite of the excessive heat and the hard fare, which thus far has been confined exclusively to coffee, hardtack and bacon, a diet hardly suited for the climate. Rice would make a splendid staple here; but the great deprivation that both men and officers are suffering from is the lack of tobacco. The men are remarkably steady and confident. The pickets show none of the nervousness which might be expected, and there are practically no alarms or "phantom firing" on the lines at night.

FEEDING SANTIAGO.

Authorities Considering the Problem After the Success of the Siege.

Washington, June 30.—"Old glory may be flying over Santiago at the close of Friday," remarked an official this morning in speaking of the confidence felt by General Shafter in his ability to take the Cuban city in two days. The general did not ask for instructions; his message was marked by the same independence and decisiveness which have characterized all his movements and utterances. It is not known that the war department has sent him any instructions, but circumstances seem to be urging on to speedy action.

It is believed, therefore, that Shafter will make his attack at once so as to have it over with before Pando's arrival. He has artillery with him now, and there is nothing to stand in the way. The result can be easily foreshadowed. It is plain that the Spanish forces are badly organized, and that they are without intelligent leadership. This is evident in the failure to place a guard about the city's water supply when an invading army was approaching the place. Shafter makes no mention of the diversion of the city's water supply, but there is no question that General Lawton had it in his power to inflict this serious blow, and this fact in itself is sufficient commentary on the character of the city's defenses.

The war department has been making preparations to show that it does not look for a long siege, and this would seem to indicate that it expects an immediate assault. The department is planning to feed the population of Santiago after the city shall have been taken by Shafter, and arrangements have been made to send additional rations without delay. Shafter is supplied already with rations for 16,000 men for two months. This would be ample for a siege. Duffield's brigade has 10 days' rations, and Garrettson's will have a like supply.

In a pinch the rations now on hand are for a month's supply for 100,000 people, but the department is going to send immediately as much more. The plan appears to be to use the rations now on hand for feeding the populace of Santiago, the Cubans, and the pacificos who will be thrown on our hands as soon as Shafter takes the city, and who will be practically without means of subsistence except as they obtain them from it, so that this will be no mean task; and if Shafter's army is to undertake any other operations after seizing the city, it will need the food which the commissary general has arranged to send.

Commodore Watson's orders to leave "immediately" for the Spanish coast with the eastern squadron still stand, but the purpose of their announcement having been served in the probable recall of Admiral Camara's squadron, it was stated unofficially at the navy department yesterday that it would probably be two weeks before Commodore Watson's squadron would be ready. Meanwhile it is hoped that General Shafter will report the capture of Santiago, and, if it is not thought best to wait for the victory at San Juan, Admiral Sampson can then proceed with an enlarged eastern squadron to attack the coast of Spain. The attack on Spain can very well be postponed, however, until after the taking of Porto Rico. Meanwhile, Commodore Watson's squadron would be available if Admiral Dewey should ask for reinforcements.

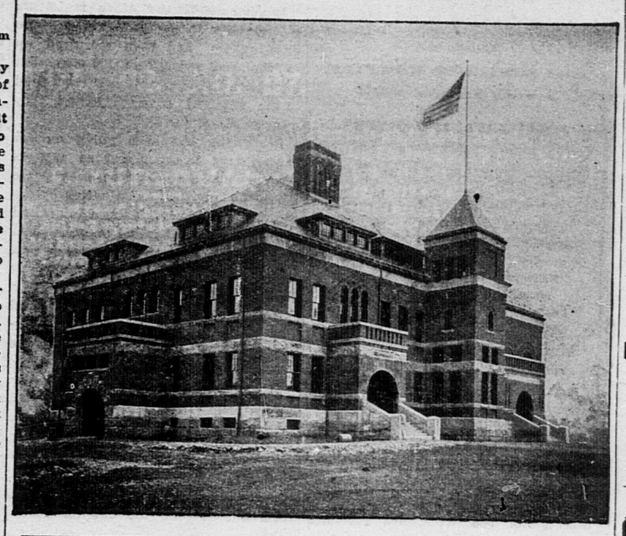
HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATION.

"Juste et Recte" the Motto of the Class of '98---- Royal Purple and Gold the Class Colors.



An unusually large class was graduated last evening from the Quincy High School, there being 34 in the four-years course and 37 in the business course. The following programme of marked excellence was given:

1. MUSIC,—(a) "Stars and Stripes," . . . . . SOUSA
   By the High School Orchestra:
   Messrs. Marnock, Bates, and Greene, First Violins;
   Messrs. Anderson and Greene, Second Violins; Mr. Woods, Cornet.
   (b) "Anchored," . . . . . M. WATSON
   By the School.
   Solo by Mr. Biganess.
2. SALUTATORY ORATION ON THE CLASS MOTTO, . .
   Miss Grace Lothrop Durgin.
3. MUSIC,—Vocal Solo, "L'Esperance," . . . . . HUTET
   Miss Zanetta Sprague, 1900.
   Violin Obligato by Mr. Marnock.
4. VALEDICTORY ORATION,—"The Culture of the Imagination,"
   *Miss Florence May Osborne.

   (b) "The Voyagers," . . . . .
   Misses Bates, Osborne, Williams, Lull, Phelan, and Sprague.
   Messrs. Briggs, Mar[illegible] Mal[illegible] Mr. George Randall Lewis.
7. MUSIC,—Solo and Chorus, "Old Glory is Waving." . . . MANNEY
   By the School.
   Solo by Mr. Biganess. Orchestral accompaniment.
8. ADDRESS, ...
   Hon. Alfred S. Roe.
9. MUSIC,—"Class Ode," . . . . . .
   By the Class of 1898.
   Words by Miss E. G. Ward. Music by McGranahan.
10. PRESENTATION OF DIPLOMAS, ...
    Hon. Charles H. Porter.
11. MUSIC,—"Anvil Chorus," . . . . . VERDI
    By the School. Orchestral accompaniment.

*Of equal rank.

The school marched in to the popular opening march which was creditable to the school orchestra, and the school and choruses sang all their selections with clear enunciation and entered into the musical spirit. The solos of Mr. Biganess both had the right ring, and forecast a brilliant future in the musical world.

The salutatory oration was an excellent literary production, perfectly memorized and well delivered. It is given in full:

SALUTATORY ORATION.

Salvete! Salvete! Friends, teachers, fellow-students. In behalf of the class of '98 I greet you on this twenty-ninth day of June, in the year of our Lord 1898. Believe me it is with sincere and heart-felt thanks that on this last evening of our delightful course we meet you, our friends, and parents, who have aided us both by your encouragement and your interest. We hope we have left a record that will redound to the honor of this High school, which we love so much. And may we leave an excellent impression among Quincy's good folk.

And teachers, you it is who have guided our frail barks over the stormy seas, and by your instructions have warned us of many reefs and shoals. We trust that at the remembrance of the class of '98 thoughts of naught but good may arise in your minds. Doubtless many and many a time we have been "a perverse and untoward generation," but it is our hearts' earnest prayer that the good in our school lives may outweigh the bad.

Fellow-students and undergraduates, no words seem more fitting to leave with you than those of our motto. Three little words comprise this, but its meaning is not to be expressed by any meagre vocabulary. Behold: Juste et Recte—Justly and Uprightly—If to the utmost extent of our ability we follow this motto in every deed of our lives, what will be wanting? Some one has said that valuable articles come in small packages, and it seems so in this case. If everything is carried out on these principles, there will be no need of teaching brotherly love. What advice could be more appicable to every walk and station in life? Lawyer, clergyman, physician, teacher, housewife, have all an equal opportunity of treating their fellow-beings with justice. And, classmates, what is more, treat yourselves justly and uprightly. By this I do not mean be egotistical, far from it, but I do mean, take some credit to yourselves, and have some confidence in your own ability. What can one achieve without confidence or faith? Could Nelson have worked the wonders that he did, if he had not possessed the faith that makes all things possible? Or could our own Dewey have been successful, if he had not felt well-grounded confidence in his ability? Let us not care too much what others may say about us, for we know it is impossible to please everyone. Let us treat all "fairly and squarely." Take care of the character, and the reputation will take care of itself.

Virtue is truly its own reward, and right will sometime triumph. Even if we are lowly and despised of men, let us remember that there is one who hath suffered like unto us, and who is no respecter of persons. And he it is who shall give us our final reward.

To use another figure, we are young, we are just beginning our life edifices; may we not then take the principles of our motto as the foundations? Upon these we shall raise structures, but of what sort shall they be? Are they to be worthy of the foundations, than which better could not be found? We must strive to have our buildings worthy of the corner stones, and to erect those that shall be a lasting memorial of our kindness and justice to those about us. The exuberance and vitality of youth are not to be crushed by one or many blows. What a power for good then we can be.

Think of the many who, like us, are now leaving their Alma Mater, who if they used their push and energy in the right direction might show the world what a revolution it needs and should Action Postponed.

At the regular meeting of the directors of the Woodward Institute held Wednesday, the following motion was passed:

"Resolved that the question of what is suitable for entertainment at Commencement shall be settled by the board prior to the event."

The meeting was entirely harmonious. And it developed that the difficulty at the recent graduates' reception arose from a misunderstanding and that therefore blame attaches to no one.

Fenton—Paullin.

A very pretty wedding took place in the Baptist church, Shiloh, N. J., on Wednesday, June 20. Miss Anna Elizabeth, daughter of Dr. Geo. M. Paullin, was married to Mr. William Fenton, Jr., of Wollaston.

The ceremony was performed at two o'clock before a large and distinguished audience by the Rev. I. L. Cottrell, pastor of the church.

A brother of the bride, met the bridal party at the altar.

The bride was becomingly attired in a rich white taffeta silk, with chiffon and pearl trimmings with a tulle veil, and carried a bouquet of white sweet peas.

The bridesmaid, Miss Carrie Iredell of Bridgeton, N. J., wore an empire gown of pink silk, and also wore a large leghorn hat trimmed with chiffon and plumes, and carried a bouquet of roses.

The ushers were Samuel Iredell, Esq., and Mr. George Laning of Bridgeton, N J.; Mr. Royal L. Cottrell of Mystic, Conn.; and Mr. Joseph Tomlinson of Shiloh, N. J.

A reception was held at the bride's home immediately after the ceremony.

After a wedding tour a reception will be given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fenton, at Wollaston, on July 9th.

Co. K Goes to Camp with Its Regiment.

At last Company K and the 5th regiment have left for the front to do service for the United States, and to do their part toward freeing Cuba from the oppression of Spain, and although the 5th is the last regiment to be called, it will have the distinction of being the largest regiment that ever left the state.

In the case of the other regiments of the state they were first sent to Framingham and then recruited up to the army strength of 106 men, but in the 5th the companies were recruited to the required strength before they went to camp.

Recruiting has been going on for several days in Co. K and as fast as anyone made application they were given the physical examination by the regimental surgeon. Many who desired to go to the front failed to pass, but there were enough that did pass so that up to Wednesday night nearly one hundred had been accepted.

Many new applications were received Wednesday night and will go to Framingham today, where they will take the examination.

A visit to the Armory Wednesday night found everything quiet, although an air of seriousness prevailed, for the men realized that they were now being called out for business and that when they were sworn into the service of the United States, it was for business, from one end of the chapter to the other.

Those who reported at the Armory Wednesday night were busy packing their knapsack and bags, and no attempt at drill was made.

This morning the men reported at 6.30 and from that hour until the train was taken at 8.08, the Armory was a scene of busy activity.

Most of the members had said their goodbyes to their families and friends before leaving home, yet there were many who journeyed to Braintree this morning for one more shake of the hand of those who were dear to them, for in grim warfare none know what may happen or how many may give up their lives for their country.

At 7.30 the men were lined up in the Armory, and Capt. Kincaide gave them a few parting instructions. To the new recruits he said: "Stand erect, keep your eyes to the front, and remember that now you are soldiers." be exchanged later at Framingham, while the new recruits wore the brown canvas suits and slouch hat.

The new recruits were a hardy looking set of men as one would wish to see and have the making of as good soldiers as any Uncle Sam has sent up to the present time. That they want to render a good account of themselves was plainly evident from the determined expression that characterized their sunburnt faces.

There were 58 of the new men in line aside from the old company and as they marched from the Armory to the depot they made a very favorable impression.

The train leaving Braintree at 8.08 had two special cars attached for the company, and as it pulled out of the depot there was many a wet eye and quivering lips among those left on the depot platform.

In Boston the regiment formed in Post Office Square and took the line of march shortly after 9 o'clock over this route: Milk street to Broad, to State, to Washington, to School, to Beacon, to Arlington, to Boylston, to Huntington avenue, to the Mechanics building.

The regiment was reviewed at City Hall by Mayor Quincy and city officials of Boston, and at the State House by Governor Wolcott and staff and many Senators and Representatives. At these two points in particular the sidewalks were densely packed and there was considerable enthusiasm. Some would recognize one company and applaud them, and others would single out another company.

There was continuous applause all along the line for Col. Whitney and his staff at the head of the procession. Martland's band of Brockton furnished music. Maj. Morrison was in command of the first batallion, and his eye was always to the front.

Capt. Kincaide and the men of Co. K made an excellent showing and won frequent applause.

The recruits constituted a third batallion, and although they did not make as fine appearance as the regular company members, they came in for their share of the applause.

Boston & Albany trains were taken near the Mechanics Building shortly after ten o'clock, and at noon the regiment was in camp at South Framingham.

Memorial Church.

At the Atlantic Memorial church last Sunday morning Rev. J. H. Whitaker preached a sermon to young people on "Character." There was a large attendance considering the unusual heated temperature, and the advice, encouragement and incentive to aspiration in the discourse well repaid the audience for the extra exertion of being present with thermometer in the nineties.

Mr. Stowe of Jamaica Plain sang two fine solos "Palm Branches" and Gounod's "Forever with the Lord."

At the evening service Mr. H. E. Washburn a business man of Rev. Mr. Gordon's church of Boston, spoke very interestingly, and impressively of "Christian Service." He had recently visited some of the camps of the Massachussetts regiments, and from that experience drew lessons for and made comparisons with the work to be rendered to the Master in the ordinary Christian life.

The evening quartette sang in their usual pleasing manner.

The following letter has been received by the secretary of the Quincy Yacht club:

Dear Sir: I wish to heartily thank the members of your club who came out in rowboats to my capsized yacht "Demon" on Sunday afternoon and assisted in righting her and afterwards towed her ashore at Grape island. She sustained no damage except a small hole on the port side of the bottom and the loss of the tiller. The hole was similar to a knot hole and was easily stopped. At about 6.30 P. M. I started for Germantown for which place I was bound, arriving there at 8.15 P. M. I was so busy I did not notice when your people went away or I should have thanked them personally. Yours truly,

FRANK T. WOOD.

Faxon lodge of Atlantic was very pleasantly surprised Monday evening by a visit from Home Circle lodge, Sutcliffe and members of other lodges. A very pleasant evening was enjoyed. The members listened to a stirring address from Brother Sutcliffe. Faxon lodge has returned to its old home in the vestry of the M. E. church.

THE SCORE.

DEWEY,	1
HOBSON,	12
SAMPSON,	02
SCHLEY,	022
CERVERA,	NIT.

FIRST INNING.

Dewey strode to the home plate, made a smashing hit at the first crack out of the box, and sent a hot grounder that went down among the Alphonsos, but which they failed to grasp. Dewey cantered around the bases and came in on a home run. The Bleachers went wild and a lady reporter from Chelsea swallowed her gum.

All the Boston newspaper reporters went down to the players' bench and solemnly congratulated Dewey and thanked him for following out their instructions.

Sampson popped up a fly, but the Alphonsos being a little weary, failed to get under it, and Sampson sat down on first base to wait till the Alphonsos' 1st baseman came back from the bull fight. Hobsen followed Sampson and hit at the first wild ball that came his way. Took desperate chances and made one of the greatest plays ever made on any field, but got caught at third. The game was called on account of rain before the Alphonsos got a hit. The score at the end of the first half of first inning stood: Dewey, won one; Hobson, won, too; Sampson, ought, to; Schley, ought, to, too; Cervera, nit. The game will be finished on Jan. 1st, year 2,000.

If you want to make a hit this week, come down and get a rough and ready Straw Hat for 98 cts. They are Boston's $2.00 kind, only we don't charge you for the name.

You can buy a Red, White and Blue Tie for 4c. Put the band around your neck and hear it play Hurrah for the Red, White and Blue.

If you want to take it cool get a crash hat for 24c. You can get a Blue Serge Suit (all worsted) for $7.50 and go and catch a high ball with what you save. If you want to make a two-bagger, buy two linen collars for 25c. Negligee Shirts, 45c. These are not worth any more, but some people sell them for 50c. and claim they are worth 75c.

ON THE RETREAT.

Spaniards Fail to Make Stand at Caney.

Kingston, Jamaica, June 30—A dispatch from General Shafter states that he has decided to establish his headquarters in the field. He went to the front last night occupying a tent with General Wheeler. The seige guns have started for the front. The Spanish have practically evacuated Caney, a point near Santiago at which they were expected to make a stand.

Waiting for Coal.

Port Said, June 30—The fleet of Admiral Camara is still here and is now said to be waiting for transports with coal. If they arrive it is announced that he will leave his torpedo boats here and proceed to the Philippines with his war vessels.

Send-Off.

A pleasant send-off was given to Corporal William J. Leslie and Private Charles F. Leslie of Co. K, 5th Regiment, last evening. There were about 75 present, among whom were many prominent relatives and friends of the boys.

There friends enjoyed themselves by singing and games. Refreshments were served during the evening.

A Send-off.

A number of the friends of Frank Pierce, who went away with Co. K, gave him a reception at Grand Army hall Wednesday evening, to which a number of other Quincy boys who have enlisted were also present. The affair was an informal one but none the less enjoyable. Private Pierce was presented with a silver watch by his friends as a slight token of their appreciation, to which he responded, thanking them for their gift and promising to give a good account of himself. Mr. J. P. O'Brien who was present, loaded the boys down with a full supply of cigars, tobacco and pipes. Crackers and cheese were served and also cool tonics.

Will be Reinstated.

Mayor Sears sent the following personal letter to Officer William E. Morrissey previous to his departure for the front with Company K.

Quincy, June 29, 1898.

Mr. William E. Morrissey,

Dear Sir: I am informed that you have enlisted with Company K, 5th regiment, to go to the front in the present war, and I desire to say to you before you go, that if I am in office as mayor, I shall be pleased to reinstate to you your office as special policeman of this city, immediately upon your return.

If war is prolonged I feel sure that whoever may be mayor of this city upon your return will be pleased to take occasion to reappoint you to the position which you left to join the army. Wishing you health, happiness and a safe return, I remain,

Very truly yours,
RUSSELL A. SEARS.

for him—or he may act honestly and quietly and let the office seek the man. If he takes the former course, he may, or he may not be elected, but he has lost his honor forever,—if the latter, whatever befalls him, he has won the respect and confidence of his fellow citizens.

When John Quincy Adams was nominated for the presidency, he said "I shall not make the slightest effort to be elected," and he kept his word. Years afterward, when an old man, he died at his post in the House of Representatives and he had gained the respect and love of all the country.

Samuel Tilden, after having almost single handed broken up the Tweed Ring in New York was nominated by a grateful people for the presidency and followed Adams's example. He was not elected, but his name will always remain a symbol of honesty and courage. At present, when one reads of the vast sums of money spent to buy political power, he thinks of Adams and Tilden, and say "Those were men."

Now, friends, we cannot all vote and hold office, but we can serve our country in other ways. Let us obey her laws, honor "Old Glory" as long as we live, and always act in such a way as to bring America credit. In a word, let us love our country. It will pay us.

Patriotism is a virtue which can never be forgotten in any man no matter how humble he is, or how poor or how lacking in other good traits. Andrew Jackson, tyrannical and despotic though he was, gained twice the highest office an American can hold: and for what?—for his love of country. Washington and Lincoln in the United States, and in England, Gladstone, are fit examples of how patriotism is honored. All have their rewards. Washington's is a mighty nation of seventy millions of souls; Lincoln's is found in the freedom of millions of negroes; Gladstone's is the love of every Englishman.

And so every true citizen has his reward, if it is nothing more than the glow of satisfaction which comes from a fulfilment of his duties. Let him strive to be a patriot, and he will become one of the noblest works of God.

SENATOR ROE.

The address of the evening was delivered by Hon. Alfred S. Roe of Worcester. Mr. Roe was formerly master of the Worcester High, and Mr. Tupper taught there at the same time. With the surroundings and fame of Quincy, the senator said he supposed educators were willing to teach in Quincy for much less salary, which caused a smile at the outset. He spoke of the fame of the public schools of the commonwealth and the High schools in particular. How the State guarantees a High school education to all, so that poverty is no bar to a higher education. Massachusetts expends twice as much for education as any other State, and reports show it to "lead the band" intellectually and in resources.

The recent opening of colleges for girls was noted, and they were congratulated that they had equal opportunities and were improving them. The improvement in school buildings was also very marked, and Massachusetts towns were offering exceptionable opportunities, which are not perhaps fully appreciated.

The art decoration in the Quincy High, the orations and music of the evening, President John Adams and Quincy's great men, all were remembered by Mr. Roe in his exceedingly bright and interesting address.

THE CLASS SONG

Was written by Miss Elizabeth Gertrude Ward, one of the graduates, and the words follow. It was sung by the class.

Farewell to Alma Mater's halls,
With saddened thoughts we leave her walls,
To launch our barks on Fortune's wave,
There unknown fears to meet and brave.

Four years in golden Wisdom's quest
Of all our years we count the best,
In Mem'ry's fortress they will last,
Unscathed by Fortune's changing blast.

And may the class of Ninety-eight,
In duties small as well as great,
Bring naught but honor to the name
That adds each year to Quincy's fame.

And, classmates, though we now must part,
The thoughts of Friendship fill each heart
With love, that time shall ne'er efface,
Till Mem'ry holds no more its place.

Col. Porter, the chairman of the School Committee, in presenting the diplomas, gave the graduates a few words of timely advice, telling them to keep their eyes and ears open, and to strive to keep to the class motto. Take an advanced education if possible. Be patriotic. He complimented the boys for singing. Diplomas were presented individually as follows:

Verdict for $3000.

The suit of Thayer vs. the Quincy Electric Light and Power Co. was heard again in the Superior court at Dedham Monday and Tuesday, and the jury gave a verdict for the plaintiff for $3000 and expenses on Wednesday. At the first trial the plaintiff, F. A. Thayer, received a verdict of $6000 but it was set aside by Judge Dunbar as excessive. Thayer was given the option of taking $1000 or a new trial. He took the latter and was successful in obtaining a larger award.

Thayer was injured in July 1894 while trimming an electric arc light at Brewer's corner. Paul R. Blackmur and S. L. Whippel appeared for the plaintiff, and John Lowell and Walter Austin for the company.

CRUSHED TO DEATH.

Employe of Street Railway Killed at Power Station.

Joseph Faircloth, an employe of the Quincy & Boston street railway, was killed this morning at the power house at Quincy Point. Faircloth and another employe were at work putting truck under one of the company's large open cars. The car was propped up by blocking placed under the running board.

The other man left the room for a few moments and while left alone Faircloth got down on his knees beneath the car and removed the bolts that held the runningboard in position. The result was that the car fell upon him breaking his back and legs, causing almost instant death.

When the other workman returned and discovered Faircloth's position, aid was quickly summoned as was also a physician. The car was with difficulty removed but he was dead.

Faircloth had been in the employ of the road for some time up to recently as an extra motorman. He was about 30 years of age, unmarried and lived on Phipps street.

HIGH SCHOOL.

have. So let us not take our motto for one night alone, but let us continue to live according to its precepts. We ought not to expect to be rewarded for every good deed, we ought rather to do right, because we wish our dealings to be just and upright. And as we part, some to go to higher institutions, some to leave school, it may be never to enter its halls again as students, let us remember that we shall be a power either for good or for evil. No one can force us to work in oppposition to our motto; above all things be faithful to its teachings and remember "juste et recte"

There were two valedictorians of equal rank and as Senator Roe remarked the class with so much wisdom was truly blessed. Miss Osborne's excellent paper follows in full:

It would be well for the modern prosaic generation, or at least for some of its members, if a kindly goddess were to bestow upon all, a certain magical gift—the gift of a good imagination. Its possessor owns a fairy wand whose power will never fail and whose slightest touch can transform the commonplace into the beautiful, and darkness into light. Its power cannot be estimated. When a miner walks along without a light in the dark underground passages of a deep mine, he is utterly unaware of the beauties that lie around him until he lights his candle. Then what a change! For the tiny rays make the barren walls flash with glistening ore and sparkling gems. A good imagination is like that lighted candle, that brightens the path of its possessor with glowing wonders.

The ancients cultivated their imaginations to a very great degree. We learn from mythology of their different beliefs or myths, most of which can be traced to natural phenomena. But how different is the modern way of regarding these same events! The people of today, if they wish to say that the sun rose early and shone brightly all day, use merely those very words, but the ancients were more poetical. They would have said that Phoebus, the sun-god, when the flying steeds had been harnessed to the gold and silver chariot pursued his course through the heavens till the beautiful sea-goddess welcomed him at night to the western gates beneath the ocean.

In the olden times every tree had its dryad, every fountain its nymph and every wave of the sea its own presiding divinity. Nature then seemed much nearer to mankind, and men could better understand the workings of nature, when human passions and emotions were attributed to natural objects. Even the gods although perfect physically had their human attributes, and men and gods were thus in closer unity.

There are no persons who possess greater imagination than young children. They invent their little plays and stories, and are all the happier for them. A child once saw his mother fill a lamp, and afterward remarked that mamma was giving the lamp a drink. Now what older person would have thought of this? It is to be deplored that as children grow older, many of them, without realizing their loss, gradually lose the vivid imagination of their childhood.

It is admitted by many that the reading of fairy stories cultivates the imagination. This is one of the influences tending to make the child's mind so imaginative. The little one reads or hears of the fairy godmother, the beautiful princess or the magical talisman, and immediately proceeds to invent others for their own little plays. But the older people grow, the less, as a rule, they read fairy tales. They learn the truth about the fairy-folks and cease reading about them, because they think it is childish, thus showing that they do not realize what they are losing.

In reading, a good imagination is almost a necessity, for without it the reader must miss half the enjoyment Some writers form pictures of only a few words, but the words cannot be united to form the mind-picture, without the aid of the imagination. Tennyson gives us an example in these lines from his Princess.

"A court
Compact with lucid marbles, bossed with lengths
Of classic frieze, with ample awnings gay,
Betwixt the pillars, and with great urns of flowers.
The Muses and the Graces grouped in threes,
Enring'd a billowing fountain in the midst;
And here and there on lattice edges lay,
Or book or lute."

Now of themselves these lines will mean merely words, but a good imagination can easily unite them all in a mind-picture of that beautiful spot with its statuary and verdure, where the Princess or her pupils played and studied. There are hosts of examples such as this, that can be taken from the works of many authors in the world's history.

One of the missions of the poet is to increase the imaginative powers of his fellow-beings. It would never do to have a world too matter-of-fact. Beauty would either disappear entirely or would fail to be appreciated.

Napoleon once said, "Imagination rules the world." If it has not ruled the whole world it has certainly held sway over the minds of those famous mortals who have made names for themselves in the world's history. Did not Imagination guide the chisel of Phidias and Angelo? Did she not direct Raphael's brush and Shakspere's pen? Did she not aid Handel, Beethoven and may other famous musicians in producing works that remains unrivalled?

The average modern American is greatly in need of Imagination's influence. He is too little accustomed to regard matter from a poetic point of view, and so, loses half their value. There will be a change for the better only when the tendency towards materialism has been overcome. It is to be hoped that some day, greater efforts will be made during school-life to retain and strengthen the imagination of the child as his age increases. When the imagination has been properly cultivated, the powers of discernment, appreciation, penetration and other finer qualities of the mind will be developed to a high degree of efficiency, poetry and all other arts will flourish and the minds and hands of the people, as in the olden days, will be better fitted to achieve glory and fame to the everlasting honor of our country and the human race.

"The duties of a citizen" is a favorite theme, but in these warlike times it was in the hands of Mr. Lewis of unusual interest, as it was up-to-date, perfectly memorized, of good sentiments, and well delivered. It is given in full:

At no other period in the history of the United States has a citizen been summoned so imperatively as he is today to perform the duties which he owes his country. For over a hundred years we have stood as a nation virtually alone in the world and the eyes of all Europe have been upon us to see whether Democratic goverment would be a success. Other republics have been formed, but they have proved to be weak, for their governments we'e unstable and constantly fell to pieces. At the same time such republics, through their very weakness, became more arbitrary and despotic. Even France, great as she is, though a republic in form, is, in reality, a monarchy. The Spanish-American states are not much better than their mother country.

Of late years our own government has, in some cities and communities, fallen into a state of corruption which should mortify every American. We see in many places great rings formed to plunder the public treasury; in others vast trusts, which, in direct defiance of the laws not only of the nation but of humanity itself, force up the prices of food and clothing and bring distress to thousands of homes. The brutal lynchings in the South, and the unwieldiness of our military system have laid us open to criticism from all the world. In a word, all of our institutions are undergoing a searching examination on the part of Europe. If, then, this is the case, surely every one in this country ought to do his share in showing the monarchies of the Old World how well a free people can govern itself. For this, good citizenship is necesary, and for good citizenship, some knowledge of its duties.

We shall speak first of one about which every one knows, and which all are willing to do—the duty of fighting for one's country. It is enough to say that, if Washington and his men had not felt that duty, we should never existed as a nation. Eighty years afterwards, it was that same noble duty nobly performed which kept the country from disintegration. America has not forgotten that obligation today for in the present war hundreds of thousands have volunteered for service. Many of course were turned away but these in plying their different trades have served the nation in another way, for they have built up its resources and furnished the sinews of war.

And now let us consider a civic function at present restricted to men but which let us hope in a short time will be open to both sexes. I refer to the franchise. Too much cannot be said of the necessity of voting, for it is one of the most important, and, at the same time, one of the most dangerous rights a citizen can have. In the hands of an honest man it is a blessing, but when unscrupulous citizens misuse the ballot then appears bad government. But scarcely better than the dishonest voter is the non voter, who fritters away the greatest privilege which our forefathers won by hard fighting, and who, by his apathy in regard to his country's welfare helps pave the way for boss rule in its worst forms. Scores of our cities are ruled by dictators, and how can we consider any man a patriot who passively submits to this loss of liberty.

From the subject of voting let us pass to that of holding office. This can be best illustrated by an example. A citizen, let us say, is nominated for a certain position and like Hercules of old, he was the choice of two courses. He may spend thousands of dollars in buying the support of politicians, he may travel about the country making speeches and asking the people to vote beginning of Commodore Watson's new work, but the navy department was glad to hear that the accident was no worse, and that no lives were lost.

President McKinley is gratified with the very complete arrangements the navy department has made for the perfection of the Cuban blockade. He announced that he wanted it arranged so "that a mosquito could not run the blockade," in order that there might be no further question on this point.

Camara to Sail.

London, June 30.—The Port Said correspondent of The Daily Chronicle, telegraphing Wednesday, says: "Admiral Camara expects to sail Thursday, leaving the torpedo boat destroyers here. The repairs to the Audaz will occupy another 10 days. The Colon has landed a man suffering from smallpox."

Went Into Camp.

Boston, June 30.—The last regiment of the state militia that can be furnished the general government by the commonwealth, augmented to almost double its strength when a part of the state force, marched through Boston this morning on the way to South Framingham and active service. The Fifth regiment went out under command of its militia colonel, Colonel J. H. Whitney, a veteran of the Civil war. At the state house, Governor Wolcott and staff, with heads of the state department and others, reviewed the command. On reaching South Framingham, the regiment marched directly to the camp grounds, where tents for its use had been pitched.

Spanish Are Optimists.

Madrid, June 30.—In an interview yesterday afternoon, Lieutenant General Correa, minister of war, said the government had no special news from Cuba, but took a favorable view of the situation. He asserted that Admiral Camara's squadron had begun the passage of the Suez canal.

It is announced that the Vitorria, the Numancia, the Alfonso XIII and the Lepanto, all armored cruisers, are ready to form the third squardon.

The cruiser Antonio Lopez, while trying to enter the San Juan river secretly with a cargo of provisions and war material, was detected by two American warships, but escaped by swiftly changing her course. Her captain, determined to land his cargo, headed for shore at Salinas. The shock of grounding exploded the boiler. It is not known whether there was any loss of life. Two gunboats issued to the assistance of the Lopez, whereupon the Americans withdrew and the Lopez landed her cargo.

If the United States imagine that the threat to bombard Spanish ports would induce the Spaniards to recall Camara and to sue for peace, the Americans are bound to be disappointed. The threat has only tended to excite the bulldog qualities of the Spanish national character. The peace prospects therefore are much less bright than they were a week ago.

World Looks Smiling.

London, June 30.—Lord Salisbury, the premier, addressing the United club in this city last evening, said: "There is a cloud on the horizon, one that does not affect us personally, but which evokes the deepest sorrow and our earnest desire for its removal. It is the war of two great states, between whom we are neutral—one bound to us by every tie of kindred and similarity of institutions and religion; the other the state that fought on our side when we struggled with the threatening tyranny of the first Napoleon. Watching this terrible war, we are bound to abstain from expressing any preference or any judgment on either side. We know that in both cases the motives were of the highest character. We know that the United States are animated by elevated philanthropy, and that Spain is inspired by that love of independence which was the greatest pride of all nations. I can only say I earnestly wish the day may speedily arrive when this terrible slaughter between two nations will cease and the world restored to peace. With this exception, the world looks smilingly enough to us politically."

Citizens Who Lied.

Washington, June 30.—The 600-ton American schooner Clara A. Phinney of New Bedford some days ago was authorized to clear with 700 tons of coal from Mobile to Vera Cruz on affidavits of reliable citizens of Mobile that the coal was destined for railroad purposes. On reaching Vera Cruz, Captain Phinney was directed by L. Jonblanc, his consignee, to place his vessel alongside a Spanish steamer. In the presence of a group of Spanish sympathizers, Captain Phinney bluntly refused, declaring with emphasis that no vessel in his charge should ever lie alongside a ship bearing the flag of his country's enemy, much less supply her with even a pound of coal. The captain, with a crowd at his heels, marched to the American consulate and notified the consul. Exports of coal to Mr. Jonblanc of Vera Cruz will cease, and the department will undertake to fix responsibility and punishment for the deed.

When we read of a railroad wreck in which a hundred people are killed, we are filled with pity and horror. There are other dangers in this life a thousand times greater than that of the railroad wreck, only we do not have them brought so forcibly to our attention. Consumption does not kill a hundred people at once in one train. It does kill tens of thousands for every one that is killed by accident.

If a sufferer will resort to the right remedy before it is too late, consumption can be cured. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures 98 per cent. of all cases if taken in the earlier stages. It has maintained this record for thirty years. Many of those whom it has rescued from the verge of the grave have permitted their names, addresses, experiences and photographs to be printed in Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. This useful book is free, and any sufferer who wishes to investigate may procure it and write to those who were once sufferers themselves. For a paper covered copy send 21 one-cent stamps, to cover cost of mailing only, to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y. The "Golden Medical Discovery" is the great blood-maker and flesh-builder. It restores the lost appetite, corrects the impaired digestion, makes the liver active and the blood pure. Any medicine dealer who offers you something else said to be "just as good" is thinking about his pocketbook and not about your health.

"I have taken Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Favorite Prescription' with wonderful results," writes Mrs. Annie M. Norman, of Equinunk, Wayne Co., Pa. "I had consumption; the doctors said I'd die. The 'Golden Medical Discovery' cured me."
